New Dorm Rises; Will House 400

Very Rev. James A. Donnellon, O. S. A., Prior of Villanova Monastery turned the first spadeful of earth for the new million dollar dormitory at the official groundbreaking ceremony, September 22.

Robert Strayton, a freshman, was chosen from the audience of faculty members, friends of the school, and students, to represent the students, both past and present.

It will have 200 student rooms, each 12 feet square, housing 400 students. Just off the main entrance will be two large reception rooms. Two recreation rooms, each the size of four student rooms, and living quarters for a prefect will also be provided on each floor, in addition to two giant lavatories.

FATHER McGUIRE mounts the powerful diesel tractor which began moving ground for the new million dollar dorm. Completion of building is expected early in 1955.

The structure, financed with the aid of a Government loan, will be modified collegiate Gothic architecture, according to Henry D. Dagit and Sons, Architects. The builders, Joseph R. Farrell and Co., say the limestone building will take approximately sixteen months to complete, barring strikes and material shortages. The architect's drawing of the dorm is reproduced above.

Among the many modern features which will be found in the building are: tile and marble lavatories, asphalt tile flors, and glazed tile steps.

The four story high, U-shaped dormitory will be 305 feet long.

Connelly Award Backed As Council Reconvenes

The biggest topic, and perhaps the most controversial, before the Student Council in its recent reorganization meeting was the recommendation that the Connelly Award be returned after a two-year lay-off. It was felt that if the award wins official backing, it will be presented sometime over the week-end of the Xavier game, which is scheduled for October 31, which is also the date set for Father's Day.

Other matters which were acted on by the Council included voting Villanova's Debating Society, Beta Gamma, a seat on the Council. The Society's vice-president, George Minser, filled that post.

The Council unanimously backed a bill to provide a weekly Social Calendar which is to list all club meetings as well as dances. This calendar will appear in the Villanovan.

Joe Kenney, Council president, won unanimous backing in his appointment of committee heads. Jack Kneafsey, Joe Zator and Bob Gold are chairmen of the Election Committee, the Ways and Means Committee, and the Fraternities and Societies Committee, respectively.

A Tea Dance has been planned for Sunday afternoon, October 10, with the intention of introducing our freshman class to the girls from the local schools. Upperclassmen interested are equally welcome.

"Ladies Night" Another First

Football's "Greatest Show On Earth"—the Villanova Wildcats will add something new to the gridiron world at its next home game against the University of Detroit, Friday night, October 16th.

Ambrose Dudley, Villanova's athletic director, who startled the football world a few weeks ago with the sale of 60,000 tickets to the American Stores Company has come up with another first.

For The Ladies

At the Detroit game, Villanova will conduct a gala Ladies Night program. All ladies, with or without escort, will be admitted to the contest at a special reduced rate.

Ladies who attend will not only see a top notch football game, but will also be treated to an unusual outdoor fashion show during the halftime of the contest. Twenty beautiful models from Strawbrige & Clothier Co., will display smart fall and winter fashions for the ladies and their friends under the lights at Connie Mack Stadium.

Although a regular affair for many major league baseball teams, "Ladies Day" is entirely new to the field of college football.

16 New Members Added to Faculty For Fall Semester

The Administration has announced the following faculty chances for the school year 1953-1954. Arts School: the new members are Dr. Edward Monahan, of Philosophy Department, Dr. Fritz Nova, History Department, Dr. Charles Bernadin and Dr. John Phillipson, English Department and Mr. Bernard Bonniwell, Psychology Department. They replace Mr. Summo of Psychology, Mr. E. J. Doyle and Mr. A. Kilcullen of English, Mr. Santangelo of the Spanish Department and Rev. Henry Eagan, O. S. A. of the Mathematics and Religion departments.

Commerce and Finance School additions are Mr. Pearce of the Accounting Department, Mr. Sands of Finance and Mr. Burgess of Marketing. In the Engineering School, Mr. John Hopwood, Mr. Charles Michener, Mr. William McNichol and Mr. Don Klein have been added while Mr. Charles Georgi has resigned.

The following changes have been made in the Naval Science Department: Lieutenant Colonel E. Wilson, USMC, for Lieutenant Commander H. Shard, USN-R as executive officer, Lieutenant Commander I. M. Rowell, USN, replacing Lieutenant Commander W. O'Brien USN, Lieutenant W. R. Fitzwilson USN succeeding Lieutenant A. DiVito USN and Lieutenant (jg) Je Lacy USN replacing Lieutenant Commander R. J. Washer.

Father Coffey Leads Retreat

"Give more to Jesus." That was the theme of the annual one day retreat held on the first of October with Rev. John J. Coffey, O. S. A. acting as Retreat Master.

To obtain divine graces and happiness, Villanova students were told, one must give to Jesus; give up worldly desires and weaknesses; give in to Christ's Holy Will and give out with good acts.

Father Coffey maintained that there are forces of good and evil within everybody. To insure that the good triumphs and that we be disciplined men of God, Father Coffey advised:

1. Discipline must be constantly viligant—open war must be declared against evil;

2. The battle against sin must be comprehensive—we can let no weakness go uncorrectd;

3. Initiative must be taken and maintained in the battle of life—virtues opposite our vices must be established.

In our fight against sin, we must never become discouraged, because, Father Coffey insisted, discouragement and despair are wedges used by Satan to open our souls to malice, hate, and other evils. When adversity strikes, we must pray to Christ. He is the greatest Source of courage.

"... I was petrified!"

Just The Facts, Ma'am

"What's the scoop on the dames around this place?" sulked a baffled Freshman during the early days of orientation, "I thought this school was for boys!" His confused mind was grappling with the perplexing problem when a kind and sympathetic campus reporter came upon the scene, and hearing the young lad's tale of woe undertook the task of solving the mystery.

Talk about changes!

He went after the facts . . . just the facts . . . and discovered THIS:

These girls are newly arrived co-eds. They may be seen in such everyday classes as philosophy, English, religion and science. In addition, the girls are enrolled in nursing courses.

Seniors to Elect

The Seniors will hold a special election a week from today to decide the winner of last year's tie for the position of Treasurer of the class.

In the contest for that position last May, James Boyle and Richard Kelly tied with 103 votes apiece. The voting will be conducted in the Alumni Gym from ten until two.

All Seniors are requested to vote for this important office. Matriculation cards will be necessary in order to vote.

Growing Up

Pick your ties up out of the gravy, men, it's not that bad! Villanova is trying on long pants.

A school which is over one hundred years old need not apologize for acknowledging its growing pains. And we extend a hearty welcome to the freshmen who are such a large indication of that healthy growth. They are just the ones who were accepted.

Signs of progress include the fine tennis courts and the beginning of the construction on the new dormitory along with discussion of big plans for the immediate future. One can hardly be blamed for impatience, but it is obvious that so far as we're concerned progress will be slow.

In the midst of this beginning of another year of study, Villanova students should realize that they too are coming of age. A sincere recognition of responsibility to be accompanied by a rededicatin of effort is in order.

The distinction between a pupil, one who is taught at, and a students, one who teaches himself, is the difference between an ordinary school and an outstanding one. Pupils do not belong at this college; it should be the home of students. Teachers are as aware as anyone that the processes of education involve more than work in class which is chiefly their work and does not require great effort by students.

No one should be ridiculed for having a reputation for being studious and eager to participate in the class room. Rather it is the scoffer who should be pitied. He abides by a false but common code which defines a student as an individual who is odd or who "worries too much". This attitude retards his own advancement as well as that of his school.

Catholic culture demands an educational institution with high spiritual and intellectual ideals. Some large schools tend to become educational factories with obscure ideals. If we do our share as students, Villanova cannot become such an institution. And the new trousers will fit.

A Fine Gesture

National Newspaper Week (Oct. 1-8) was only one day old last week when we spent a very interesting and valuable ten minutes speaking with Father McGuire, Villanova's president, on a timely subject—the newspaper at Villanova.

We agreed that the Villanovan will have been successful this year if it accomplishes three tasks:

1. Informs the readers. Has the news coverage been complete, accurate, and objective?

2. Exert a leading influence on the campus. Has the paper consistently suported and urged support of worthwhile movements and causes? Have we sought to elevate, as well as enlighten, our readers?

3. Better morale. Has the paper been a reliable spokesman, public relations agent, and salesman for Villanova, but not at the expense of truth?

Assuring Father McGuire that the Villanovan would place its complete support behind the college's mushrooming expansion program, we pointed out that this could only be achieved if the Villanovan were abreast of important developments in the program. Father McGuire then reveals that he will conduct a weekly conference for Villanovan reporters.

GERMANY From Ashes To Strength

EDITOR'S NOTE: Edwin Daly has just returned from an extended tour of ten European countries. This is the first of a series of three articles on what impressed him the most.

One of the most striking developments in this year is the rising prosperity of Germany, which becomes apparent to a traveler long before he enters that country. Luxuriously appointed busses carrying loads of German tourists are to be seen in every capital of western Europe. The German travelers one sees are among the best-dressed persons on the street. Huge German trucks roll along the main highways to France and the Low Countries almost to the exclusion of the domestic trucking of those countries.

Once a person crosses the German frontier, he sees even more indications of returning prosperity. We had a particularly good opportunity to judge since we entered Germany from the Netherlands and in so doing passed through the Ruhr Valley. The largest factories in the great industrial centers of Dusseldorf, Essen, and Duisburg-Hamborn are all back in operation. Even though we had been told many times of the industrial greatness of this region of Germany, we were certainly not prepared for the enormous industrial development we saw.

For mile after mile there was nothing to be seeen except huge industrial plants with scores of smokestacks and many hundreds of workers' cars in their parking lots. Most of these factories have apparently repaired all war damages.

Traffic Heavy

Another sign of German prosperity is the heavy traffic on the German highways. In most European countries the traffic is considerably less intense than in the United States, and in most of France and Italy it is amazingly light. German roads on the other hand bear almost as much traffic as do roads of corresponding importance in the United States. Although truck traffic is especially heavy, automobiles are also on the roads in great numbers. A good example of the intensity of German traffic is that on the road from Mainz to Frankfurt, an excellent road, we were able to average only 25 miles an hour because of the traffic. More than any other country in western Europe, Germany shows complete motorization.

Another prominent feature of Germany this year is the immense amount of reconstruction going on. In all the large German cities we visited, construction crews were busy erecting new buildings to replace structures obliterated during the war. In Cologne and in Franfurt new business districts have been built, with handsome new buildings of glass and steel.

War Still Shows

This, of course, is not to say that the job remaining to be done is not huge. Large sections of Cologne, Frankfurt, Munich, and many other major German cities are hardly more than desolate wastelands of shattered buildings. The destruction of German's cities was very thorough, and the job of reconstruction has been just begun. The beginning, though, is a good one, and although it will take many years to finish the task of rebuilding these war-ravaged cities, enormous progress has been made.

While traveling through Germany we often had occasion to ask ourselves what was the source of this great German boom. To us at least the answer seems to be work. The Germans work harder than other European people. There

A White Cap Speaks

A freshman is like a kid brother. He has to take a lot of advice from his teachers which as it should be. But once in a while a big brother upperclassman can tell him a thing or two, especially about adjusting to Villanova life. An upperclassman doesn't know very much, but he can speak from experience in this practical matter.

The barracks aren't much fun sometimes, and the chow hall doesn't offer Mother's best home cooking. It's easy to complain about the whole system and every upperclassman does his share of criticizing. But he can say more.

As a Catholic institution Villanova seeks to graduate the enlightened Catholic gentleman, which means that school is more than the classroom. Opportunities at Villanova for spiritual betterment are abundant. The school is not too large for the student to get to know his teachers and his administration. Villanova is ideally located for the socially-minded. The library is excellent and there are extra-curricular activities for all.

No one is going to push you. Educational opportunities are offered and you are invited to take advantage of them, but it is your own affair whether you do or don't. The Boy Scouts say "Be Prepared" and the Marines say "Semper Fidelis". Villanova just declares "tolle lege", "take up and read"..

All a student can hope for in his four years of college is a little foundation which will enable him to continue learning after graduation; college teaches us that there is a lot we don't know and how to learn.

Attitude means a great deal. Developing study habits is important. Your education is what you make it; it's no gift.

Don't worry about school spirit because you will have that. It is not puffed up or bolsterous, but is proud and sincere. It is developed when you become part of Villanova, when you have worked in and for your school.

It is easy to be a "joiner" and there are many joiners on every campus. It's harder and more important to be active in an organization and it is more profitable in enjoyment and experience.

This does not intend to imply that being busy is such a great virtue, only that the student has certain obligations which require him to make the most of the opportunities offered him and that this is the most fruitful way to treat going to college.

How we react to our responsibilities is quite important in the "infinite scheme of things".

New Faces:

This Prof Flew Bombers

LCDR. ROWELL

Last year the pages of the Villanovan carried a story on a professor who doubled as a Spitfire pilot. This year we have a story about a bomber pilot who doubles as a professor.

Lt. Commander Rowell, new Assistant Professor of Naval Science has been a professional aviator since 1939. Since the beginning of his flying career he has spent more than five thousand hours in the air. That is roughly two hundred and eight days in the cockpit of an airplane.

Living in a sleepy little town like Havertown and having to drive only five miles to teach navigation to a class of N.R.O.T.C. midshipmen must seem relatively quiet duty to a man who used to fly the Empire Express during World War II.

Aleutian Command

The Kuriel group, the northernmost islands of Japan, were the targets of Squadron 139 which flew out of Attu at the end of the Aleutian chain. Mr. Rowell was operations officer of that squadron of medium bombers from 1943 to the end of the war.

Lt. Commander Rowell learned his flying under the Civil Aeronautics Commission while still a student at New York University. After his graduation from College in 1941 he instructed pilots for the C.A.A. for a short time; then he joined the Naval Air Corps from which he received his wings and a commission in March of 1942.

For the next six months Mr. Rowell was stationed at Pensacola, Fla. as flight instructor in acrobatics. The following year he took students of advanced navigation on training flights out of Miami Beach, Florida. At the same time he instructed pilots in transport plane flying.

After taking a course in the operation of the P. V. medium bomber he completed the training given at the Navy Legal School. Then he joined squadron 139 and proceeded to Attu where he was training officer.

When the war ended Lt. Commander Rowell returned to the United States and spent the next three years as operations officer at the Patuxent River Station of Naval Air Transport Service.

From 1948 to 1949 Mr. Rowell spent some time in the Navy Line School in Newport, R. I. Then he went to Washington as Training and Assistant Operations officer. During this time he was personal pilot to Mr. Flohberg, then Assistant Secretary of Navy for Air.

This summer Mr. Rowell spent a short time at Northwestern University being "orientated" to teaching in the N.R.O.T.C. From there he came to Villanova.

Navy Summer Trainees Land In Va., Loop In Texas

By Rees James

AMONG OTHER THINGS Villanova midshipmen learned on cruises this summer was where this famed life jacket got its name. Here instructor demonstrates the art of donning a Mae West to Feature Editor Bill Quinn during three-week training spree at Corpus Christi, Texas.

With the epic lyrics of "I Don't Wanna Join The Navy" still ringing their sunburned ears, and the Nueces Hotel slowly crumbling in the arid sunlight, some thirty men sadly whispered, "Aloha", and left Corpus Christi, Texas . . . to the Indians.

A Vacation

This tender scene marked the end of our six week sojourn into a fairyland of jet planes, landing craft, and happy-go-luckly Marine Officers. We, the melancholy thirty, had been given this vacation as a reward for completing at least two years of arduous, highly technical training as Regular Midshipmen, NROTC Unit, Villanova College. We soon found that the Navy had ulterior motives.

Our initial training location was that playland of the Atlantic coast, Little Creek, Virginia. It seems that the Atlantic Fleet trains it amphibious units at Little Creek. Naurally the base is semi-submerged. Our purpose in being there was to take part in this training, and to learn what we could of amphibious operations.

Training aids were all over the place. The largest and most expensive of these was a soporific vessel known as the USS Chilton. During our four days on this ship, we rehearsed and actually took part in an invasion of the North Carolina coast. I think we won the battle. The most popular training aid among the Villanovans was a place called Rockwell Hall. It was here that we became proficient in the nautical skills of group singing and constructing towers of empty beers cans.

Exactly three weeks after arriving at Little Creek, the Navy shipped us by air freight to Corpus Christi. We made the flight to Texas in a transport which the Navy affectionately designates as a "Boxcar". As this all-purpose elephant winged its way west, two activities prevailed. Prayer and pinochle. It was, however, a fine flight, the first for many, but a poor warning of what was to come.

An SNJ is a dual-controlled trainer. It is a very simple aircraft. It consists of an engine, a paper bag, and then a Midshipmen. Between the engine and the paper bag is a fantastic being which has not yet been biologically classified. Its popular name is "aviator".

The job of the aviator was to create in us some inner fetish for flying which they undoubtedly possessed since the first time they, as boys of six or seven, jumped off their back porch roofs. I must say the aviators took their jobs zealously. They flew upside down. They flew in loops. They flew in spins. They had a fine time. Some of us had a good time too, I think.

From what I have heard, a summer with the Navy has even the Riviera outclassed. I've never been to the Riveria.

Astronomy Club Formed; Observatory Tops Mendel

The presence of the new structure atop Mendel Hall announces the birth of extra-curricular activity at Villanova. The activity is astromony; the structure is an observatory, the facilities of which will be available to members of the Astromony Club.

Rev. Edward F. Jenkins, O.S.A., who studied telescope construction at the Franklin Institute of Science, has built a telescope and observatory for the benefit of the college and its students. The construction, which was begun last spring, is now in its final stages.

Resting on a pier which reaches down to the foundations of the building, the 150-pound telescope has a secure base, free from jolting and shaking, because of the floor of the observatory has no contact with the telescope or its base.

Equipped with a 12-inch Newtonian reflector, the telescope is capable of a 266-diameter magnification. In the near future it will be equipped with a clock drive, a device which permits the taking of time exposures of the stars by accounting for the rotation of the earth and the movement of the stars.

The observatory itself is 12 feet square with a 12-foot rotating shuttered dome. This type of dome permits a full view of the heavens. Complete ventilating facilities are provided, thereby keeping the interior of the observatory at the same temperature as the surrounding air, a factor essential for accurate observation. A chart room and a dark room will be included within the building. A six foot deck is being constructed around the building to permit study of the constellations.

FATHER JENKINS, astronomy club moderator, peers through transit as work progresses on the new observatory atop Mendel Hall. Charles Zogby lends a hand while Wise watches.

Coeds

riculum caught the eye of Miss Rita Shigo, of Coaldale, Pa. She was advised by her high school Mother Superior to take the Villanova entrance examination, and did so, along with forty-four other girls. Only eight were accepted.

When questioned about her reaction of being enveloped in a sea of some eight hundred male freshmen, the attractive Miss Shigo replied: "I was petrified".

On the Pie Shoppe, both Rita and her room-mate Miss Martha Polansky, RN, commented in unison: "It's a mad-house". Martha added that the girls were amazed to find, in the midst of all the clutter and tumult, two fellows completely engrossed in a game of chess. The co-eds, however, have been provided with a sanctuary in Austin Lounge.

"Do you think any other girls envy your position? I want the facts!" I asked Rita. "Back home they do" she answered. "What do you think of Belle Air Hall? was the next query. The girls laughed; "You don't think, you just go there". The unanimous opinion of the young ladies on Villanova College was spontaneous: "It's terrific".

We don't know what the plans of the college are with regard to coeds in the future, but the male student body seems to be mostly of the opinion: "the more, the merrier". . . . that's the facts.

Publications Conference Attracts 2650 Delegates

Over two thousand six hundred and fifty high school students, representing five states and the District of Columbia, attended the Publication Conference held in the Field House on September 26th.

The conference, sponsored by the Belle Air, lasted from 9:00 A. M. until 3:00 P. M. A dance closed the day.

Arthur Quinn, editor of the yearbook, was the chairman of the day, which was divided into two parts. The morning session lasted two hours.

Rev. Francis X. McGuire, O. S. A., president of Villanova, opened the program with a few words of welcome. He was followed by the Rev. Anthony Ostheimer, Ph.D., the editor of the Catholic Standard and Times, official paper of the Archdiocese of Philadelphia, who emphasized the importance of a strong Catholic press.

The high school delegates then moved from the Field House to the C&F auditorium. Francis X. Martinez, a St. Joseph's graduate formerly with both the United Press and Associated Press, and an ex-teacher at Villanova, spoke on public relations and journalism, and the inter-relationship between them.

William Cooke, president of the William T. Cooke Publishing Company, and long time publisher of the Belle Air, then talked on planning the yearbook. He took in the theme and its place in the yearbook, the essentials of a good yearbook, and closed with some proven methods of turning out a good book while still keeping within the budget.

Candid Photography was the title of the next speaker's talk. Mr. Carl Wolf, photographer for Zamsky studios, explained to the uninitiated composition, lighting, how to take action and still shots, and several other timely hints on picture-taking.

Schoolpaper panels closed out the morning session. The afternoon opened with a talk on the importance of the yearbook dummy. From 1:50 until 2:40 the delegated had their choice of nine yearbook panels or a magazine panel. Leonard J. McAdams, night city editor of the Philadelphia Inquirer, pointed out that "News Stories and Features Don't Make Themselves".

The afternoon was closed by a dance.

Seniors to Meet; President Urges Many to Attend

A discussion of this year's events, a resume of the plans made during the summer and the introduction of the new officers will feature Thursday's meeting of the Senior class in the C&F auditorium.

Ted Sheehan, president of the class of '54, has requested that as many seniors as possible attend this meeting. He stressed that the time, 10:30 in the morning, has been planned so that a representative showing of both day hops and residents will be present.

Important Matters

"When we are discussing matters as important as the Belle Air Ball, the Senior Dinner Dance, and the proposed date for Father's Day (October 31), we would like to be sure of the backing of the whole class," Sheehan said.

"As is usual, the first meeting of the class can set the pattern for an active or inactive year. Important decisions concerning the year's events will be made at this meeting, and we would like to see a large turnout of interested seniors," said the president.

Quinn Tells Of Plans For Villanova U. Yearbook

Art Quinn, editor-in-chief of the Belle Air, urges that all seniors who have not as yet had their pictures taken , do so immediately. Unless the pictures are taken by this coming Friday, October 9th, they will not appear in the yearbook.

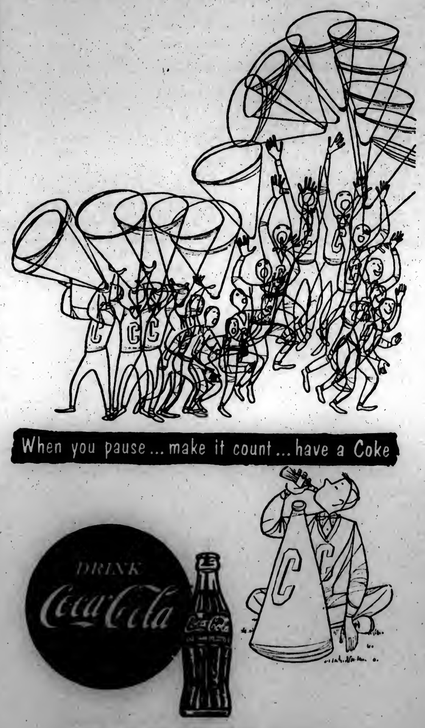
Those seniors who still must be photographed may report to Zamsky Studios, 1007 Market Street any time this week from 9:00 to 5:30. Miss McCarthy will be in charge of the Villanova students and no appointment is necessary. Those seniors not satisfied with their original proofs may also go to Zamsky and new pictures will be taken at no extra charge.

Quinn also asked that the senior history forms, which were distributed in Senior religion classes, be handed in as soon as possible. Filled-in forms may be turned in at the Pie Shop or in the Dining Hall, where receptacles for same have been placed.

ART QUINN

Plans Ad Campaign

A campus-wide campaign for ads has been planned. Details will be announced at the Senior Class meeting Thursday and elaborated upon in next week's VILLANOVAN.



Although there was a gratifying turnout last week at the first meeting of the Belle Air staff, Quinn said that he hopes more will turn out at tonight's meeting. Help is especially needed in the typing department, said Jim Nolin, typing editor.

"An extra large staff is wanted to make this first University edition of the Belle Air an especially good one," Quinn said.

New Draft Data

The Selective Service System has announced that the deadline for applications for the November 19th draft deferment test is midnight, November 2nd. Eligible students should reply to the nearest local draft board for an application and bulletin of information.

The application should then be mailed to SELECTIVE SERVICE EXAMINING SECTION, Educational Testing Service, P.O. Box 586, Princeton, New Jersey. The next exam, after the November test will be held on April 22, 1954.

DEACONS CRUSH CATS 18-12

Gridders Drop Two Games to Southern Foes

A pair of southern football powers — one combining a staunch defensive line and an equally sparkling air attack, and the other utilizing torrid weather and a bench membership that a radio announcer described as "bigger than the crowd"—dampened Villanova's early-season outings.

The said clubs—Georgia and Texas—both failed to bow to the big-time aspirations of the Wildcats and their front office, and struck belatedly but effectively for 32-19 and 41-12 wins, respectively.

Georgia Rallies

The Bulldogs, still operating the old T of Wally Butts, surprised the crowd of near 100,000 that blanketed Municipal Stadium by coming back with a rousing air offensive in the 2nd, 3rd and 4th periods, after Art Raimo's club had jumped to a 12-0 lead, looking very sharp, incidentally, in the process. Led by All-American hopeful Zeke Bratkowski, the visitors struck back with pin-point passing gains and led 13-12 at the half; then outscored the Main-Liners three TD's to one in the second half. The final score left only a few bright spots, as far as Villanova was concerned—

—naturally, the amazing turnout, the feather in Bud Dudley's promotional cap, and stand-out performances by several 'Cats. One was Ralph Cecere, who scored twice, once on the receiving end of a long pass play, and again on a end-around play in the last period. Cecere's play on defense was also encouraging, especially since Raimo's biggest problem is finding good two-way boys. Fullback Jack Helm scored the second touchdown in the club's first-quarter splurge. End Don McComb, the lone sophomore starter, and center Joe Viverito both performed creditably.

The "Brat" Stars

While Villanova was attempting vainly to mesh its ground attack, Bratkowski and a host of good Georgia backs were making merry through the middle of the Wildcat line. John Giordano, though he played only limited ball, was also a defensive and offensive standout.

An enormous bench of Texas ball players, 89 in all, of whom 52 were used by Longhorn Coach Eddie Price, collaborated with a 90-degree temperature to gradually wear down the undermanned visitors' stamina. The Wildcat ground game, however, showed marked improvement, and Gene Filipski, reeling off 85 yards in 10 carries, showed his '52 All-American form. Meanwhile, Cecere, who impressed more with his punting than with his running last year, was scampering through a heavier Longhorn line for his third and fourth scoring successes. Captain Joe Faragalli, sore side and all, played a fine line game, as did the entire frontwall, especially on defense.

Eight Villanovans were forced by heat exhaustion out of the game; there's no doubt

Boston College Looms As Main New England Threat

This Sunday, October 11, finds Villanova's much travelled eleven up New England way where they will take on a strong Boston College team. Always a bruising encounter, this year's Eagle-Wildcat contest should prove no exception to the rule.

With a bright crop of Sophomores up from last year's undefeated Freshman squad, and nineteen returning lettermen, Coach Mike Holovak has a powder keg eleven well stocked for double-duty action.

A giant forward wall headed by center Frank Morze, 6 ft., 4 in., and 230 pounds, and abetted no end by such other worthies as Al St. Pierre, a crack 220 lb. tackle up from the frosh, Bob Baggett and Frank Marr, two 6 foot plus ends, and rotund, 200 lb. Stathopoulos, a three year veteran at guard is determined to smother the Blue and White's running game, which last year clobbered the Eagles to the tune of 28-7.

On the attack the Eagle's seem to be no less potent with three holdovers from last year's squad in the starting backfield. Directing the B. C. offense is three year veteran Jimmy Kane, smooth - operating quarterback who ranked among the top passers in the East last season. At the halves are Captain Joe Johnson, a hard-driving-workhorse, who does most of the ball-carrying chores, and Danny Brosnahan, a 165 lb. scatback, who specializes in break-away runs.

Meet the Wildcats:

Mainliners Bulkheaded By Kershaw And Faragalli

One of the happiest members of the Villanova football team these days is Roy Kershaw. The cause of his smile and proud look is his eight-pound boy which his wife, Sandra, presented him three weeks ago. Baby Kershaw hasn't yet stated his football intentions.

Kershaw, a defensive end the last two years, is now adapting himself to playing both ways. In his debut as an offensive end in the Georgia game, Roy snared three passes. On defense he is a rugged competitor, constantly harassing enemy passers and piling up interference and ball-carriers who try to sweep his end. In recognition of his quiet, efficient job last year, his teammates voted him Villanova's most consistent player.

Began at Doylestown

Roy began his football career at Doylestown High School where he played basketball as well as tackle and end in football. In his senior year he was voted to the All-Conference team. After graduation, he played three years for the Doylestown Vets in an amateur league in his hometown area. In 1950 Kershaw came to Villanova. He was a member of the Freshman team that year, and since has been a varsity player. Since Roy is a Senior, and has no desire to go into pro ball, this will be his last year on the gridiron.

ROY KERSHAW

Looking back over his career, Roy cites as his most thrilling experience the recovery of a fumble in the Kentucky game two years ago. Aftr picking off the ball, he ran for a touchdown, only to have a penalty call it back. Therefore, Roy, a sophomore at the time, lost his opportunity to score his first collegiate touchdown.

Tough On Players

Speaking of the switch from two-platoon football, Roy says that the change has made it very rough on the players, but

Cecere, Filipski Score In Mainliners Third Loss

Two evenly matched ball clubs, both seeking their first wins after two successive defeats — Wake Forest and Villanova—met at Winston-Salem, N. C., Saturday afternoon, and, as is common disappointing knowledge by now, tne wildcats emerged with their winless skein intact.

The Demon Deacons, meanwhile, collected their initial '53 gridiron win, as the Carolinians dropped the Main Liners, 18-12.

Once again, practically the same bright spots and the same weaknesses were apparent in the play of Art Raimo's men. The club, as in the Georgia and Texas games, displayed momentary stretches of power and drive, but lacked the necessary spark to overtake the winners a third time after coming from behind their earlier 6-0 and 12-.. deficits.

The identical bright spots showed up, too, mainly the performances of Ralph Cecere, Gene Filipski and Captain Joe Faragalli. Cecere, continuing to show the running prowess and defensive aptness he displayed in the two earlier games, scored once —his fifth tourchdown — on a 10-yard run with time running out in the first half. This score tied the ball game at 6-6, Wake Forest tallying in the opening minutes of the second period to take its short-lived lead.

Filipski Runs 73 yards

Filipski, who starred against the Longhorns last week, gained 86 yards in 16 tries and scampered 75 yards on a punt return late in third quarter to knot the count at 12-12. Villanova was able to gain only 61 yards in the air, as compared with Wake's 132, a decisive factor in the game's outcome.

Quarterback Dick Scott tried desperately to score on long aerials with less than 40 seconds to play, but, with no time outs called, the clock ran out before more than two plays, both unsuccessful, could be completed.

Deacon Star Hurt

Sonny George, the Deacons' top ground-gainer, was injured in the second period and was carried off the field. This loss did not aparently hinder the winners; they marched 70 yards for their third and deciding TD in the third period, with quarterback Joe White going over from the two—his second score of the afternoon. The other Wake Forest count came on a 30-yard pass play from halfback Bruce Hillenbrand to end Bob Ondilla.

And in addition, to all this B. C. possesses what well may prove to be its most powerful weapon—depth. Ready to relieve the opening eleven at any moment is a grade "A" class of reserves, comprised mostly of one or two years varsity experience.

A strong army these Eagles, and ready to soar to victory. However, Sunday afternoon might tell a different story!

JOE FARAGALLI

Barry, Dwyer 1st Harriers Edged By Army, 29-30

By Norman Feldpush

Despite the efforts of Villanova's one-two punch, John Joe Barry and Fred Dwyer, Army's cross country team edged the visiting Wildcat harriers 29-30 in the opening dual meet of the season last Friday. John Joe, displaying excellent early season form, led throughout the race and won in the fine time of 27:04. Teammate Fred Dwyer, the indoor mile sensation, was second over the hilly five mile course.

Rock fourth

Army, with its usual well-conditioned squad, continued its domination over Villanova when Bill Cory placed third. Junior Bill Rock gave the Wildcats three of the first four positions in the heart-breaking defeat by finishing a strong fourth. Guy Speciale and Ray Wheiler rounded out the scoring for Villanova. The Cadets begin training for the five mile grind during August. This accounts for their ability to consistently defeat the Wildcats, who usually have only continues that he is glad to have the opportunity to perform with the offense.

Following in the line of popular captains of the Villanova football team is tackle Joe Faragalli.

Unlike most of the squad, playing both ways is nothing new to Faragalli. In his sophomore year, he played offense and defense at his tackle spot. An ever-alert performer, Joe's top feat in an outstanding season was his recovery of seven fumbles. Last year a bad back permitted him to play only the latter half of the season. This same back ailment is plaguing Joe now, but with the aid of heat treatments, tape, and novocain he is able to make his 230 pounds felt in the line. Despite his handicap, he played a remarkable game at Texas.

Also Track Man

Faragalli's high school ball was played at John Batram. Besides being a guard on the football team, he was a shot put man on the track squad.

Joe, an Education major, hopes to teach high school social studies or history when his college days are over. He says he wouldn't mind playing a couple of years of pro ball to

The Cats Ain't Dead

By Harry Anger

A few Saturdays ago, 98,000 Philadelphians began filing out of the city's Municipal Stadium. One of the throng, no doubt a college man, was heard to say, "Aw, that Raimo lost that one for us." Come now, men, let's get one thing straight. Art Raimo hasn't lost one by himself since he's been here. The team lost the big one to Georgia—and they did it in an all too efficient manner. I'm sure the men would have been the first to admit that.

Mr. Raimo, though he's no doubt capable, isn't allowed on the field to make the plays. His place is only to show his squad the right way to do things, and in that department he more than fills the bill.

The Bulldogs caught a Villanova club that could do very little right, except in the first quarter. But all that is, of course, behind us now.

Club Improves

The team was completely different in Austin—they played their heart out—and took it on the chin again. There's hardly anymore we could have asked the thirty-odd ball players to do.

The Wildcats, at best might have beaten the Texans, had it not been for that 12th factor favoring the Longhorns—a blazing southwestern sun.

They'll be back, though, and that is a point that you must all keep in mind. It's easy enough for the average fickle-minded fan to look for a new love, but let's not let it happen here.

Detroit, Xavier Upcoming

In a few weeks the Xavier and Detroit games will be upon us and every man will have to be behind the team. The outside fans can't be expected to support the ball club unless we here do our utmost.

Let's face it—Catholic schools all over the country are having a rough time of it. If we don't have a successful season at the gate this year, there might not be another chance.

Fordham is ready to stand or fall on the results of this year's activities. While it may seem far-fetched, Notre Dame could be the only major Catholic school playing football in three years or so.

Club On Spot

'Leave' us not lose hope, though—the Cat isn't dead yet, but poor support may set him up for the telling blow.

In a sense, this year's football squad has been put on the spot. The promotions of Athletic Director Ambrose "Bud" Dudley were designed to attract the fans and it is up to the club to hold them. They can do it—don't worry about that—the big part is up to us.

Art Raimo has never had a losing season as a head coach, and we're sure that he has no intentions of making this one any different. The Blue and White is a team that doesn't know how to quit—let's make sure we're not the ones to show them.

Tickets Available

Tickets are on sale now at the Fieldhouse for this Sunday's game at Fenway Park, Boston. Business Manager Bob Whelan has also announced that tickets will be available for all future Villanova road football games, besides the usual home dates sale. The Boston College tickets, choice location seats, are $2.40 each.

Elliot Optimistil

Friday's showing the best in several seasons at West Point, indicates a fine campaign ahead for "Jumbo" Elliot's hill and dalers. A rugged schedule with some of the most talented teams in the East will end with IC4A championship meet in Van Cortland Park, New York, on November 16. Last year in this meet, Villanova was the only school to place two runners in the first five positions, as Barry and Dwyer led the Wildcats to an eighth place finish among the twenty-three team entrics.

Miss America Is Guest of 'Cats At Georgia Fray

By Bob Strayton

Despite a losing fight in the Georgia game at Municipal Stadium on September 19, Villanova students received some consolation in the fact that one of the most ardent Wildcat rooters at the game was beautiful blonde-haired Evelyn Ay, Miss America of 1953.

As she entered the stadium during halftime, Evelyn, who is a Pennsylvanian, was greeted by a huge ovation from the 98,000 fans who attended the ball game. Wearing a blue and white Villanova sweater, Evelyn left no doubt in anyone's mind as to which team she favored. On two different occasions during the ball game, she assisted the cheerleaders in leading the Villanova student body during the cheers, proving herself not only America's number one beauty, but also a very talented young lady.

Escorted By Joe Kenney

The big moment came, however, when during the halftime intermission, Joe Kenney, chairman of the Student Council, escorted Miss America and one of her running mates for the title, Miss Georgia, out to the center of the playing field, where they greeted the multitude of onlookers.

An added attraction to the appearance of Miss America was the fine marching of Reilly's Raiders, a drum and bugle corps and drill team which also provided quite a spectacle during the halftime intermission.

about it, old sol was a very prominent factor in that ball game. The enormity of the Texas reserve lists didn't hurt any, either, as the winners grabbed off their first win after two vain tries. Three fumbles by the 'Cats led eventually to Texas scores; the Longhorns also took stock in long punt runbacks — 120 yards in all.

Of the games remaining on the schedule, Syracuse is the one to which Joe is particularly looking forward. He thinks their poor showing in the Orange Bowl last January gave the country an unfavorable opinion of Eastern football. A convincing victory by Villanova would show that perhaps the strongest Eastern team was not selected for the post-season game.

SAMUEL B. WERNER
323 ALUMNI HALL

Put It This Way...

By Jim Borden

An interesting repercussion of the new Chow Hall system is the smart evening dress which is presently seen in the Dining Room. The casual wear emphasises sneakers, khakis, a zipper jacket, a "T" shirt, and, apparently, a bow-tie snapped to the adam's-apple. "Cutting in" has been alleviated, but there is an advantage to it. Now, while waiting in line, you can get a drink from the water fountain down the hall at the Dean's Office.

The freshment are always an interesting lot. We came upon one frosh with his dink set at a very roguish angle looking over the two new dorms between C&F and the Barracks, and the construction of the garage for the resident students' cars. We explained who we were and posed the question, "What do you think of Villanova?" "Great," he screamed, bowling us back on our heels. "Yes sir, great, great, great," then two of his buddies came up and led him raving and ranting into Barracks No. 4.

Moving on to the Pie Shop, the perennial group of sporting boys were gathered around the gaming tables. Amid the din of ringing bells we queried him on his opinion of Villanova. He laid aside his instruction sheet for "The Functional Performance and Operational Upkeep of the Mark 7 Mod. 3 Slide Ruler, with the patent leather red case", and answered," Da-Da-Da-Dum." We quit after that!

There is a little construction atop of Mendel. Speculation has it that it is either a greenhouse for Phil, the new stadium, or a command post for the "General."

Did you notice the two Cats in the S and F orchestra running around on the back of the stand. The most clever bit was when one reached over slugged the trombonist with a flounder for sound affects in the "Fish Monger" overture.

Nursing School Opens; Features 4-Year Course

Villanova's young Nursing School opened last month with a gratifying enrollment of one hundred and sixty-two students, one hundred and fifty-two of whom are striving for Bachelor of Science degrees. The remaining ten are still working toward the day when they will receive their Registered Nursing certificates.

The evening division, which is directly under the head of the Nursing School, offers those who have already attained their certificates the chance to gain the cultural advantage of the Bachelor of Science degree through further study. One hundred and thirty-five are enrolled in this division with the remaining seventeen pursuing the same courses during the day hours.

The new four-year day school course, offers both the Registered Nursing diploma and the Bachelor of Science degree.

The Nursing School, the first Catholic nursing school of its kind in Pennsylvania, is under the direction of Sister Mary Alma, S. M., R. N., M. A. and Sister Mary Margarella O. S. F.

VAUGHN MONROE is welcomed to Villanova by Student Council president Joe Kenny at the field house last Tuesday. Monroe and the Sauter-Finegan Orchestra broadcast the first program of the New Camel Caravan.

Vaughn Monroe Joins Finegan Orchestra Here

Vaughn Monroe, star of the CBS Radio Network's Camel Caravan, visited this campus in order to transcribe his first show since returning from his first real vacation in years.

The show, taped on September 29 in the Field House, was presented over a coast-to-coast hookup last night from 10:00 to 10:30 p.m.; Eastern Standard time. Mr. Monroe united with the Sauter-Finegan Orchestra, featuring Miss Sally Sweetland, to form the New Camel Caravan Show.

The program first featured Vaughn Monroe, in his usual incomparable fashion, singing the ballad that climbed so quickly to first place in the music world, "Vaya Con Dios". Then followed the Sauter-Finegan Orchestra, for the first time on a nationwide broadcast, playing their own humorous and original, "Doodletown Fifers". Combining their talents, Vaughn Monroe, the orchestra and its quartet joined to present, "Gambler"s Guitar".

"Butterflies"

In the true tradition of show business the program continued with the orchestra"s singing star, Miss Sweetland, offering a new tune entitled, "Butterflies", Eddie Sauter, then rendered a kazoo solo in "Moonlight on the Ganges".

Next the ensemble played a musical tribute to Villanova with the playing of the "Alma Mater"' and the "Villanova Fight Song", in which Vaughn Monroe, the quartet and orchestra jointly participated. Following these, Mr. Monroe sang the touching and romantic ballad, "With These Hands". In closing, the entire cast of stars, joined in the melody of memory time presentation of "Dancing in the Dark".

The show, which ran about forty-five minutes, including two short sectional retapes, was followed by several selections by the Orchestra which had the field house hopping.

This was the first time any show had been transmitted from the Villanova campus over a coast-to-coast network.

"Admirable Crichton" Set For November Production

"The Admirable Crichton", a comedy by James M. Barrie which won out over several other plays under consideration, will be the Fall presentation of Villanova's Belle Masque Dramatic Society. Because of the comparatively short length of time for preparation, Rev. William J. Krupa, O. S. A., moderator-director, and Bill Cunningham, president of the society, have already cast the play and begun practice. The society has only five weeks before curtain time, the dates of presentation being the fifth, sixth, seventh, and eighth of November.

Bernie Coyne, who is well remembered for his excellent portrayal of Cassius in William Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar" last Spring, has the leading and title role. Bob Erskine, the only member of the senior class cast in a major role, plays the part of Lord Loam. The female lead was assigned to Katherine Kelly of Rosemont. Other leads are held by Bill Cunningham, Walt Doyle, Peter Quinn, Ethel Dagit, Joan Thurkauf, Marion Daly and Sally Ann Daly.

The Dramatic Society received a boost by its unusually high membership. Returning to the society from last year are thirteen performers and twelve stagecrewmen. They are being supported by one of the largest freshman turnouts in recent years.

Belle Masque held its first meeting a week ago, and the officers were presented to the company: Bill Cunningham, president; and Bernie Coyne, secretary-treasurer. Minser and Joe Wynne were appointed co-stage managers. Walt Doyle will again handle the sale of tickets, a job he so competently handled last year.

The play is a comedy-fantasy of three acts which tells of a haughty aristocratic English family of Peers that has radical views on class-distinction. As the events unfold, we find the family ship-wrecked on a tropical island. Without revealing too much of the plot, we can safely say that all turns out for the best.

The author, Mr. Barrie, has also written many other enjoyable plays, such as "Peter Pan", "An Old Woman Shows Her Medals" and "Dear Brutus".

GERMANY

are many examples of this. In Germany the stores and factories are open much longer than in France or Italy. The custom of taking a two-hour break for lunch, prevalant in most European countries, is most infrequent in the greater part of Germany. The Germans not only work longer hours, they do more work in a given amount of time than their neighbors.

This applies to farm workers as much as to industrial workers. We passed through the rich farming country of Bavaria and saw German men, women, and children gathering in a record harvest in the fields. The real secret of German prosperity seems to me to be this great German capacity for work.

One thing is certain. Germany is back on her feet. Already she is booming more than any other West European nation, and everything indicates that the boom will continue. Whether we care to recognize it or not, Germany is one of the most powerful nations in the European economic picture. At the moment western Germany is favorable to the United States. If we fail to cement this friendship, we are taking terrible risks with the peace of the world, for Germany may well hold the balance of power in world politics in another few

Frosh Enroll Record 870 Students

Villanovan

Vo. 29—No. 2 Villanova College, Villanova, Pa. Oct. 13. 1953

2307 Total Includes 70 Korea Vets

More freshmen are sporting their traditional togs at Villanova this year than ever before in the school's history. A record breaking 870 Frosh have enrolled, raising the total undergraduate population to 2,280 men and 27 women.

Three hundred eighty seven first year men have entered the School of Commerce and Finance, 278 are prospective engineers, and 194 will follow the Arts and Science curricula.

The recent Korean situation has brought 70 vets to Villanova this year and the new nursing program has attracted 11 women. Thirty-five freshmen are receiving either partial or full scholarships. Unfortunately, 200 members of the class of '57, have been forced to live off campus. This problem is being eliminated presently with the construction of the new dorm.

The largest class this year is the Soph class with 560 members. The juniors have 390, the seniors, 388.

Almost half the student body (1045) are C&F students. Next in order of enrollment are Engineering, 608; Arts and Sciences, 536; and Nursing, 27.

There are 930 residents this year, 986 dayhops, and 300 men living in college approved homes. The student body represents 25 foreign countries including: Columbia, Iraq, China, Iran, Spain, Ireland, Australia, Switzerland, the Phillipines, Venezuela, and Scotland.

Dramatic Club Begins Practice

Rehearsals are well under way for the presentation of the fall production of the Belle Masque Dramatic Society, "The Admirable Chrichton," Nov. 5, 6 and 7.

With only three weeks left before curtain time, sets are being prepared by the stage crew, and the actors are down to serious rehearsals.

The comedy-fantasy, which is based on the views on class-distinction of an English family of Peers, promises to be a huge success, according to reports from Rev. William J. Krupa O.S.A., moderator director.

Seniors to Elect

Alumni Gym will be open from ten until two today for the purpose of electing a Treasurer for the Senior Class.

The runoff election was necessitated when, last Spring, during the regular elections, the candidates, James Boyle and Richard Kelly tied for the post with 103 votes apiece.

A note of importance—matriculation cards must be presented in order to vote.

Junior Class President Bernie Finan announced today that eight committees and seven committee chairmen have been appointed to direct the many Junior events for the coming year.

Bud Ford, head of the Junior Prom Committee, reports that sub-committees have been chosen and have started work on band arrangements and plans for this year's decorations. The date of the Prom has officially been set for May 7, and will be held in the Field House.

The Junior Dinner Dance will be held on May 8, in the Penn Sheraton Hotel. Chairman Frank Gunther announces that although the band has not yet been chosen, he expects very soon to be able to name the band for this event.

Operation Yule

Don McGahan, chairman for the Orphanage committee, announces that the orphans' dance will be on Dec. 7, and that the St. John's Orphanage outing is scheduled for December 12.

Lady Of Good Counsel Will Adorn New Shrine

Soon to be seen in the now unfinished shrine near Alumni Hall, is a seven foot, white Carrara marble statue of Our Lady of Good Counsel holding the infant Jesus in her arms.

The statue will be sent to this country from Pietrasanta, Italy, by the Daprato studios there. It should arrive in this country about December first. Total cost for the statue will be one thousand nine hundred and fourteen dollars, F.O.B. New York.

The shrine, started in the early part of July, was designed by Rev. John Vrana, O.S.A. It will fill a void left on the campus by the removal of the shrine which used to be beside the library three years ago. Villanova has spent twenty-two hundred dollars already for the beautification of the shrine and will spend much more.

Mr. Dominic Cannito, the stone mason who had charge of the construction of the Library, the Naval Science building, and the Chemical Engineering building, is also in charge of the building of the shrine.

'Blue Dinks' Encounter Sophomores

Tomorrow is the big day for freshmen tired of dinks, books and buttons. The fourth annual MUFF (Moved Up Forward Freshmen) Day is the occasion for the flexing of muscles by the Frosh. The day will begin at 3:30 on Mendel Field.

The freshmen will once more have a chance to throw off their "regs" and dress as the rest of the school. The sophomores are determined that the dinks, buttons, and rolled-up pants will be seen around until the Thanksgiving recess.

In a meeting held in Alumni Gymnasium last week, about two hundred frosh showed that they meant to avenge last year's loss by the class of '56. Bill Ryan, athletic secretary, pointed out the importance of cooperation, after reviewing the tradition of the day.

Soph Leaders

Duke Micone was named to head the Freshmen in organizing their teams. Managing the Sophomore teams are Joseph Schultz, Owen Hickey, and Jules Wettlaufer.

Muff Day is run by the intramural office, under the direction of Rev. John R. Dunn, O.S.A. Ed Geisz is athletic secretary. Both expressed the hope that tomorrow's Muff Day will be as close as those of previous years. Series standing so far: Sophmores 2-Freshmen 1.

10 Events

There are a total of ten events on the program. The novelty events include: the tug of war, the egg toss, and the the wheel barrow race. A major portion of the program will consist of track events. These include: 220 yard dash, 3 legged race, 50 yard dash, 100 yard dash, and a 440 yard dash.

The feature of the day will again be the touch football game. For the past three years the outcome of day depended on this final contest, and indications are that the situation will be the same this year.

Owl Hop Opens Social Season

The social season will officially open at Villanova a week from Friday night with the Owl Hop sponsored by Phi Kappa Pi, the engineering fraternity. The band will be the Blue Notes, campus favorites of past years, with the vocals by Lee Sloane.

The informal dance will be held in the Field House from nine to one P.M. It is open to all Villanova students and bids will be priced at two dollars. Tickets may be obtained from Bob Rock or any of the fraternity members in the dorms, in the Pie Shoppe between 11:30 and 1:30 and at the door the night of the affair.

Reader Opposes Grid Fashion Show

Sirs,

AAs a student of Villanova I am naturally interested in the future of Villanova and her football team. It would be quite a blow to me if I were to pick up a paper someday and read where the Villanova Football Team was to entertain at the intermission of the ALL STAR REVIEW SHOW to be presented at the Municipal Stadium. Of course this situation will never arise, but one can't help wondering when he hears about a fashion show being presented between the halves of a Villanova game.

In all due respect, Athletic Director Bud Dudley is doing a trremendous job of selling the Villanova football team to the public, but conducting a fashion show to attract fans is going too far.

Mr. Dudley stunned the sports world when he packed 98,000 people into Municipal Stadium to see the Wildcats play Georgia. The difference between that publicity stunt and the one he isusing for the Detroit game is that in first instance he was publicizing the football team while selling the tickets, while in the second case the selling point seems to be the Fashion Show.

The idea of having Ladies Night is a very good one as long as the ladies are coming to see the football team. If the members of the opposite sex come out to see the different baseball teams play on Ladies' Day, why not football?

It must be remembered that the only man and only team in organized sports that tried to attract fans by mixing fashion shows and the like with sports was Bill Veeck and the St. Louis Browns. And what happened to them? They both went bankrupt, St. Louis lost its franchise, and Bill Veeck was literally thrown out of organized baseball.

I am all for the football team, and Mr. Dudley, but I am against a mockery of Villanova and her football team. When a person thinks about a football game, he thinks about a couple of hard-fighting teams out on the field, maybe a marching band or two, and a cheering crowd. Never would he associate a fashion show with a football game. The two events just don't go together.

If Mr. Dudley and the team can't sell themselves by their own merit, then Villanova should drop its big time football policy.

A Student of Villanova

Right Direction

Extra-curricular activities, which categorically include the Sack Time Society, received a needed shot in the arm this fall with the arrangement of a campus-wide student activities period, scheduled for each Thursday between 10:30 and 11:20 a.m.

For some time the pet project of Rev. George McLaughlin, O. S. A. Dean of Student Activities, and sponsor of the idea, it is an obvious and well-executed move to allow clubs, societies, publications and classes to draw more members to their meetings, thereby stimulating interest in more students for more activities.

Our editorial hats are off to all those responsible for its initiation, but it's now up to leaders of campus activities to schedule meetings in this activities period when almost all of us are gloriously free from class.

AMERICAN TOURISTS, not American people, flock to continental meccas like the Arc de Triumphe, and aggravate natives.

The Frosh Speak:

Last week you upperclassmen gave us some sound advice on adjusting ourselves to life at Villanova. Although we've been at school only a few weeks, we think you might like to listen to our views concerning adjustment to the Main Line campus.

We gripe about wearing dink and button, rolling up our pants, and carrying a handbook just as you did a few years ago. They are regarded as a necessary evil to collegiate life along with books, lectures, and recitations.

Paying fifty cent fines for not wearing the dinks is something else again. Those of us who refuse to wear the regs and get fined for it obviously don't like the initiation garb because we don't know why they are worn. Orientation and its rules are important to us since they constitute our first introduction to Villanova's extra- curricular activities. As such they rate our full-hearted support if we are to be worthwhile Villanovans. Wearing the regs makes us feel a part of the college much faster.

Tradition is a very important factor in any college life; for years freshmen have been initiated into their new way of life, and we can be sure that we will see many more freshmen orientated in the years to come. This does not mean, however, that it should take years for the initiation to be completed. We think you drag this business out too long. When some freshmen who have been faithfully wearing the regs start to leave them off, one can readily see that these men are becoming part of the college scene; they no longer consider themselves new arrivals; they no longer need to be orientated.

Not only that, few white caps are seen lately. So if you who are supposed to keep us in line are not on the job, why should we who are still following the regulations bother?

We'll go along with you as long as it's necessary, but now we think it's time to close down the Orientation Committee until next year. And just to make sure that things will be finally settled, we're going to charge down to the stadium tomorrow and give you sophomores a royal Villanova beating. MOVE UP FORWARD, FRESHMEN!

How Do They Like Americans In Europe?

By Edwin K. Daly, Jr.

"What do they think of Americans over there?" is a question I have often been asked since my return home. That is a very difficult question to answer, since the European reaction to Americans varies very much from country to country and even from individual to individual.

For one thing, there seemed to me less Communist activity visible in Europe this year than when I visited Europe three years ago. That, of course, was the year the Korean war broke out, and there were communist posters everywhere, deploring the "American aggression" in Korea, and the "Cannibal, MacArthur" and his activities. This was particularly evident in Italy, where we even saw the Russian flag flying over an Italian City Hall. This year there was much less of that. Of course we saw the usual number of "Yankees go home" signs in Paris, and even a few "Save the Rosenbergs" posters in Amsterdam, but outside of these we saw almost no Communist propaganda.

Troops Influence Popularity

There is apparently an inverse ratio between the number of American troops stationed in a given area and the popularity of Americans there. In Switzerland, Belgium, and Holland, there are no American troop concentrations; and in those countries we are welcomed with open arms. In the remaining countries I visited there are American troops ranging in number from a few in France, England, and Italy to hundreds of thousands in Germany, Austria, and Luxembourg, and our popularity varies accordingly.

In Germany, American popularity seems to depend upon the zone of occupation. In the British zone around Cologne we were greeted with smiles and friendly cooperation almost everywhere. One German storekeeper in Cologne went out of his way to tell me of his love for Americans and Englishmen (and, incidentally, his hatred for the French.) In the French zone also, the people seemed very friendly. But in the American zone we could feel the hostility of the people, particularly in Frankfurt, headquarters of our forces. People in restaurants glared at us, shopkeepers were gruff and unaccommodating, and waiters in restaurants were abnormally slow in their services. In one restaurant I overheard a customer and my waitress discussing with relish delay they were causing the "American swine" meaning, of course me. We also ran into a lot of very kind people in the United States zone, whose consideration I shall never forget.

Distance Influence Opinions

Austria does not differ greatly from Germany. Innsbruck, in the French zone, welcomes Americans gladly. Salzburg, in the American zone, is less free in its welcome to Americans, although its people are far more friendly than the Germans. The same division of opinion seems to exist in sections of France and Italy where our troops are quartered, and sections where they are not. Most especially is this true of England where there is perceptible difference between public opinion near our airfields and some distance away from them.

The cause of these divergent opinions is, at least in part, the conduct of our troops. As always, some, at least, misbehave badly, and the local Americanhaters take the opportunity to spread anti-American feeling. Sometimes our own officials are responsible by their tactless conduct, as in one German town where our forces have commandeered the two municipal swimming pools and require the Germans to swim in the river. In addition to this, there is the ever-present nationalist resentment against the presence of foreign troops. Comparatively little can be done about this situation except by requiring American troops, and urging American tourists, to remember that they are the representatives of the United States abroad and should so conduct themselves at all times. That way Europeans may become more friendly to the United States in their personal judgments.

"Wait 'Till Next Year..."

By Rees James

Billy Martin grounded a single to center, Hank Bauer scored from second, the New York Yankees pocketed their fifth consecutive Series, and Bedford Avenue began waiting until next year.

Three hours after these simultaneous events occurred, we overheard a conversation.

"Whadda ya think of the Dodgers now?", he said scornfully.

"They're great!", he replied earnestly. "You heard the rally they made in the ninth. What fortitude. They almost murdered them Yanks."

At the time, the logic of the earnest fan's argument escaped us. Yet, there was truth in his statement. We began to think about it.

The 1953 World Series was a matched race between the best team in baseball and the Brooklyn Dodgers. As predicted by the nattily dressed gentlemen in front of Louie's Billiard Emporium, the best team in baseball won. This year, however, the Dodgers looked like the near champs that they are, and not, as in the past, merely the National League representative.

The Dodgers showed class in a not too classy Series. They came off the floor once to tie the Yanks at two games each, and as our earnest fan pointed out, in the final game Carl Furillo picked his team up and temporarily placed them nose to nose with the omnipotent.

In our estimation, the conduct of Brooklyn in the Series indicates one thing. After six meetings, a mite of that unique quality that has made the Yankees, along with Notre Dame and Calumet Farms, a member of Sportdom's Sacred Trilogy, has finally rubbed off on the Dodgers of Brooklyn.

Most objective viewers of the game, if such a person exists, will concede that Mr. Dressen

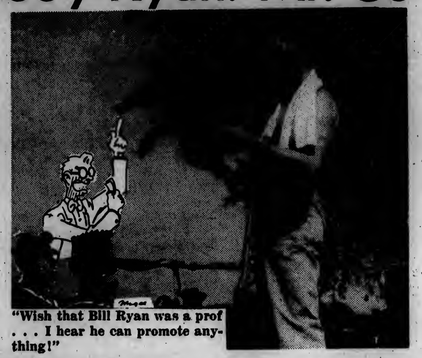
Man About Campus

Athletic Sec'y Ryan: "Mr. Go"

By Ward Welsh

"I got a story here that will knock your glasses off!" William P. "Bill" Ryan, Villanova's always-hustling Athletic Secretary was the man talking and he wasn't kidding. Over his lunch, a ten-minute bowl of soup in the Pie Shop, Bill related the facts.

"Remember back in 1943 when all the papers in the country were screaming about Eddie Rickenbacker's 21 days on a raft in the Pacific? Well, 'What's so great about that?' I thought . . . I had just spent 19 days on a raft myself, with no food and no water, 150 miles out in the Gulf of Mexico."



Besides that, a short time later, Bill was seen diving off a 40 foot board into a flaming pool at a Country Club in North Carolina! How did a man like this ever get into the athletic department at Villanova?

It began in Trenton, New Jersey, right after the First World War; Bill Ryan was born, the second child of a family of five. He attended grammar school and high school in the parish of St. Mary's in Trenton.

Young Ryan's aggressiveness was already apparent as he led his high school Student Organization and started on the football, basketball, and baseball teams.

Rider College

After graduation Bill entered Rider College of Business Administration in his home town. Seeing the possibilities in the public relations field, he held key positions on both his college newspaper and yearbook. He found time to manage the swimming team for three years, too.

"Wish that Bill Ryan was a prof . . . I hear he can promote anything!"

BILL RYAN, seen through the eyes of staff cartoonist Charles Magee and an Air Force photographer who was present when Ryan ran a camp boxing show in North Carolina.

Bill worked for General Motors Corp. in Trenton for a while and enlisted in the Air Corps the Day after Pearl Harbor, December, 1941.

"I got right into the Medical Department of Special Services," he said, shooting his life story at me with machine gun speed.

"Wait a minute, Bill," I interrupted," You met Bud Dudley while you were a press agent for a service football team. How the heck did you get there from Medics?"

"Oh, that's a fantastic story!" He paused to take a fast spoonful of Campbell's finest. "After being a Special Services Co-ordinator at Charlotte, N. C., I was appointed Head Lifeguard at Egland Air Force Base, Florida." (Bill is an accomplished swimmer.)

More School

Pfc. Ryan spent some time at a physical training instruction school at Miami Beach and then took a course in athletics and recreation at Washington and Lee University, Virginia. His chief at W&L was Eddie Allen, now head coach at Drexel Institute, Philadelphia. His bunkmate there was Pat Mullen, recently with the Detroit Tigers.

On completing his course, Bill returned to Egland to begin a physical education program there.

"Directing a camp show there, I discovered and developed a pretty talented boy, Russ Nype. He appeared recently on Broadway in "Call Me Madam". He

Put It This Way . . .

By Noel Spillane

Man, you can take down the teepee, Indian Summer's really gone. Yeah, it's time to move all the picnics inside. I think the cold snap must have hit at Art Quinn's picnic—seems there were a lot of cases of frostbite Sunday.

Have you noticed the sudden decline in enrollment after last Sunday? Some of the Freshmen couldn't find their way back through the north woods from the Tea Dance at Immaculata. Others were exhausted by the high altitude at Chestnut Hill's shindig. A few were lost at the fish pond at Rosemont.—workmen are now digging out the pond looking for the bodies. Then there are the few passed away due to starvation. They got confused between the lines at the cafeteria and bookstore. Naturally, Louie's early morning "cup of Joe" is taking its usual toll.

Then there has been the occasional freak accident, such as falling out of the top sack of the triple decker beds in Alumni Hall. One Freshman was lost trying on his new "Rotacy" uniform. But you must remember all these things are what separate the men from the boys. It just seems that this year there are more boys than men.

During this time of the year the Seniors are filling out their college history reports for the yearbook. You know, the extra-curricular activities that they print under their pictures. After seeing some of those pictures, it looks as if only numbers should be put at the bottoms. Some of the more inactive day-hops are a bit embarrased by the voids under their snapshots, so they are banning together to form new clubs like the "Down With The Pie Shop Club" and the "Paoli Local Poker Club". Of course there are a few activities that every Senior has participated in, such as Intramurals and the "Overcut By Mid-Semester Club."

The Senior class really isn't on its feet yet—they haven't got a class Treasurer—that's all right, thought, they haven't got any money either (individually or collectively). But the class is rectifying the lack of a Treasury today with an election. Dick Kelly is running against Jim Boyle; and if there isn't an Irish brawl by tonight, they are going to be co-treasurers.

Tomorrow is Muff Day—that's when ill-conditioned athletes meet ill-tempered Freshmen to see if the Freshmen have to keep wearing their dinks or if they can give them to their girlfriends. I really don't think it makes much difference—there are more dinks being worn at Rosemont than at Villanova already.

These new restrictions on resident Seniors are pretty tough. It seems as if the boys aren't in by twelve-thirty at night they turn into pumkins. But if they stay out after twelve-thirty their heads look like pumpkins anyway. . . . And trouble with cars, wow! one Caddy-pushing Senior told his prefect he had to have a car to drive because he couldn't afford shoes—didn't get a bit of sympathy. . . . It's a losing cause.

Class Of '54 Picks Welsh To Direct Belle Air Ball

The major chairmen for the coming year were named at last Thursday's meeting of the Senior class. A winter date was also set for their senior weekend.

Ward Welsh was named head of the Belle Air Ball, and George Eberle will run the Dinner Dance. Jack Birle was put in charge of arrangements for Father's Day.

The weekend of February 26th-27th was set as the date for the Prom and the Dinner Dance. The only competition on that Saturday will be the Fordham-Villanova basketball game. President Ted Sheehan explained that earlier weekends in February had to be rejected due to one forbidding cause or another. The return to the month of February was brought about, he said at the request of many members of the class.

Desmond Chosen

Other important developments at the hour-long meeting included:

1. The naming of the Walt Whitman hotel in Camden as the site of the Dinner Dance. It will be held here, said Sheehan, due to the high costs of reserving Philadelphia hotels. The only Philadelphia hotel whose price approached that of the Walt Whitman has been reserved since last May for that weekend.

2. By an almost unanimous hand vote, it was decided to try to get Tony Desmond's band to play at the Dinner Dance. General satisfaction at last year's performance governed the class in its choice.

3. In a much closer standing vote, the class agreed that the date for Father's day be pushed back from the originally intended October thirty-first. Spirited debate and an extremely close hand vote culminated in a standing vote. An exact date was not set, but indications are that it will be either during the basketball season or in the interval between the Easter recess and Junior Week, according to Sheehan.

4. A plea by Roger Moriarty, business manager of the yearbook, was that all seniors try to secure at least one advertisement for the yearbook and the revelation that commissions will be offered to all students (Freshmen, sophomores, juniors, and seniors) who secure ads. Details may be found in the Belle Air Yearbook story elsewhere in these pages.

Sheehan Urges

5. Sheehan also expressed the hope that all seniors turn out in today's election for Treasurer, pointing out that the post is an important one.

Choir Reorganizes

The Schola Cantorum, official choir of the college, will hold a reorganization meeting tomorrow in the College chapel at five o'clock.

Director of the choir this year is Conrad Urban, a sophomore Pre-med. Dave Smith fills the post of secretary and Donald Davis is organist for the group. Rev. Joseph Kemme, O.S.A., college chaplain is the tentative moderator. All those interested in joining the organization should attend this important meeting.

Villanova Marching Band Keeps In Step With Expansion Program

Keeping in line with the expansion program here at Villanova, the Villanova Marching Band is starting out with its biggest, and best organized group in years.

Under the able leadership of Frank Licopoli, student director of the band, the Marching Wildcats began practice two weeks ago for the Detroit game this Friday night.

The nucleus of the band is made up of a group of very talented and energetic freshmen, supported by several returning experienced upperclassmen. Thus far, the turnout for the practice sessions has been very encouraging. This is partly due to the fact that the band is scheduled to accompany the football team to the Boston University game. This will mark the first trip that the band has made since 1951 when it journeyed to West Point and Allentown.

Carl Riely will once again display his twirling ability as he leads the band in its pre-game demonstration. Also returning this year is the civilian director of the band, Mr. Tiehel, who will take over the direction of the group for the playing of the Star Spangled Banner and all the selections there after.

Besides the Detroit and B.U. games, the band is scheduled to lend its talents to the Xavier, Syracuse, and Fordham games.

Rev. Joseph Burns, O. S. A., moderator of the band, has also announced that officers for the band will be elected sometime in the near future.

National Group Here; I.C.G. Now At Villanova

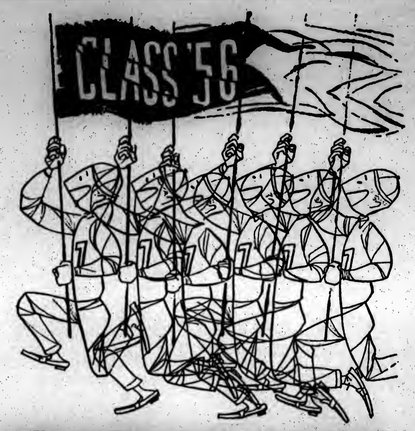
During the latter part of the school year '52-53, a new and completely different type of school organization was approved by the College administration and became active on the campus, The Villanova College Intercollegiate Conference on Government. (I. C. G.)

The Villanova I. C. G. is a chapter member of the Pennsylvania Intercollegiate Conference on Government, a state-wide organization, from which it takes its origin and reason for existence. The purpose of the organization is to impart a practical working knowledge of government through actual participation in government. This is accomplished by the setting up of mock national and state legislatures, and etc.

50 Members

There are some fifty or more Colleges and Universities throughout Pennsylvania listed as charter members of the state organization. The schools are grouped according to geographical regions and the Villanova I. C. G. is a member of the Southeastern region which includes Penn, Rosemont, Drexel, Temple, Haverford, Bryn Mawr, Swarthmore and West Chester. Last spring the Villanova I. C. G. participated in the mock legislatures set up on both the regional and state levels. Each school is a unit of representation and each student a representative in the mock legislatures. Many bills were proposed and passed at both assemblies. They were screened and correlated and then presented to the Pennsylvania State Legislature as proposals representing the opinions and attitudes of Pennsylvania college students on major political and economic issues.

Beneficial



The activities of the I. C. G. afford students the opportunity to contribute to government as well as gain knowledge of it. The organization also offers the student excellent social activity on an educational level. Those who are interested and wish to know more about the Villanova I. C. G. are invited to attend the groups first meeting on October 15 at 10:30 in room 201 C&F.

Rev. John McShea, O.S.A., entertained the first meeting of the Spanish Club last Thursday with a talk on Mexico.

Father McShea covered the custom and culture of our below-the-border neighbors in his talk. Father spent some time in Mexico this summer. Charles Conde, president of the club, and Rev. Lorenzo Lozano, O.S.A., moderator, also spoke at the meeting.

'CATS FINALLY ARRIVE, 15-7

Maxwell Winner, Hustling Center Week's Standouts

By Joe Heaps

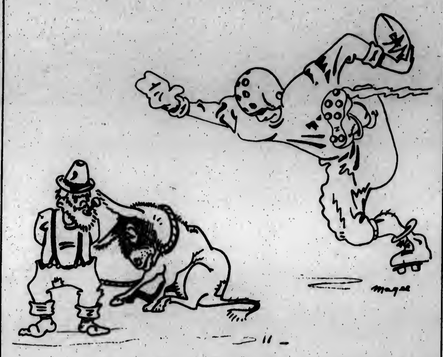
A pleasant surprise to Villanova followers this year is the outstanding job being turned in at right-halfback by Ralph Cecere. A defensive secondary man the last two season, Ralph has made himself right at home in the offensive backfield, scoring five touchdowns in the first three games. Two of the scores were long pass plays, the other three were runs or plunges. At present he is tied for 5th in national scoring. On defense, Cecere is continuing the steady play of his previous years. His specialties on defense are jarring openfield tackles.

As an extra asset to the club, Cecere does the punting. One of the nation's top booters, he has an average of better than thirty-seven yards per try. No one who saw Parris Island game last year will forget the three coffin-corner kicks by Ralph in the last half. These bottled up the Marines and enabled Villanova to come from behind to tie the powerful service team.

Recently, the Maxwell Club applauded Cecere's fine performances by presenting him with the first Maxwell Club Award of 1953.

Highlights

As highlights of his football career, Ralph picks out two touchdowns he scored. The first was in the Houston thriller in 1951 when he grabbed a fumble and went all the way. This occurred in the hectic second quarter and enabled Villanova to score twice in less than a minute. The other was in the Wake Forest game a week ago. With all the time gone in the first half, the Cats were given one more play because of a pass interference ruling that resulted just as the final seconds ticked off. Ralph was called upon, and with the aid of good blocking, he circled the end and scored the tying six points.



JOE VIVERITO

Speaking of the change from two-platoon football, Ralph is of the opinion that the switch has been a great detriment to the Villanova team. Under the old system he feels sure that the Wildcats would now possess a winning record.

Cecere is another in the line of outstanding players that comes from Massachusetts, Everett being his home-town. In his high school days he was an end, after which he played a year of sandlot ball as a half-

Freshman Track Talent Promises Great Future

by Jack Pettit

When record-breaking Fred Dwyer and the Irish hill and daler John Joe Barry graduate, a great era in "Wildcat" track history will be brought to a close. However, followers of the track team need not worry, for a new and possibly greater era will begin when this year's freshmen become eligible next September. Wildcat coach Jim "Jumbo" Elliot has found on the Mainline campus perhaps the greatest high school track and field talent in the country.

Included on this year's frosh squad are several inter-scholastic world record-holders in addition to many state, county and meet record-holders. The frosh harriers list everything from a champion pole vaulter to a record-breaking miler.

Record Miler

From Bayonne High School in northwestern New Jersey comes the greatest interscholastic miler in the country, record breaking Johnny Kopil. He has run the mile in the amazing time of 4:20.1, a world's schoolboy record. Johnny should prove a worthy successor to Fred Dwyer. Also from Bayonne are George Brown, a miler, and Al Peterson, a half-miler. This Bayonne trio helped set national high school records in both the two and four-mile relays, finished 1-2-3 in the New Jersey mile championships, and also copped the distance medley at the Penn Relays.

The "Wildcats" have added another international star in the person of Alex Breckenridge from Scotland, one of the foremost distance runners in the British Commonwealth. During the summer Alex defeated our own Freddy Dwyer at an international meet overseas, setting a meet record of 4:11.4.

Also on hand is one of the best high hurdlers from last year's scholastic ranks, Bob Holup, another high school record-breaker who hails from Amboy, New Jersey. He holds many Jersey records, both county and state, and has been clocked doing the 120-yard high hurdles in 14.1 seconds. Another state champion from New Jersey is Eugene Maliff. He holds the record for the 220 and has broken 50 seconds for the quarter mile.

Vaulter

In the pole vault Jersey offers the "Wildcats" another national record breaker and interscholastic champion in Don Bragg, from Paulsboro, N.J. Don, in his brief career, has vaulted as high as 13 feet 9 inches.

Also on hand is John Hannelly, an excellent dash prospect, from Philadelphia.

Last, but far from least, is Charlie Jenkins, perhaps the brightest of the future Wildcat

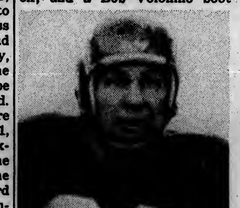
Wildcats Return To Face Veteran-Studded Detroit

After three weeks of action on enemy gridirons, Coach Art Raimo's eleven returns home this week to meet the University of Detroit at Connie Mack Stadium this Friday evening. In the Titans, the Blue and White are facing a team which has been victorious in two of their three games to date, with the only blemish being a 21-7 defeat suffered at the hands of Fordham.

Part of the answer to Deroit's 1953 success may lie in the fact that the switch to the one platoon system caused Titan coach Dutch Clark little if any difficulty. Five of his starters on this year's squad saw double-duty action in 1952. They are Ray Zambiasi, Lee Riley, Ed Sheldon, Charles Krol, and Pete Knoch. Zambiasi is the 205-pound fullback who spearheaded the Red and White's 1952 ground attack. A power runner, he picks up most of his yardage on short plunges up the middle or off the tackles. Like Zambiasi, both Riley and Sheldon are returnees from last year's backfield. The stocky, 175 pound Riley does most of the team's punting, and also passes.

In the line, the gigantic Koch, a six foot three inch, 240 pound tackle, teams with a bright Sophomore prospect, end Jack Flanagan, to make the left side of the Detroit line a rather tough shell to crack.

Not in two years has Mr. Clark had such promising prospects around which to mold his starting group. Little wonder then, that he looks to Friday as a night for Titan revenge on the Wildcats, who last year took the measure of the Ted Marchibroda—led company, 21-7.



Line, Filipski Sparkle; First Win For Mainliners

By Norm Feldpush

A dreary afternoon at Fenway Park proved to be the brightest of the season as the Villanova Wildcats clawed the Boston College Eagles 15-7 on Sunday. Both teams, winless at game time against Southern opposition, continued the intense rivalry of past gridiron battles. Villanova finally found themselves after three games, and entered the win column in convincing fashion. All-American Gene Filipski's running and a courageous Wildcat line stood out for Villanova.

Early Safety

The Wildcats elected to kick off, and a Bob Volonino boot placed the Eagles deep in their own territory. An offside penalty gave BC a first down on their own 16-yard stripe. The Wildcat forward wall pushed the Eagles back to the six. Elongated Ray Rigney crashed in from his end position and downed Bill Stuka in the end zone for two points. The Cats began to purr.

GENE FILIPSKI

Line Play Tops

Later an Eagle march was stopped, and Villanova took possession on the B.C. 41-yard marker. Gene Filipski then gathered in a Joe McNicholas toss on the thirty, and aided by a key block from Ray Rigney, scored. Volonino failed to convert and the score was 8-0.

The second quarter was featured by the running of Captain Joe Johnson, as the Eagles drove to the Villanova 14-yard line, A Jim Kane pass was incomplete out of the end zone, and the Wildcat line held. With three minutes remaining in the half, the Wildcats penetrated to the 12-yard mark. A series of downs ended with McNicholas smothered on the 39 by the great defensive play of the B.C. line.

Eagles Held

The Eagles started to move, but the half ended as Jim Kane passed to Tom Magnarelli on the Villanova nine. The first half was highlighted by the running of Filipski and Benn Addiego, and the defensive efforts of Captain Joe Faragalli, Joe Leichtweiss, and Don McComb.

A Villanova fumble and an offside penalty placed the pigskin on the Wildcat one yard stripe to start the third quarter. The ball changed hands several times and B.C. gained possession at midfield. A third down pass from Jim Kane was snagged by soph sensation McComb. The rangy end lumbered fifty yards to score. Volonino converted the second kicked extra point of the season and the score was 15-0. A pass interference play

October Brings Intramural, Muff Day Programs

With the school year now in full swing, the fall intramural program is getting underway. Bill Barbary and Ed Geisz, President and Director of Intramurals respectively, and Rev. John Dunne, the Moderator, have outlined a complete system of intramurals.

Starting with a touch football league and tennis tournament, which began on Oct. 5, the program will branch out to other activities, including Chess and Ping Pong tournments, and will be highlighted by Muff Day, the get-together between the freshmen and Sophomores, to be held on Oct. 14, at Mendel Field.

In the football program, there are three leagues: Austin 1, Austin 2, and Mendel, with sixteen teams in competition. The names of the teams are, in the Austin 1 league: Shamrocks, 3rd Floor Mendel, Hornets, Dragonnets, Muscats, and Barracks No. 1; in the Austin 2 league: Wonders, Raiders, Barons, Rookies, and Alumni Shamrocks; and in the Mendel league: Sand-nips, Losers, Delurey Devils, Fedigan Ramblers, and the Bull Dozers. Each of these teams is allowed nine players, with a fifteen man roster.

The tennis tournament, also underway, is comprised of individual players competing for top honors in that field. Chess, to be held in the Blue Room of the Field House, and Ping Pong, situated at Alumni gym, have not yet begun.

Muff Day, the annual Frosh-Soph fray at Mendel Field, will be made up of six events: tug-o-war, egg toss, wheel barrow race, track events, football pass and punt contest, and a touch football game. Oct. 14 is the date set for the meet, which should prove to be a good one, in view of the fact that if the Frosh, win they can throw away their "regs"; if they lose to the Sophs, they will be forced to wear them until Thanksgiving.

RALPH CECERE, better known last year for his fine kicking, has come into his own as a sparkling offensive threat in '53. He scored five times thus far in the Wildcat's four games.

SPORTS CHATTER

The Crucial Six

By Harry Nash

When Lou Perini moved his second-division and fan-starved Braves from the uninhabited confines of Braves Field in Boston to Milwaukee last Spring, he was greeted by such an overflow of spectator interest and attendance that County Stadium bulged to the tune of a new National League turnstile record.

Yet, even with this evidence staring them in the face, many baseball experts are predicting, unless the Tribe can do a repeat on their amazing early foot of '53, Milwaukee fans will make with an about-face and interest will be only average or even sub-par next year.

And so it is with Villanova.

Just because almost 100,000 fans shoved their way into the yawning expanse of Philadelphia's Municipal Stadium for the Wildcat opener against Georgia, doesn't mean that this institution has gained a firm grip on such a large number of gridiron enthusiasts; a school has to hold its followers throughout the entire season with just one attraction: good football and a colorful group of ball-players. With all due respects to the fine efforts of Athletic Director Ambrose "Bud" Dudley and his assistant, Bill Ryan, whose promotional brainstorm was responsible for the record-breaking crowd, (and, after all, the first step in getting and holding followers is getting them out to the park to see their potential favorites); the responsibility of clinging to such an assemblage of supporters rests not in novelties or promotions, but squarely in the padded lap of one group—Villanova's own football club.

Must Convince Fans

After all, a fan convinced that he is rooting for a good, sound club is a fan that will come back time and again, not because he happened to buy ten bucks worth of groceries from American Stores, but because he likes what he sees of his team at home and the reports he hears of it on the road. Naturally enough, three straight losses, especially in games in which the 'Cats at one stage led, aren't exactly conducive to drawing a swelter of stampeding followers to the park.

And it is, then, for this reason, as well as for the other motives that spur a team to victory, that Art Raimo's men have an extra share of pressure on them for the remainder of the season, which is by no means to be declared a failure yet—there are six more ball games to be played, three here in Philadelphia—the Detroit contest next weekend at Connie Mack Stadium, the Zavier get-together in the same ballwick October 31, and the extremely-important Syracuse tilt November 21, this one to be staged at Franklin Field.

Extra Pressure

So a lot more is riding on these six games than merely record, or simply winning them for the conventional reasons of prestige for the school and the club, (reasons which in themselves put enough pressure on most college football aggregations); this '54 club's fortunes could be the key to whether or not Villanova ever draws successfully in the Quaker City, and whether the tireless outputs of the college's energetic athletic front office to light a real fire under prospective Wildcat followers in this area will actually have far-reaching results or die a natural death.

"Telling Six"

The Braves won—and they drew, and how.

Villanova can win; the club proved that last year—and Villonova CAN draw.

The next six games will tell the story.

stars. Charlie graduated from Ridge High School in Cambridge, Mass. He holds over a half dozen assorted records in both the 440 and 600 yard run. However, at the Penn Relays last year he was clocked in the great time of 47.5 seconds. He was also a member of the record-breaking mile relay team while at Ridge.

From this run-down of future stars, it can be seen that Villanova will have one of the best track squads in the country in the next four years. A great post-war era in track, which began here at Villanova with Ross and Guida and has been continued by Fred Dwyer, should bring the school even greater glory in the next four seasons through this year's freshmen track squad.

'Cats Arrive

then placed the ball on the visitors' five yard-line as the third quarter ended.

FG Try Flops

A pitchout to Magnarelli on the first play of the last period made the score 15-7, with Johnson converting. Dick Scott became the first backfield substitution of the game, replacing McNicholas. The Eagles threatened again as they reached the twelve yard mark, but a field goal attempt by Johnson was unsuccessful. Villanova marched to the B.C. twenty-one on the running of Scott and Jack Helm. The thrust stalled and Cecere punted out on the six. Mike Holovak's forces failed to score again, and the Wildcats had their first victory of 1953.

Despite his prowess on the gridiron, Cecere's first love in sports is baseball. A star member of the Villanova nine, he plays shortstop and bats cleanup. Ralph hopes to get a chance to break into organized ball after graduation.

When Joe Viverito went out for football early this fall, he had his work all cut out for him. His job—to fill the shoes of All-Eastern center Joe DeRose. Now, with four games completed, all his teammates agree that "Video", in his quiet, hustling manner, has been a most capable replacement. A believer in action in place of words, Joe, with his hard blocks and vicious tackles, has shown that he is a steady, all-around performer. Truly a sixty minute man, he has played practically full time.

Joe has plenty of experience at the pivot position. For three years he held down that spot at Chaminade High, in New York, and he was a reserve center that past two seasons here at Villanova. Now the Number 1 man at center, he likes the opporunity of playing both ways.

Like most linemen, Viverito's big desire is to score a touchdown. To make it an even bigger thrill, he would like to tally one against Fordham, because of that school's nearness to his home.

Joe, a Junior, is an education major and plans to teach and coach after graduation.

Vivicrito is easily recognized around the campus by his very short crew cut, which he claims always needs trimming.

Varsity Swimmers Begin Training

In accordance with the expanded Villanova athletic program, swimming has been added to the varsity sports. According to Bill Ryan, the Athletic Secretary, the swimming team has a full schedule of 10 meets. Among the top flight competition is Penn, LaSalle, Swarthmore, N. Y. U., Loyola of Baltimore and Princeton. Mr. Ryan expressed great hope in this newly arrived sport and has far reaching plans, such as obtaining Yale and Ohio State for foes.

Coach Ed Geisz has called for candidates for both the freshmen and varsity teams, and has set up a gruelling conditioning program. For the first two weeks Coach Geisz expressed the hope that the candidates would swim a mile and a half a day. Following this period, and up to December 12 when the first meet will take place, the team will go through a polishing period where faults in strokes, turns, and starts will be pointed out by the ex-LaSalle star.

Coach Geisz, who also has charge of the intramurals, intends on sponsoring a water show to stir interest in Villanova's team in this area.

In conjunction with the water show coach Geisz plans on running a Swim Clinic. On different occasions, present and former swimming stars will come to Villanova to demonstrate their aquatic abilities. To stir the interest of young swimmers in Villanova, this dynamic man also plans to have high school meets scheduled in our pool. If Swimming does not take hold here at Villanova, it won't be the fault of Ed Geisz.

"Go jump in the lake," squalled Sheedy's mermaid with baited breath, "You look simply crabby with that messy hair. Better get your hooks into Wildroot Cream-Oil, America's favorite hair tonic. Keeps hair combed with no trace of greasiness. Removes loose, ugly dandruff. Relieves annoying dryness. Contains lanolin. Non-alcoholic. I shell never sea you again until you start using it." Paul crabbed 29¢ and bought Wildroot Cream-Oil. Now he's the crab-apple of her eye. So water you waiting for? Hurry and get a bottle or handy tube at any toilet goods counter. A Challenge Is Offered To The Theories Of Today

By Mark McCormick

If a man begins to think that the rest of the world is crazy, society judges that the man himself is probably lacking in mental balance. But these days can we be sure?

Salvador Dali paints a pocket watch literally dripping off a window sill and calls the picture, "Time Running Out". This ability in art to paint a circle to look like a square is called cubism, and this cubism is considered part of the school of realism. Or is it postimpressionism?

New theories have been advanced in education. The new method is called educational progressivism by some, but others prefer to call it progressive educationalism.

Scholars advocate scholasticism which is intellectualism based on Aristoltelianism. They must contend with groups supporting materialism and positivism. On every side is waged this war of ideas.

Classicism opposes romanticisb; emotionalism opposes rationalism; optimism is pitted against pessimism. We reject communism which accuses us at every turn of imperialism. We fight fascism and disdain system of socialism and liberalism. Our system is capitalism and republicanism.

Congressmen decry militarism, and soldiers warn against pacifism. This involves a discussion of interationalism versus isolationism or industrialism versus agrarianism.

Some propose a return to fundamentalism. Others call that sophism. They say there can be no simplification until we abandon emotionalism, and that it will be as slow a battle as that of Catholicism with Islamism.

Where does all this leave Catbird Kingfisher, local yokel and Professor of Billiards? It leaves him sitting on his curb, lost. Or perhaps he is the only one with the right idea.

A fellow named Socrates is reported to have said quite a while ago that it is important for man to be aware of his own limitations. His advice is: "Know Thyself". He has been dead for over two thousand years but a few people still remember these two words.

Much of our controversy and resulting confusion would surely be resolved if man were to become aware of how little he does know. Anyone who should say to Catbird: "What do you know for sure?" is likely to be answered by a silence that in his case will be profound.

Another oldtimer spent his lifetime giving mankind a simple, sanity-producing message: "Define your terms, man, define your terms."

really "went places."

It was while at Egland Field that Bill volunteered as a guinea pig to test a new device for the government that could make regular sea water drinkable. He was set afloat in the Gulf of Mexico along with seven other men on life rafts, Only he and "a guy from Brooklyn" held out for the whole 19 days. The rest had to be "rescued."

Bill "Father" Ryan, as he was called by his buddies (because of his close association with the Chaplains and his frequent serving of Mass) continued his work as athletic director at Egland until 1944. "Bud still calls me Father Ryan sometimes", he noted.

In October of that year he married his hometown sweetheart, Mary Halloran.

"Right after that I was transferred to Wilmington, N.C." the dark, lightning-tongued Ryan continued, "It was there, as swimming instructor, that I directed a water carnival at one of the local country clubs: a good will show. At the end of the show I dove 40 feet into a burning pool. What a job!"

At that time the Armed Forces began to sponsor a football league and Bill was appointed travelling secretary for an Air Force team called the "Comets". He remembers them as a "fabulous outfit" with such greats as Glenn Dobbs, Jim Castiglia, and "Piggy" Barnes who now plays for the Philadelphia Eagles. Bud Dudley played halfback on the team and it was here they met.

Bill had finished his soup and now was talking so fast that I had trouble keeping up with him. "I was discharged in 1945, four years, to the day, after I joined, and who do you think was playing the drums in the band as I got my "diploma"? Donald O'Connor! 'Hello, you big Irishman'! I greeted him. We lived together for a couple days there . . . had a lot of fun."

The Ryans moved back to their home in Trenton and Bill took a course in salesmanship at Rider nights. "Wait 'till you hear all the jobs I've had since then", he laughed, "You'll think I'm crazy". He was still going like a house afire behind his horn rimmed glasses.

"While in school I was a playground instructor during the day. I won a plaque, by the way, as the Outstanding Playground Instructor of Trenton that year. I was really proud of that."

Following his interests into the field of sports, Bill worked in a sports store and was promotion director for the Trenton Giants baseball team at the same time. On the advice of the store owner, George Case, one time Washington Senators great and league leader in stolen bases, he went to Florida Southern College to study Pro-Baseball Business Management and became affiliated with two minor league clubs in the South. He was business manager and promotion director of the Columbus Cardinals, a Class A team in the South Atlantic (Sally) League.

When he returned home in 1952, Bud Dudley got in touch with him concerning a job at Villanova.

This past summer Bill displayed his vibrant energy and stick-to-it-iveness as he handled the correspondence end of planning this year's Villanova foot-

National Teacher Exam Held In February 1954

The National Teacher Examinations, prepared and administered annually by Education al Testing Service, will be given at 200 testing centers throughout the United tSates on Saturday, Feburary 13, 1954.

At the one-day testing session a candidate may take the Common Examinations, which include tests in Professional Information, General Culture, English Expression, and Nonverbal Reasoning; and one or two of nine Optional Examinations designed to demonstrate mastery of subject matter to be taught. The college which a candidate is attending, or the school system in which he is seeking employment, will advise him wether he should take the National Teacher Examinations and which of the Optional Examinations to select.

Application forms and a Bulletin of Information describing registration procedure and containing sample test questions may be obtained from college officials, school superintendents, or directly from the National Teacher Examinations, Educatinal Testing Service, P. O. Box 592, Princeton, New Jersey. Completed applications, accompanied by proper examination fees, will be accepted by the ETS office during November and December, and in January so long as they are received before January 15,1954.

N.F.C.C.S. Holds First Meeting

The National Federation of College Students will hold its first regional meeting Saturday, October 17, 1953. Besides Villanova, other schools from the district include LaSalle, Rosemont, St. Joseph's, Manor College, Chestnut Hill, Gwynedd Mercy and Immaculata.

Rev. George McLaughlin is once more moderator of the organization; however, new student officers have been appointed. They are Bob Gold, who is the new Senior delegate and Jim Rath, who has been appointed Junior delegate of the society. It has also been announced that the organization's annual mission drive will be held in Feburary and a dance has been tentatively scheduled for November. The National Federation of Catholic College Students also plans to expand its membership so that any Freshman interested may contact Fr. McLaughlin or watch the bulletin board for the next meeting.

Program Outlined At IRC Session

The year's first meeting of the Industrial Relations Commission was held on the eighth of October, with Mr. Walter Klein, faculty advisor, attending.

The meeting was dedicated to introducing new members to the rules of the commission and to the planning of events during the year.

The commission also elected new officers for the present scholastic year. They are:

President ..... Albert Nowak
Vice-President .. Joseph Roddy
Secretary ..... Edward Allan
Treasurer ..... Lou Cassell

An encouraging turnout of members was present. The commission, which discusses important issues and events in the Labor - Management Relations field, invites all those who are interested to become members of the club.

Students Wanted To Solicit Ads For Yearbook

Plans for a campus wide ad campaign were revealed at last Tuesday's meeting of the Belle Air yearbook staff. Commissions are being offered to students who secure ads.

In keeping with the idea of having a yearbook of the highest standards and since this year's annual will be the first university edition Art Quinn and his staff are desirous of having an increase in revenue. To accomplish this, all students are requested to solicit ads.

All those who succeed in securing an ad will be rewarded with a 15 per cent commission on full and half page ads, and 10 per cent per quarter and eighth page ads. The rates for the ads are: full page, one hundred dollars; half page, sixty dollars; quarter page, thirty five dollars; eighth page, twenty dollars.

All of those interested in securing contract forms may pick them up in the Belle Air office in the basement of Mendel Hall from two to four any weekday afternoon.

"Here is a chance to pick up some easy spending money with a minimum of effort," said Quinn, urging that each senior get at least one advertisement apiece. This goal was set at the first senior class meeting by Roger Moriaty, business manager of the Belle Air.

As an added inducement, Moriarty announced that Villanova will distribute, free of charge, literature on advertising companies which buy ads.

Mr. Daniel Solari of the Cooke Publishing Company, who will handle the yearbook again this year, addressed the meeting. Mr. Solari outlined the process of publishing and also what should be included in a first rate university yearbook.

Quinn also requested the seniors to return their class history forms as soon as they possibly can. The deadline is October twenty first. Receptacles for this purpose are located in the Pie Shop, Dining Hall, and the Belle Air office.

Surprised that no freshmen have expressed a desire to join the staff, Quinn reminded that all classes are invited to join together in this project.

Hamilton Reveals New Scholarship

A four-year scholarship worth up to $4,000 is being offered by Hamilton College alumni in the Philadelphia-Washington area, including parts of Maryland, Virginia and New Jersey.

The winner will enter the upstate New York, liberal arts college next September.

Counties Named

Candidiates must attend a secondary school in one of these places:

Philadelphia, Bucks, Chester, Montgomery and Delaware counties, in Pennsylvania; Mercer and Camden counties, in New Jersey; the city of Baltimore, or Baltimore, Montgomery and Prince George counties, in Maryland; Arlington and Fairfax counties, in Virginia, or the District of Columbia.

Committee Completes Plans For Coming Fall Navy Dance

Highlighting a full season of activities, NROTC midshipmen will dance to the music of Howard Cook at the annual fall Navy Dance at the Sheraton Hotel, Friday, November 6. This informal affair is the culmination of the recreation committee's efforts to provide the best in music and atmosphere for the fall classic which is always a memorable occasion in the unit's social season.

Striving also to be remembered in the outfit's history is the drill team which has been practicing daily under the commands of captain Tom McNichols. Tom said, "We expect to begin the string which will retire the second straight Fourth Naval District trophy at Villanova." The drill team is tentatively scheduled to perform at one or more home football games.

Marksmen Vie

The rifle and pistol teams are also at work, striving to uphold their records of last year. The rifle team will meet Pennsylvania Military College, Penn, Princeton, Valley Forge Military and many service teams, while the pistol team is scheduled to meet the Philadelphia Police team in its first encounter. This engagement will be followed with several engagements with military teams in the area.

ball season. He not only contacted all schools, parishes, K. of C.'s, industries, orphanages, institutions, etc., to get them to follow Villanova but he used his aptitude in public speaking to address groups at night. Bill has always loved public speaking and just last week, after he and Mrs. Ryan and their son Bobby, 9, celebrated their 10th Anniversary, he spoke before the Villanova Club of Hudson County in Jersey City.

"What do you do for excitement now?" I asked.

"Well, some guys have hobbies, some enjoy drinking. Not me; I just like to get around and meet people. I enjoy sports and I like dancing but most of all I like to meet and help people."

Bill Ryan commutes to Villanova from Trenton every day. He is the secretary of both his Parish Holy Name Society and the Central Jersey Parochial School Basketball League.

A member of the Mayor's Committee of Outstanding Citizens in Trenton, Bill has already made his mark here at Villanova. He doesn't only talk about doing things; he does them!

Our athletic secretary is a "go getter" . . . from the word "go".

Juniors

Ring Chairman, Bill Kohler has begun negotiations for the purchase of this year's rings. The committee is hearing bids for their manufacture.

The Blazer Committee is headed by Tom Ulrich, who is transacting for an early delivery date for a quality garment. The Blazer Ball chairman has not yet been chosen, but May 5 has been set as the date for the affair.

The head of the Mother's Day committee will be Ted Clarkson, vice-president of the Junior Class. He is already working on plans for a Mother's Day show and other activities to be held on that day.

The final committee chairman is Jack Devine, who has been appointed miscelleneous chairman. Other activities for Junior Week will include the Junior picnic, May 6, and also the traditional tree planting ceremony.

Deadline

Deadline for next week's Villanovan will be four o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the Villanovan office. All material must be in by that time.

Club secretaries are urged to get all notices of meetings in to the Villanovan office or to Jim Nolin in room 213 Fedigan Hall by that time for the issue appearing October 20th.

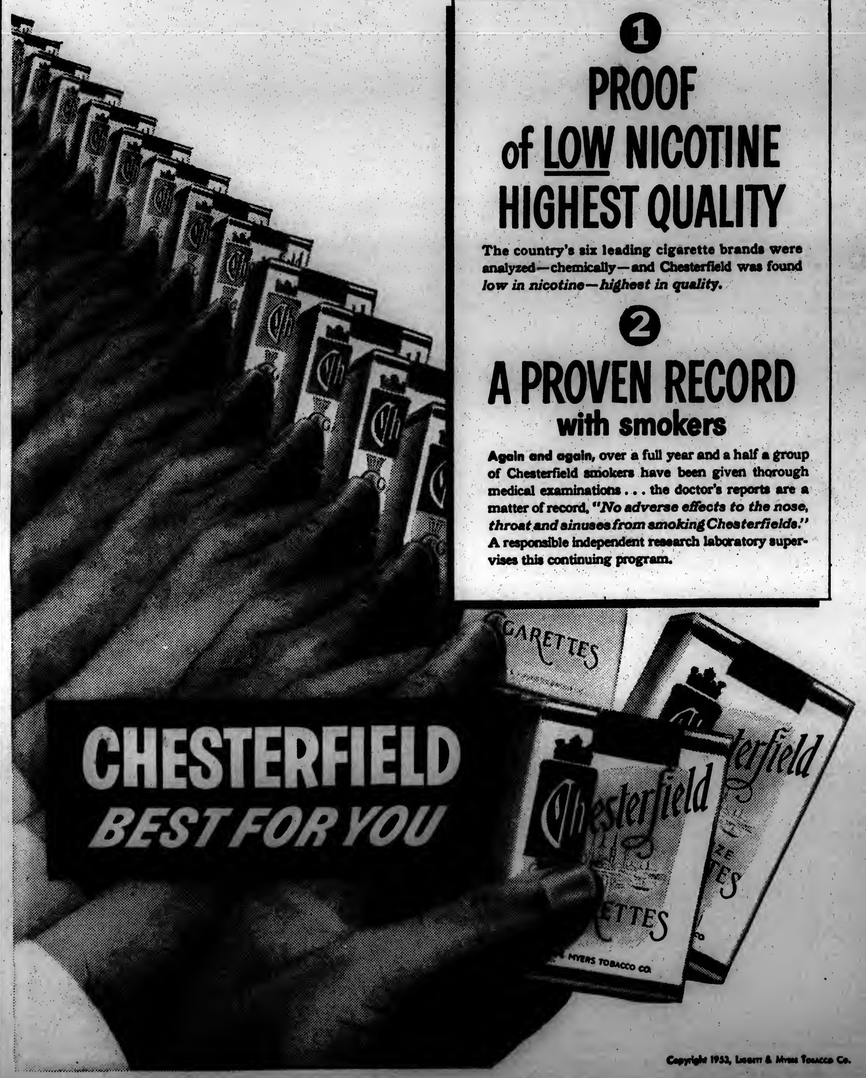
AIEE-IRE

There will be a meeting of the AIEE - IRE organization on Thursday at 10:30 in the Dynamo lab.



Members of the Philadelphia section on student membership will be present to tell the engineers of the value of belonging to the organization as student engineers.

WVIL

The radio voice of Villanova will be silenced, tentatively, for a month while a complete revamping of the technical equipment takes place.

Upon completion of the renovations a revised schedule will be presented featuring several new types of programs intended to interest the college students.

Juniors Discuss Plans; Fr. Grimes New Moderator

The Junior Class held its first meeting of the year last Thursday with President Bernie Finan presiding. The two principle topics discussed were Junior rings and blazers. It was also announced that Reverend Edwin Grimes O. S. A. had been chosen as the new moderator of the Junior Class.

Reverend George McLaughlin O. S. A. was the first speaker and gave a brief background on the Junior rings. Bill Kohler, chairman of the ring committee, was then introduced and stated that Dieges and Clutz would manufacture this year's rings. The price of the rings will be $44.17.

New Ring

Bill Kohler also announced that delivery is expected by February and that fittings will start in about two weeks. The rings will be 10 carat with a blue stone. On one side will be the traditional wildcat, while on the other side will be the Villanova seal and 1955.

Tom Ulrich, chairman of the Blazer committee reports that blazers will be made by Robert Rollins with fittings held in the Villanovan office from 10 to 3 tomorrow. Students may have either a two buttoned blazer with padded shoulders, or a three buttoned model with natural shoulders. The price of these jackets will be $27.50.

Moderator Speaks

The final speaker was Rev. Edwin Grimes O. S. A. who spoke on Villanova as one large family and the significance of the Villanova class ring. The one discouraging note in this meeting was the poor attendance, which does not speak well for the interest of the Junior Class.

7 "Straight A's" Head Dean's List

Perfect averages (4.0) were posted by seven Villanovans as two hundred and sixty students made the dean's list for the semester ending in June of 1953.

Pacing the class of 1956 were Conrad Urban, pre-med, and Francis Adams, arts student. Ambrose K Brennan, engineering, led last year's Sophomore class while the class of '54 had four men with straight A's; James Schafer and Louis Lolli, engineers, Charles Noel, chem major, and Dan Kerrisk, arts.

One hundred of last year's juniors, seventy-five of last year's sophomores, and eighty-five of last year's freshmen made the list, released by Rev. Thomas Burke, O. S. A., registrar.

Student-Faculty Tie Forms; Council To Meet Tonight

The second meeting of the Student Council was held during the activities period last Thursday, Oct. 15, the first morning session ever held by the council. The experiment proved unsuccessful however, because of the many other clubs convening at the same time. Nine members were absent.

Don McGahan, spirit committee head, was reassured of council backing in his plans for the Connelly Award. The fact was brought out in the discussion that it was an excellent opportunity for the continuation of one of Villanova's few traditions and at the same time a chance to generate our faltering team spirit.

The student-faculty committee was also re-established as Don McGahan and day-hop Jack Kneafsy were chosen to represent the students. This group, whose main purpose is to improve relations between the students and administration is looking forward to a successful year.

Other business discussed was:

1. Bob Gold, council spokesman for fraternities and societies, announced that any group wishing to hold a meeting on Thursday at 10:30 A. M. must submit a request for the room they want to use to Father McLaughlin, in order to avoid conflict. The C&F auditorium and 215 Mendel are reserved for class meetings.
2. Jack Kneafsey, head of the elections committee, gave the results of the senior election for class treasurer.
3. Bernie Steinfelt, president of the sophomore class, reported a successful MUFF day despite the fact that the Frosh won.
4. Plans were discussed for a student trip to Boston for the B.U.-Villanova football game. A minimum of 100 students will be needed to make the trip by train.
5. Jay Pandaleon was introduced as representative of "The Villanovan" on the council.

Due to the difficulty found in the morning session, subsequent meetings of the council will be held at night. The next meeting will be tonight at 7:15 in 215 Mendel.

NEW TIME

For the convenience of the students, checks may be cashed at the business office in Mendel Hall on Monday, Wednesday and Friday—with the exception of bank holidays—between the hours of 1:15 P.M. and 4:00 P.M.

Kelly Beats Boyle For Senior Post

Richard Kelly, day hop C&Fer, is the treasurer of the senior class by virtue of his ninety-two to seventy victory over resident James Boyle of the same school in the run-off election held last Tuesday in the Alumni Gym.

The run-off election was necessitated by last year's tie between the two. Both garnered one hundred and three votes in last May's contest.

The light turnout of voters was disappointing, as only one hundred sixty-two of an elibible three hundred eight-eight seniors voted. This represents only forty-two percent of the class.

Ted Sheehan, senior class president, welcomed Kelly as a class officer, joining vice-president Jack Birle and secretary Gene Filipski. A class meeting is planned for this week.

Owl Hop First Event In Villanova Social Season

Soft music and low lights will lend atmosphere to the Field House Friday night as the Owl Hop opens the Fall social season. The Blue Notes, led by Frank Teti, will play everything from slow fox trots to Charlestons to assure the success of the affair. Their lovely vocalist Lee Sloane will also be on hand.

The informal affair is sponsored by the Phi Kappa Pi engineering fraternity. Walt Miller, Chairman, announces that dancing will be continuous from 9 to 1. Decorations will not be elaborate, and no special theme has been chosen. The accent will be on good music. Refreshments will also be served.

Chairmen

Committee chairmen who worked with Miller are Bob Rock, tickets; Frank Licopoli, publicity; Jack Joyce and Jack English, refreshments; and Dick Durkin, decorations. Special credit should also go to Joe Zator, Fraternity President, for his fine work in promoting the success of the affair.

Tickets

The dance will be open to all students of Villanova. Bids will be priced at $2.00 per couple. Tickets may be purchased from Bob Rock, ticket chairman, from Frat members in the Dorms, in the Pie Shop from 11:30 to 1:30, and at the door the night of the dance.

"OUCH!" LKD initiation team gives "the works" to prospective member during ceremonies in basement of C&F building.

LKD "Welcomes" Pledges

Lambda Kappa Delta, the science fraternity, welcomed thirty-six new members into its brotherhood last Wednesday night with its annual initiation, which lasted for two hours. Included in the evening's program were such brotherly gestures as paddling, breaking eggs over heads, singing loudly and clearly "V for Villanova", accompanied by resounding thwacks from fellow frat men, and finally, shocking jolts from the kindly brothers.

Remo Leomporra, senior premed and president of the frat, was in charge of the initiation. Any science major is eligible for membership in the organization.

After the initiation Leomporra praised the pledges for their high spirits and welcomed them into the fraternity as fellow brothers. He said he hoped that in future years they would look back on this event as a factor in welding them together into a group.

The president also announced that plans were underway to hold a dinner dance sometime next month. Next meeting of the club is Oct. 21.

Editorials

More Guidance; Less "Teaching"

It is the policy of a certain well known New England institution to conduct only two hours of classes each day for some students. The purpose of this educational experiment is to make quite clear to the student the part which the classroom should play in his formal education.

Due to the extensive system of classes here at Villanova and the importance placed upon attendance, we are likely to lose sight of the proper role which the classroom and the prof should assume during our years of learning.

It is perhaps in graduate work that we come closest to the proper relationship of classwork and learning. Here we see that the classroom is not the place to seek knowledge; it is the place to seek guidance. Likewise, the role of the "teacher" is not as his name implies. His job is to guide us and lay the groundwork for the education which we are seeking.

To many of us our "class notes" are the subject matter which we are to consume and our "profs" are the ones designated to feed it to us. This is greatly distorted picture.

Recently a professor, new to our campus this year, commented on the small number of students who take advantage of our beautiful library. This is a just measure of the students at this school. THERE is where the knowledge lies, row upon row in the stacks. It will not come out and look for us. If we have come here to be educated and not merely "degree'd" we will go to find it.

Many of us are disillusioned to find that "Tolle Lege" does not mean, "TAKE a course and READ your notes."

A Report

We had the rare privilege of representing Villanova College and this newspaper at the national conference of the Associated Collegiate Press in Chicago last Thursday through Saturday.

Aside from the horseplay and camaraderie which characterize all conventions, we were struck by the intense dedication and seriousness with which the editors of college publications—newspapers, magazines, and yearbooks—approach their jobs.

When the featured speaker of the conference was introduced, there appeared about 500 notebooks with 500 pencils from about the same number of purses and vest pockets to record the words of Eddy Gilmore, A. P. correspondent recently returned to the U. S. after eleven years of covering Soviet Russia.

The editors, busily scribbling notes, were particularly concerned with the spirit and the letter of the remarks of the man who claimed to be no expert on Soviet or international affairs.

Gilmore, obviously trying to regain his emotional composure, having brought his wife and children from under the shadow of the Kremlin to freedom, expressed an unusual optimism. He claimed that America overestimates the Soviet threat, believed that Russia does not have a droppable H-bomb, and predicted that Russia, valuing the U. N. as a medium for propaganda, will not withdraw from it while it retains the veto power.

ARTS SCHOOL

Does The Arts Degree Mean Anything Today?

By Bernie Coyne

Universities show increasing awareness that the time has come for renewed emphasis on the ancient value of learning. Princeton has announced plans for a large program in the liberal arts. Harvard has named to its presidency a man whose main interest is general education, as opposed to specialized schooling.

Executives Recommend

Educators are not the only ones who are acknowledging the importance of general learning. Business men, for instance, are proclaiming it, as in the case of Frank Abrams, chairman of the board of Jersey Standard Oil and promoter of business support for colleges through the new Council for Financial Aid to Education. Among Mr. Abram's colleagues are Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., Chairman of General Motors; Walter Paepke, of Container Corporation; Henning W. Prentes Jr., of Armstrong Cork, and Irving Olds, retired chairman of the board of United States Steel.

The magazine, "Fortune," in a recent article entitled "Should a Business Man be Educated?" notes this business interest in general education and quotes a few of those interested in it.

Mr. Olds says: "The most difficult problems American Enterprises face today are neither scientific nor technical, but are chiefly in the realm of what is embraced in a liberal-arts education."

Sidney Swensrud, president of Gulf Oil says: "It is the broader-gauged man who is scarce, the man who sees beyond today's job, the man who knows his fundamentals well and learns the details as he needs them . . . The men who come into management must understand the whole sweep of modern economic, political and social life."

Business Alarmed

Fortune Magazine, in reporting these statements and recording the results of a survey of 50 colleges and universities, finds that "business men are rightfully alarmed," for college students today are receiving less fundamental education than ever before.

"And who is to blame?" asks Fortune. "The fact is that business itself is largely to blame"—not through its higher executives, but through the men who do the hiring of people recently graduated from colleges.

"Business posts its demands on higher education through its personnel recruiters," the magazine continues. "The specifications that the recruiter (brings) to this task show that the going market for men with a broad general education, particularly in the Liberal art majors, is not nearly so reassuring as are the words of top management."

Few Jobs

Examples are cited. Of 117 manufacturing companies that reserved interviewing space at Yale last year, only 16 mentioned possibilities for liberal arts students. Of the first recruiters to visit Johns Hopkins this year, "145 were actively seeking engineers, 39 wanted other kinds of specialists and only 16 were willing to have a look at liberal arts major."

These are cases in which jobs are seeking men. When men seek jobs, the same situation is reported. A young college graduate looking for work in Manhattan, for example, "found in talking to on-site personnel men that his English major was a liability beside the technical training or extracurricular work experience of his classmates, even for a job as a writer with a major publishing concern."

Underclassmen, Fortune reports, are soon told by job-seeking seniors or graduates that the "impractical" liberal arts education does not pay. Of 227,029 men who got their degrees from 1,306 colleges in 1952, "less than a third took courses that by any stretch of the definition made them products of a general education."

The colleges themselves are partly to blame for the drop in liberal arts. Over the last few decades, many colleges have broken out in a rash of offered vocational electives. The article notes, among such courses, Personality Development and a seminar on "How to Get and Hold a Job."

Business Blamed

But business is to be blamed much more than the colloges, for they have created a demand for more specialization in college courses each year. They are forcing the educator to conform his curriculum to their specifications, and to write a death warrant for liberal education.

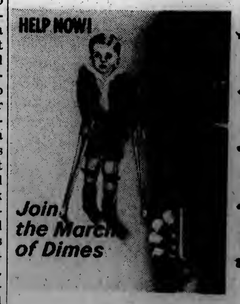
So This Is Ivy League?

By Rees James

We journeyed to Boston the other week for the Boston College fracas, and we had the pleasure of spending the weekend with friends at Harvard University. We managed to take in the cheery game between Harvard and Colgate, and since this was the first time we had ever visited an Ivy League establishment or witnessed one of their virtuous athletic contests, we received some definite impressions.

From our brief experience, Harvard consists of a multitude of impressive, ivy-covered buildings, a number of narrow streets, an atmosphere of tradition and intellectualism, and a few wild parties. The facilities at Harvard befit a school so largely endowed, and the opulent odor of stocks, bonds, and such is just around every corner. In spite of all this, or perhaps because of it, that certain spirit of friendliness which we have come to associate with college life seemed absent. We were treated royally, but somehow we received the impression that if we had not known anyone at the University, we would have found the cupboard empty. However, this is undoubtedly a generalization. First impressions usually are.

The football game was an entirely different matter. The contestants were so busy helping each other off the gridiron and being such all-around good sports that the trivial aspects of the game, such as blocking and tackling, were more or less neglected. It was all very strange to us. The fans all cheered the same thing at the same time, the band played marches rather than popular music, and there were no fights among the spectators. Everyone concerned was gentlemanly and very cheerful. It was all very confusing.



As we have previously indicated, the game itself was not a masterpiece of football craftsmanship. The participants tried very hard, and due to this fact, along with the closeness of the score, our dormant emotions were aroused. However, it was not good football. There exists a faction in the sports world that claims this is the way college football should be played. This may be true for Harvard, but for our money, we prefer watching the hired killers of the Midwest and the like, who are a little less friendly and play good football.

It was, however, a fine weekend and we are looking forward to a return visit. On Sunday, we saw the Villanova-Boston College game. As it should be, we felt right at home.

Answer To H-Bomb Is Found In Fatima

By M. McCormick

The atomic and hydrogen bombs are not just new and more powerful weapons of war. They are much worse, and they are worse because of the implications of their power.

Blockbusters

The big bomb during most of the second world war was the Blockbuster which with terrible efficiency reduced many cities of Germany to rubble. This bomb could destroy an area of one/twenty-third mile diameter. Two atom bombs were used in this war, their destructive area having a two mile diameter. Our use of these bombs startled the world which evidenced shock, dismay, and fear at the bomb's power.

But scientists now warn of a hyrogen bomb which could destroy an area of twenty mile diameter, having one hundred times the destructive power of the first atom bombs.

Civilian Victims

Human suffering and death in all past wars would be multiplied unbelievably in a future world war. Hiroshima and Nagasaki indicate that atomic war would mean total war, and would therefore include many innocent civilians as its victims. Many moralists doubt that use of these powerful bombs is justifiable by either side in any war.

But whatever they decide it is probable that the bombs would be used. The United States has the tremendous job of trying to maintain peace in a world rife with international tensions. She must contend with one nation whose intention is world domination.

Arms Race Futile

The weapon of peace has been fear. The means has been military preparedness, including stockpiling and further development of atomic weapons. It provides a strange paradox but it is realistic that we must arm to avoid war. The armament race may postpone war, but it can never prevent war and guarantee peace.

Of course the obvious and only solution to the dilemma lies in the message of Fatima. The United States continues to negotiate for peace through a world organization which has not even dared to formally recognize the existence of God.

Communist ideology opposes all that our government stands for, and furthermore does not believe in "co-existence" but by definition seeks to dominate the world. Therefore as surely as we must not bargain with Satan, we cannot compromise with communism.

"Bubbleheads"

There has been a popular tendency among politicians lately to discount warnings of possible communist military aggression. The Inquirer recently aptly termed these individuals bubbleheads, and the President tried to clear the air by stating the facts of the armament race.

The American people are traditionally like an ostrich. Political isolation is the sand we bury our heads in. A few sincere and

The Youth Of Europe

By Edwin Daly

Few facets of European life are so striking to an American tourist as the youth movement. This varies very much in scope from one country to another, but is still of major importance throughout Europe.

The two countries where the youth movement is most active are Belgium and Germany. In Belgium it takes the form of organized travel by bus or enormous groups of boys. As nearly as we could see, girls do not take an active part in the youth activities in that country. The number of boys involved in these trips is tremendous.

While driving from Luxembourg to Brussels we got behind a procession of these buses in the neighborhood of Namur. We counted eighteen bus-loads of boys on this one excursion, a trip through Belgium sponsored by the Catholic school system of Brussels. Again, while we were stopping in Cologne, a Belgian group visiting the Rhineland was also staying there. This tour included thirty-seven bus-loads of boys under the sponsorship of the Socialist Party of the Liege. In addition to these we also encountered many smaller groups of Belgian boys throughout Europe.

Camping seems to be the national sport of Germany, because everywhere one travels in Germany, he sees camping establishments and virtual armies of strong, athletic German boys and girls, either on foot or on bicycles, with heavy packs on their backs. One night I took a stroll around the lake—known as Titisee—in the Black Forest, a favorite camping ground for German youth.

At one point I reached some high ground from which the surrounding country could be seen for miles. As far as I could see there were hundreds and hundreds of camp fires, and from all sides came the various songs of groups of young people who had settled down around the fires for an evening's festivities. This scene could be easily reproduced in anyone of a hundred other German camping centers, for in Germany the scope of this youth movement is unbelievable.

In England, Austria, Switzerland, and Luxembourg, there are also highly developed athletic and travel organizations for young people, although not on a scale so large as those in Germany or Belgium. Italy, France, and Holland apparently do not have any large scale organizations, although some youth activity is visible on a small scale.

The Catholics, the Socialists, and the Communists all sponsor youth organizations whose importance varies according to the locality. One American soldier stationed in Heidelberg told me that the youth movement there is almost entirely Socialist-sponsored and is the key to the parties' prestige in that region. On the other hand a storekeeper in Munich, a predominantly Catholic city in Bavaria, spoke to me about the wonderful part in youth activities that the Church plays there. Of course there are also many non-political youth organizations, such as the Boy Scouts, which are very active in Germany and England.

All of these active groups seem to promise a healthy, socially conscious new generation in Europe to succeed the war-shattered generations before them. The European youth movement certainly deserves notice on this side of the Atlantic, for its members will soon be the leaders of tomorrow.

Dick Fitzpatrick Named to Handle Sophomore Cotillion in November

It was decided last week that the chairman of this year's Sophomore Cotillion will be Dick Fitzpatrick. The date for the dance was set at November 20.

Plans set by the Cotillion committee so far include the idea of setting the dance in a Hawaiian atmosphere.

"We hope to capture some of the romantic beauty of the island in our decorations," said the chairman.

Ed Novasatka and Phil Butler were named to head the all-important decorations committee. Tom McInerney and Kevin Duff are chairmen of the Program and Ticket Committee. Publicity will be handled by Frank Adams and Greg Gehring.

Several bands are being considered by the Music Committee, which is under the leadership of Frank Hartmann and Lew Donatelli. Refreshments Committee Chairmen Bob Connor and Phil Keane have begun scouting around for soft drink manufacturers.

Math Head Honored

DR. A MALOTTI

The Philadelphia Section of the American Society for Quality Control this week announced the appointment of Dr. Emil Amelotti, Head of the Mathematics Department, as a member of the Publicity Committee. This office will be held for the 1953-1954 fiscal year, the eighth year of the Society.

I.R.C. Will Visit U.N. in New York

The International Relations Club will travel to New York next Wednesday, Oct. 28, to visit the United Nations. The trip will be supervised by Dr. Fred J. Khouri, political science professor, and Henry L. Rofinot, Moderator of the I. R. C.

The group, including some of Dr. Khouri's political science students, will leave school Wednesday morning by bus and arrive at the United Nations building for a talk by one of the delegates at eleven o'clock.

After luncheon in the delegates' dining room, the group will be guided on a tour through the United Nations Building. During the afternoon they will attend an actual General Assembly Building meeting.

Bill Phipps, president of the organization, and Edwin Daly, program chairman, are trying, through the World Affairs Council of Philadelphia, to arrange for prominent speakers in the field of international relations for future meetings of the club.

I.R.C. members have also been invited to attend a program of international relations activity at Bryn Mawr College on October 23.

Arts Frat Reactivated; Form Organizing Group

The Delta Pi Mu Liberal Arts Fraternity held a re-organization meeting Thursday afternoon. Fr. John Sullivan, O.S.A. Dean of the Arts and Science School called the meeting and presided.

The DPM, the oldest Fraternity on the campus, was inactive last year because of lack of interest. Father Sullivan wishes to re-form it with new officers, a new constitution and new members of the sophomore, junior, and senior classes.

Moderator for the frat will be Dr. McEnerny, who teaches Latin to Arts students. Dr McEnerny showed great interest in reactivating the group.

Organizing Committee

At their initial meeting last week, the prospective members selected a committee of six as an organization group to call the next meeting, run the election of officers, and supervize the drawing up of a constitution. These six consist of two seniors, Jim Nolin and Bob Reber, two juniors, Frank Gunther and two sophomores, Harry Nash and Owen Hickey.

The frat will meet Thursday morning during the activities meeting in room 202 Mendel Hall. Nominations for officers will be made so that the activities of the group can get under way as soon as possible.

All sophomore, junior and senior arts School students are urged to attend. This years frat will not require any initiation. That will begin next year with the freshmen when the frat is considered active again.

Midshipmen Make Debut; Rifle Team Wins Opener

Blue-bedecked midshipmen of Villanova will make their first public appearance of the current school year when they parade before football fans at the Villanova-Xavier football game on October 31. The debut will be highlighted by the halftime performance of the much-heralded Batalion Drill Team, which will perform basic and fancy maneuvers designed to fill the interim with thrills.

Since these public appearances are the only means of the Philadelphia area has of judging the caliber of the Navy unit, the performance and precision of the midshipmen on this occasion are of deep concern to Batallion Commander J. J. Delaney, who is intent on drilling the outfit into unmatched sharpness for its Annapolis-style presentation.

Blood Donors

The local chapter of the American Red Cross will install a unit in Commodore Barry Hall during the week of Nov. 2 to receive voluntary blood donors at Villanova.

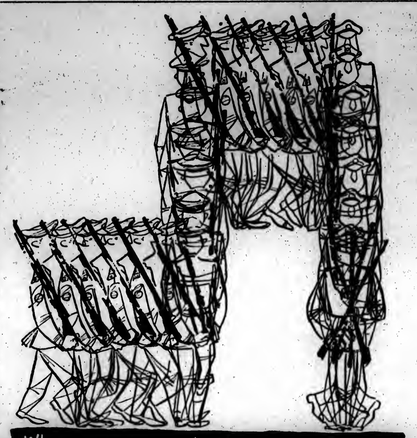
In past years such drives have met with great success on the campus; quotas have always been filled or exceeded. Although the Korean war is over, blood is still badly needed both for veterans and as a reserve against sudden atomic catastrophe.

Students under 21 must have blood-donor forms signed by their parents before they can donate. These forms can be picked up in the main office of Barry Hall.

Blazer Fittings

Tom Ulrich, Chairman of the Blazer Committee, announces that Robert Rollins has been selected to manufacture the Blazers and that fittings will be held in the Villanovan Office from 10:00 A. M. to 3:00 P. M. tomorrow. The price for this year's Blazers will be $27.50 including a $5.00 deposit.

The jackets will be navy blue with the emblem in a square on the upper pocket. Juniors will be given a choice between two-button padded shoulder model and a three-button natural shoulder type Blazer. There will also be a selection between plain or brass buttons.



Delivery of this year's Blazers is expected to be before Christmas.

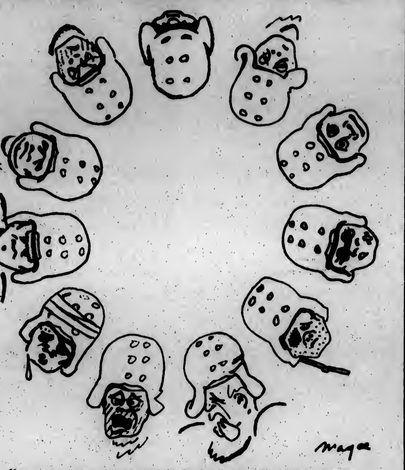
'CATS LOOK TO KENTUCKY

150's Beaten In Final 6 Seconds By Penn, 27-25

Villanova's 150-pound football team was first the hero, then the victim, of a Merriwell finish at River Field last Saturday as the Penn lightweights eked out a 27-25 win in the last 6 seconds in the season's opener for both schools.

With 2 minutes left in the game, Hall recovered a Penn fumble on their 44. Bill Pearson hit Don Hartley with a pass on the 30, but on the next play the Quaker line smothered the passer for a 14 yard loss. Doc Doherty then took over at quarterback and threw two strikes, a 29 yarder to Dom Conicelli and the payoff pitch to Jim Ward with 20 seconds left, to give Villanova a short lived 25-20 lead.

Following an on-side kick, Penn put the ball in paly at middield with only a couple seconds remaining Williams passed to Stimell for the touchdown that ruined the Junior Wildcats bid for victory and spoiled the coaching debuts of Tom Green, Ed Prorok, and Steve Smolzinski.



It was a tense, well-played game. Villanova's offense clicked smoothly. The hard running of Conicelli, Dan Murphy, and Tom Gorman was supplemented by Doherty's fine passing performance—his 6 completions in 13 attempts were good for 200 yards. Don Harley was Doc's favorite receiver, snaring 3 passes, including one for the first touchdown. Aggresive line play marked the contest. Hard tackles by the forward wall resulted in the recovery of five Pennsylvania fumbles. Gold, McElroy, Gaffney, Brockman, and Dougherty were standouts in the line.

Villanova received the opening kickoff and marched 70 yards in 14 plays for a touchdown. The attack seemed to bog down on the Penn 28, but with last down and 7 yards to go, Doherty passed to Harley for the score. A plunge for the extra point was unseccessful

The Quakers retaliated four minutes later and also missed the point.

The Junior Wildcats promptly got this one back with a 69 yard march. A 50 yard aerial to Charlie Spencer, holding on his injured ankle, featured the drive. Conicelli plunged the last yard. Doherty's dropkick was

'Cats Suffer 4th Defeat; Detroit Line Outstanding

by Ray Hayes

Villanova's indifferent Wildcats, apparently now well on in the race toward an all time low season, came in a poor second once more at Connie Mack Stadium last Friday night. Seemingly on the right track after a disastrous start, Art Raimo's warriors just didn't have it again as they bowed to Detroit, this time by the humiliating count of 27-0.

From the beginning Detroit capitalized on breaks when Ray Zambiasi pounced on Dick Scott's fumble on Villanova's 35 yard line. Eight plays later, Dave Kline, Detroit quarterback, passed 8 yards to halfback Lee Riley for the initial score. Zambiasi then attempted his only unsuccessful conversion of the evening.

In the second period, the breaks again favored Detroit. After Ben Addiego had intercepted a Kline pass on his own seven, Scott had the ball knocked from his hands. The Titans recovered on the Cats 13, and on the next play, with flankers out wide to split the defense, Burgmeier went through the line for the second touchdown. The conversion gave Detroit a 13-0 bulge at halftime.

The Titans showed their power in the third quarter with Zambiasi, Riley, and Burgmeier cutting through the line. Detroit ended a 66 yard drive by sending Riley over from the one.

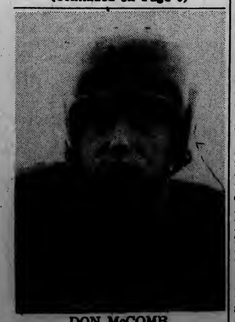
Now leading 20-0, the Titans kicked off. Villanova got nowhere and was forced to punt. Kline took Cecere's kick on his own 32 and raced through the entire Wildcat squad for the final score of the game.

The Mainliner's only threat to score came in the third period when a Titan fumble was recovered on their 33 yard line. However the strong Detroit line held once more and stopped the Cats far from a score.

Sophomore End, Veteran Lineman Spark Wildcats

by Jack Pettit

When the Wildcats of Villanova take the field at Lexington next Saturday night against the University of Kentucky, two of the Wildcats who will draw plenty of attention, will be Joe Leichtweis and Don McComb.



Joe Leichtweis is a 22-year-old Junior in the C and F school, who hails from Harrison, New York. Joe, a burly 6:30, tips the scales at 230 pounds.

He first got his start while playing at Iona Prep, in NEW Rochelle, New York. Among his teammates at Iona Prep were Tom Fitzpatrick and Nelson Marshall, both guards on this year's Villanova eleven, and Joe Kryla, who is currently lugging the pigskin for Lehigh.

Joe graduated from Iona in 1950 and then attended Marianapolis, a prep school in Thompson, Conn., and again teamed up on the line with his sidekick from Iona, Tom Fitzpatrick. Under the 1951 rules, Joe was eligible for varsity play as a freshman. During 1951, he saw most of his action on defense. Last year Joe held down a first-string defensive tackle assignment on the Wildcats' once beaten eleven. With two years experience on defense, he was called upon to make the switch to offense and go both ways. Joe says that the switch has been rugged, especially at first. After he gets his degree from Villanova, Joe would like to go to law school.

Joe feels that the wildcats will have a much better record after the second half of the season is over. When asked about the Fordham game, he expressed the sentiments of all the New

Hope To Repeat 1952 Win; Rebels Bank On Line, Speed

By Tom Mentzer

Once again Villanova's much-traveled Wildcats take to the road. This time their journey carries them as far south as Lexington, Kentucky where they will face Paul Bryant's Kentucky University eleven on Saturday. In renewing their annual rivalry with the "Wildcats of the South," Coach Raimo's forces are meeting a team vastly improved from that which lost to a mediocre Texas Aggie eleven, 7-6, on the opening day of the 1953 season. For, following that loss and a subsequent one to Mississippi, Kentucky suddenly exploded to beat a favored Florida, 28-13, and to hold a powerful L. S. U., conqueror of Texas, to a 6-6 deadlock.

Human springboards to these recent successes have been a 6 foot, 3 inch, 200 lb. jack-of-all-trades, a sharp-pitching quarterback, and a big, rough line. Steve "Horse" Meilinger is the versatile performer whose adeptness at either an end or a half-back position is borne out by the 1952 statistics which show that as a pass receiver he captured 16 aerials for a total of 326 yards and as a ball-toter he picked up some 382 yards. Regardless of where he plays, on the line or in the backfield, this All-American prospect is the keyman in Coach Bryant's attack.

The quarterback whose aerials have proved to be Kentucky's most potent weapon against enemy defense is Soph-sensation Dick Shatto. A question mark as a starter at the beginning of the season, Shatto soon proved his worth with his clever play calling and accurate passing.

And finally, there is Coach Bryant's own feather-in-the-hat contribution, an aggressive line. Led by a 215 pound center, Tom Adkins, whose feats as a linebacker last year received national recognition, and 6 foot 2 inch Jim Profitt, an elusive, sticky-fingered end, the Wildcat forward wall has surprised the preseason scribes who had regarded it as being "too 'green', particularly on offense", by its crisp downfield blocking and its dogged resistance on defense.

Frosh Win Muff Day; Drop Grid Contest To Sophs

MUFF Day at Mendel Field brought great relief to the members of the class of '57, who, after downing the Sophomores 69-62, wasted no time in shedding their burdensome "dinks."

The spirit of the Freshmen was undoubtedly augmented by the desire to rid themselves of "White Hats," fines, and other degrading tactics, so that they could hold their unclad heads up high and enjoy the full dignity of campus life.

The Sophomores, determined to rule the Frosh until Thanksgiving and probably longer, started the day winning the tug-of-warfi The Freshmen, however, by winning the egg-toss, were confident of victory. The next event, which was the wheelbarrow race, was declared a tie, thus knotting the score at 15-all.

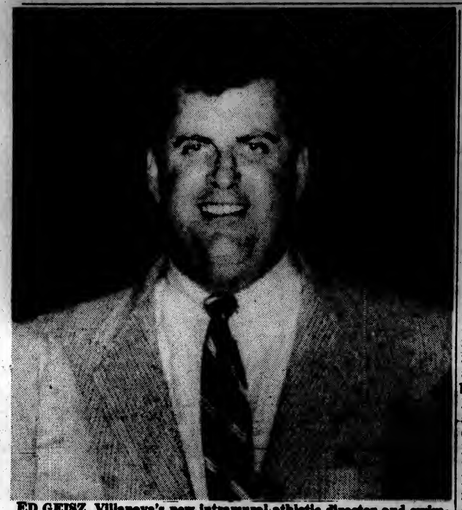
But the Freshmen, led by the running of Bob Burgess, maintained a two-point lead at the end of the track events, which included the 220, 80, and 50-yard dashes. The Freshmen also won the 440-yard relay in a closely contested race. Other events in the afternoon were kicking and passing for distance and a three-legged race.

Before the touch football game, which was the major event of the day, the Freshmen were winning by the score of 64-47. Although the Sophomores realized that even if they won the game they would not defeat the Frosh, in the spirit of competition they toppled their rivals 12-0.

The MUFF Day program, which was organized by Intramural Director Ed Geisz, proved to be a great success to the enthusiastic crowd of 1,000 that appeared throughout the afternoon. A lot of credit should also be given to Rev. John Dunne, Moderator of Intramurals and to Bill Ryan, Athletic Secretary, both of whom contributed to the activity, as did Frosh organizer Duke Micone.

Cat Harriers Win; Barry Sets Mark To Beat LaSalle

Villanova's cross-country team, paced by red-faced Irishman John Joe Barry, defeated LaSalle's over-land aggregation last Saturday in the meet held at Villanova, 21-37.



In so doing, Barry set a course record of 27.18 for the four and three-quarter mile layout.

His well-known miler-ace teammate, Fred Dwyer, finished second to tie up the win for the Wildcats. Barry grabbed an early lead and was never headed. Dwyer finished second by 150 yards.

LaSalle's Joe Merkins came in third. The meet was the second of the season for the winning Mainliners.

Bill Rock, of Villanova, George Harkins, LaSalle, Ray Wheiler, Villanova, Ron Gallagher, LaSalle, Guy Speciale, Villanova, James Drumm, Villanova, John Josephs, LaSalle, Bill Reilly, Villanova, and Pete Adams, LaSalle, trailed the top three finishers in that order.

The Wildcats, coached by Jim 'Jumbo' Elliott, lost the opening meet of the year last week to the Cadets of Army.

ED GEISZ, Villanova's new intramural athletic director and swimming coach. With several intramural sports well under way, Geisz is now molding a commendable swimming team into shape.

Yorkers on the Villanova campus, when he said "that's one game we have to win."

Playing next to Joe on the wildcat line is the only sophomore to gain a starting berth on this year's team, hard-charging end Don McComb. He is 19 years old and comes to Villanova via Camden Catholic of Camden, New Jersey.

Don, who is a bruising 6' 5", 215 pounds, began his athletic career while in high school. In his senior year, he was All State in three sports—baseball, football, and basketball. When he graduated from Camden Catholic in 1952, he had over 30 scholarship offers, however, because he had a great many friends here at Villanova he chose to enroll here in September, 1952.

As a freshman he was a great asset to all the Wildcat frosh teams. In football he played mostly offense and gave last year's varsity many a rough afternoon with his pass-catching prowess. In the winter, he switched his talents to the basketball court and gained a place on the freshmen squad. In baseball Don, who plays first base, has already been offered a tryout with the Phillies.

This season McComb has already shown that he has what it takes on a football field. Touted before the season by Collier's Magazine as one of the Soph line-men of the year, he has certainly lived up to it. After playing fine ball in Villanova's first three games,he turned in his best game last week in Boston when he made tackles all over the field in addition to intercepting a pass and racing 55 yards for the clinching tally in the "Cats" 15-7 win. By the time he graduates, Don should have shown himself to be one of the finest linemen ever to wear the Blue and White.

When the Wildcats return home against Xavier remember the numbers 71—Joe Leichtweis—and 80—Don McComb, for that's sure to be where the action is thickest and the going is toughest.

Rogers Works With Talented Frosh Group; Scrimmage Varsity

Along with the advent of the first varsity football practice, in early September, there was a large turn-out of freshmen grid aspirants. These boys, mostly scholarship students, are under the able guidance of Joe Rogers, the frosh football mentor, who this year has quite a talented group to work with.

Many achievements prove the worth of these aspiring gridders, such as recognition on the All-American High School team, attained by Ron Wood, a guard from Rahway, N. J., who also made the All-New Jersey team; and berths on All-County teams by Mike Boruch, an end from Plainfield, N. J.; Ron Cherubini, a tackle from Rahway; John Gi-Gantoanio, a halfback from Netcona, N. J., who at the same time made All-New Jersey, and holds the U. S. scholastic scoring record; Larry Fennessy, All-Massachusetts, a halfback; Joe DiGrazzio, All-Catholic in Philly, a tackle; and Dan Kranyack, All-Public in Philly, a guard.

Other members of the team include: backs—Mascenski, Powers, Breslin, Ryan, Chirocci, and Feruolo, ends; Injanian, and Kane; tackles, Punke, Del Monico, and Sterns; guards, Bogely and Flynn; and at the center slot, Hardy and Furgeson.

Although Joe Rogers' pledges do not schedule any games, he keeps them in top form by numerous and grueling scrimmages with the varsity, which plays a big part in forming the Villanova football teams of the future.

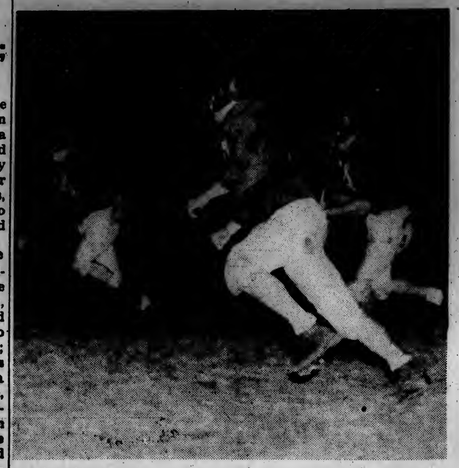
Gold's recovery of a fumble on his own 30 set up the third Mainline score. Harley gathered in Doherty's jump pass and squirmed his way to the Penn 25. Five running plays moved the ball to the 3, from where Conicelli tallied on a fourth-down reverse. Doc's dropkick was good.

Just before half-time, Conner recovered a fumble that stymied a Penn threat.



A thirty-yard punt return set up the Quakers third period score.

Early in the last quarter Villanova drove 45 yards to the Penn 5 where they fumbled. Two plays later Stimell romped 86 yards to give Penn a 20-19 lead. That's the way things stood until the action-filled final minutes.

This Saturday the 150's are host to Cornell in the Villanova Stadium.

Football Reflections

By Dick Confoy

Sooner or later a most apparent fact is going to dawn upon even the most die-hard Wildcat follower—and this bitter fact is that Villanova's 1953 eleven is one mediocre ballclub. This bit of information, especially painful in view of the teams pre-season ranking as the East's number one power, is as hard to explain as it is to believe.

Doubtless the beginning of the end of the Mainliner's dreams of football empire came late last spring, when the ruling geniuses of the NCAA put to death the two, or more realistically in many cases, the six platoon system. This neat stroke, supposedly designed to give the smaller colleges some sort of a chance against the hordes of their big brothers, nevertheless worked reverse in a good many instances, and unfortunately one of the victims was Villanova.

This fact is irrefutable; Art Raimo has just found it impossible to turn the two platoons of 1952 into one unit of eleven men capable of doing a big-time job both offensively and defensively.

But the failure of a player to go both ways effectively is no disgrace either to the coach or the individual concerned; neither is the failure of a club to win against teams of superior personnel. Unfortunately however, it cannot be digested that lack of ability altogether accounts for the complete about-face that has marked the 1953 campaign so far. There appears to be a second cause of the Wildcat's demise, an intangible something which might be classified as spirit, or lack of it in this case. The will to win is just as important as the ability to win—and unless the Wildcats get hungry pretty soon, the second half of the season may be as disastrous as the first.

Last week a letter was reprinted in the editorial section of the Villanovan which apparently reflects the viewpoint of a great many students. The essence of this little gem was, in effect, that Athletic Director Bud Dudley should stick to attracting fans to Villanova's football contests by the more conventional, accepted means. The writer went on to express the opinion that Dudley was attempting in football what Bill Veeck attempted in baseball, and that all Veeck got out of his efforts was a free ticket out of baseball and a much depleted bank account.

In the first place, if Bud Dudley could be as successful here as Veeck was in the American League, he wouldn't have anything to worry about. Bill Veeck took over the Cleveland franchise in 1948, and with the aid of fireworks, fashion shows, and a winning ballclub amassed the greatest season's attendance ever before or since recorded. Later, it is true, he was actually thrown out of baseball—not, however, because his promotions didn't go over, but because his personality didn't.

Now perhaps the fashion show at halftime wasn't the greatest performance ever, but the game itself was a lot worse. And because Bud Dudley can't do anything about what the team does on the field, he must figure out some other way of getting the fans to see the ballclub play. It must be remembered that the main thing is to attract the fans to see the game, even if for free, because that is the only way to build up a following where none existed before. And remember that last year's ballclub—the best in the East—was able to attract only a meager 32,500 fans in three home dates. If a winning club can't draw them in, what can a losing one be expected to do?

Perhaps if Dudley could bring in ten or so really good football players to perform at halftime, better still during the game, all the problems might clear up. But the chances of that are slightly slim, so Bud still has quite a job to do. So let's give him and his ideas a fair chance, and hope that Villanova can come up with a team to match the skill of its front office.

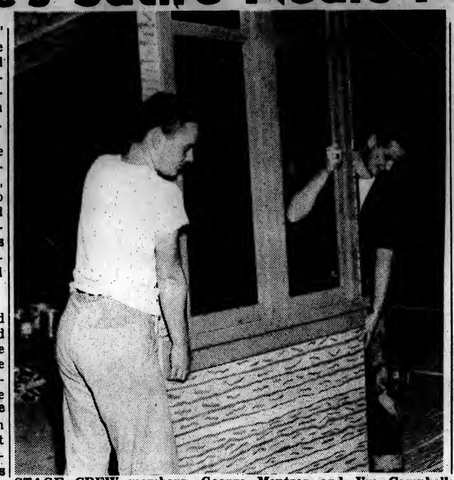
Masque's Satire Nears Perfection



"The Admirable Crichton," the Fall production of the Belle Masque Dramatic Society, is well on its way to becoming the perfected satire that will be presented in the Field House on November 5th, 6th, 7th, and 8th.

The cast, rehearsing five nights a week under the direction of Rev. William Krupa, O.S.A. have completed the job of memorizing their lines and are now concentrating on character portrayal. With two weeks left before curtain time, the actors expect to put "professional polish" on their roles.

The stage crew has completed the scenery for the first and last acts and is working on the second act backdrops now. The second act involves a more complex "outdoor" set. Joe Wynne and George Mentzer, co-stage managers, in conjunction with Jacob Krupa, have worked out a fast system of scenery changing by flying almost all the flats from the battens above the stage.

Jim Lyons, publicity director is expecting to pack the house on all four nights of the show. He has included in his promotion work, the showing of an advertizing trailer on the Bryn Mawr Theatre screen for a week before the performance.

Ticket chairman, Walt Doyle announces that tickets will go on sale next Monday in the Pie Shop and in the Belle Masque office in the basement of Austin Hall. Each member of the society will also sell tickets. General admission will be $1.25 but students and their dates will be admitted for $1.00.

STAGE CREW members, George Mentzer and Jim Campbell move piece of scenery for Fall production of "The Admirable Crichton." All backdrops will be hung from stage battens to facilitate handling.

Midshipman J. H. Gilligan turned in the best individual score with a bristling 282 out of a possible 300. Gilligan has been the team's high man for the past two years.

Plans Underway To Help Orphans

"A man is never so tall as when he stoops to help a child."

With this as their rallying cry, the Junior Class has undertaken another "Operation Yule," this year intended to make Christmas a happy one for the 300 boys of St. John's Orphanage, Wyalusing Ave., Philadelphia.

An ambitious program of activities has been outlined by Don McGahan and Lou Fournier, chairmen of this year's drive. Marking the sixth year of its existence, "Operation Yule," an exclusive Villanova function sponsored by the Class of 1955, will include:

(1) Extended drive beginning Nov. 2 to enlist pledges for the Dec. 12 outing into Philadelphia.

(2) Fund-raising drive commencing on Nov. 22 to defray expenses of a lavish party tendered at the Orphanage by the Juniors just prior to the outing.

(3) A "Charity Ball," another Junior-sponsored event for the Orphanage Fund, to be held in the Field House on the eve of the feast of the Immaculate Conception, Dec. 7.

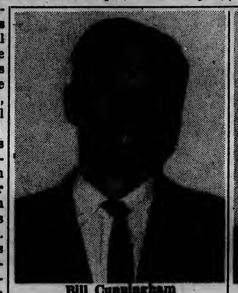
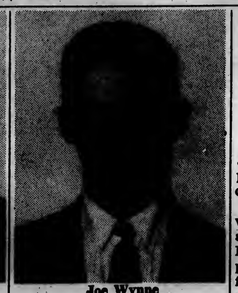
"Crichton" Ready November 5-8



With only two weeks to go before its first appearance, the Belle Masque Dramatic Society is rapidly nearing completion of the rehearsals for its fall production, "The Admirable Crichton".

Cast in the lead role is veteran Belle Masque, Bernie Coyne, who plays the part of the butler. Bob Erskine also captures the spotlight with his portrayal of Lord Loam, while Katherine Kelley, a Rosemont girl, has the female lead. Others in the cast include: Bill Cunningham, Pete Quinn, Walt Doyle, Ethel Dagit, and Joan Therkauf.



"The Admirable Crichton" is the story of the trials and tribulations of a British family in its efforts to maintain their social standing, but the fun starts when the family gets shipwrecked on a desert island.

For the last month, members of the cast and stage crew, under the direction of Rev. William Krupa, O. S. A., have been laboring five nights a week to perfect the show, which will run for four nights. The dates set for the production are Nov. 5, 6, 7, and 8. A packed house is expected every night with the show beginning at 8:00 P.M.

Tickets for "The Admirable Crichton" are obtainable at the Pie Shop, or from any member of the Belle Masque Society. The prices, are, for students and their dates, one dollar; and for general admission, a dollar-twenty-five.

Connelly Chairmen Named; Council Urges Support

"Provoke spirit" was the theme of the special Student Council meeting held last week.

The Connelly Award, presented to the best decorated hall will be the first step in the Council's attempt to stimulate enthusiasm of the students. Council President Joe Kenny said that it can only do the administrative task of appointing chairman, setting up rules, and picking the judges. Zeal and the effort must be supplied by the individual students in decorating their respective halls, said Kenny.

Date for the Connelly Award has officially been set for Thursday Nov. 19, prior to the Syracuse game on the 21st. Hall chairmen were named from the Student Council to organize the students in preparing them for this occasion.

They are Walter Punke, Austin; Hugh Humphreys, Alumni; Jack Hayes, O'Dwyer; and Frank Ambrosio, Mendel Hall; Bob Strayton, Jay Pandaleon, Barracks; Rees James, Delurey, Jack Kelly and Noel Spillane, Fedigan, and Frank Gunther, Simpson.

The day-hops will be represented by Jack Kneafsey, Dick Hepburn, and Jack Birle.

It has also been stated that work may begin immediately on decorations. A Good Counsel representative has not been mentioned as yet.

Money (approx. 25c) will be collected by each chairman in order to buy crayons, paper, etc. Students with artistic ability will be asked to draw clever posters and print shrewd sayings. Others will decorate their halls by exhibiting eccentric objects, such as stuffed dummies and grave yards. Outdoor building decorations on the theme "Beat Syracuse" will be judged on the basis of original-

Seniors' Search For Prom Band Aired At Meeting

Possible choices for the Senior Prom band and the setting of the date for Father's Day featured last Thursday's meeting of the Senior Class.

Bands submitted by the General Artists Corporation and the William Honney Agency were presented to the class by President Ted Sheehan and voted upon by them. All but six were eliminated.

Martieri Choice

Those still in the running, listed in order of preference by the seniors, are: Ralph Martieri, Claude Thornhill, Tex Beneke, Buddy Morrow, Tony Pastor and Elliot Lawrence.

Harry Anger, band chairman, explained that it would be necessary to contact several of the possibilities because the first choice might not be available due to being already booked at that time, or to being in another part of the country in the period immediately preceding the Prom date, Feb. 26.

It was further announced at the meeting that the class will be allowed to spend one thousand three hundred fifty dollars for both the prom band and the intermission band.

Because of the small turnout at the meeting, Sheehan said that nothing definite could be decided upon.

Father's Day April 24

Father's Day was definitely set at April 24, the date of the Seton Hall Baseball game. The date will not conflict with any local proms or other social activities.

Sheehan also announced tentative plans for the class of 1954 to donate the new statue which will be placed in the re-

Reveal 'Operation Yule' Program For 'Johnnies'

Co-chairmen Don McGahan and Lou Fournier of the St. John's Orphanage committee have announced plans for: (1.) a party for the orphans (2.) the Charity Ball and (3.) the annual outing.

The party for the orphans will be held on December 10, at the St. John's Orphanage Home. The program will include presents for the orphans, refreshments, music, and student entertainment.

The second big event of the orphanage drive will be the Charity Ball held on December 7, and it was announced that auditions are now being held to decide upon the band. Tickets will be on sale shortly.

The main activity of the Orphanage campaign will take place on December 12, when students will take the orphans on an outing into Philadelphia. Buses will be provided to take the Villanova students to Philadelphia.

The campaign to solicit students for this vital activity is already under way. Representatives will visit all the halls on campus as well as the Pie Shoppe. Lou Fournier and Don McGahan urge all those interested to sign up for this practical example of Catholic college students in action.

Chairman of committee include Ed Daly, outing arrangements, Fran Leonard, dance committee, Bill Kohler, entertainment at party, and Dick Winfield, publicity chairman.

The drive this year will, it is hoped, have added strength due to the close co-operation the football team has promised.

The whole St. John's idea was started by the players in 1948 but, because of the many away games in recent years, have come to have less and less of a part in the affair.

This year, however, more games have been played at home and the football players have been able to contribute more of their time to the orphanage committee. The fact that the last game is in November also releases the players earlier than has been the case in recent years.

Ring Fittings

Chairman Bill Kohler of the Junior ring committee reports that fittings for senior rings will be held today and tomorrow in the Student Activities Office at 221 Mendel Hall. The company for this year's rings will be Dieges and Clust and a deposit of $10 will be required.

Fittings for the day students will be from 10:30 to 2 today and from 12 to 3 on Wednesday. Resident students may be fitted on both nights from 7:15 to 8:30 P.M. The rings will be blue in color with the traditional wildcat on one side and on the other Villanova 1955. Price will be $44.17.

Villanova's Law School: A Prospectus

Adheres To Top Legal Standards

Villanova is the first Catholic College or university in Pennsylvania to operate a full-time day law school accredited by the American Bar Association or the Association of American Law Schools. With the opening of this new graduate division this fall the college is entering upon an expansion program fitting to the forthcoming university status.

Last February, at the birth of the new school it was made clear by Dean Harold Gill Reuschlein the School of Law would, from the outset adhere to all the standards of the strictest and most exacting accrediting agency in legal education—the Association of American Law Schools.

Objectives

The School of Law has as its objective the usual functions of any first class Law School, i.e., the training of lawyers who can serve their clients effectively.

But, the School is interested in something far more important than the mere preparation of client caretakers. It seeks to build lawyers who are both interested and capable of furthering the progress and betterment of law and legal institutions.

The School considers it an obligation to prepare lawyers for the willing assumption of community leadership and the defense of their heritage. This means the School has assumed the duty of training lawyers endowed with a philosophy of law enabling them to become a credit to themselves, their profession, their country and God. thorough training in the sub-

This, they propose to do by thorough training in the substantive precepts of the common statute for our day and by training in the skills of the lawyer.

Natural Law

The School's distinctive contribution will be made as the result of its espousing and propounding, without compromise, a definite philosophy—which is referred to as "the natural law". A brand of legal philosophy coming up through the ages from Aristotle, through Saint Thomas Aquinas; — Scholastic Natural Law as distinguished from Rationalist and Rousseauistic Natural Law.

This is the natural law which the great majority of the Founding Fathers confessed and employed as the wellspring for the basic documents of our national government—the Declaration of

Resurrection I

Putting one little word after another, and what ever became of the Villanova Forum.

The lecture series, which drew disappointing audiences in its last year of activity (1951-'52) showed occasional signs of life last year when its chairman, Mr. Charles P. Bruderle of the History Department, made optimistic statements to the Villanovan, outlining tentative dates.

Up until March 1953, there was still an outside chance that the Forum would be renewed that spring. Then came the announcement from Mr. Bruderle which ended prospects for a presentation in the 1952-'53 academic year, but promised a Forum for the present year.

We suspect, however, that the Administration considers it a bad risk and would like to allow it to slip into an oblivion of sorts.

Hoping that our suspicions will be proved unfounded in the next few weeks, we would observe here that there's nothing wrong with the Villanova Forum that good programming and good publicity couldn't cure.

Resurrection II

Some untimely rain, student apathy, and last-minute indecision on the administrative level about 12 months ago resulted in another year at Villanova sans Connelly Award. It's going to require a lot better organization and implementation this year if the Student Council's hopes of reviving the hall-decorating tradition are to be realized.

No measure of this kind, no matter how worthwhile or necessary, can be effected without detailed and conscientious planning. A successful Connelly Award competition in this season of waning football spirits might be just the thing to restore some sagging morale. The Council has its work cut out in these opening stages of the Connelly Award revival. We wish it luck.

Same Old Problem

Last Thursday at 10:30 the Senior class held a meeting to determine the band for its prom next February 26th. There are 388 seniors listed by the registrar. Of this total, less than 50, according to class president Ted Sheehan, were present at this important meeting. Less than 50 were interested enough in their class to come to a meeting—even though they had been excused from classes at the 10:30 time expressly for the purpose of allowing time to attend the extra-curricular activities of the school, foremost among these being class functions. The sophomore class, meeting at the same time, also was poorly attended. They, too, are preparing for a dance—the Cotillion.

Does this lack of interest in class functions speak well of the Villanova student? We think not. Class activity should precede in order of importance the other meetings. The questions under considerations by both classes were important. Too often those who pass up these feetings because of their wish for sack time or a bull session somewhere are the first ones to complain when the result attained in the meeting is contrary to their wishes.

The time of 10:30 on Thursday mornings has been set aside, in a large part due to the urging of the Villanovan, so that the largest number of people possible may attend extra-curricular meetings. Since the school has met us half-way and granted us the time, let's use it for the purpose for which it is intended.

Let's Look At McCarthy—And The Means To An End

by Ed Daly

FEW FIGURES in recent American political life have been the source of such heated controversy as Joseph McCarthy, United States Senator from Wisconsin. On the one side is a group which denounces McCarthy as a self-seeking political adventurer, a demagogue, a besmircher of the reputations of innocent men, and a sinister plotter seeking to undermine American freedom.

From the other side we hear that he is a crusader against communism, an unselfish patriot of the higest order, and the truest defender of the personal rights of all right-thinking Americans. In between these two groups are those of us who can't quite make up our minds about the man and who are still asking, "What kind of man is McCarthy?"

Unfriendly Press

That is by no means an easy question to answer. As a general rule the American press has adopted a hostile attitude toward McCarthy. Although many correspondents who dislike Senator McCarthy have always presented their arguments fairly, a very large section of the American press takes every opportunity given it to distort and misquote everything McCarthy says, to misrepresent everything he does, and to make unsupported charges against him in the same measure that he is alleged to make them against others.

This unfortunate situation and the equally partisan attitude of many of his supporters contribute much to the general confusion concerning this man and his activities and help to make the reaching of an accurate appraisal of Joe McCathy very difficult indeed.

That there has been some communist infiltration and spying in Washington during the last twenty years very few will now deny, the only question being, "How much?" The foes of McCarthy, or at least most of them, take the position that the amount is not very great and that it has been grossly exaggerated by senatorial investigators.

Supports One Stand

The supporters of McCarthy, on the other hand, hold there has been a very widespread conspiracy in Washington, which has honeycombed the Government, particularly the State and Defense Departments, and which requires tireless exposure. On this issue I am inclined to support Senator McCarthy on the basis of the evidence so far given before his committee.

It is about McCarthy's methods that the real controversy rages. Here many of the Senator's supporters join his foes in criticizing him, saying "I don't like his methds, but he is certainly fighting the communists."

This is an extremely dangerous position to take, for as the London Times points out, that used to be said in Germany about a man named Hitler. If his methods are really wrong, then it is the duty of all patriotic Americans to oppose their use. The only question that must be answered is whether or not McCarthy actually does use the tactics he is accused of employing. Time and again a statement has been printed in the papers as emanating from McCarthy and has aroused a storm of popular protest, only to be met by a denial that he ever said such a thing.

More Distortion

In most of these cases, these "news stories" are the result of Senator McCarthy's none-too-scrupulous opponents in the press. There can, however, be no question that McCarthy has sometimes made inaccurate charges or exceeded his authority, as in the case of his agreement with the Greek ship owners not to ship goods to the Communist world. At the moment, though, it is impossible for the average person to reach a verdict on McCarthy's methods that can be even reasonably certain of accuracy.

Unveiled Threat

We can, however, judge some of the results of Senator McCarthy's activities. On the credit side, he has dramatized the issue of Communism in Government to such an extent as to make it very difficult for Communists and their sympathizers to carry on their activities in the Government unmolested.

He has uncovered evidence of widespread infiltration and has consequently probably reduced the extent of Communist operations at least temporarily. On the debit side, he has caused widespread demoralization, at

by M. McCormick

It has been a criticism of the United States that we are becoming a nation of materialists. This criticism is probably justified in that those occupations which advance material progress are most popular, and the more intellectual occupations are losing respect.

The leaders in today's society have all lived through the turbulent second quarter of this century. They experienced the wild 1920's, the hungry 1930's, and the tense 1940's. Now they have made America a nation of silent people.

Most of them suffered greatly from the tragic depression of the 1930's and were further sobered by the second world war and the one following soon afterwards. They have good memories.

As a result their energies have been restrained and channeled into less critical areas. The tendency toward stressing science is probably a reaction to recent poverty and the apparent failure of the intellectual. And the great Americmania for sports may be a result of weariness with more intellectual activities.

The purpose of many of our elders has been to provide us with training, advice, and opportunities that they did not have. They have transmitted to us a waryness of the vicissitudes of politics and a prominent desire for security and material prosperity.

It is in the opportunities in the field of natural science and technology that we are finding this security and material prosperity, and we are very upset that our lives are to be disrupted by an obligation of military service which will interfere with laying foundations for the secure life.

We are afraid to take a chance. Our fear for the future is born of the past. The present is neglected, overlooked in the midst of our doubts. We are experiencing the effects of materialism which consists of a lack of faith and lack of belief in the spiritual nature of man.

We cannot be happy in this state of mind. We can only fret and become stagnant, we won't even appreciate a degree of security and material gain. There will always be worry for the future. The very confusion and pessimism of many of our elders bears testimony to this.

Whatever profession we choose, whether it be technological or intellectual, we can be assured happiness and real security only if we live each day in its turn, accenting the supernatural rather than the natural and faith rather than futility.

Too Many Blare . . . . But Not In The Band!

Editorial

One of the most important and hardest working student organizations here at Villanova is the Villanova Marching Band. Despite the hard work and fine cooperation of the present band members, there has been a great deal of criticism directed toward them. Not only is this criticism very unwarranted but for the most part it has originated with those students who could help to make the band better than it is.

These students, otherwise known as "prima donnas," are composed of former band members both here at Villanova and elsewhere, who refuse to lend their musical talents to their own college.

One of the main points of criticism seems to be the size of the band. At the present time there are approximately forty-five active members. Surely no one can deny that this is a very poor showing for a student body of better than twenty-three hundred students. However, this poor showing is not the fault of the active members and therefore they should not be made the targets of this criticism.

Just where does this fault lie then? It lies directly in the hands of the above mentioned "prima donnas" who refuse to devote some time and effort to the band. It has been estimated that there are over two hundred students here at Villanova who have had previous band experience. If only one third of those capable of doing so would join the band, the Marching Wildcats could compete with the best college bands in the country.

This article has not been written for the purpose of stirring up new members for the band, but rather it has been written with the intention of answering some of the criticisms directed toward the band and to point out just where the criticism should be directed.

The next time you attend one of the Villanova football games and notice how small the band is just turn to one of the "prima donnas" near you and ask him why he isn't on the field with the band.

least in the State Department, by creating an atmosphere of mutual suspicion and fear, both of Communists and investigators who might blacken the reputations of various loyal Government employees. How it balances, I would not venture to say.

The only statement that I could make without fear of serious error is that there is some right on both sides and that consequently the McCarthy controversy will continue to rage in American politics.

Waryha, USMC, Says:

The Corps Is The Thing!

by Mike Maliniak

From the shores of Korea to the halls of Villanova comes the weatherbeaten, swashbuckling specimen of thirteen years of Marine Corps environment.

Sgt. J. E. Waryha, Master Drill and Assistant Marine Instructor at Villanova's NROTC Unit, held a monologue on the Marine Corps for the benefit of a Villanovan reporter.

Your reporter was awed by the supple, adamantine-looking body only a foot under John Wayne's stature, the alert eyes that never seem to miss anything and the fluid lips whose corners turn as quickly to a smile as a snarl—all under a Mowhawk Indian haircut. His was a scrubbed, shaved, faultlessly pressed figure supporting a plethora of stripes, chevrons, and campaign ribbons.

One Place For A Man

"Well, skee," boomed the voice from under the picture of General Shepherd, "oh, here, first read some of these folders. Corps is the only place for a man, you know, that is if they're not afraid they'll have one foot in the grave and another on a banana peel. No dice, huh. Lord hates a coward, and that's the trouble with this generation, a bunch of brats that need discipline. Corps is the place for 'em."

Master Sergeant Waryha . . . apropos

"Well, I graduated from refor-er high school at Hastings-On-Hudson. Os I stepped out the gym door I saw a poster. I dreamed of China, exotic places. I joined the Corps and the day a drill instructor pulled every button from my shirt and knocked me down, I knew the Marines was for me."

Hung-Nam Retreat

"I spent two years in the Solomons. Had fun, especially on Guadalcanal. I had a year aboard ship then 25 months in China, followed by two and a half years in Japan and Korea. On a late afternoon patrol, they got me with a burp gun. We retreated from the Hung-Nam reservoir. I was carried first on the hood of a jeep, then on rifles and finally dragged on a parachute and put in a tent that was being riddled by the enemy. I always thought I couldn't be hit and I wasn't ever scared until I got back to the hospital and read that we'd been surrounded by eight divisions. That scared me. I liked the Orient, though: it's exciting even in peacetime. Someone always shooting at you. Can't beat liberty — so many restricted areas that you couldn't help having fun breaking rules. Don't get me wrong, ace. I've got a good conduct medal—for undetected crimes . . . "

"I'm an undergrad here, evening division. Learned a lot. Mr. Houd has proved to me by identities that a chair is, after everything else is eliminated, a chair, and I don't know how we won the last war without most Marines knowing about the prepositional phrase."

cently completed grotto. Various methods of financing the project were introduced and discussed. Again, since too few members showed interest in attending the meeting, nothing definite was decided upon.

In relation to the attendance, Sheehan said: "When we are deciding such important matters as the selection of the prom band, etc., it is really pathetic when less than fifty people are present to make decisions affecting the whole class."

Owl Hop Draws 300 Couples As Social Season Opens

Approximately 300 couples danced under the watchful eye of the engineering owl at Villanova's first official social event of the year on Friday night.

"The Owl Hop," which is sponsored by the Phi Kappa Pi Fraternity was well received by the social-minded Villanovans and their dates.

Simplicity was the keynote in decorations. Above the stage was hung a huge reproduction of the fraternity seal which was illuminated by multicolored lights and surrounded by potted palms.

Credit for the success of the dance was due to the music supplied by the Blue Notes, together with the charming vocalizing of Lee Sloane.

A large crowd which arrived early and stayed until the music was just a memory well attests to the fact that the Owl Hop is gaining the prominence it had on Villanova's social calendar before the war. Since the renewal of the dance last year, the fraternity has put great efforts into re-establishing it as one of the better traditional events on the college campus. Credit must be given to the fraternity members who have worked hard and earnestly to reach the goal.

Walt Miller, Owl Hop Chairman, and Joe Zator, fraternity president, wish to thank all those who contributed to the success of the dance. Special thanks must be given to Bob Rock, who did a commendable job in canvassing the campus for ticket sales; Frank Licopoli for his publicizing and promoting the dance; and Bob Erskine, George Minser and Dick Durkin who prepared the field house.

The Fraternity wishes to express its appreciation to all those who made the success of the Owl Hop possible

Blood Unit Coming Soon

Blood donor forms are being distributed in religion classes this week by the American Red Cross Blood Program in this area. These forms must be signed by the parents of those men under 21 who wish to donate when the Bloodmobile comes to Barry Hall next Wednesday. The unit will operate from 9:30 to 4:30.

The Red Cross program is now operating on an "insurance" basis: any person who donates blood or anyone in his immediate family, is eligible to receive blood from the Red Cross whenever he needs it. This coverage is active for one year after the donation. To keep the blood bank adequately supplied, continuous giving is urged.

Since the cessation of Korean hostilities many Red Cross blood centers have been closed by the Defense Department, causing a loss of about one million pints annually. This deficit must be alleviated by mobile units such as the one coming to Villanova.

Debate Society Plans Program

A record number of debates has been scheduled by the Beta Gamma debating society in this, its twenty-fifth year of activity. The society was presented with a seat on the Student Council in recognition of its silver jubilee.

LaSalle will provide the opposition for the first debate, next Tuesday. The subject will be this year's national intercollegiate topic — Resolved: The United States should adopt a policy of free trade.

The debate will take place in the library beginning at 4:30. Taking the affirmative for the Villanova side will be John Wiznieski and George Sinnott. Mark McCormick and William Eckinrich will uphold the negative side in this dual debate.

The society, of which Bob Gerstung is president, has six new members and a seasoned squad of upperclassmen. Three trips are planned for before Christmas and several home tournaments are scheduled. The final debating list will number about one hundred thirty, according to Gerstung.

All Villanovans are invited to attend the debates.

DPE to Pledge 50 Next Month

The first meeting for pledges of Delta Pi Epsilon fraternity was held on October 19, with more than fifty candidates for admission attending the meeting.

Pledging chairman this year is Jim Campbell, and members of the committee include Frank Baker, Eugene McDonald, and Tony Skorupski. At this meeting it was announced that initiation owuld be held the first week of November and would be climaxed by hell-night on November 5, 1953.

Regs to be worn are straw hat and cane, a black-string tie, spats, and a sign identifying the holder as a pledge. Big brothers will be chosen by the committee unless the pledge expresses a desire for some particular member of the fraternity as his Big Brother.

The final important part of the initiation will be the pledges' paddles. These will have the D. P. E. letters, either engraved or chipped in the wood. A prize will be awarded on hell-night for the most eye-catching paddle.

Football Banquet Set for Dec. 14

The thirty-second annual Villanova College football banquet will be held this year on the evening of Monday, December fourteenth, at the Bellevue-Stafford hotel in Philadelphia.

Alumni and friends of Villanova are invited to attend the affair honoring the football team. Tickets, priced at six dollars and fifty cents, may be secured by contacting Mr. Harris, the Alumni secretary.

At the dinner, the members of the football squad, along with members of the administration of Villanova, the local sports-writers, and radio and television broadcasters, will be honored.

A number of awards are given to various members of the team and to outstanding alumni at the event.

The Most Valuable Player Award is given yearly by the National Alumni Association. The Martin J. McLaughlin Award is presented to the captain of the current Wildcat squad. The team's "most consistent player" will receive the Cyril Burke Award. Every senior is awarded a miniature gol football helmet.

The Loyalty Award will be given to the most outstanding alumnus of the year, as decided by the former recipients of the award.

McGuire Attends

Very Reverend Francis X. N. McGuire, O. S. A., president of Villanova, attended the fifty-seventh annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Association of Colleges and Universities held last week, in Pittsburgh at the Hotel Schenley.

Father McGuire is outgoing president of the Association.

Alumni Celebrate

The Ball Room of the Bellevue-Stratford hotel in Philadelphia will be the site of the annual homecoming cocktail party immediately following the Villanova-Xavier football game this coming Saturday.

New York U. Awards 20 Root-Tilden Scholarships

Outstanding American college seniors interested in a career of legal leadership may apply now for a $6,600, three-year Root-Tilden Scholarship offered at the New York University School of Law, Dean Russell D. Niles announced Sunday.

Applications for the 20 Root-Tilden Scholarships to be awarded next year must be made by February 15, 1954. Final selections will be announced late in April and recipients will begin their study at NYU in September.

The unique scholarship program, designed to help educate and develop potential leaders in public affairs, was inaugurated at the University three years ago. It now has 54 young men under training for the legal profession.

Made financially possible by an anonymous donor, the scholarships honor two NYU School of Law graduates famous in legal history — Elihu Root (1867) and Samuel J. Tilden (1841).

In the tradition of the men for whom they are named, Root-Tilden Scholarships are awarded on the basis of superior academic record, potential capacity for unselfish public leadership, and active extracurrilcular participation in college life.

Dean Niles pointed out in his announcement that leaders in the profession consider the opportunities created by the Root-Tilden Scholarship program to be "on a par with those of the Rhodes Scholarships for study at Oxford."

"The scholar will receive his legal education at NYU's new five-million-dollar Law Center building under a faculty of distinguished legal authorities," he said.

Science Foundation Gives 750 Fellowships For 1954

The National Science Foundation has recently announced that it plans to award approximately 750 graduate and post-doctoral fellowships for study in the sciences for the 1954-1955 academic year. These fellowships which are open only to citizens of the United States will be awarded solely on the basis of ability. They are offered in the mathematical, physical, medical, biological and engineering sciences, including physical anthropology, psychology (excluding clinical psychology), physical geography and interdisciplinary fields.

Students studying for their master's or doctoral degrees are eligible for graduate fellowships at the first year, intermediate or terminal year levels of graduate study. College seniors majoring in the sciences and who expects to receive a baccalaureate degree during the 1953-1954 academic year are encouraged to apply for the awards.

The selection of predoctoral Fellows will be based on test scores of scientific aptitude and achievement, academic records, and recommendations regarding each candidate's abilities. The evaluation of each candidate's qualifications will be made by panels of scientists chosen by the National Academy of Sciences. The final selection of Fellows will be made by the National Science Foundation.

Detailed information and application forms may be secured from the Fellowship Office, National Research Council, 2101 Constitution Avenue, N. W., Washington 25, D. C.

J. Paul Sheedy* Switched to Wildroot Cream-Oil Because He Flunked The Finger-Nail Test

"Go bury your head in the sand," shrieked Sheedy's chick. You'll never put a wing on my finger until you start using Wildroot Cream-Oil on that messy hair. It's America's favorite hair tonic. Keeps hair combed without any trace of greasiness. Removes goose, ugly dandruff. Relieves annoying dryness. Helps you pass the Finger-Nail Test." Paul looked so good the very fuzz time he used Wildroot Cream-Oil, his pigeon egged him on until he proposed. So why don't you buy a bottle or tube today at any toilet goods counter. And necks time you have a haircut, ask for Wildroot Cream-Oil on your hair. Then no gal will ever give you the bird.

Xavier Faces Rushing Leader

Extra Point Downs Light weights

4th Period Score Licks 150's, 13-12

Villanova's light-weights lost their second consecutive heart-breaker last Saturday, as Cornell's one successful conversion proved to be the decisive factor in a 13-12 win by the Big Red at Villanova's Goodreau Stadium.

The Wildcat 150's lost the previous week-end to a reserve-strong Penn club, 27-25.

Cornell, which brought a squad of only 22 men, scored the winning TD with barely four minutes remaining on a 17-yard quick-opening play. The deciding extra point came on a run through the Villanova line.

'Cats Rally

Villanova had battled from under a 6-0 deficit early in the contest and led 12-6 late in the fourth period, on the basis of two second-quarter scoring stabs by Tom Lynch and Dan Murphy. Following the initial Villanova TD, the extra-point was successful, but a penalty for offensive holding nullified the play and the ensuing attempt was unsuccessful. A former Cornell varsity performer, Art Boyle, led the winners with numerous long runs and several key passing plays. Boyle scored the first Cornell touchdown. The clincher was applied by halfback Norm Dobert in the final period on the 17-yard run around end. Dobert also scampered over for the fatal extra point.

Several Injured

Center Dick Fitzpatrick, fullback Lefty Spencer, lineman Bob Gold, and quarterback Doc Dougherty, whose passing played a vital part in the losers' offense, all excelled for the Main Liners. The loss may be even more costly than merely concerns the record, for five Villanovans were injured, including Gold, Spencer, and fullback Tom Gorham, most of these from leg injuries.

A large and spirited crowd, estimated at around 600, watched the encounter, which was decidedly crisp and well-played throughout. Good tackling and sharp blocking by both teams drew cheers from the stands repeatedly. The onlookers, to say the least, were highly spirited, and several of the Wildcat performers recmarked on the "good football crowd."

Navy Next

The 150's play Navy next week-end, hoping to avenge a lopsided loss to the Middies last year. It will be the third game of the season for Tommy Green's proteges, with only two more remaining Rutgers and Princeton, both of which decisioned the '52 lightweights.

Main Liners Lose Fifth

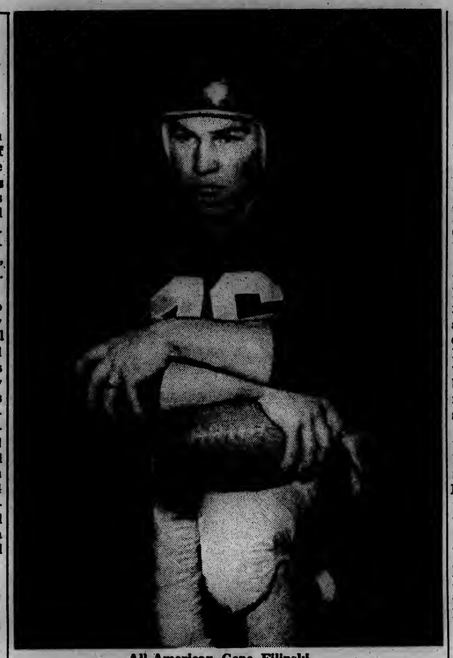
For the third time this season the "wandering Wildcats" of Villanova journeyed into the deep south, and the result was the same as on the previous trips. This time the cats finished on the short end of a 19-0 score. However, this is where the similarity ends between the Georgia, Wake Forest, and Texas games.

The score in this game in no way indicates the caliber of play shown by the 'Cats. Up until the ten minute mark of the final session it was still anybody's game. At this point, Kentucky was holding a six-point lead as a result of a first period touchdown. Steve Meilinger, Kentucky's versatile halfback and All American candidate, started Kentucky on their first march to paydirt when he raced 24 yards to the Villanova 24. Quarterback Bob Hardy completed the march when he heaved a 24-yard scoring pass to end Howard Schnellenberger.

On the Kentucky side the man who must be singled out is Ralph Paolone, a transplanted Pennsylvanian who led both teams in ground gaining with 94 yards in 14 carries.

Marshall Amazing

Equally outstanding, on defense, was the sophomore center Nelson Marshall, who was all over the field. He was in on almost every tackle and recovered a fumble on the Kentucky 34 in the third period. In Marshall Villanova may have found the spark lost when Tommy Green completed his eligibility.



Goal Line Stand

The Main Liners then showed Kentucy they were far from through, as they immediately began a march of their own, only to be stopped on the Kentucky one yard line as Gene Filipski's fourth down plunge failed. This drive was highlighted by two Charlie McGuckin aerials, one to Ralph Cecere good for 34 yards and a second to Roy Kershaw for a 15 yard gain.

At the beginning of the second half, the accurate right arm of McGuckin sparked another Villanova drive. In this series of plays he hit both Mike Mayock and Cecere with passes. These completions put the ball on the Kentucky 20-yard line, but here the attack stalled and a fourth down McGuckin aerial sailed over the hands of its intended receiver—Mike Mayock.

Meilinger Again

Until late in the final period neither team was able to put on a drive. However, late in the fourth quarter Meilinger intercepted a pass and returned it to the Villanova 28. He raced 14 yards around end, after he had been trapped behind the line of scrimmage only to escape when the tacklers collided. On the next play Meilinger scampered 12 yards for the score. Minutes later, after the Main Liners failed to move, Cecere went back to punt and when the pass from center was high he was forced to run. Kentucky then took over on the Villanova 23. Three plays later Curnette took a pitchout and raced around end for Kentucky's third tally. Delmar Hughes, who converted after the second touchdown, failed to convert and the game ended 19-0.

Tennis, Grid Leagues Head Intermural Program

After months of planning, Ed Geisz, the Intramural Athletic Director, has organized a full schedule of intramural activities to keep Villanova students well occupied. The tennis tournament and football league, already underway, will be closely followed by basketball, and chess and ping pong tournaments, which will run throughout the winter.

In the tennis tournament, which started on Oct. 20, there are 32 participants in competition. Some of the more impressive performances have been turned in by Jim Kelly, Barry Kotler, Vin Quinn, Juan Jusav and Terry Cook, who have been playing outstanding tennis. The highlight of the tennis tournament will be the appearance of Bill Kenney, an outstanding tennis pro, who will put on an exhibition for the students on Thursday, Oct. 29, at 3:30.

The football league, well underway, is at present being dominated by the Sand-nips, of the Mendel League, who have a 4-0 record. Second in the league are the Fedigan Ramblers, 3-0, followed by 3rd Floor Mendel, with a 2-0 count. The football program will be brought to a close on Nov. 5, with a championship game between the winners of the Mendel and Austin Leagues. Before that, however, will be a two out of three game preliminary playoff between the two top teams in each league.

On Nov. 9, the Ping Pong tournament, to be held in Alumni Gym, will get underway. Many participants have already signed up for the tournament, which will last one week. Chess, also opening on Nov. 9, will be held in the Blue Room of the Field House, in conjunction with the Chess club.

A record-breaking number of teams are expected to turn-out for the basketball tournament, which will be held starting Nov. 16, and continue on through the winter months. There will be fourteen courts open for the use of participating teams. Announcements concerning basketball entries will be posted on the bulletin boards by the Intramural Athletic Committee in the near future.

In the planning stage are three additional tournaments—checkers, pinochle, and horseshoe pitching, which will also be held during the winter months.

Opinions Wanted

The Villanovan Sports Department would appreciate letters from Villanova men concerning reactions to the letter sent in to the October 13 issue, on the subject of athletic front office policies, or any subject pertaining to sports in general. Just slide the letters under the Villanovan office door in the basement of C&F. The letters need not be signed, of course.

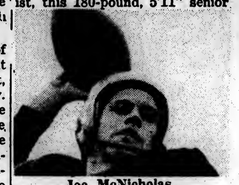
Wildcats Return With Filipski Eastern Leader

by Harry Nash

A Sacramento, California flash, one of the few bright lights that have emerged from an otherwise gloomy Villanova grid outlook, brings repeat All-American aspirations and a fine 6 yard-per-try rushing average back to Philly this week-end.



If you happen to be a water polo fan (a fate to which many have been driven by Wildcat football adventures this year) and still don't know the identity of said star, it's one Gene Filipski, a 21-year-old speedster who has been largely responsible for putting Villanova on the football map in the past two seasons.

The club that will be attempting to bottle up the elusive halfback's touted talents this Saturday afternoon at Connie Mack Stadium will be a none-too-successful Xavier eleven, which has not exactly been threatening to crash the AP's weekly top ten. The Cincinnati club, coached by veteran Ed Kluska, has lost three, including a bow to Boston College this past week-end.

Fifth Last Year

Filipski, who ended up last year with a 6.4 ground-gaining average, finishing fifth after leading the nation in rushing for a good part of the year, has collaborated with Ralph Cecere, a tremendous offensive surprise, to provide the bulk of the Main Liner's ground power. He now leads the East in rushing with a total of 340 yards in six games.

is equally adept through the middle, around the flanks, or in the broken field; one or two good blocks are enough to shake him lose once he gets past the primary defense—he took off on a 49-yard jaunt against Detroit and might have gone all the way had more effective interference been supplied.

Losing Mark in '53

Xavier, a 4-6 outfit in '52, included a 34-20 loss to Villanova in that hardly auspicious record, and will no doubt be instructed to concentrate their defensive efforts against Filipski and Cecere.

Gene, who is an senior class officer, absorbed his early football knocks at Grant Union in Sacramento; he was named to LOOK'S All-American squad last fall, and his performances against this Saturday's visitors and the following three opponents will determine his chances of repeating on any of the var-

DICK SHANNON, a senior in Commerce and Finance and baseball Coach Art Mahan's second-third base alternate last year, has signed a contract with the St. Louis Cardinals, and will report to Lynchburg, Virginia in the Class B Piedmont League upon graduation in '54. Formerly assigned to Winston-Salem in the Class B Carolina State loop, Dick will be reporting to an organization that has been experiencing difficulties staying on its financial feet in the past seasons. Dick, a usually consistent left-hand pinch hitter, led the club in batting in his sophomore year.

THE 150-POUNDERS, under the tutulage of Tom Green, Ed Prorok, and Steve Smolczynski, showed a lot of determination in that last-minute loss to Penn in the opener, and have displayed an encouraging improvement over last year's light-weights, who went winless. Composed mainly of seniors and juniors but with three sophomores in the starting line-up, this club has developed nicely and deserves the support of the school at the home games. Here's the starting line-up, in case you're not familiar with the "Wild Kittens"—RE-Don Harley; RT-Bob Gold; RG-Mike Horan; C-Dick Fitzpatrick; LG-Andy McElroy (Co-Captain); LT-John Dougherty; LE-Frank Brockman; QB-John Dougherty; LHB-Dan Murphy; RHB-Dom Connicello; and FB-Tom Gorham, who has done a good job replacing the injured Lefty Spencer. These men, if they continue to show their current spirit, could bring Villanova back into contention for the Eastern Intercollegiate 150-Pound Title, which the Main Line lightweights won several years ago.

THE PEP RALLY held last Thursday night, although not as well-attended as some of the local papers might have implied, was definitely encouraging to avid Wildcat football followers and to the front office as well. Bill Ryan was sitting in his office Saturday, getting ready to make a phone call to Syracuse to get info on the Orange's fabulous 110-piece band which may perform at Franklin Field November 21. He was commenting on the rally . . . "very spirited, and most enthusiastic . . . like I told 'em, if the fellows there all act as agents for the team and school spirit, we'll really get some united backing for that team." He took a few furious licks on an envelope, shoved it in his typewriter, and then, as if to make up for the moments of silence, went on excitedly. "Yes, sir, this was the first time we (Ryan and Dudley) have been face to face with the student body . . . we gotta get together . . . yep, I heard people say that was the best rally this place has had in years . . . that's the way it should be . . . that stuff at the station before Wake Forest was too unorganized . . . hell, the band didn't even have light enough to play by."

a trainer's life is not an easy one

THIS WEEK'S XAVIER GAME will give those of you who are anti-promotional a chance to back up your convictions—nothing but good old football is the attraction at Connie Mack Stadium Saturday afternoon, no novelties, no fashion show, no nothing. If the simple combination of two teams of eleven huskies going at each other in the honored gridiron tradition can bring out the fans, here's the opportunity.

ASSISTANT TRAINER for all the Wildcat teams, John J. "Jake" Nevin, has been honored several times during his long and valuable tenure here at Villanova. Jake, who first appeared on the Main Line athletic scene in 1929, received the Nick Liotta Memorial from the 1951 football team in appreciation of his service, and was guest of honor at a big Villanova Alumnus banquet in Camden last March.

Wildcat Swimming Team Revamped After 12 Yrs.

by Norm Feldpush

Intercollegiate swimming reappears on the Villanova athletic scene for the first time since 1941, when the Wildcat tankmen play host to the splashers from Pennsylvania Military College on December 12. The varsity and freshmen teams will be coached by Edward Geisz, former LaSalle College star.

It is largely through the efforts of Villanova's dynamic Athletic Director Ambrose "Bud" Dudley, and his capable assistant, Bill Ryan, that swimming has become a varsity sport. Mr. Dudley believes that swimming is a necessary phase of an over-all athletic program. He feels that contacts with various schools in the East through swimming may lead to relationships for other Villanova athletic teams,

High School Stars

Coach Geisz thus far has twenty-two candidates striving for varsity positions. Although the team lacks intercollegiate experience, the candidates possess fine competitive high school records. Coach Geisz feels that this experience will mean a successful season for his aquamen. Junior Bill Quinn has been elected Captain of the 1953-1954 squad. Bill competed for Bishop Loughlin High School in New York, and has been clocked in 2:28 for the 220-yard freestyle. Other outstanding freestylers include: seniors George Downing and Chick Heimbold; juniors Matt Leib, Tom Donahue, and Pat Kean; and sophs Paul Donohue and Gino Gollina. James Borden, a junior from St. Joseph's Prep., has been timed in 1:30 for the individual medley.

Squad Deep

Other varsity aspirants are: senior Terry Cooke; juniors Hugh Humphreys, Paul Callahan, and John Gibson; and sophs Leo Maktenieks, Francis Hartman, Richard Dunn, Thomas McInerney, George Curran, Frank Perna, Richard Harris, Herbert Konrad, and Sergio Castillo.

The freshmen swimming squad possesses a nucleus which indicates the prospects of an outstanding season. Donald Couig and Donald Devlin are the Co-Captains for 1953-1954. Devlin gained his experience at Trenton High School, where he participated in the 100-yard freestyle event. Couig is perhaps the most versatile performer among the freshmen. While at Archbishop Stepinac High School, Don competed in the 50,100, and 200-yard freestyle events, 100-yard backstroke, and 150 yard medley, turning in excellent times in each. The squad is strong in the freestyle division with Robert Duffy, Lee Carson, George Allen, and Raymond Clarke as possible contestants. John Klinges, diving, and Eugene Donohue, 100-yard breaststroke, are valuable additions to the team. Other hopefus are James Donnelly, Eugene Malin, William Reich, Victor Espina, and George Brandewiede.

If patience, careful planning, and hard work are an indication of success, then the newest member of the Wildcat family will be one of the finest.

Noted Editor Addresses Friends Of Library Here

Villanova's Library played host to the Society of the Friends of the Villanova College Library Sunday afternoon.. The program consisted of some outstanding speakers and a tea served in the building.

The guest speaker was the Rev. James M. Gillis, editor, author, and orator. Fr. Gillis has, for the past twenty-five years, been the author of the syndicated column "Sursum Corda" which appears in over fifty Catholic newspapers. He is co-organizer of the Catholic Unity Library, a circulating library for books to Catholics, and for many years was editor of the magazine "Catholic World." Fr. Gillis spoke of the many advantages which would accrue to the reader of good books.

Fr. Gillis stressed the importance of being well-versed in a variety of subjects and stated that one of the really important benefits which would be forthcoming from the reading of good books would be a true sense of intellectual humility.

Among the other speakers were Mr. John C. Kelly, '15, who acted as chairman for the afternoon program; Very Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, Provincial of St. Thomas of Villanova; Rev. D. P. Falvey, Librarian of Villanova; Dr. H. G. Reuschlein, Dean of the Villanova School of Law; and Mr. B. A. Coyne, a Liberal Arts Junior who spoke on the part the library played in the life of a student of Villanova.

Among the past accomplishments of the Friends of the Villanova College Library are the Dalton Periodical Room, the J. P. McGarrity collection of Irish American Literature, and the paintings of the Madonna and the paintings of the President of Villanova College. The remainder of the afternoon was spent in inspecting the present facilities of the library.

De Profundis

During the summer, three former members of the faculty at Villanova died. Rev. John A. Sparrow, O. S. A. died at St. Augustine's High School in San Diego Calif., where he had recently been appointed Prior and Principal of the school, on September 9, 1953. Fr. Sparrow was born in Lawrence, Mass. He served on the faculty of Villanova from 1919 to 1940.

Rev. Edward B. May, O. S. A., died at Villanova on August 9, 1953. He was born in Olean, N. Y. He served on the faculty after he was ordained, and again from 1946 to 1948, leaving here to go on the Augustinian Mission Band.

Rev. William J. Gordon, O. S. A., died at New York City on July 19, 1953. He was born in New York City. He served on the Villanova faculty from 1947 to 1951, leaving here to go into parish work in New York.

The faculty and student bory also extend their sympathy on the occasion of the death of the mother of Leo Kane, Eng. '57, the mother of William Klucsarits, '51, and the mother of Paul Sollami, '53.

Prospectus On Law School

Dean Reuschlein Foresees Review

Independence and the Constitution. In short, the School will teach a philosophy of law which recognizes God as the prime lawgiver.

Students

Villanova's New School of Law admitted its first class in September. The response to the announcement of the opening of the Law School was most gratifying. With the thought of insuring a higher caliber of law student and consequently a more able member of the legal profession, the size of the class, although larger than anticipated, has been materially reduced by the application of standards of admission more exacting than the minimum requirement of an A. B. or equivalent degree based upon four academic years work in residence at an approved college or university.

Admission Test

The Law School Admission Test, as given by the Educational Testing Service, is now a prerequisite for admission and one of the functions of the faculty Committee on Admissions will be the correlation of the results of the admission test with the undergraduate scholastic achievement of the applicant. It is expected that a continuing program of scholarship aid will insure a flow of top-flight deserving students from a representative number of colleges. The initial class numbers 67 students who come not only from Pennsylvania but also from Maryland, Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York and West Virginia. The student body represents academic degrees from 33 colleges and universities.

Dean H. G. Reuschlein

Student Activities

Villanova believes that the advantages of teaching by eliciting the positive effort of the student are not confined to classroom work. Discovering the problem and evaluating cases which bear upon that problem necessitates a middle step—the finding of pertinent cases and statutes. This is a research problem.

Able and forensic argument cannot be awarded along with the degrees and recommendation of diligent study. Proper standards of scholarship should be inculcated in law school in those students who show promise of contributing to the literature of the profession. And certainly, the problems of the attorney-client relationship and of practice in general, matters.

Field Work

The Bar feels that recent graduates who are necessarily deficient—can be reached in Law School only by field work on the part of the students. To the extent that the Law School can do so, it is determined to train men and women to be lawyers rather than merely law graduates.

Legal research will always be a systematic but exasperating process of trial and error. It is true the systems can be explained by the lecture method and the student can be left to perfect his techniques under the pressure of immediate necessity and practice. Such lectures would have about the same value as black-board swimming lessons for beginners. Only by going into the stacks and making actual use of all the tools of legal research can the student develop a facility for accurate and economical research. An intensive first year laboratory course in legal writing is our answer to the need of effective training for the beginning law student in legal research.

Skills Taught

Perhaps nothing is more necessary in the equipage of the lawyer than his ability to communicate ideas. This means that the lawyer must be able to express himself simply, adequately, and gracefully both orally and by the pen.

The ability to present argument on his feet is developed in the law student through a broad moot court program where the students weaknesses and failures can be reported to him with a sureness and severity no sitting jurist would be willing to match.

Legal work will be another important phase of training in the law here. Only recently have law students been afforded the opportunity to learn the operating procedures of a law practice: interviews, conferences, drafting of forms and pleadings, preparation for trial, and, not least important, dealing with difficult clients; while at the same time filling a social need of great urgency. The law graduate with Legal Aid experience, from his first day on the job, will be a more valuable man in the office, instead of acting as mere supercargo for six months.

Duty

The first duty of the profession is to be jealous of the law and to be critical of the exposition of the law by our courts. The law will be not better than the lawyer require it to be. The decisions in which law is embodied and the directions in which those decisions move the law should be reviewed by the profession, so that it may, by the force of its judgment, arrest or encourage innovation and development. It is remarkable that, in this country, the profession relies for the performance of this duty upon legal periodicals assembled and edited, for the most part, by undergraduate law students, the Law Reviews.

According to Dean Reuschlein, "There are those who contend that a few law reviews can fulfill this function admirably and that more law reviews just duplicate, or even weaken, the work of the few. Perhaps it is so. The vice of the contention, however, is that it denies to a large number of able students the chance to participate in this work. If their contribution were indifferent or redundant, they would still acquire the habits of analysis and criticism, the methods of scholarship, and a durable interest in the problems facing the law."

"It is in the interest of the law that law schools should train able scholars to police its development, and a student-run law periodical is the tool by which the school can do this. Villanova's law review is for the future but it is coming, and very soon."

LAW CLUB FORMED

Villanova's Law School has formed its first extra-curricular club, the Cardoza Club. Named in honor of the late esteemed justice of the Supreme Court, the organization includes Joseph Bass, Theodore Branthoover, Burton Landes, Donald Lapkinson, and Frank McCormick among its first members.

This is the first of two articles introducing Villanova's new Law department. Next week we will introduce the faculty of our first graduate school.

LYNX

Formation of a staff and plans for the coming year will be discussed at a forthcoming meeting of students interested in writing for "The Lynx," campus magazine. Exact date for the meeting has not yet been set.

Mr. Mitchell and Dr. Phillipson, both of the English Department, have been named moderators for the magazine by Rev. Robert Sullivan, O. S. A., Dean of the School of Arts and Sciences.

A quarterly, "The Lynx" publishes writing of various types as fell as illustrations for these. All students are eligible to submit manuscripts or work on the staff.

LAMBDA KAPPA DELTA

Rev. William Barr and Dr. John Laferty were the principal speakers at last Thursday's meeting of the Lambda Kappa Delta fraternity.

Father Barr discussed the position of the Catholic priest in hospitals. Dr. Laferty's talk was entitled "The Catholic Doctor and the Practice of Obstetrics."

President Remo Leomporra announced that the fraternity's annual dinner-dance will be held Dec. 12 at the General DeKalb in Norristown.

DELTA PI MU

D. P. M., the Arts Fraternity, will hold its second general meeting of the school year Thursday at 10:30 in room 202 Mendel. Nominations for officers will be made at that time.

Invited to attend are all men from the Arts school, including those in Education, above the freshman class. At the meeting the Interim Organization Committee, composed of senior co-chairmen Jim Nolin and Bob Reber, juniors Frank Gunther and Steve Lyons, and sophomores Owen Hickey and Harry Nash, will present the constitution ratification by the members.

BOWLING

The Intra-mural Bowling League met for the first time this year during the activities period on Thursday, October 22. Besides the election of officers, the keglers considered the schedule of meets with prizes to be awarded for various achieyements.

Officers elected were; Mike Maliniak, president; Roger Price, vice president; Stanley Stone, secretary and Dick Naclerio, treasurer.

Secretary Stone was appointed head of a committee that would decide all trophy awards.

BELLE AIR

The Belle Air will hold an important meeting of all its staff members tomorrow, Wednesday, at 3:30 P.M. in the Belle Air offices in the basement of Mendel Hall.

General assignments will be given out at that time. Members of the business staff are especially reminded to attend.

Go, Cats!

Ryan Provokes Spirit; Athletic Dept. Optimistic

A packed, cheering C&F auditorium led by Athletic Sec. Bill "Go" Ryan bade farewell to the football team last Thursday evening as the players made ready to depart for Lexington.

Earl Eby, Philadelphia Evening Bulletin sports reporter, Ed Geisz, Villanova intramural director, coach Art Raimo, and Athletic Director Bud Dudley joined Ryan in speaking to the over six hundred students.

Both Ryan and Dudley stated that we should forget past games and concentrate on the games to come. Ryan predicted five straight wins while Raimo remarked that he had never seen a team so "up" as this Villanova team now is.

Ed Geisz spoke briefly concerning the Connelly award and the need for student support.

Bud Dudley was the concluding speaker. He introduced the assistant coaches and then went on to deplore the lack of spirit after the team had lost. He said that he had never been associated with a loser and that it was not his intention to begin now.

He made it very clear that the students of Villanova were at their lowest ebb in spirit, when at the game with Detroit University, many left the stands in the third period.

SENIORS

Art Quinn, editor of the Belle Air, has announced that the deadline for the completed Senior history forms has been extended until Oct. 31. All filled-out forms must be in by that time.

Forms may be obtained in the Pie Shop, Dining Hall, or the Belle Air office. Completed sheets may be handed in at the same places.

Belle Air Seeks Students' Help In Ad Campaign

The Belle Air college yearbook ad campaign directed by Roger Moriarty shifted into high gear yesterday.

The deadline for the ads is the end of the first semester. No commission can be given until the proof of the ad has been shown to the advertiser, and payment received thereof. Bound copies of the ad section will be ready for distribution to the advertisers by the middle of February. They are expected then to pay for their ad space, and following this, commissions may be collected.

It is hoped that many students will become interested in the idea of gaining the sizeable commissions which are computed as follows:

	COST	COMMISSION
Full page	$100.00	$15.00(15%)
½ page	60.00	9.00(15%)
¼ page	35.00	3.50(10%)
⅛ page	20.00	2.00(10%)

A special appeal is made to all Seniors to try and get at least one ad apiece in an attempt to make the 1954 Belle Air the best ever.

Students soliciting ads are asked to keep in mind, and use as a selling point the newly adopted policy of the Business Staff: free advertising in a prominent place on the campus for companies who give us ads.

Students desirous of obtaining contract forms may get them at the Belle Air office, in the basement of Mendel Hall, from 2:30 to 4:30 Monday thru Friday. Forms may also be procured from members of the Belle Air Business Staff.

9 Chairman Named For Belle Air Ball

Belle Air Ball chairman, Ward Welsh, announces the appointment of the following seniors as committee chairmen: Joe McGarigle and Hall Pickett, Decorations; Bob Gold and Frank Saul, Tickets; Bill McCreery, publicity; Tom Coggins and Steve Berry, refreshments; Harry Anger, entertainment; and George Eberle, arrangements.

Although the prom is still four months away, the decorations and entertainment chairmen have begun work. The theme and the band will be selected soon. Beginning next week, the committees will meet weekly to discuss plans.

Welsh urges all seniors to join the various committees at the next class meeting or see the chairmen personally if they want to help.

Urge Blood Donors Sign For Red Cross Campaign

Tom Kern, Chairman of the Villanova Blood Drive Committee, urgently requests that blood donors sign today for a scheduled time to give blood when the Red Cross unit visits the campus tomorrow. The facilities will be here from 9:30 to 4:30 in Barry Hall Armory. Donors may sign for a certain time by applying at the schedulink desk specially set up in the Navy building.

The Red Crss Blood Program operates under an insurance principle. This means anyone becomes a participating member, either an individual or group donor, he and his immediate family (wife, husband, dependent children and dependent parents) will receive blood when needed, providing blood is available.

The period of such coverage is one year. Donors should, therefore, contribute at least once a year to be active participants in the blood program. It should be noted that the availability of blood through the Red Cross is contingent upon the supply hand. To keep the blood bank adequately stocked there must be constant and continuing participation in the program.

The Blood Drive Committee asks the cooperation of all students toward the success of the drive. Villanova has done itself proud in recent years filling or exceeding the quota set for the school, and with the participation of all eligible students, Villanova can do so again.

"Crichton" Set To Run Four Nites

"The Admirable Crichton", Belle Masque's fall presentation, opens Thursday night at eight o'clock in the Field House.

The James M. Barrie play runs for two and a half hours plus two intermissions.

Bernie Coyne has the title role and Katherine Kelly, a Rosemont student, is the leading lady. Coyne will be remembered as Cassius in last year's presentation, "Julius Caesar." Senior Bob Erskine makes his acting debute as Lord Loam. Erskine was a member of the stage crew for three years.

First Co-ed

Ethel Dagit is cast as Tweeny in a major supporting role. Jeanne Ward, a student of Villanova's Law School, is the first co-ed to work with the society. She is a prompter.

The play will run for four consecutive nights, closing Sunday, November eight.

Act I takes place in the drawing room of Lord Loam. This set required the most work by the stage crew, under the direction of George Mentzer and Joe Wynne. The set will be twenty-five feet wide and eighteen feet deep.

Sets on Battens

The following acts take place on a desert island, centering about a cabin on the island. Even as the succeeding acts are being played, the sets will be moved backstage by flying almost all flats from the battens above the stage.

Construction of the sets by the Villanova students was under the direction of Jacob Krupa, brother of the moderator of

WHO CAN REFUSE?.....

This smiling fellow was photographed last Dec. 13 as he devoured a chunk of strawberry shortcake in a downtown Philadelphia restaurant. That same day he downed two chocolate sodas, and ate chicken a la king for the first time.

He was noticeably nervous when he approached Santa Claus in a department store. The old gent set him at ease and learned that for Christmas he'd sure like a bicycle, a black leather holster kit, and a puzzle map of the United States so that he could remember the locations of the states in fourth grade geography.

And leaving a movie theatre that afternoon, where he had just seen a Western, he asked the man he was with to give him a quarter. The little fellow stopped at the street corner and said "Merry Christmas" to the Salvation Army Santa Claus as he dropped the coin into the black pot suspended from a tripod.

Before he went to bed that night ,he put his new cowboy hat, red flannel shirt, and model airplane in his locker. Then he wrote a letter that said "thank you," "Merry Chirstmas," and "I will pray for you." The letter was addressed to the man from Villanova by the smiling little fellow from the St. John's Orphanage Home, Philadelphia, Pa.

This week members of the football team and the Junior Class Committee for the St. John's Orphanage Outing will ask you to volunteer to take out an orphan on Dec. 12.

Say yes!

Late News

Ambrose ("Bud") Dudley, Villanova Athletic Director, stated last night, "There is no intention on the part of any authority at Villanova to drop the game of football."

"At present we are in the process of completing our 1954 schedule. It is almost ready to be announced."

"To my knowledge there has been no official talk at Villanova to drop football."

Mr. Dudley made these statements when he was asked to comment upon reports in a Philadelphia newspaper of an alleged possibility that Villanova might not have a football team next year.

New York Alumni Plan Holiday Dance

The Thanksgiving Weekend promises to be a big "Villanova Weekend" in New York. The annual Thanksgiving Dance on Friday night, November 27, sponsored by the Villanova Club of New York, will begin the festivities.

The locale of this affair will be the Hotel Astor, with the hours from 9:00 P.M. 'til 1:30 A.M.

The dance will be highlighted by the appearance of "Bud" Dudley, Villanova's able Athletic Director.

This affair has experienced such a rapid growth of popularity in the past, that many people had to be turned away at the door, so as a welcome note, the tickets will be offered first to the students here on campus at $4.00 per couple, at the Alumni Office in Mendel Hall.

Editorials

Blessing

The following are excerpts from an Address given by Pope Pius XII on Oct. 7, 1948 to blood donors:

"Beloved sons, your title of Blood Donors lays special claim to our Fatherly welcome; special claim, because while the gaze of our compassion rests on you, We see in spirit, and We adore the figure of the greatest, the divine donor of his blood, Jesus, the redeemer, the savior, the redeemer, the savior, the life of men . . .

"He who is the pattern of all charity is yours in a singular way. Those who shed their blood for a high and holy cause afford indeed a stirring witness to their generosity, love, allegiance. Worthy they are of the palms of glory awarded them. But to give one's own blood for the recovery of the unkown, or even the thankless, who perhaps forget or not even care to know the name and intent of their savior; to make a gift of one's own strength solely to restore to another what he has lost; not to wait to rebuild one's diminished resources before beginning again, before renewing the same gift, the same sacrifice: to this you have pledged yourselves so large-heartedly . . .

"Therefore, imploring this grace for such as need it, and beseeching for all an ever swelling abundance of heavenly favors, we heartfully bestow on you and your dear ones our Fatherly Apostolic Blessing."

Another Element

A letter tacked on the chow hall bulletin board Thursday night defiled the students of this school who didn't show at the pep rally that morning. Our anonymous crusader hurled threats and curses upon the non-attendents. We read the letter shrugged our shoulders and returned to finish our dinner.

That same night, during the noise and confusion of our weekly routine scurry to put out this paper, we received another letter. Another unnamed correspondent crept up, slipped a six page manuscript under the door and disappeared.

This critic had an entirely different outlook on the whole situation. He didn't defend the student apathy but saw the prime problem in the spirit of our ball club. The team, our writer seemed to think, was not so much dis-spirited as dis-interested.

This letter we also read sympathetically and turned back to our work.

We attended the pep rally. As is evident, the student showing was poor. The ones who came, however, cheered their hearts out. They made enough noise to make up for half the absentees. They represented the student body to some extent anyway.

The band played flat and squeeky but loud—Loud as blazes. They were in there all the way.

The ball club was all there, whether they were dis-spirited, dis-interested, or disqusted, they were all there and if Joe Faragalli, spoke for the team, they were out to win the rest of their games.

Bill Ryan was there in all his glory and so were Bud Dudley, Art Raimo and the rest of the coaching staff. Gene Ruane was there. Bos Brichard even came down for the affair.

These letters we received called down the students and called down the team. No one mentioned the fact, however that not one solitary member, not a single representative of the faculty or the administration was present at our little rally.

Is McCarran Security An Answer To The Reds?

by Ed Daly

THE McCARRAN-WALTER IMMIGRATION ACT was one of the most bitterly-fought pieces of legislation during the term of the eighty-second Congress. Having met with a presidential veto coupled with a stinging condemnation of the act, it was finally made law by Congress, which overrode the veto.

Conservatives Favored Act

As a rule, conservatives favored the measure, and those members who consider themselves liberals opposed it. This in itself strikes me as one of the strangest features of the controversy, since historically, organized labor is opposed to a liberal immigration policy because of its fear that the immigrants will work for low wages and thus lower working standards whereas business and more conservative groups have favored fewer immigration restrictions. In spite of this fact, such prominently pro-labor senators as Lehman of New York and Humphrey of Minnesota led the senatorial opposition to the bill, and such conservatives as Taft and McCarran himself championed it.

Communist Infiltration

It seems to me that cause for this situation is at least partly related to the security provisions of the bill. Most conservatives are more concerned with the danger of communist infiltration than are persons of more or less "leftish" political tendencies. Consequently they were drawn by the strong anti-communist security provisions of the bill into supporting it against alternative proposals which would have weakened the security provisions as well as permitted the entry of more immigrants into the United States.

Of course some of the bill's supporters, such as Mr. McCarran, are conspicuously anti-foreign, but these are not so numerous that they could have secured the bill's passage without the introduction of the communist issue.

Security Provisions Studied

Obviously it is possible for the security provisions of this act and the immigration quota policy it contains to be of very different merits. Therefore it is best to study them separately.

In this article I shall discuss the security provisions of the Law. The quota policy will be the subject of a subsequent article.

The McCarren act embodies very strict security regulations as regards persons of foreign nationality entering the United States. Not only are these the strictest in the recent history of the United States, they are among the strictest in force anywhere in the Western world today.

"I am Not, And Never Have . . ."

A person wishing to enter the United States must declare under oath that he is not and never has been a member of the communist party. Certain exceptions are granted to persons who belonged to that party a specified distance in the past who can prove that they have been actively fighting communism for at least ten years. The burden of the proof rests upon the individual.

All of these provisions are, in my opinion, basically very good. There is no reason under the sun why communists should be permitted into the United States from the outside. We already have too many of our own without letting more cross our borders from outside. Even the provision that puts the burden of proof on the individual to show that he is not a communist is reasonable if we remember the enormous expense that our government would have to invest in order to check the politicial background of every prospective immigrant and visitor.

In spite of certain minor weaknesses, hwich have been over-exploited by foes of the bill, the security provisions of the McCarran Act as regards new arrivals are, I think, basically sound.

Our Economic Dilemma Can't Be Solved Now

by M. McCormick

"What this country needs most today is not a five-cent cigar but a five-cent nickel." Thus my high school civics teacher, who doubled as basketball coach, defined one of the critical problems confronting our nation .He was particularly fluent on questions of economics, which he called "a study of the ways of making a living".

Stability Vital

The economic stability of the United States is vital to us and to the rest of the free world, but can not be achieved without regard for proper methods. Clearly the economy is not stable today.

Senator Sparkman points out that within the last seventy years we have had fourteen major and minor depressions and that the most recent of these was the most tragic in our history. We and our economy survived not only this depression, but also our recent costly wars.

Budget Seldom Balanced

Our federal budget has been balanced only twice in twenty-one years, and the result is an inflated economy. The dissension at present rises from the contention that our great prosperity is built on borrowed money.

The most basic segment of our economy, agriculture, is illustrative of our strained economy. We can not blame the farmer (or cattle raiser) for asking government subsidization. For the farmer has no defense other than government aid against the rising cost of living.

Despite this evidence of unhealthiness, we must not sacrifice our present system. Competitive private enterprise provides an economic basis for freedom, whereas other systems, especially those in communist nations, seek economic progress at any price, including subjugation of the individual.

The truth is that it is not now within our ability to solve our economic problems. We know that the cause of our destress is the particularly abnormal world condition which is theoretically temporary. Faith must be maintained in free enterprise.

Sacrifice Political Freedoms

There are many people who would sacrifice certain political freedoms, believing that government is a kind of superhuman being. It is communism and other alien systems which teach that government regimentation is a cure-all.

Our conclusion must be that the dollar is not almighty, that our method in economics must conform to the ideals of freedom. It is the free enterprise system which will maintain necessary respect for human personality, human rights.

No better system has yet been offered.

We Uncover Drinking Habits Of Villanova Undergrads

By Rees James

REES JAMES

Recently, Yale University, in cooperation with the Anti-Saloon League of Bryn Mawr, conducted a survey concerning the drinking behavior of the American college student. They held interviews at a goodly number of colleges, but Villanova was not one of these. In the interests of science, Villanova College, and a deep desire for personal recognition, we have conducted a similar survey here at school.

Mixing pleasure with business, we held our interviews at "the place where Louie dwells", and wisely decided to interview four different types of students who represent various factions and interests. We omitted any coeds from questioning due to an innate shyness, and a certain sixth sense that warned us that the charmers would, in some way or another, distort the results.

The first gentleman we interviewed was an athlete. He was seated at a table, semi-hidden by a pile of milk bottles and packages of cookies. We boldly joined him and helped ourselves to an Oreo Sandwich.

"Be my guest," he snarled.

"Thanks. Do you drink?", we asked.

"Boy! (or words to that effect) That coach trusts no man. Begone stoolie. Away, hired informer." He raised his enormous hand over his head.

At the other end of the Pie Shop, we found a frail gentleman whose nose was buried in a large red volume. He wore thick glasses. He was a type. An intellectual.

"Pardon me.", we said, forcing our way through the cobwebs.

"Yes? What is it you'ns desire?", he replied, not raising his head.

"Do you drink?"

"I had a coke once, as a physiological experiment", he whispered. "I think I got quite intoxicated. Why, do you'ns wish to buy me a coke?"

Having neither money nor a charitable spirit, we made a hasty exit, and in doing so, bumped directly into a gentleman wearing mortuary gray flannels, white shoes, and a large smile. The Pie Shop is full of types.

"Pardon.", we said apologetically.

"Why that's all right, boy. Just sit down here. Let me buy you a cup of coffee. What can I do for you? Like to exchange your ring? How does your blazer fit? Going to the prom, aren't you?"

All this was said with an immense squeezing of our right hand, and with the presence of the ever-present smile.

"Do you drink?", we asked.

"Well, don't let this get around. Might affect the next election, you know. But I do take a beer now and then. Just with the boys of course. You know, socially. Why, is someone forming a drinking committee? Be glad to serve on it."

"No. Just a survey.", we replied, loosening our right hand.

"Okay. See you around campus.", he shouted after us as we went in search of our fourth type.

It was difficult finding a day-hop in the Pie Shop, but we managed to talk to one who had just won thirty games on the machine, and was in a congenial mood.

"Do you drink?", we asked.

"What say, man?", he questioned.

"I said,", pulling the hair away from his ears, "Do you drink?"

"Why man, don't snow me with the obvious. Don't just everybody fish up?"

"I guess so.", we replied, a little confused. We figured we possessed enough data, so we retreated to a local bar to compile the results. It was too noisy there, so we went home.

Here are the results of the survey: 84.63% of the athletes prefer Oreo Sandiwches to drinking; 87.94%of the intellectuals are reckless experimenters, and of these, 76.82% can't afford to drink anyway; 96.48% of the activities men don't drink around election time; 89.31% of the day-hops are difficult to communicate with, and of these, we think a good many of them drink.

Are You Drape Shape?

By Bernie Coyne

Heaven shall forgive you Bridge at dawn,
The clothes you wear—or do not wear—
G. K. Chesterton, "Ballade d'une Grande Dame."

The rule applied by the administrations of certain local high schools is an entirely arbitrary measure. If a boy's trousers are less than a specified width at the cuffs, he is a "hood" and therefore ruled out of proper teenage society. But it should be conceded by intelligent individuals, that not all boys with pegged trousers are hoods, in the worst sense of the word. And conversely, not all the undesirables wear pegged pants.

The "hood" in appearance is sharply dressed with one or more such featured items as draped or wrap-around jackets with padded shoulders, long two-button roll lapels, pegged pants, pastel shirts and ties, and suede shoes. His hair is often kept long, with the sides brushed to a point in the back, where it ressembles the rear end of a duck. But granted the extremes in dress: Do the clothes "shape the drape?" Or is the average "hood" like any other boy under his finery.

A reasonable point of view to take would be that the drape mode of dress is a way for insecure youth to gain recognition they have not been able to get in normal competition, such as sports, studies and like activities. We can not stigmatize all those who are merely following a fad for bizarre clothes.

Presumably, youthful society could forgive the "hoods" nonconformity in dress, if youthful society could know for a certainly that the dress did no foretell nonconformity in behavior. But in basing its social standards on dress; it runs the risk of not recognizing the delinquent when he turns up in some other costume. It may be that the hood of today will take up the cowboy regalia or the Truman fashion of loud sport shirts worn outside the trousers, or the Mohican-style haircut. That would leave the "squares" measuring pants cuff when they should be measuring the height of boot heels or trying color charts against shirt fronts.

the society, Rev. William Krupa, O. S. A.

The story, written in 1902 by Sir James Barrie, is a humorous satire on English life, built around Crichton, the Loam's butler.

Other plays by the author include "Peter Pan", "Dear Brutus", and "An Old Woman Shows Her Mettle".

Also in the cast are Bill Cunningham, president of Belle Masque, Walt Doyle, Peter Quinn, Joan Therkauf, Marion Daly, and Sally Ann Daly.

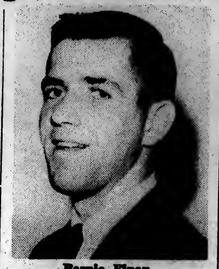
Villanova students and their dates pay one dollar for tickets. General admission is one dollar and twenty-five cents. They may be purchased from members of the society or at the door.

Juniors Plan:

Class Leaders Discuss Blazers, Rings, Jr. Week

Reports from committee chairmen and the importance of greater cooperation in the class were the main topics of last Wednesday's meeting of the Junior class officers and the class moderator, Rev. Edwin Grimes, O. S. A.

Blazer chairman Tom Ulrich revealed that a record 110 blazers were ordered, and that as a result of the class vote the class "A" emblem for the blazer was chosen. This is the same emblem as that worn by last year's senior class.



An estimated three hundred rings will be ordered from Dieges and Clust, said Bill Kohler, Ring Chairman. In addition to the ring fittings held last week, measurements will be taken one day a week for the next three weeks. To insure proper fit, another fitting will be taken in January, before final delivery.

Plans for the Junior Prom are also well underway according to Prom Chairman Bud Ford. At the present time a number of bands are under consideration, as are the themes to be followed at this year's big event which is dated for May 7. Ford also sends an SOS for men interested in helping prepare the details for the Prom. 134 Mendel is the place to report.

Chairman Frank Gunther states that the Junior Dinner Dance is being readied and will be held on May 8. The band has not been selected yet, but the competition has narrowed down to a point where one will be picked shortly.

Mother's Day Chairman, Ted Clarkson, and Blazer Ball Committee Head, Bob Myers, are also rounding out the details of their respective assignments and we'll have the full story within the next few weeks.

Cleanup man Jack Devine, doing his job as Miscellaneous Chairman, with an eye for beauty, is readying the contest for the Junior Prom Queen, and is planning a Baby Contest, using the pictures of present Junior Class members at pre-draft age. The Annual Junior Picnic is also on the drawing boards for the final touches.

La Salle Will Host NFCCS

The Villanova Chapter of the Philadelphia Region of The National Federation of Catholic College Students met Thursday during the activities period in Commerce and Finance building.

Miss Frances Hornyak, Regional Vice-President, from Chestnut Hill College, was a guest at the meeting.

Miss Hornyak explained the functions of the N. F. C. C. S. for the benefit of all the new members who were present. She also mentioned the policy meeting for all delegates which was held Sunday at Chestnut Hill College. Discussion then arose on the Campus Club Workshop.

Bob Gold, Senior delegate, explained that the Region had invited all organizations on the campus to meet with members of other campus organizations from colleges throughout the Region in a Workshop designed to help each other.

The Regional N. F. C. C. S. is sponsoring the Workshop to enable members of all campus clubs in the Philadelphia area to get together for mutual discussion and help. It is to be held on the campus of La Salle College on Sunday afternoon, November 15, beginning at 2 p.m. The affair will feature discussion by the students themselves on their problems.

Villanova is primarily interested in fostering new interest in activities on our own campus and on the campuses of the other colleges in this region.

Father McLaughlin, Moderator for N. F. C. C. S., named three Commission Chairmen. They are: Student Government, Jim Rath; Industrial Relations, Frank Cunning; Missions, Bob Ervin.

Father McGuire Speaks To Faculty Wives Club

Very Reverend Francis X. N. McGuire, O. S. A., gave the opening address at the first meeting of the year of Villanova's Faculty Wives Club two weeks ago today in the Naval Science building.

Father McGuire stressed Villanova's future plans and the importance of private schools in molding the youth of today into the Christian gentlemen of tomorrow.

Mrs. Joseph Greyson, president of the organization, conducted the business meeting. A social hour followed with refreshments. Mrs. Greyson and Mrs. J. Stanley Morehouse, president ex-officio, presided at the tea table.

D.P.M. Elections Next Thursday

Election of officers and the ratification of the new constitution will feature Thursday's meeting of the Delta Pi Mu arts fraternity, announced Jim Nolin who was the presiding officer at last week's meeting.

Nominations for the offices of president, vice president, treasurer, corresponding secretary, recording secretary, and student council representatives were made at last week's meeting. A list of those nominated for the different offices will be posted on the Mendel Hall bulletin board as soon as they have been approved by the proper authorities.

IRC Visits UN In New York; Hears Delegates

Thirty seven International Relations Club members and political science students went to New York Wednesday to tour the United Nations buildings and sat in on various conferences there.

Escorted by Dr. Frederick Khouri and Mr. Bohdan Procko, the group left school at 7:30 A.M. by bus. After enjoying box lunches at the northern end of the New Jersey Turnpike, they arrived in New York shortly before eleven A.M.

On arrival, the Villanovans were briefed on recent U. N. activities and acquainted with the various branches of the organization and their functions.

A complete guided tour of the three buildings (the tall, glass-walled Secretariat Building, the Conference Building, and the General Assembly Building) was conducted.

British Speaker

Early in the afternoon the group met with two British delegation press agents who discussed problems confronting the British Empire and the United States. A question and answer period followed the discussion.

The students then separated and attended conferences of their own choice. Some sat in on the Political committee, some, the Economic committee, and others the Budget conference. Present at the political conference were U. S. Delegate John Cabot Lodge, Jr., Russia's Andre Vishinsky, and several other outstanding diplomats.

Debaters Tangle With LaSalle in First Contest

LaSalle provides the opposition for Villanova's Beta Gamma debating society this afternoon in the library. The first intercollegiate debate of the year for the society will begin at 4:30.

The national intercollegiate topic—Resolved: The United States Should Adopt a Policy of Free Trades—will be the subject.

Taking the affirmative for Villanova will be John Wizniewski and George Sinnott. Mark McCormick and William Eckinrich will uphold the negative side in this dual forensic contest.

"Criterions" To Play at Sophomores' Fall Dance

"The Criterions", from Westchester, Pa., have been selected as the band for the Soph Cotillion on November 20th, announced chairman Dick Fitzpatrick last week.

"The seven piece band features a male vocalist," he said, "and is well known in the suburban Philadelphia area." Music committee chairmen Lou Donatelli and Frank Hartman arranged for the initial appearance of the group at a Villanova function.

Ticket sales will begin tomorrow, according to ticket committee co-chairmen Kevin Duff and Tom McInerney. Tickets will be priced at two dollars and may be purchased in the Pie Shop daily from 11:30 to 1:30.

The following members of the committee will also have ducats: Jack Lawder, Bill Myers, Mario DiVincenzo, Jack Schiller, Charley Bauman, Tom Gorham, Paul Menzi, John Molliteri, Joe McCarthy, and Charley Stonier.

Class President Bernie Steinfelt asks the cooperation of all interested Sophomores who would like to give some of their time in order to decorate the Field House to report there around three o'clock this afternoon. Decoration specialists Ed Novasatka and Phil Butler will be on hand to lend brain and brawn to the proceedings.

Labor Arbiter To Speak

Dennis J. Comey, S. J., noted labor arbitrator, will address a meeting of the Industrial Relations Commission Thursday evening, at 8:00 o'clock in the C&F auditorium.

The topic of his talk will be "Arbitration Between Labor and Management."

Fr. Comey is the official labor umpire of the Philadelphia waterfront. He got his start settling pier disputes in 1951 when he intervened in a dispute which threatened to end in a serious strike. So successful was he in settling the dispute to the satisfaction of both sides, a clause has been writen into the labor contract between the International Longshoremen's Association locals in Philadelphia and the Philadelphia Marine Trade Association giving Fr. Comey unlimited authority to arbitrate their disputes. He may even enter a dispute when his aid is not sought and issue a binding decision.

Although he would like to leave the waterfront, both labor and management insist that he remain.

Fr. Comey, a native Philadelphian, got his religious education in Jesuit seminaries. He is founder and director of the Institute of Industrial Relations of St. Joseph's College.

The Industrial Relations Commission invites all students to attend the address.

Villanova Downs Xavier, 21-14

Fitzpatrick And Marshall Steel Wildcat Defense

by Harry Nash

A pair of 200-pound-plus linemen who have one thing in common — graduation from Iona Prep in New Rochelle, N. Y.— have added at least one other mutual interest since their entrance here at Villanova—making gridiron life tough for those padded gentlemen who comprise Wildcat football opponents.

Although one of these lads has taken up the headbutting armor only recently, the other has graced Main Liner player lists for the past two years and this season has been counted on even more since the varsity-popular multi-platoon system has been scrapped.

No. 51 Again

Young Nelson Marshall, who cast off the oblivion of bench obscurity last week and sent Kentucky runners back to the huddle muttering to themselves time after time and Jim Leaming mumbling excitedly about "that No. 51 on the bottom of the pile," and Tom Fitzpatrick, an adroit 5'11" bulk of defensive immovability, are doing a large share in the 'Cats so-far vain efforts to right themselves.

"Fitzie," a defensive specialist who can give and take with the toughest lineman in the country (and he proved that against Kentucky and Texas), was Art Raimo's prime defensive cog at guard last year and has faced an even harder assignment now that the in-and-out muddle, which is still preferred by many in spite of its extreme trend toward specialization, has been tossed out.

A senior, Fitzpatrick broke an ankle last year and still recovered sufficiently to play a leading part in the 52 squad's 7-1-1 mark. He's rough, aggressive; he's most effective as an inside line-backer on a five-man line. Fitzie is 22, 225 pounds, figures on a possible fling at pro football after graduation. He's a marketing major.

1st Starting Role

The newcomer to the Villanova football scene, Marshall, threw out the script last week and played perhaps the outstanding game of the season down in the Blue Grass land, as did Fitzpatrick. Again and again he took out interference and nabbed Kentucky ball-carriers and was an out-and-out ...non on defense as far as the winners were concerned. He got his first starting center assignment against Xavier Saturday.

Nelly, blond, quiet, likeable 19-year-old, carted his grid hopes to College Park, Maryland after graduation from Iona Prep, and would probably have figured eventually in Terripin Coach Jim Tatum's plans, but quit after his freshman year and enrolled at Villanova. He's just a sophomore, weighs 205, tips an even 6 feet. What he shows from here on in will determine his future as a two-way man next year, when freshmen acquainted with the one-platoon style will be attempting to land varsity perches.

Great at Iona

Fitzpatrick and Marshall were both great high school performers, and both received numerous offers and tentative feelers from colleges throughout the east. Tom was a teammate of Joe Leichtweis at Iona; Joe combined with Marshall and Fitzie to form one of the best New York area schoolboy line segments in years.

Fedigan To Play Alumni For Intramural Championship

By Joe Heaps

The Fedigan Ramblers play the winner of the Alumni Shamrocks-Wonders game today on Mendel Field for the intramural football title. Intramural Athletic Director Ed Geisz announced the inauguration of trophies to be given annually to the winning football team. Each member of the victorious eleven will receive a minature gold football and the outstanding player will be awarded a plaque.

The Ramblers will depend on Captain Joe Kenny, Dan Paris, Art McCune, and Walt Miller to supply the spark in their bid for the championship. The Austin League leader was determined yesterday by the Shamrocks-Wonders game. The Shamrocks are led by Ted Forhecz, Dave Crowly, Jack Dirk, and Bob Bishop; while the outstanding players for the Wonders are Jim Lyons, Frank Gehring, Joe Gatti, Gary Watt, and Jack Crosby.

Exhibition Tomorrow

Bill Kenney's tennis exhibition, which was postponed last Thursday because of the rain, is scheduled for tomorrow at 3:30 P.M. on the new school courts. Mr. Kenney, well-known local star, at present is a member of the Philadelphia Cricket Club. Besides demonstrating the fundamentals and intricacies of tennis, Bill will play Terry Cook, Barry Kotler, and Juan Donesteves. These three students were the finalists in Villanova's Fall tennis tournament.

The week of November 9th to 13th will be a busy one intramural-wise. Two tournaments will feature the week's activities. In the Alumni gym Villanovans will vie for the ping-pong championship, while in the Blue Room of the Field House chess enthusiasts will be competing.

Basketball Starts

Basketball, annually one of the most widely contested sports at school, gets under way on Navember 16. Mr. Geisz is looking forward to having 100 teams entered and has planned to stage 8 games per day to complete the schedule in four months.

Because of the efforts of Ed Geisz-Director, Father Dunne-Moderator, and Bill Barbary-Intramural Council President, Villanova this year has the most active intramural program in the school's history.

Filipski, McGuckin, Helm Star As Wildcats Take 2nd

By Tom Mentzer

Overcoming an early sputtering defect in the offensive engine, a well-oiled Villanova football machine finally swung into a full-power, three touch-down drive that brought them home the 21-14 victor over a stubborn Xavier University eleven last Saturday. The realization of a long-awaited, potent ground attack that was featured by the bruising charges of Helm and the fancy-stepping of Filipski, a mix-master quarterback, and a grim, stout-hearted line were the factors instrumental in the Wildcats' notching of their second 1953 win.

Following a scoreless first quarter that saw two Wildcat penetrations thwarted deep in Xavier territory, the Musketeers took to the air with Zmyslinski pitching and Judd catching. A 43 yarder to the Xavier half back carried the Musketeers down to the Villanova 23, from which point a duplication of the feat netted Xavier the game's first score. Filipski then returned the subsequent kickoff 18 yards to the Villanova 34. Here McGuckin took charge. Plotting his attack carefully, Charlie offset the Helm through-guard slants with pitch-outs to Filipski and passes to Mayock. The Wildcats drove to the Xavier 12 where the big "X" line braced, held, and took over.

Jack Helm

Three thrusts at our line by enemy backs resulted in a loss of five yards, and Zmyslinski kicked out. On the first play from scrimmage, Filipski took a McGuckin hand-off, knifed through a gap opened by Faragalli, and sped 33 yards down the sideline to paydirt. Helm added the point and the score knotted at 7-7.

Lateral Clicks

Xavier received and again was unable to make any headway against the 'Cat forward wall. Filipski took Zymslinski's low kick on his own 40, sidestepped two would-be tacklers, and raced 30 yards down to the Xavier 30. Two cracks at the line netted but two yars and it was up to McGuckin. The two-head reached deep into his bag of tricks and came up with a pass-lateral play. Rigney took the toss on the 20 and immediately lateraled to Giordano, who outscampered the Xavier secondary the remaining distance to paydirt. Helm again converted and it was 14-7 at half-time.

Helm Scores

Midway through the third quarter, the Wildcats struck again. With the Musketeer defense drawn in in an attempt to stop the Blue and White's ground gains, McGuckin caught them "flat-footed" with two screen passes to Helm. Jack, snatching the second of these on the Xavier 44, was sprung

Navy Tops 150's; Kittens Drop 3rd To Middies 58-6

By Bob Strayton

For the third straight time, Villanova's 150 lb. Wild Kittens suffered defeat, this time at the hands of a strong Navy foe. The Middies won the battle by a 58-6 count, the worst defeat yet suffered by a Villanova football team this year.

The game started when Navy kicked off, and fleet Wildcat halfback Jack Fennessy ran the ball back 52 yards. It was then a see-saw battle for possession, but the Middies got the initial tally of the game, when Williams punched from the 22 yard line into the end-zone. The conversion was good, and Navy led 7-0. Villanova threatened once, but a perfect 50 yd. pass from "Doc" Dougherty was dropped by Fennessy on the Navy 30, as the first period ended.

Again in the second quarter, the Wildcats began to move, but were abruptly stopped by an untimely offside penalty. The threat came when a Pearson aerial to Dougherty, a sleeper, netted 92 yds., but the play was voided when Dougherty was declared offsides. Navy then scored again, when Carda threw a 37 yd. pass to Williams in the end-zone. The conversion was missed. Six plays later, the Midshipmen again scored, this time on a pass from Garda to Kronza for 46 yds. Before the halftime ended, another Navy tally, on a 40 yd. run by Schmidt, made the score 25-0.

As the third quarter opened, Navy again took the offensive. Their star halfback Williams dashed around right end for the fifth Middie touchdown, and the point was added by King. Two minutes later, Williams snared a Garda aerial, and plunged into paydirt once again, making the score 38-0. Villanova, without the services of Dougherty, found it hard to get started. The Middies held the ball, and added another tally when Keating made a fine run around the right side for the seventh Navy T.D. The conversion attempt was good, and Navy led 45-0.

Cats Finally Score

The Wildcats took possession after the kickoff, and on a sustained drive from their own 30, constituted the lone Villanova tally, with Hennessy carrying the final 21 yds. for the touchdown. The point attempt failed.

Again Navy began to roll, when halfback Forster scored the Middies eighth marker, to open the fourth period. The conversion was missed, and from

Harriers 3d In Georgetown Meet

Hill and Dalers Lose; Barry Wins Third Straight

By Norm Feldpush

John Joe Barry, the imported Irishman, continued his wining ways on Saturday, but was unable to prevent the second defeat in three starts suffered by the Villanova cross-country team. The Wildcat harriers bowed to Georgetown and Quantico in a triangular meet at Washington. The team scores were Georgetown (30), Quantico (44), and Villanova (57).

John Joe, victorious for the third time this season, raced over the four mile course in the excellent time of 20.09, and easily defeated Pflaging of Georgetown, who was second in 21.03. Barry ,who has also triumphed over Army and LaSalle, negotiated the last quarter-mile in the remarkable time of 59 seconds. An added feature of the meet was the appearance of Charlie Capozzolli, IC4A cross-country and two-mile champion while at Georgetown. Although no longer eligible to compete, Capozzolli was an unofficial contestant, competing unattached. He raced stride for stride with Barry until John pulled away with his tremendous burst of speed.

Dwyer Out

Villanova's hopes suffered a severe blow when Fred Dwyer was sidelined with a back injury. With Dwyer running, the team score would have been greatly improved. Bill Rock, the second Villanova finisher, trailed three Georgetown runners across the line to capture fifth place. The scoring for Villanova was completed as Guy Speciale, Ray Wheller, and soph Jim Drumm finished 16, 17, and 18 respectively.

This week the Wildcat hill and dalers travel to Pittsburgh to meet the Pitt Panthers, and will attempt to even their season record at 2-2.

The order of finish: 1) Barry V. 2) Pflaging G. 3) Kirk G. 4) Foley G. 5) Rock V. 6) Staten Q. 7) Skutka G. 8) Jones Q. 9) Garcia Q. 10) Benfield Q.

Navy Tops 150's

that point on the game was a comedy of errors. The Middies intercepted a pass, but a Navy fumble gave the ball back to the 'Cats, who promptly lost it again on another interception. Then Navy fumbled again, but on the second play, Villanova fumbled, and Navy recovered. Then the repeat happened as Navy fumbled on the second play, and Villanova had possession until a fumble gave the ball to the Middies, who went for their last tally on a run by Conmy. The point was missed, and Navy won 58-6, as the final gun sounded.

Prichard Speaks At Xavier Rally; Reaction Poor

by Bruce Martin

About two hundred students attended Villanova's second organized pep rally held Thursday October 29, in the Field House, to show their appreciation for the magnificent effort that the team made last Saturday night in Lexington, Kentucky while losing 19 to 0. Great enthusiasm was shown by the few faithful Wildcat followers that turned out in the rain to cheer their team as the cheerleaders, band and Athletic Sec'y. Bill Ryan led them.

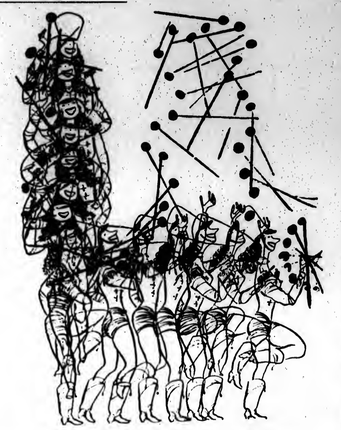
Guest speaker was Bosh Prichard, well known in football circles as a player with Virginia Institute and the Philadelphia Eagles, and later as an outstanding sports broadcaster. Perhaps his most striking comment was, "The guys that show up at these pep rallies are the guys that stay behind the team through the whole game, win or lose."

Raimo Speaks

Bill Ryan introduced head coach Art Raimo, and the fans who braved the elements to cheer the team rose to their feet applauding, to show their appreciation for all he and his assistants have done. He predicted four straight victories beginning with Xavier.

Captain Joe Faragalli and freshman coach Joe Rogers recalled how the team found itself last week. Said Mr. Rogers, "God help the opposition to come."

Dudley Disappointed



Ambrose "Bud" Dudley and the rest of the coaching staff were introduced. He was disappointed, not because the team had had a losing season to date, but because the student body, for the most part, was not in attendance. These are "students" who don't deserve to have the name of Villanova associated with them, who won't support their team while it's losing but would be there to claim glory if the team were winning.

Xavier Game

lose by two key blocks thrown by Faragalli and Mayock and went all the way. He then added his third consecutive point-after touchdown to make the count 21-7.

Xavier bounced back to score via the Zmyslinski to Fitzwilliams combination, but from then on the Wildcat defense proved an apt barrier.

START OF A GRIDIRON vanishing act is caught here as one Filipski gallops off on a 35-yard punt return

Surprise In The Offing

By Dick Confoy

The Berwyn Squire, Mr. Al Severance, slipped into the Fieldhouse early yesterday afternoon and patiently waited around to see who would drop in. Unfortunately, however, very few of the faces that passed by into the dressing room were familiar; Larry Hennessy didn't drop by, Jim Mooney was absent, even Joe Maguire and George Stanko were nowhere near the campus. Things weren't looking up, but the Wily One had one last hope, and he searched frantically yet efficiently throughout the Fieldhouse for it. All was in vain, however; not one seven-foot import was anywhere to be seen, in fact there wasn't anyone within even a lousy six inches of that mark. Resigned to his inevitable fate by now, Al went out and threw in the first ball, although it looked as if he would rather have thrown in the towel instead.

This event, as you may well have guessed by now, marked the official opening of basketball practice for the 1953-54 campaign here at Villanova, and, if you take the Philadelphia Bulletin very seriously, the towel has already been thrown in. If any lingering doubt still remains, LOOK magazine should be on the stands in a few weeks with their annual basketball ratings, in all probability awarding the Wildcats their usual bottom rung on the Eastern ladder.

Could Be Right

Unfortunately ,there are plenty of sound reasons to account for these pre-season funeral notices. Gone is rebounding strength in Jim Mooney and Steve Gepo, backcourt finesse in Nick Maguire and Sam Glassmire, a good bench in Joe Maguire and George Stanko, and of course the 29.2 average of the incomparable Larry Hennessy.

Even with this lack of seasoned manpower, the Mainliners are taking on their usual murderous schedule, mentioned by LIFE magazine as the toughest in the country. The usual home-and-home deal with N.C. State, Seton Hall, and Duquesne is on again, with the latter starring Ricketts, Tucker, Johnson, and newcomer Ciugo Green, expected to be perhaps the nation's best. A trip to Dayton isn't exactly cherished, with their entire club returning plus a 6'11" sophomore center; other away games include Loyola, Canisius, Siena, Princeton, Muhlenburg and, catch this one, Belmont Abbey. This last named, for all one knows, might be a Jesuit Seminary, featuring ex-All-Americans with a higher calling. Also in the category of a road game must go the trip to the Kentucky Tournament in Louisville, featuring such powers as Eastern and Western Kentucky, Xavier, and Louisville.

Although the fare at the Fieldhouse this year is very meager, with only four games on tap, the Palestra will house important encounters with Conlin and Co. from Fordham, Iona, St. Bonaventure, Xavier, the two St. Francis', and newcomer's Baldwin-Wallace and Lebanon Valley. And over at the Arena on December 4 will be Rio Grande and their fabulous Bevo Francis, 50 point average and all, meeting for the first time a major college team.

Few Veterans Return

What will the Wildcats have against all this? First of all they'll have Bob Schafer, a 6'3" junior and a tremendous scoring threat, who is destined to perhaps even surpass Larry Hennessy as the greatest point-maker in Villanova history. Playing on the same club with Hennessy, Schafer was still able to roll up 537 points and a 17 plus average as a sophomore. The second veteran on the starting club will be captain Jack Devine, a 6'4" center who averaged just short of ten points a game last year and led the club in rebounds. A fine defensive player, Jack has guarded such monsters as Walter Dukes, Bob Pettit, Dick Ricketts and the like, and figures to do it all over again this season.

The three remaining starters all figure to come from last year's freshman squad. Marty Milligan from West Catholic, chosen as the outstanding player in the city championships, should be at guard along with Larry Tierney, a speedster from Astoria, New York. Both are fast, smart ballplayers; Milligan an excellent passer and a much-improved shot, Tierney an untiring, always-moving defensive hawk, and a driving, breakaway offensive threat. In the fifth slot in all probability will be either John Cirino, a 6'4" rebounder from Malverne, L.I., or Tom Foley, 6'5" and a vastly improved offensive ballplayer. Right behind this nucleus will be Joe Servon, an excellent rebounder, John Meade, Dave Clune, and 6'6" Bill Sigalove. Becoming eligible for the second semester will be Jim Smith, at 6'1½" a top notch defensive and offensive player, and a strong rebounder.

Certainly not an experienced ballclub, this 1953 basketball edition, but nevertheless a club that going to surprise a lot of people. What these Mainliners lack in natural ability they more than make up for in hustle, and even more important, in unity. Don't sell the Wildcats short—hungry ballplayers don't lose games, and this club is hungry. They're going to win a lot more ballgames this year than anyone expects, and if you doubt it, don't lose your head and bet against them—you might lose your s as well.

Astute Men, These Law Profs

New Faculty Has Impressive List

This is the second of a series of two articles introducing Villanova's new law school, it's objectives, its facilities, and its faculty.

The Dean of Villanova's Law school is Harold Gill Reuschlein, a man well qualified by extensive background in the fields of both law and education.

Dean Reuschlein came to Villanova last Spring from the University of Pittsburg where he served for some time as Professor of Law and Director of the Public Health Law Research Project. Prior to that time, he had been a Professor of Law successively at Georgetown, Notre Dame and Syracuse. His academic training was received from the University of Iowa (A. B. 1927), Yale (LL.B. 1933), and Cornell (J.S.D., 1934). During the war, Dr. Reuschlein served as Chief of the Office of Legislative Services in Headquarters, Army Air Forces, with the rank of Colonel, and was awarded the Legion of Merit.

Author

He has written extensively and within the last several years has published three books: The Schools of Corporate Reform; Jurisprudence, Its American Prophets; and Cases and Materials on Partnership and Unincorporated Business.

The Dean's avocation is liturgical music and for the past five years, in addition to his teaching duties at the University of Pittsburgh, he served as Choir master and Organist at the Church of St. Bernard of Clairvaux, the largest in the Diocese of Pittsburgh. There he had a vested sanctuary choir of seventy-five boys and men.

Faculty of Five

An excellent faculty has been assembled, all of whom are devoting their full time to the Law School.

John G. Stephenson, III (A.B., Princeton, 1931, where he was elected to Phi Beta Kappa and LL.B., Harvard, 1934), has been appointed Professor of Law. He is a member of the Bar of Pennsylvania and formerly practiced law in Pittsburgh with the firm of Alter, Wright and Barron. Later he was associated with the People's Pittsburg Trust Co.

During the war, Stephenson earned the esteem and admiration of hundreds of Army officers as a member of the Faculty of the Judge Advocate General's School at the University of Michigan. From 1946 to 1953 he served as Professor of Law at the University of Miami and was in large part responsible for the founding of the Miami Law Quarterly. During the last academic year, he was a Sterling Fellow at the School of Law at Yale.

Arthur C. Pulling has been appointed Professor of Law and Law Librarian. Professor Pulling began his career as Assistant Librarian at the Harvard Law School, and served in that capacity from 1907 to 1912. He was largely responsible for the upbuilding of the Law Library at the University of Minnesota, where he came at the request of the then Dean William Reynolds Vance.

Top Librarian

During World War I, he served as Librarian of the War Department and organized a Library for the Judge Advocate General's Department. In 1942 he was called back to Harvard and the next year was made Director of the Library at the Harvard Law School, from which position he retired at the end of August of this year. He has been generally regarded as the "number one" Law Librarian in the United States.

Honored

Significantly, at a luncheon sponsored by the Harvard Law School Association, at the time of the American Bar Association convention in Boston this year, attended by 2,400 members and friends, Mr. Pulling was presented with a beautiful scroll with the following citation: "His professional skill has preserved and expanded the treasury of learning which has been his charge; his ingenuity has made the resources of scholarship accessible to those in search of knowledge; his tact has made the mechanism of a great Library the helpful instrument of education."

Thomas J. O'Toole has been appointed Associate Professor of Law. Professor O'Toole holds three degrees from Harvard (A.B., 1941; LL.B., 1947; M.A., 1950). During 1945, he studied at St. Andrews University in Scotland. He has served as a Law Clerk to the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court and practiced law for a period in Boston. Professor O'Toole had taught economics before embarking upon law teaching and during World War II was a Field Artillery Major. Before coming to Villanova, Professor O'Toole was Associate Professor of Law at Northeastern University in Boston.

John T. Macartney will serve as an Associate Professor. He received the B. S. degree from the University of Pennsylvania in 1944 and his LL. B. from Penn in 1949. In addition to engaging in private practice in Philadelphia after his graduation, he served as Law Clerk to Judges L. Stauffer Oliver, James C. Crumlish and Joseph E. Sloane of Common Pleas Court.

Appointment

Professor Macartney was selected by former Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court Owen J. Roberts as the Research Fellow to represent the University of Pennsylvania Law School in research and drafting legislation for the Public Health Law Research Project jointly carried on by the law schools of the University of Pittsburgh and the University of Pennsylvania.

It was in this capacity that he was initially associate with Dean Reuschlein. Somewhat later, he was selected by the Board of Judges of the Common Pleas Courts of Philadelphia to review the proposed Mental Health Act of 1951 and was largely responsible for a number of improvements in the legislation finally enacted.

For the past two years, he has been an officer of the Provident Trust Company of Philadelphia, engaged in legal and estate planning. He was one of the youngest officers of any bank or trust company in the City of Philadelphia. During the past two years, Mr. Macartney has lectured to various Bar Associations for the American Law Institute's Committee on Continuing Legal Education.

Currently, he is serving as a member of the Executive Committee of the Philadelphia Junior Bar Association and as a member of the Philadelphia Bar Association Committee on Civil Legislation and the Pennsylvania Bankers' Association Committee on Laws of Decedents' Estates and Trusts.

Francis E. Holahan has been appointed Assistant Professor of Law. He received his A.B. from the University of Pittsburgh cum laude in 1949 and his LL.B in June 1953. During the war, he served in the European Theatre for two and a half years as a Technical Sergeant and later as a Second Lieutenant. At Pitt, Professor Holahan distinguished himself as Editor-in-Chief of the University of Pittsburgh Law Review.

During the current academic year, 1953-1954, instruction is given only in the first year curriculum. The faculty thus represents a ratio of one teacher to each eleven students. It is expected that as instruction in the second and third year curricula is added, additional appointments to the full-time faculty will be made and that a number of outstanding specialists will be invited to the Faculty on a part-time basis.

Student Government

At Villanova the law student not only prepares himself to practice law for a client, but he prepares himself to take his place in the community as a member of the Bar. Dean Reuschlein says, "we have great faith in the organized Bar and we should like to prepare men who, as lawyers, will enter enthusiastically into the work of the organized Bar. It is with this in mind, that we insist that the student body of the Law School should govern itself, administering its own honor system in the matter of examinations and in a matter of student conduct generally."

In this way the students are assured those privileges and freedoms to which responsible individuals ought to be entitled and the School of Law will readily command the manifestations of devotion and loyalty which it so much desires. In the way that the organized Bar governs itself, so too will our student body govern itself through the medium of the Villanova Student Bar Association.

Physical Plant

For the present, the School of Law is attractively housed in the south wing of the General Library at Villanova. These quarters include a large classroom, especially equipped for law school purposes with additional classroom space available. Each of the six full-time faculty members has an attractive and well appointed private office and there are quarters for the Registrar and secretaries.

TO ORGANIZE

Three Law Students, Dave Trulli, Frank O'Brien, and Ed Casey, have been elected to organize the Student Bar Association in the new graduate division. This organization, will become affiliated with the National Student Bar Association.

Well Equipped

The Library of a collection of about 15,000 volumes and includes all the material currently required by the Association of American Law Schools. There is an attractively appointed, well lighted and well ventilated reading room and more than ample stack space. In the stacks are a number of individual study carels. In addition to this, the Browsing Room, where smoking is permitted, and the music room of the General Library are generously made available to the Law Students.

New Quarters

It is reported that, though the present quarters are not only adequate but decidedly pleasant, indications are that these quarters will soon be too small. As a matter of fact, scarcely had the doors of the law school opened to the first class, when plans were started for a permanent home of its own to be erected upon the Villanova campus.

Student Survey Guides Development Program

Improved student-faculty-administration relations headed the list of "things students would like to see at Villanova" according to the survey conducted last May by the Office of the Development Program.

At that time a student questionnaire was circulated for the purpose of securing student reactions to what they considered to be the most urgent needs of the college. Since then the program has been rolling full steam ahead.

"The results of the survey" said Very Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., President, "have been most helpful and revealing. They have become an integral part of the statistical data being compiled by the Development Fund Office and will play no small part in the future plans of the College."

Survey Is Representative

Although the response to the questionnaire was not as complete as had been anticipated, a representative opinion expressed the factors which were of most interest to the most students.

By far the most frequently mentioned point was improved student-faculty-administrative relations. The other two things most frequently mentioned—a guidance program for students, and a better and a more thorough integration of departments. Concerning the building facilities of Villanova quite naturally the need for additional dormitories, dining facilities, and student recreational and student activity center was mentioned.

More Sports

Concerning the athletic program most students favored a new stadium, more sports and intramural activities, and more home games. Generally, the unanimous reaction was for a more varied sports program.

Other things learned from the survey was the fact that students would like to see incorporated into the academic program higher standards, a graduate school, more C. & F. courses and courses in music.

Alumni Important

In making further observations on the Development Program Father McGuire said "We are firmly committed to the importance of the Alumni in the future progress of the College. We recognize that Alumni interest and support begins with the matriculation of the Freshmen Class."

"It is for that reason," he said, "and because of the interest the student body is showing in student-faculty-administrative relations that we anticipate, as the routine day-to-day administrative problems are lightened and as the heavy schedule carried by the faculty is relieved, we will be able to devote an increasing amount of time to student-administrative relations which is so greatly needed on the campus. We anticipate that the Development Program itself will be instrumental in bringing this to pass."

The Office of the Development Fund Program is now located in Room 114 of Mendel Hall with D. S. Eyster in charge of the program working directly with the Board of Trustees and serving as Assistant to Father McGuire in the promotion of the Development Program.

Architect Dagit, Builder Farrell Head Dorm Talk

The entire student body is invited to an information session concerning the new dormitory which will be held at a combined A.S.C.E. and A.I.E.E. meeting next Tuesday night, Nov. 17, at 7:30 p.m. in room 215 Mendel Hall.

The two men most concerned with the project, Mr. Albert F. Dagit, the architect who designed the building, and Mr. Joseph R. Farrell, the contractor who is building it, will be the featured speakers.

The talks will be informal, with the intention of appealing to all, regardless of knowledge of the engineering profession.

Mr. Dagit, speaking from the designer's viewpoint, will cover the considerations in selecting the site for the new dormitory, the factors entering into the determination of the size of the building, the type of construction, illumination and exterior finish. With these topics go the preparation of plans, determination of the successful bidder, and the architect's further responsibility.

Mr. Farrell will follow with a discussion of the items concerning the bidding of the job.

DEADLINE

Due to the press of mid-term examinations, the Villanovan will not be published next Tuesday. Next issue of the paper will be Tuesday, November 24.

Deadline for all copy for that issue will be 4:00 p.m. Wednesday, November 18.

"Yule" Sets Final Plans

Operation Yule's plans for Saturday, Dec. 12, were announced last week by Co-Chairmen Red McGahan and Lou Fournier.

Buses for resident students will leave the college between 8:30 and 9:00 a.m. to pick up the orphans at the St. John's Home. The first event on the schedule will be luncheon at 11:00 a.m. in the Horn and Hardart Stores at 1508 Market and also at 248 Broad St. Price for both student and orphan will be $1.50.

Following this the party will go to Wanamakers where the orphans will have a chance to see Santa Claus, and also examine the new stock of Christmas toys. The students and orphans will leave the store at 1:00 P.M. and arrive at the Commodore Theatre at 1:30 P.M. The theater has been contracted exclusively for the orphanage group and admission is paid by the Orphanage Committee. A special two hour show has been arranged for the enjoyment of the orphans. After this the students will take the orphans back to the home and a big day in the life of a small boy will be complete.

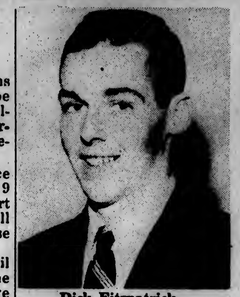
Lou Fournier

Don McGahan

Fournier and McGahan both stressed the importance of having 300 volunteers to take out the orphans for if even one orphan is left behind, the entire purpose is defeated. It is urged that the men of Villanova help out in this respect and make this a truly happy Christmas for the orphans.

Ukes, Pineapples Feature Cotillion

Sophs To Dance In Hawiian Set



Hawaii, with its palms and its pineapples, will be the theme of the Soph Cotillion next Fridayynight, Chairman Dick Fitzpatrick revealed.

The affair will take place in the Field House from 9 'til 1. The Cotillion will start a gala weekend which will also include the Syracuse football game.

Ed Novatsaka and Phil Butler, co-chairmen of the decorations committee, have reported that work is already begun on the decorations. The field house will be adorned with palm trees, grass skirts, and ukeleles. Waiters will serve the refreshments in typical Hawaiian dress, the chairmen said.

Bernie Steinfelt, Soph class president, and Dick Fitzpatrick, Cotillion chairman, expect a large turnout at the affair. Tickets are priced at $2.00 per couple and are on sale in the Pie Shoppe and at the door.

"The Criterions," well known in suburban Philadelphia circles, will provide the music for the soph's dance.

Dick Fitzpatrick

Co-chairmen Bob Connor and Phil Keane ask that four sophomores volunteer to act as waiters for the night. All interested sophs are asked to contact these men as soon as possible.

Fitzpatrick also requested that all sophs are asked to to help decorate the Field House please report there Tuesday or Wednesday night around 7:15.

Student Council Examines Poor Attendance & Award

Proposals Aired At Long Meeting

Observation and deliberation marked the Nov. 3 meeting of the Student Council at 215 Mendel, as the members examined for two hours and ten minutes the ways and means by which school spirit can be increased and the Connelly Award made a success.

The matter of improving attendance at class meetings took the limelight. Art Quinn appealed to Father McLoughlin to get the faculty behind the Student Council.

In order to dispose of the many students who reside during activities period in the Pie Shop, Ted Sheehan, president of the Senior class said, "Close the Pie Shop on Thursday from 10:15 a.m. till 11:30 a.m." This and other issues, such as investigating the pros and cons of making extra-curricular activities a necessity to gain a degree, appeared to be a warm-up for future council action.

Progress on Connelly Award activities was excellent, with many chairmen re-

"Good Old Days" Can Come Back

We often hear someone say, "We used to do things much better when I went to school," or, "There have been no days like the good old days." Such statements tend to make us anxious to bring back the "good old days" on the Main Line campus. Probably the core of Villanova tradition was the annual Wildcat - Temple game.

In conjunction with a rally and bonfire, the student body decorated their dormitories with Owl-Wildcat battle as the theme. The lighting of the bonfire was the reward given to the most impressive display.

In 1937, William M. Connelly, Villanova graduate of 1927, donated a trophy as the reward. Fedigan Hall captured the prize in 1937, 1938 and 1939. During this period the football team had rung up a total of twenty-two wins without defeat.

At the 1940 Villanova - Temple rally, Fedigan Hall again won the Connelly Award. Two days before the

Enter Ryan, Exploding

"Hey! Wait a minute! Can I still get something in next week's paper?" Bill Ryan, Villanova's fireball Athletic Secretary, blasted into the Villanovan office Thursday night with a comical Groucho Marx bent-knee walk.

"We got two big rallies coming up—the biggest this place has ever seen! Get it on the front page!"

"The first blast is going to be this Thursday night when the ball club leaves for Boston. Then we're going to have one next Thursday, in the Field House right after the Connelly Award judging."

Ambrose "Bud" Dudley, Athletic Director, has sent invitations to all the girls' colleges and a record turnout is expected.

"Now let's see some action, here! These things are going to be BIG!", Bill shouted as he rushed out to catch a train.

We're on our way

Last May a form letter distributed to all the students of Villanova by Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, our President, began: "You will be pleased to learn, I'm sure, that plans are being formulated for a long range development program for our college.

"There is a vision of greatness for Villanova embodied in this program," the letter continued, "It (the program) is not designed merely to strengthen Villanova, but to assure a healthy and dynamic future both for our college and for the students who will follow us here."

The spirit of this letter is manifest already on our campus. Progress has begun, progress which we are sure is in no small way recognized and appreciated by our student body.

Our physical plant is starting to sprout not only with the everyday growth of a new, modern dormitory, but with newly planted lawns, the finest parking accommodations, new roads, new walks, impressive new statues and other marks of beauty.

In the past six months, we have welcomed the first graduate school to Villanova, and our evening division has expanded fourfold. Both faculty and student enrollment have soared.

Concerning our immediate campus problems, they have been greatly alleviated. The chow line problem has been improved to the greatest efficiency possible with the limited space available. Business office conveniences have been extended to assist the student.

Perhaps the loudest cry in the past, however, was for an improved student activities program and better student-faculty-administration relations. It is in these fields that the longest strides have been taken. Our intramural office is booming with sports and hobbies—football, tennis, chess, weightlifting, ping pong, basketball. Time has even been alloted for extra-curricular activities. New clubs have formed.

For the first time since our relationship with this periodical, a time is set aside each week for a Villanovan-Administration interview, and a practical student-faculty committe has been founded in the student council.

We on campus are not the only ones conscious of this growth, however. Through the efforts of one of the most dynamic publicity offices in the college world, Villanova is a name that more people are hearing and knowing ever yday. Remember, though, we are only seeing the early stages of this program.

Be proud of our progress as you witness Villanova's development from a fine Catholic College into a GREAT CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY.

Thanks

A note of thanks is due the Class of '54 for their offer to purchase the new statue for our shrine. The imported Madonna will be shipped soon from Italy. Each member of the class who desires to do so is donating five dollars to the cause. The total cost is nearly two thousand dollars.

The money is being given from the remainder of the breakage fee which each senior has upon graduation. This gift will long be honored and admired at Villanova.

Take a bow, seniors.

Movie Audience Gives Sign Of Less Shallow Youth

By Rees James

At the outset of his famous duelling scene, Cyrano said, "Let me choose my rhymes." As far as this article was concerned, I was in much the same dilemma when I decided to take in the double feature at the local popcorn dispensary. However, after listening to the gallant gascon create his artful verse in the filming of Cyrano de Bergerac, and seeing Miss Shearer create her poetry of grace and motion as the prima ballerina in Red Shoes, my problem was solved, not skillfully, but certainly as swiftly as was Cyrano's.

Two Excellent Films

At one sitting we saw two excellent films. The English producers, notorious in this country for fine movies, and Hollywood, famous for poor ones, had each created masterpieces of theater art. I was impressed, but I was even more impressed by the audience. A few elderly ladies, who no doubt go to the movies four nights a week anyway, were present. A middle aged gentleman sat in the back, and two or three children were down front. The rest were collegiate types.

No Cultural Revival

This, everyone will agree, was certainly no great cultural revival on the part of our contemporaries, and I do not regard it as such. However, it was a sign, and a sign that I always look for. To my mind, it is just one more indication that our generation is not lost, doomed, beat, or any of the other derogatory descriptives that have been tacked onto it in the past few years.

Optimism Difficult

I have never held the belief that our generation is as bad off as some would have it. But it is difficult to maintain an optimistic viewpoint when our own writers step out of their way to make excuses, and to pass the blame for our conduct. Neither do I believe our generation great because a few of us go to good movies. In itself, that is certainly no accomplishment to boast about. Intelligent people should possess a certain amount of good taste concerning their entertainment. Yet the fact that the audience was almost entirely composed of contemporaries to the exclusion of our critics and their chronological associates is certainly an indication that we are, at least, on a par with the rest of the world in this one respect.

Ten to One Odds

Critics, sociologists, and other statistic compilers would claim that for every one of us giving signs of the elevation of our generation, there are ten who do the opposite. Ten to one may be a slightly exaggerated figure, but the truth lies close to such a figure. However, when an era or a generation is judged in the light of history, it is always the conduct and the attitude of the leaders of that generation which set its tone and characteristics. It was a small majority of the people of the "Jazz Age" who ran around in raccoon coats and cried, "Oh, you kid!" and "Twenty-three . . ." something or other. Yet it was these people who gave the '20s their tone of reckless hedonism. The people I saw the other night were of similar families, social position, education, and intelligence as those who characterized the decade following World War I.

No Trend

As I said before, all this was just a sign, certainly not a trend, and definite judgments cannot be made. Things like this can only intensify my hope in our generation, and create the feeling that we are not the worst of an evil age, but that perhaps we are the best to be found in confusing times. Indications of anything find their validity in time.

Part Two:

McCarran Quota System Must Be Changed Now

By Ed Daly

The national-origins quota system embodied in the McCarran-Walters Immigration and Naturalization Act has been the source of heated controversy ever since the bill was first proposed. Actually this system is nothing new, the McCarran Act quota formula being basically the same as that contained in the Immigration Act of 1924. The argument, therefore, is not whether an injurious system has been invented by McCarran, but rather whether such a system has been perpetuated.

The McCarran law provides for a maximum of 153,000 persons to enter the United States each year, exclusive of Canadians and Latin Americans, who enter the United States under a different system. Of these 41.4% must come from the United Kingdom and 11.2% from Ireland. On the other hand only 3% may come from Italy and 2% from Greece. Actually even this figure is deceptively high; for Great Britain uses only a small percentage of its quota, and the Irish quota also is seldom filled. The portions of their quotas left unfilled may not be applied to any other nation. Consequently the immigration in an average year between 1924 and the outbreak of the Second World War in 1939 fewer than half the number of immigrants allowed by law actually entered this country. From 1924 to 1947 only 35,000 persons entered this country under the quota system per year. During this period 2,700,000 fewer immigrants than the maximum permitted by the law came to America. The sole reason for this was the quota system.

Displaced Persons

The Displaced Persons Acts further complicates the quota arrangements. Immigration under these acts has been charged to future quotas for the countries of origin. The results of this provision are ridiculous in the extreme. Under the present law, always excepting those who enter as displaced persons or under other special legislations, no Pole may enter the United States as an immigrant until the year 2000, no Estonian until 2146, and no Latvian until 2274.

What changes should be made in the McCarran Acts quota system, if any at all are to be made? The Humphreys-Lehman Bill proposed to apply unused quotas to persons of other national origin who were waiting to enter this country. In this way the full total permissible would enter the United States every year, instead of the mere fraction who are able to do so at present. This proposal seems to me to be very fair and emphatically worthy of adoption. Furthermore, the system of charging displaced persons to future quotas should be abandoned. It is really very silly and accomplishes no practical purpose that I can discover.

Immigration A Solution

Other proposals recommend raising the total to a very much higher figure. Congressman Jacob K. Javits of New York proposes admitting 10,000,000 immigrants in the next twenty years at the rate of 500,000 per year. He cites many examples of labor shortages in this country and expresses his belief that this vast increase of immigration is the solution. At any rate the proposal deserves considerable investigation.

The McCarran Act should not, in my opinion, be left unchanged. It is injurious to the United States in a number of ways. First of all, by limiting to small numbers those Italians and Greeks who may enter the United States, it aggravates the overcrowded conditions inthose countries, thereby maintaining widespread unemployment. This unemployment is a considerable financial burden on the government of those countries and slows down their rate of reconstruction. I think it unnecessary to point out who continues paying until the Italian and Greek economies are rehabilitated.

Sectionalism Is Seen As Obstacle To Be Overcome

By Mark McCormick

Pride in the area of one's residence is a characteristic developed in most Americans. However, too much of this pride is sectional, concerned with one city, one state, or a particular group of states. Certainly a degree of pride or idea of self-sufficiency is natural and justifiable, but when it leads to neglect of the necessity for national unity and lack of appreciation of other areas, it is wrong.

The main object of criticism in this writing is one section, the east. This is not to imply that similar conditions don't exist in other areas, but it is intended to convey the notion that the east is especially guilty of excessive pride in itself. Our contention is that this pride has led it to isolate itself from an appreciation of the rest of the nation.

Typical Easterner

In our opinion the typical easterner is an American citizen who believes that "Idaho," "Ohio," and "Iowa" are acceptable pronunciations of the name of the same state. He is one who pictures the western plains as an area of little development except agriculturally and considers both westerners and southerners scarcely literate.

But no longer is the west a scene of Indians and early settlers galloping across the plains in hot pursuit of tomorrow's supper. The only remaining resemblance between the present inhabitants and those preceding is the determination of the modern citizen to get the scalp of the Secretary of Agriculture.

Literacy Rate

Only twenty per cent of the population of midwestern states is actually engaged in farming. Related occupations require a large percentage, but even with this most of the states are at least half industrial. Nor is the state with the highest literacy rate New York or Pennsylvania or New Jersey; it is Iowa.

In the eyes of the western resident the easterner is usually viewed as an unfriendly, mechanical being whose motto is "Gobble, gulp, and go" or merely "Go!". He considers the east a nice place to visit but wouldn't live there if offered a whole bushel of switch-blade knives to defend himself with. This is an impression resulting from knowledge of "zip-gun" gangs of big city juveniles, the harrying, hurried pace of life in the big city, and the consistent charges of political corruption in specific eastern areas. Of course there is misunderstanding on both sides, and the fundamental necessity is a realization that people are essentially alike everywhere.

Sectional Distortion

American literature is much to blame for distorting the character of the resident of a particular section. The wild west idea is kept alive; the small town resident is considered possessor of a small mind; in general a southerner is portrayed as immoral and his society as amoral. Their study is only superficial.

Another cause is the failure of Americans and the easterner especially to get to know their own country. Visiting other areas in America is a first hand method which will necessarily lead to an appreciation of the nation as a whole.

Travel Advised

We realize that not every one is able to do this, but we assert that every person who is offered an opportunity to travel should consider knowing his own country more important or at least primary to an acquaintance with any other.

Our nation is criticised enough by other nations; Americans should not develop a feeling of inferiority. Sectionalism is a disruptive factor that must be overcome if we are to be confident and secure in a national sense. Never need an American look beyond his own country for a diversity in culture, most types of progress, or beauty in natural scenery. The forty-eight are at the same time many and one.

. . . QUIET TIME . . . With no social activity on the campus this week, it's a good time to catch up on the "sack-time" in preparation for the weekend of the 20th and 21st which is the first BIG one to come along. . . . With the Soph Cotillion and the Syracuse game on tap, it should prove to be a "wallet busting" weekend (maybe "head splitting" too). . . . Start writing home for money now!!! . . .

There may not be anything on our campus doing, but Immaculata and Chestnut Hill have their own events on tap. . . . I.C. has a Senior Prom on this Friday night, while on the same night C.H.C. is having an informal dance. . . .

BELLE MASQUE had another Mainline success this past week. . . . Thanks for a great show, Fr. Krupa and ensemble. . . . Also the representatives of the local Red Cross would like to thank all those who gave their time and blood in public interest. . . . ORPHANS' Day. . . . Last Thursday night, those on the committee for the St. John's Orphans' Outing, went around to all the halls of the school and hustled up the names of all those interested in being "a parent for a day". . . Contact a Junior on the committee and sign up NOW. . . . The Band takes their first trip away from home in 2 years when they travel to Boston for the Villanova-Boston U. game. . . . about time!!! NEW YORK, NEW YORK. . . . The Alumni of New York announced their annual Thanksgiving Dance on the weekend of the Fordham game. . . . If it is anything like the other Alumni activities (especially in Philly), look out New York. . . . This year promises to be another sellout as in the past. . . .

LOOK AT THE BUTLERS!!!. . . Did you catch the service that a few chosen ones were getting in the chow hall last week??? . . . They weren't football players, or honor students; probably were the law students. . . . An additional note on the Soph Cotillion—The theme is to be of Hawaiian origin with a few swaying palms, etc. . . . And the band is new to this campus, but not to the Mainline. . . . Going by the name of "The Criterions," they are known as a fine purveyor of musical sounds. . . . The tickets are $2.00 and can be bought at the Pie Shoppe. . . . Don't forget to sign up for the Orphan Outing. . . . Father Falvey and the Friends of the Library wish to express their gratitude to all the students who assisted in making the meeting on Sunday, October 25, such an overwhelming success. . . . 'Lowly Pledges' Admitted After Initiation Rites

The "lowly pledges of the illustrious Delta Pi Epsilon fraternity" looked like painted Indians after this year's hell night. More than seventy pledges were accepted in the fraternity through initiation held in Alumni Hall last Wednesday night.

Pledges were first blindfolded and then given raw onions and pills which gave an "unpleasant after effect." They were then led to the end of the gym in groups of ten, and required to crawl along the floor through a long line of big brothers who hit them with paddles as they crawled past.

After they had gone through this ordeal they were given some more raw onions and painted with vegetable dyes and lipstick. Pledges were also obliged to throw their shoes in a pile in the middle of the floor where other fraternity members proceeded to mix them up.

It was announced that a prize would be given first, to the first person to find his shoes and second, to the first pledge to find his own pair of white bucks. "Little brothers" were then lined up and at a given signal all rushed forward to try to find their shoes.

After the pile was untangled four winners were found. The prize, much to the distress of the winners was to receive a solid smack from the paddle of pledging chairman Jim Campbell.

The final ceremony of the night was the awarding of a prize for the two best paddles. First prize was given to Ray Kenneth and second prize was awarded to Emil Guida.

Ring Fittings

Ring fittings for Juniors will be held tomorrow from 10 to 12:30 for day hops, and from 7:15 to 8:00 P.M. for resident students. The The fittings will be in the Student Activities Office in Room 220 Mendel Hall. Ring measurements will also be held for one day next week.

Monday Marks First "Engineer"

The first issue of the "Villanova Engineer" will appear next Monday, Nov. 16. Featured in this initial issue will be the first of a series of four articles on the United States Steel's new Fairless Works at Morrisville, Pa.

There will also be a unique feature entitled "Engineering and Morality," the first contribution by a Philosophy major to this quarterly publication, which should be of special reader interest to Catholic Engineering students.

The magazine, comprised of four topics of information for all types of engineering students, will be clothed in a new cover, the first in three years. It should be remembered that this periodical is intended for all Villanova Engineering students, and if, for any reason, you should not receive your copy, please inform the "Engineer" immediately.

Wood Addresses Marketing Club

M. Wistar Wood, a noted lecturer and Dean of the Charles Morris Price Business School in Philadelphia, addressed the members of the Marketing Club at a special meeting last Wednesday afternoon.

Speaking from his wide experiences as a teacher and world traveller, Mr. Wood presented his topic, "Marketing of a Man's Individual Abilities"; a subject which closely followed the typical problems of the college man in finding the right job after graduation.

After the meeting, Mr. Fred Burgess, moderator of the club, supervised election of officers. Those chosen were: President—Anthony C. Woomer '54, Vice-President — David R. Cook '55, Secretary — John D. Quinlan '56, and Treasurer — Herbert J. Baumann '54.

The next scheduled meeting will be held on November 12, at 10:30 A.M., Room 207 C&F, at which the quarterly campus project will be formulated. All those students who plan to make the annual field trip and become active members must attend.

Triumph Scored In Fan Belle Masque Production

The Belle Masque Dramatic Society put forth their initial dramatic effort of the year last weekend with the rendition of Sir James M. Barrie's "The Admirable Crichton", in the college field house.

With Bernie Coyne holding the lead as the butler, Crichton, and Katherine Kelley as Lady Mary Lasenby the four act play moved along at a quick and pleasant rate.

The plot concerned the family of a British peer who took his family on a pleasure cruise only to have the yacht sink. The group landed on a desert island and here the butler, Crichton, emerges as the dominant figure. The social order is reversed with the family of Lord Lasenby acting as servants to Crichton. This odd set-up lasts for their two-year stay until a passing ship sights the marooned group, brings them back to England and there the social order returns with Crichton reverting to low man on the Mayfair totem pole.

The play has a tragic overtone, though. Crichton and Lady Mary Lasenby are about to be married when the rescue ship is sighted. This ends all of that affair and Lady Mary returns to marry her old love, Lord Brocklehurst, or Tweedmouth, or some such name, ably played by Walter Doyle.

SCENE FROM ADMIRABLE CRICHTON finds Bob Erskine, Katherine Kelly, Bernie Coyne, and Ethel Dagit in reversed positions on the caste scale.

In the third act Crichton appears in his island custume looking somewhat like Queen Tonga's prime minister, complete with feathers and a genuine top hat.

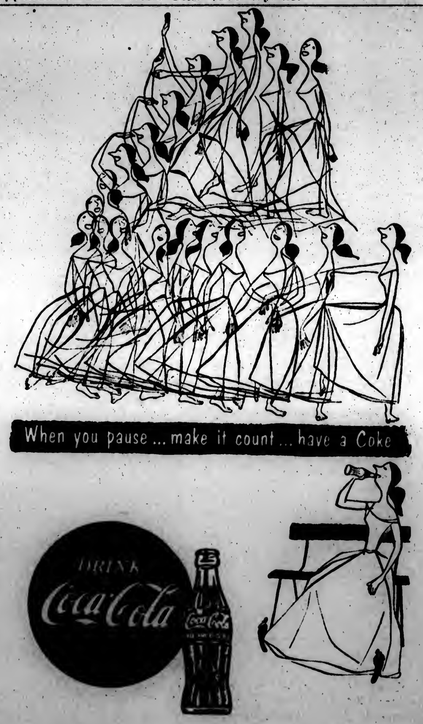
Katherine Kelly, a Rosemont student, making her first dramatic effort at Villanova, she played the part of Lady Lasenby quite well, both in evening dress and leopard skin.

Coyne was making his first appearance since Belle Masque's "Julius Ceasar" last spring. He seemed more at home this time playing Crichton, a character which he was able to put much into. His delivery and timing definitely classes him as Belle Masque's leading performer.

Pete Quinn as Ernest Wooley and Bob Erskine as "Lord Loam" turned in fine jobs. Two Rosemontians, Joan Theurkauf and Sally Ann Daly as two of the Lasenby sisters and Ethel Daggert and "Tweeney" played their roles well.

The sets were handled by Joe Wynne.

Astor Scene of New York Dance



The Villanova Club of New York will hold its annual Thanksgiving Dance at the Hotel Astor on Friday night, Nov. 27, and judging from last year's attendance, this one is going to break all records.

For this reason the tickets are being offered first to Villanova students for $4.00 per couple at the Alumni Office in Mendel Hall. They'll cost $5.00 at the door in N. Y.

"Bud" Dudley and Bill Ryan will be there to liven things up so get your tickets early and don't run the risk of being turned away at the door.

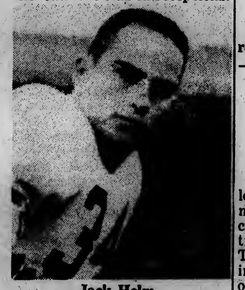
LINERS FACE BU, ORANGE



53 Vacancies Filled Adeptly By Helm, Mayock

Two Juniors, fullback Jack Helm and end Mike Mayock, both assuming starting roles after two seasons of substitution for past Mainline stars, have proved offensive standouts this year and are destined to be key men in the future Villanova attack.

Helm is a consistent ground-gainer with plunges and against Xavier demonstrated that he can move in the open-field also, with his jaunts of twenty-five and forty yards with screen passes. Three perfect placements by Jack in that game solved Coach Art Raimo's problem of making conversions.

Leads Club

Pass catching and downfield blocking are Mayock's specialties. The favorite target of Villanova quarterbacks, he leads the club in receptions.

Jack Helm

An example of his blocking ability was displayed in the Xavier win when he led the interference that paved the way for Helm's touchdown dash.

Frosh Line-Backer

Their Freshman and Sophomore action consisted of occasional duty on both the offense and defense. Helm backed up the line his Freshman year and kicked off.

Both are local boys, Mike coming from St. Joseph's Prep and Jack from Downingtown High.

Their sports background is similar, each lettering in basketball as well as football in high school. In addition, Jack played baseball for his school and for an American Legion team. Ramblers Down Shamrocks To Cop Intramural Crown

By Ed Graham

Captained by Dan Paris and led by quarterback Joe Kenney, the Fedigan Ramblers concluded an undefeated intramural football season last Thursday afternoon by driving to a decisive 13-0 victory over the Shamrocks and thereby capturing the campus gridiron crown.

Pass Play Clicks

A fourth-period pass from Rick Shannon to Art McCune brought the score to 12-0, and another pass play scored the final point.

The Shamrocks, captained by Ted Forhecy, had been unscored on in league competition. Their defense, bolstered by "Tank" Crowley, held its own, but the offense was repeatedly stalled by the winners' alert defensive backfield. The losers were paced by Jack Durk. The game was marred by many penalties and a good deal of roughness.

Successful Season

This play-off game completed play in one of the most extensive and smoothly operated intramural seasons to date, and is only the first part of what could be equally successful seasons in the various other sports planned by Director of Intramurals Ed Geisz, and Intramural Moderator Father John R. Dunne.

Intramural basketball begins November 16th. This year will find almost a hundred teams represented; games will be played in Alumni gym, as usual, and if weather permits, the first part of the campaign will be staged on the Field House outdoor courts.

In last issue's story on intramural football, the Villanovan omitted mention of the Mendel Make-ups, who were to play the Alumni Shamrocks last week in the semi-finals. The Make-ups, previously unbeaten, lost to the Shamrocks, 20-0.

Tickets for the season's final game, against Fordham, are now on sale at the Athletic Office at $3.00 and $2.00 prices. Syracuse tickets are also on sale at a student section price of $3.90. Syracuse ticket sales close Friday, Nov. 20, at 5 o'clock.

Week's Rest Should Aid Late Surge

By Bob Strayton

An improved and spirited Villanova football team travels up to Back Bay, Mass., next Saturday for its annual encounter with the Terriers from Boston University. The following week the Cats return home to face, for the first time, the Saltine Warriors from Syracuse, in the final home game of the year.

Although working without the services of their all-around great athlete, Harry Agganis, who was lost through graduation last year, the Terriers have produced a hustling, well-rounded ball club, potentially the best in New England.

Coach Buff Donelli rests his hopes for the game on the prowess of his young quarterback Tom Gastall, who has shown much talent this season, and on the performance of his veteran lineman Dick McNally, a hardhitting center, team captain Ray Cataloni, one of New England's better guards, tackle Frank Brecker, and ball-hawking Marco Landon, an end, who recovered 14 fumbles last year.

Lack of experience is the main reason why this year's

Pete Carrieri

B.U. team has not accounted for too many wins. The large sophomore contingent which makes up the bulk of the squad has had practically no former competitive experience with other colleges. This means little, however, in view of the fact that last year, the Cats severely trounced the Terriers by a 51-6 score, and avenging the loss will be foremost in the minds of the Terriers.

The Orangemen from Syracuse, whose 7-2 record last year beat out the Villanova 7-1-1 mark for the bid to the Orange Bowl, are remembered by all Villanovans, particularly the football team, who, in this initial meeting of the two teams, will be trying to avenge themselves by handing Syracuse its third loss of the season.

Led by Avatus Stone, the all-purpose back and the East's leading punter, and by Pat Stark, whose passing game has won many ball games for the Saltine Warriors, the Orangemen will try to better their mediocre 3-2-1 record at the expense of the Wildcats. Also threats to the 'Cats are Bruce Yancey, veteran quarterback, who excells on the defense, Bill Wetzel, a fullback who averaged 5 yds. per carry last year, and Bob Fleck, a 256 pound guard who has been brilliantly on both the offense and the defense this season.

Coach Ben Schwartzwalder's charges are known for their fine passing attack and strong defensive line, but lack an offensive line and pass defense, which should make them prey for Charlie McGuckin's bullet-like aerial attack, and brilliant deception.

Both games should prove to be outstanding the wily Wildcats are on the move, and are ready to bare their teeth against any opponent, especially the revenge-seeking Terriers, and the win-hungry Orange.

Princeton Game Postponed; 150's Prep for Rutgers

With last Saturday's scheduled struggle with Princeton postponed by the sudden snow fall, Villanova's 150-pound ball club, with weather permitting, takes to the practice field for the rest of this week in anticipation of a tough battle with Rutgers next Saturday.

First Win Hopes

Still looking for its first win of the season, Tommy Green's outfit will be facing a Rutgers club that took the measure of last year's lightweights, as did your other opponents. That game would have been the campaign's finale, but the Princeton engagement has been re-scheduled for the November 20-21 week-end.

So far, the Wildcat lightweights have lost three ball games, two of which such galling losses as to demoralize a lesser club, and the other a complete run-away. The tough losses were to Penn and to Cornell and the debacle with Navy. Penn's 150 representatives won by a mere 27-25 margin on a fluke pass play in the final minutes, and the Big Red win was on the basis of an extra point, 13-12. The Middies' victory was quite different, however—57-6. Navy, of course, perennially produces top eastern lightweight teams, and last season was unbeaten.

Both Home Games

Both this week's Rutgers game and the re-scheduled Princeon clash will be played here at Villanova. Rutgers' 1952 win over the Main Liners was by a scant one-touchdown margin, and Princeton's win by ways of two TD's.

The Princeton game will probably be played the Friday before the Syracuse game — Friday the 20th.

'Lowly Pledges' Admitted After Initiation Rites

The "lowly pledges of the illustrious Delta Pi Epsilon fraternity" looked like painted Indians after this year's hell night. More than seventy pledges were accepted in the fraternity through initiation held in Alumni Hall last Wednesday night.

Pledges were first blindfolded and then given raw onions and pills which gave an "unpleasant after effect." They were then led to the end of the gym in groups of ten, and required to crawl along the floor through a long line of big brothers who hit them with paddles as they crawled past.

After they had gone through this ordeal they were given some more raw onions and painted with vegetable dyes and lipstick. Pledges were also obliged to throw their shoes in a pile in the middle of the floor where other fraternity members proceeded to mix them up.

It was announced that a prize would be given first, to the first person to find his shoes and second, to the first pledge to find his own pair of white bucks. "Little brothers" were then lined up and at a given signal all rushed forward to try to find their shoes.

After the pile was untangled four winners were found. The prize, much to the distress of the winners was to receive a solid smack from the paddle of pledging chairman Jim Campbell.

The final ceremony of the night was the awarding of a prize for the two best paddles. First prize was given to Ray Kenneth and second prize was awarded to Emil Guida.

Monday Marks First "Engineer"

The first issue of the "Villanova Engineer" will appear next Monday, Nov. 16. Featured in this initial issue will be the first of a series of four articles on the United States Steel's new Fairless Works at Morrisville, Pa.

There will also be a unique feature entitled "Engineering and Morality," the first contribution by a Philosophy major to this quarterly publication, which should be of special reader interest to Catholic Engineering students.

The magazine, comprised of four topics of information for all types of engineering students, will be clothed in a new cover, the first in three years. It should be remembered that this periodical is intended for all Villanova Engineering students, and if, for any reason, you should not receive your copy, please inform the "Engineer" immediately.

Wood Addresses Marketing Club

M. Wistar Wood, a noted lecturer and Dean of the Charles Morris Price Business School in Philadelphia, addressed the members of the Marketing Club at a special meeting last Wednesday afternoon.

Speaking from his wide experiences as a teacher and world traveller, Mr. Wood presented his topic, "Marketing of a Man's Individual Abilities"; a subject which closely followed the typical problems of the college man in finding the right job after graduation.

After the meeting, Mr. Fred Burgess, moderator of the club, supervised election of officers. Those chosen were: President—Anthony C. Woomer '54, Vice-President — David R. Cook '55, Secretary — John D. Quinlan '56, and Treasurer — Herbert J. Baumann '54.

The next scheduled meeting will be held on November 12, at 10:30 A.M., Room 207 C&F, at which the quarterly [illegible] project will be formulated. All those students who plan to make the annual field trip and become active members must attend.

Ring Fittings

Ring fittings for Juniors will be held tomorrow from 10 to 12:30 for day hops, and from 7:15 to 8:00 P.M. for resident students. The The fittings will be in the Student Activities Office in Room 220 Mendel Hall. Ring measurements will also be held for one day next week.

Triumph Scored In Fan Belle Masque Production

The Belle Masque Dramatic Society put forth their initial dramatic effort of the year last weekend with the rendition of Sir James M. Barrie's "The Admirable Crichton", in the college field house.

With Bernie Coyne holding the lead as the butler, Crichton, and Katherine Kelley as Lady Mary Lasenby the four act play moved along at a quick and pleasant rate.

The plot concerned the family of a British peer who took his family on a pleasure cruise only to have the yacht sink. The group landed on a desert island and here the butler, Crichton, emerges as the dominant figure. The social order is reversed with the family of Lord Lasenby acting as servants to Crichton. This odd set-up lasts for their two-year stay until a passing ship sights the marooned group, brings them back to England and there the social order returns with Crichton reverting to low man on the Mayfair totem pole.

The play has a tragic overtone, though. Crichton and Lady Mary Lasenby are about to be married when the rescue ship is sighted. This ends all of that affair and Lady Mary returns to marry her old love, Lord Brocklehurst, or Tweedmouth, or some such name, ably played by Walter Doyle.

SCENE FROM ADMIRABLE CRICHTON finds Bob Erskine, Katherine Kelly, Bernie Coyne, and Ethel Dagit in reversed positions on the caste scale.

In the third act Crichton appears in his island costume looking somewhat like Queen Tonga's prime minister, complete with feathers and a genuine top hat.

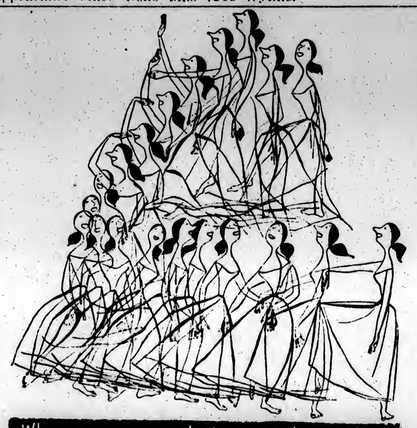
Katherine Kelly, a Rosemont student, making her first dramatic effort at Villanova, she played the part of Lady Lasenby quite well, both in evening dress and leopard skin.

Coyne was making his first appearance since Belle Masque's "Julius Ceasar" last spring. He seemed more at home this time playing Crichton, a character which he was able to put much into. His delivery and timing definitely classes him as Belle Masque's leading performer.

Pete Quinn as Ernest Wooley and Bob Erskine as "Lord Loam" turned in fine jobs. Two Rosemontians, Joan Theurkauf and Sally Ann Daly as two of the Lasenby sisters and Ethel Daggert and "Tweeney" played their roles well.

The sets were handled by Joe Wynne.

Astor Scene of New York Dance



The Villanova Club of New York will hold its annual Thanksgiving Dance at the Hotel Astor on Friday night, Nov. 27, and judging from last year's attendance, this one is going to break all records.

For this reason the tickets are being offered first to Villanova students for $4.00 per couple at the Alumni Office in Mendel Hall. They'll cost $5.00 at the door in N. Y.

"Bud" Dudley and Bill Ryan will be there to liven things up so get your tickets early and don't run the risk of being turned away at the door.

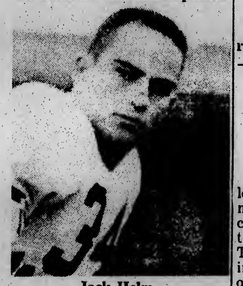
LINERS FACE BU, ORANGE



53 Vacancies Filled Adeptly By Helm, Mayock

Two Juniors, fullback Jack Helm and end Mike Mayock, both assuming starting roles after two seasons of substitution for past Mainline stars, have proved offensive standouts this year and are destined to be key men in the future Villanova attack.

Helm is a consistent ground-gainer with plunges and against Xavier demonstrated that he can move in the open-field also, with his jaunts of twenty-five and forty yards with screen passes. Three perfect placements by Jack in that game solved Coach Art Raimo's problem of making conversions.

Leads Club

Pass catching and downfield blocking are Mayock's specialties. The favorite target of Villanova quarterbacks, he leads the club in receptions.

Jack Helm

An example of his blocking ability was displayed in the Xavier win when he led the interference that paved the way for Helm's touchdown dash.

Frosh Line-Backer

Their Freshman and Sophomore action consisted of occasional duty on both the offense and defense. Helm backed up the line his Freshman year and kicked off.

Both are local boys, Mike coming from St. Joseph's Prep and Jack from Downingtown High.

Wanted: A Rivalry

By Harry Nash

The cheering of the 5,000-odd football avids that echoed and re-echoed throughout the sparsely-populated chasms of the House That Connie Mack Built (to borrow a cliche from Yankee Stadium) perhaps embraced more between the lines than merely shouts of encouragement for the participants—Xavier and Villanova—that were banging heads Saturday before last.

Of course, the reason that there was little noise lies in the obvious and disturbing fact that not very many folks had payed their way through the turnstiles of the A's-Phils' ballwick, in spite of the attractive pre-war price offer on 15,000 unreserved tickets just before game time. But the poor crowd pointed up still another fact.

Villanova could use a sound, exciting football rivalry relation with another college close enough to the Philadelphia area to attract its Alumni as well as Wildcat graduates.

Now, we're not advocating anything as pretentious as Rutgers-Princeton and Yale-Harvard get-togethers; after all, those time-honored relationships had been surrounded by long-standing tradition and would probably draw droves of enthusiasts even if the combatants hadn't won a game between them in the last three years. The reasons for this situation are three-fold:

In the first place, past record doesn't mean a tinker's damn to the average Alumnus as far as this colorful rivalry is concerned; he's going to pack up his old raccoon coat and 1926 pennants and head for that ball game regardless.

Alumni Attraction

Secondarily, and very important, even if said Joe Alumnus doesn't know football from lacrosse, he'll show up for memory's sake, because most big rivalry games feature a homecoming week-end; gladdened by an Auld Lang Syne spirit and spirits of another type, he'll get a chance to see some long-forgotten elbow-benders, and impress that old coed sweetheart who made his college days so interesting.

Thirdly, there are usually some special activities attached—dances, parties, barbeques, a few extra-curriculars here and there, and, in general, a great week-end that makes Joe feel young again, at least for a few weeks.

What do these factors add up to?

Homecoming Lethargy

Just this . . . better attendance at games, better spirit, a definite channel of spreading interest in both institutions and their ball clubs. The Xavier game was the feature event of the homecoming weekend, with the blow-out at the Bellevue-Stratford following, and from what was discernible through the knots of songsters, there were many more students at that fracas than were graduates. And, frankly, you can't entirely blame the Alumni for not breaking their necks to make the game and the homecoming festivities (which were noticeably lacking). First of all, the Xavier club isn't exactly the biggest drawing card in the world. Secondly, the better attraction as far as the opponent, the more Alumni attending, the better and much more extensive homecoming program, and an all-around establishment of a yearly shindig that, with good enthusiastic backing, could approach the dimensions that other schools of proportionate prestige have built up through the years through sound planning.

Tradition Necessary

A lot of people may consider Fordham a good choice as top rival, but, although the Ram-Wildcat game is admittedly a good draw in New York, because of the many subway Alumni of both schools in the area, Villanova is playing Fordham this year for the first time in several decades. And a break of even a few years isn't conducive to a really vibrant, hot competitive spirit such as is present even in rivalries between colleges smaller than our own.

Records Irrelevant

Playing such a game each year here in Philly could have far-reaching effects—the fans who turn out (not necessarily Alumni) would see the ball club at its best for the same reasons that have sparked poor Navy teams in the past to great heights against a traditional Army enemy. It seems the overall color involved in those homecoming week-ends, on the gridiron and off, would go a long way toward establishing a

Newcomer Prospects

Height and Rebounding Talent Feature Frosh

Perhaps the happiest coach around the campus these days is "Maje" McDonald, mentor of the freshman basketball team. "Maje" has good reason to be happy for this year's team includes one of the brightest collections of freshmen hoopsters to enter Villanova since the 1949 team of Larry Hennessy, Nick McGuire and Co.

As is usually the case, the team members hail mostly from New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania. Included in this group are players who have won various All-City, County, and State honors in high school. The team also encompasses every type of player from the tricky floorman to the rugged rebounder.

Good Rebounders

The "Empire" state boasts four representatives on this year's squad. Bob Fitzgerald, a 6'1" playmaker from Regis, and Bobby Powers, a hard driving, aggresive ball player, who stands 6'2" and hails from Cardinal Hayes, are the two New York City natives on the club. Powers won All-City honors and averaged 25 points a games as a senior last year. The rest of the New York talent is made up of Sonny Di Carlo, a set shot artist at 5'10" who was an All-County selection at Rye High, and Dave Warsen, a 6'5" rebounder who comes to Villanova via Malvern, Long Island.

As usual, New Jersey is well-represented on the team, especially by rebounders. Jim Arnott, 6'3", from Perth Amboy, who won All-State and All-County honors in high school, and Buck Haley, from Balley-Ellard, N. J., are two players counted on for their rugged rebounding. Slated to add height to the club are Lew Shultz 6'4" from Wharton, N. J., and another Jersyite, carrot topped "Red" Fahey, who, at 6'6", will remind many fans of Steve Gepp.

Good Shots

Cliff Farren from St. Rose High School in New Jersey, is the small man from the "Garden" state, at 6'1". Cliff is a tricky ball-handler who possesses a good jump shot and plenty of court savvy.

From Pennsylvania comes Dick Van Austin, who is no stranger to Villanova fans, having appeared in the field house a number of times against last year's freshmen team, while at Brown Prep. He stands 5'10" and is an excellent ball handler. Jerry Wiesmann is a 6'1" lad who lays claim to a deadly jump shot. Jerry will be remembered as one of the stars of last year's underdog Yeadon team which won the P.I.A.A. championship. Jack Griffith, a 6 foot ball handler and set-shot specialist from Allentown, completes the freshman lineup.

Scrimmage Varsity

This year's freshman team will also engage in daily scrimmages with the varsity.

romp.

Fortunately, neither man has sustained a major injury in his career. Mike suffered a broken hand in spring practice two years ago, but it healed satisfactorily and now gives him no trouble.

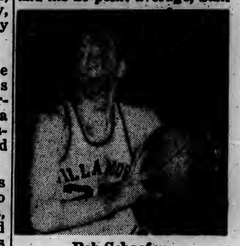
Future Plans

After graduation, Helm plans to spend a couple of years with the Marines. He is a member of the Platoon Leaders Corps. When back in civilian life he would like to get a chance to break into organized baseball. Mayock's desire is to remain connected with sports in some way.

Both men are excellent students. Mike is an Arts major, Jack Pre-law.

a fan-attraction even when teams from other sections of the country play the 'Cats in Philadelphia.

Maybe not. Maybe Villanova will never draw in its own area, homecoming or otherwise. But in this corner the opinion is that setting up a rivalry that is a potential tradition would be the first step toward getting the Wildcats entrenched firmly as far as fan and Alumni support in Philly is concerned.



Let's face it—judging from the last homecoming week-end, there's no place to go but up.

Sophomores, Two Juniors '53 Nucleus

By Joe Heaps

In preparation of the tough 30-game schedule that confronts it, the basketball team began practice last week, under the tutelage of Coach Al Severance. His job consists of molding a team from two starters from last season, returning reservists and the members of the crack 1952-53 Freshman squad.

Gone are Larry Hennessey and his 29-point average, Sam

Bob Schaefer

Glassmire and Nick Maguire, the backcourt aces, Jim Mooney, rebounding and defensive bulwark, and Joe Maguire and George Stanko, who were strong bench strength. Coach Severance has until December 2, the season's opener with Mount St. Mary's, to form a combination to replace these graduated stars.

Small Nucleus

Bob Schaefer and John Devine, returning lettermen, will supply the nucleus with which Severance wil work. Set-shot artist Schaefer, a 17-point average man last year, will be counted on to provide much of the offensive puch. Devine, 6'4" rebound grabber, will again draw the assignments of stopping the big man on opposing clubs.

Sophomores Marty Milligan, Larry Tierney, John Cirino, and Tom Foley will be depended on heavily. The first two mentioned, both fast and adept ball-handlers, will carry the bulk of the backcourt work left by Sam and Nick. Cirino and Foley will help furnish the board work and either could develop into a top offensive threat.

Other Soph standouts are rugged Joe Servon and wily John Meade.

Jim Smith, a transfer student who becomes eligible early in February, will help the club in the late season drive.

Returnees from last year's quintet include Dave Clune, Bill Sigalove, Jim Brady and Joe Donnelly. Unlike their bench-warming duty from the previous seasons, these men should see considerable action this winter. Clune, who has a variety of shots, could be a top scorer and steadily improving Sigalove, could be a great help in the rebounding department. Tom Meany, another soph but a non-scholarship, could supply unexpected bench prowess.

Stone, Collier Pace Keglers

In a full round of games, the Bowling League produced a series of sparkling team and individual scores. Stan Stone, as usual, carried away top honors by bowling the high average, a resounding 235, as part of his high individual triple 612. Stone was followed in individual scoring by Tom Collier's 225 and Tom Keating's 204.

The high team single is held by the "Hoods" with 789, with the Knickerbockers taking the prize in both second and third places. The Knickerbockers tied the Hoods for the league lead by taking the high team triple for the night.

The standings are:

	Won	Lost
Knickerbockers	10	2
Hoods	10	2
Nostrikes	8	4
Elks	6	6

Does U.N. Deserve Abuse? Lasting Peace Takes Time

By George Ferguson

Since the termination of the Korean War, it has become fashionable in some newspaper and radio circles to denounce the United Nations. Because it has not given to the world international peace on a silver platter, it is labeled a fiasco. A vociferous minority suggests that the United States withdraw from UN, or that the organization be abandoned and scuttled, as a waste of time, money and effort.

A few newspaper columnists and radio commentators approach the subject of UN with prejudice. These men are the molders of public opinion. They emotionalize the issues, playing deftly upon the feelings of an American public puzzled and dissatisfied by Washington's reluctance to fight the Korean conflict to a victorious conclusion. Americans have been aroused by the recent revelations of shocking acts of barbarism perpetuated on helpless POWs by the Chinese Communists. Our people are justly incensed by these things.

Journalistic "Rice"

But to point to the United Nations as a failure because world peace did not materialize after World War II is not logical. Yet, expressions like ". . . the faltering global institution that failed to keep the peace . . ." are thrown about like rice at a wedding by leading journalists and broadcasters.

Logical reasoning and the objective approach are shunned by these men. As a result, our people have an incomplete and inaccurate picture of UN, its objectives, operations and achievements.

What are the real facts on the United Nations? Is it a failure, as believed by not a few in this country today? Did the United Nations lose the Korean War, as the Chinese Communists would have the world believe? Why does not UN give us world peace?

New Idea

Let us examine some facts. International organizations are comparatively new developments. For six or eight thousand years of recorded history, nations have gone their individual ways. Cooperation among them existed primarily in wartime, but it was quite brief. The first real instance of peacetime cooperation among nations was the Concert of Europe, established in 1814. It lasted only a few years.

The League of Nations, with headquarters in Geneva, Switzerland, was the first full-scale attempt at forming a world organization to handle international problems. This was in 1919. The League functioned all during World War II and bowed out when its successor, United Nations, took over at the end of that conflict.

Instrument of Peace

United Nations is an instrument for international cooperation. It is in no sense a world governing body. It can pass no laws. It has no legislative branch whatsoever. UN is nothing more than a large-scale diplomatic conference meeting regularly. It is nothing short of ridiculous to expect an organization like this to bring about world peace. If harmony among nations is lacking, if peace remains an elusive will-o-the-wisp, it is nations and peoples and their concepts of sovereignty which are to blame.

United Nations, like any other instrument, requires people to make it work. No reasonable person would expect an automobile to run by itself. Yet a good many seem to think that the supposedly magic words "United Nations" will make everything right with the world. Until the peoples of the various national states realize that the success of UN depends on them, we will not have a 100% successful world organization. The question of who won the Korean War, as well as the accomplishments of the United Nations, will be considered in a subsequent article.

J. Paul Sheedy* Switched to Wildroot Cream-Oil Because He Flunked The Finger-Nail Test

"Safari as I'm concerned" said Sheedy's gal, "your hair looks like something the cat dragged in. Purrhaps you better spring for some Wildroot Cream-Oil, America's favorite hair tonic. Keeps hair combed without greasiness. Removes loose, ugly dandruff. Relieves annoying dryness. Contains Lanolin. Non-alcoholic." So Sheedy roared down to his druggist for Wildroot Cream-Oil, and now he's feline mighty fine. All the girls paws and stare when he passes. So you better leopard on the bandwagon and try Wildroot Cream-Oil right meow. Scratch up 29¢ for a bottle or handy tube at any toilet goods counter. And ask your barber for some Wildroot Cream-Oil on your hair. Then you'll be the cat's whiskers!

Gilligan Sparks Rifle Team Win

The Navy rifle team extended its winning streak to three straight by edging the Navy Yard Marines 1380-1372. The Marines were captained by Lt. H. A. Freeman, nationally known NRA shooter and winner of the Custer Silver Trophy for rifle marksmanship.

In their last encounter, the local sharpshooters routed LaSalle 1364-1277. Midshipman J. H. Gilligan sparkled in both meets with scores of 287 and 279 respectively.

French Club Sets Meeting Plans

Doctor Charles M Lombard, modern language instructor, announced last week that Villonva's French Club will reorganize at a special meeting Thursday, Nov. 12, during the 10:30 a. m. activities period. It will be held in Room 201, Commerce and Finance Building.

Doctor Lombard, who will serve as faculty moderator, extended and invitation for students interested in the French language and culture to attend the meeting.

A tentative outline of the club's objective and program for the academic year, to be announced.

Senior Meeting

Ted Sheehan, class prexy, announced that there will be a meeting of the Senior class next Thursday in the C&F auditorium at 10:30.

Several important points will be discussed, including the method of payment for the proposed gift of the class. Sheehan urged that more attend this meeting than attended the last, pointing out that the matters to be decided would affect the whole class.

1941 rally, Temple conspirators set fire to the almost completed bonfire structure. But by Friday night, the Frosh had rallied and restored it to its original height.

The ceremonies were so eventful that they were aired over a local network. Fedigan Hall, with an array of ornaments never before or since seen, was presented with the award for the fifth year in succession. In 1942, war brought an end not only to the Connelly Award but also to the traditional Villanova-Temple series.

Debaters Lose Match To LaSalle By 1 Point

LaSalle won a one point decision over the Villanova debaters in last Tuesday's opening debate for the Beta Gamma group.

The affirmative team of John Wiznieski and George Sinnott drew with its LaSalle counterparts. Originally the decision was awarded to Villanova but was then reversed in favor of a tie. There were no objections.

The negative team of Mark McCormick and William Eckinrich was defeated in this dual debate, giving the final decision to the men from LaSalle.

The topic under discussion was the national intercollegiate question: "Resolved: The United States should adopt a policy of Free Trade."

President of the Beta Gamma debating society Bob Gerstung expressed satisfaction at the debate's outcome, pointing out that none of the Villanova representatives had ever before taken part in an intercollegiate debate. He also praised the ability of LaSalle's orators.

Lieut. Lacey Commended At Full Review Today

This afternoon Villanova midshipmen will render with ceremony the honors due their present freshman Naval Science Instructor LTJG James E. Lacy USN, winner of the Commendation Ribbon with Commendation Medal Pendant and Combat Distinguishing Device. During a full battallion review, Captain M. J. Drury USN will present the citation from Vice Admiral J. J. Clark, Commander of the Seventh Fleet to LTJG Lacy for his meritorious actions in the Korean theatre while Combat Intelligence Officer aboard the cruiser Manchester.

Lt. (jg) Lacy

On three different occasions when the ship was under heavy enemy shore battery fire, LTJG Lacy coolly directed the ship's five-inch fire and succeeded in silencing the enemy gunfire despite involved and evasive maneuvering in restricted waters. On April 23, 1953, this enemy shore fire complicated the removal of wounded personnel from Wonsan harbor. LTJG Lacy's counter-battery fire quelled the enemy batteries and accomplished the successful evacuation.

Native of Hawaii

Mr. Lacy calls Kailau, Hawaiian Islands, home. He graduated from Honolulu High and spent a year at the University of Hawaii before entering the NROTC regular program at the University of Southern California. He is twenty-three, married and has one son. The family lives in Wilmington, Delaware from where he commutes.

LTJG Lacy likes the navy and is a career naval officer though he admits that he is sometimes perplexed by its methods—especially since his last request for duty was the Hawaiian Islands and his assignment, Villanova. However, Mr. Lacy is greatly pleased with Villanova and with his opportunity to pass his experience and affection for the Naval Service to prospective NROTC students through his personal publicity campaign in local high schools.

BELLE AIR PHOTOS

Those members of the faculty who were given appointments for Belle Air pictures for next Thursday, Nov. 12, are asked to be present promptly in the Library Science room of the library at the times arranged.

Red Cross Unit Gains 125 Pints

Villanova students literally opened their hearts and contributed 125 pints of blood to the Red Cross bloodmobile set up in Barry Hall Armory last Wednesday.

Mrs. Stanley Hartshorn, Blood Service Chairman of the Wayne branch of the Red Cross, expressed her sincerest thanks to the College, both students and administration for the warm cooperation the blood unit received. She also extended her thanks to the NROTC unit for publicizing the drive and providing the facilities.

Mrs. Hartshorn emphasized that she wanted to congratulate the committee that paved the way for the Bloodmobile by soliciting donors in classes and at the blood desks. The committee was headed by Tom Kern.

SPORTS CHATTER

Wanted: A Rivalry

By Harry Nash

The cheering of the 5,000-odd football avids that echoed and re-echoed throughout the sparsely-populated chasms of the House That Connie Mack Built (to borrow a cliche from Yankee Stadium) perhaps embraced more between the lines than merely shouts of encouragement for the participants—Xavier and Villanova—that were banging heads Saturday before last.

Of course, the reason that there was little noise lies in the obvious and disturbing fact that not very many folks had payed their way through the turnstiles of the A's-Phils' baliwick, in spite of the attractive pre-war price offer on 15,000 unreserved tickets just before game time. But the poor crowd pointed up still another fact.

Villanova could use a sound, exciting football rivalry relation with another college close enough to the Philadelphia area to attract its Alumni as well as Wildcat graduates.

Now, we're not advocating anything as pretentious as Rutgers-Princeton and Yale-Harvard get-togethers; after all, those time-honored relationships had been surrounded by long-standing tradition and would probably draw droves of enthusiasts even if the combatants hadn't won a game between them in the last three years. The reasons for this situation are three-fold:

In the first place, past record doesn't mean a tinker's damn to the average Alumnus as far as this colorful rivalry is concerned; he's going to pack up his old raccoon coat and 1926 pennants and head for that ball game regardless.

Alumni Attraction

Secondarily, and very important, even if said Joe Alumnus doesn't know football from lacrosse, he'll show up for memory's sake, because most big rivalry games feature a homecoming week-end; gladdened by an Auld Lang Syne spirit and spirits of another type, he'll get a chance to see some long-forgotten elbow-benders, and impress that old coed sweetheart who made his college days so interesting.

Thirdly, there are usually some special activities attached—dances, parties, barbeques, a few extra-curriculars here and there, and, in general, a great week-end that makes Joe feel young again, at least for a few weeks.

What do these factors add up to?

Homecoming Lethargy

Just this . . . better attendance at games, better spirit, a definite channel of spreading interest in both institutions and their ball clubs. The Xavier game was the feature event of the homecoming weekend, with the blow-out at the Bellevue-Stratford following, and from what was discernible through the knots of songsters, there were many more students at that fracas than were graduates. And, frankly, you can't entirely blame the Alumni for not breaking their necks to make the game and the homecoming festivities (which were noticeably lacking). First of all, the Xavier club isn't exactly the biggest drawing card in the world. Secondly, the better attraction as far as the opponent, the more Alumni attending, the better and much more extensive homecoming program, and an all-around establishment of a yearly shindig that, with good enthusiastic backing, could approach the dimensions that other schools of proportionate prestige have built up through the years through sound planning.

Tradition Necessary

A lot of people may consider Fordham a good choice as top rival, but, although the Ram-Wildcat game is admittedly a good draw in New York, because of the many subway Alumni of both schools in the area, Villanova is playing Fordham this year for the first time in several decades. And a break of even a few years isn't conducive to a really vibrant, hot competitive spirit such as is present even in rivalries between colleges smaller than our own.

Records Irrelevant

Playing such a game each year here in Philly could have far-reaching effects—the fans who turn out (not necessarily Alumni) would see the ball club at its best for the same reasons that have sparked poor Navy teams in the past to great heights against a traditional Army enemy. It seems the overall color involved in those homecoming week-ends, on the gridiron and off, would go a long way toward establishing a a fan-attraction even when teams from other sections of the country play the 'Cats in Philadelphia.

Maybe not. Maybe Villanova will never draw in its own area, homecoming or otherwise. But in this corner the opinion is that setting up a rivalry that is a potential tradition would be the first step toward getting the Wildcats entrenched firmly as far as fan and Alumni support in Philly is concerned.

Let's face it—judging from the last homecoming week-end, there's no place to go but up.

Cage Practice Underway; Severance Must Rebuild

Newcomer Prospects

Perhaps the happiest coach around the campus these days is "Maje" McDonald, mentor of the freshman basketball team. "Maje" has good reason to be happy for this year's team includes one of the brightest collections of freshmen hoopsters to enter Villanova since the 1949 team of Larry Hennessy, Nick McGuire and Co.

As is usually the case, the team members hail mostly from New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania. Included in this group are players who have won various All-City, County, and State honors in high school. The team also encompasses every type of player from the tricky floorman to the rugged rebounder.

Good Rebounders

The "Empire" state boasts four representatives on this year's squad. Bob Fitzgerald, a 6'1" playmaker from Regis, and Bobby Powers, a hard driving, aggresive ball player, who stands 6'2" and hails from Cardinal Hayes, are the two New York City natives on the club. Powers won All-City honors and averaged 25 points a games as a senior last year. The rest of the New York talent is made up of Sonny Di Carlo, a set shot artist at 5'10" who was an All-County selection at Rye High, and Dave Warsen, a 6'5" rebounder who comes to Villanova via Malvern, Long Island.

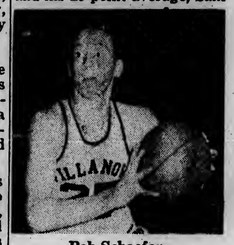
As usual, New Jersey is well-represented on the team, especially by rebounders. Jim Arnott, 6'3", from Perth Amboy, who won All-State and All-County honors in high school, and Buck Haley, from Balley-Ellard, N. J., are two players counted on for their rugged rebounding. Slated to add height to the club are Lew Shultz 6'4" from Wharton, N. J., and another Jersyite, carrot topped "Red" Fahey, who, at 6'6", will remind many fans of Steve Gepp.

Good Shots

Cliff Farren from St. Rose High School in New Jersey, is the small man from the "Garden" state, at 6'1". Cliff is a tricky ball-handler who possesses a good jump shot and plenty of court savvy.

From Pennsylvania comes Dick Van Austin, who is no stranger to Villanova fans, having appeared in the field house a number of times against last year's freshmen team, while at Brown Prep. He stands 5'10" and is an excellent ball handler. Jerry Wiesmann is a 6'1" lad who lays claim to a deadly jump shot. Jerry will be remembered as one of the stars of last year's underdog Yeadon team which won the P.I.A.A. championship. Jack Griffith, a 6 foot ball handler and set-shot specialist from Allentown, completes the freshman lineup.

Scrimmage Varsity



This year's freshman team will also engage in daily scrimmages with the varsity.

Sophomores, Two Juniors '53 Nucleus

By Joe Heaps

In preparation of the tough 30-game schedule that confronts it, the basketball team began practice last week, under the tutelage of Coach Al Severance. His job consists of molding a team from two starters from last season, returning reservists and the members of the crack 1952-53 Freshman squad.

Gone are Larry Hennessey and his 29-point average, Sam

Bob Schaefer

Glassmire and Nick Maguire, the backcourt aces, Jim Mooney, rebounding and defensive bulwark, and Joe Maguire and George Stanko, who were strong bench strength. Coach Severance has until December 2, the season's opener with Mount St. Mary's, to form a combination to replace these graduated stars.

Small Nucleus

Bob Schaefer and John Devine, returning lettermen, will supply the nucleus with which Severance wil work. Set-shot artist Schaefer, a 17-point average man last year, will be counted on to provide much of the offensive puch. Devine, 6'4" rebound grabber, will again draw the assignments of stopping the big man on opposing clubs.

Sophomores Marty Milligan, Larry Tierney, John Cirino, and Tom Foley will be depended on heavily. The first two mentioned, both fast and adept ball-handlers, will carry the bulk of the backcourt work left by Sam and Nick. Cirino and Foley will help furnish the board work and either could develop into a top offensive threat.

Other Soph standouts are rugged Joe Servon and wily John Meade.

Jim Smith ,a transfer student who becomes eligible early in February, will help the club in the late season drive.

Returnees from last year's quintet include Dave Clune, Bill Sigalove, Jim Brady and Joe Donnelly. Unlike their bench-warming duty from the previous seasons, these men should see considerable action this winter. Clune, who has a variety of shots, could be a top scorer and steadily improving. Sigalove could be a great help in the rebounding department. Tom Meany, another soph but a non-scholarship, could supply unexpected bench prowess.

—Helm, Mayock

romp.

Fortunately, neither man has sustained a major injury in his career. Mike suffered a broken hand in spring practice two years ago, but it healed satisfactorily and now gives him no trouble.

Future Plans

After graduation, Helm plans to spend a couple of years with the Marines. He is a member of the Platoon Leaders Corps. When back in civilian life he would like to get a chance to break into organized baseball. Mayock's desire is to remain connected with sports in some way.

Both men are excellent students. Mike is an Arts major, Jack Pre-law.

Stone, Collier Pace Keglers

In a full round of games, the Bowling League produced a series of sparkling team and individual scores. Stan Stone, as usual, carried away top honors by bowling the high average, a resounding 235, as part of his high individual triple 612. Stone was followed in individual scoring by Tom Collier's 225 and Tom Keating's 204.

The high team single is held by the "Hoods" with 789, with the Knickerbockers taking the prize in both second and third places. The Knickerbockers tied the Hoods for the league lead by taking the high team triple for the night.

The standings are:

	Won	Lost
Knickerbockers	10	2
Hoods	10	2
Nostrikes	8	4
Elks	6	6
Streamers	1	11
Dukes	1	11

D.P.M. TO ELECT

Delta Pi Mu, recently renovated arts fraternity, will hold its first elections since 1951 next Thursday (Nov. 12) in Room 202 Mendel Hall.

At Thursday's meeting the new constitution was read, amended, and ratified by the 88 charter members present. At the same time the nominations of the previous week were also ratified by the members and submitted to the administration for approval, which has been secured.

Dr. John I. McEnerney, moderator of the group, appointed acting presiding officer Jim Nolin to look into the possibility of admitting Science majors into the fraternity, since they had put in a request for membership, which is now open only to Arts and Education majors. Nolin is to report on this by the next meeting of the members.

Candidates for officers of the fraternity, approved by the administration are: President, Jim Nolin, '54; Ward Welsh, '54, Bart Moynahan, '54, Tim Cole '54; Vice President, Frank Gunther, '55, Owen Hickey, '56, Joe Blimm, '55, Dick Fitzpatrick, '56. Corresponding Secretary, Edwin Daly, '55, Jack Padova, '56, Harry Nash, '56, Peter Quinn, '56, Tom Mentzer, '55; Recording Secretary, Bob Reber, '54, Eugene Kennedy, '54, Robert Farley, '56, Joe Torak, '56, Matt Heim, '56.

Treasurer, John De Remigis, '55, Frank Adams, '56, Dick Fitzpatrick, '56, John Sullivan, '56 and Harry Nash, '56. Student Council representative, Jim Borden, '55, and Owen Hickey, '56.

A.S.M.E. HEARS MILLER

Walt Miller, chairman of the Villanova Chapter of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, addressed the group last week and pointed out the professional developments possible through the organization.

ASME members also outlined their program for the coming year. Plans include the presentation of speakers in the engineering field, the scheduling of field trips and smokers, and the preparation of student papers. These plans were presented by John Vanstone and Frank Gehring, program chairman and activities chairman, respectively.

Other officers of the club are: honorary chairman Mr. Joseph Greyson, vice-chairman George Minser, secretary Jim Malloy, and treasurer Guido Donato.

Next meeting will be held Nov. 16 during the engineer's activities period (11:30 A.M.) in 202 Barry Hall. At that time a consulting engineer will speak on "Leather Belting and Power Drive."

TOURNAMENT

The Villanova Chess Club Fall Tournament began yesterday. All tournament games will be played in the Blue Room in the Field House. Interested students should report to the tournament today at 2:30 P.M.

P.K.P. ELECTS

At its meeting on Nov. 5, the members of the Engineering Fraternity elected Jack Joyce as president to succeed Joe Zator who was compelled to resign because of his duties as chairman of the AIEE. Joyce moved into the new office from the Vice-presidency of the Frat.

The AIEE-IRE will hold its monthly meeting on Thursday, Nov. 12, at 10:30 A.M. in the Dynamo Lab.

Waterfront Arbitrator Reveals Cleanup Policies

Noted labor management arbitrator, Dennis J. Comey, S.J., addressed an audience containing representatives from four colleges last Thursday night in the C&F auditorium. Speaking on the subject, "Arbitration Between Labor and Management," he presented the theory that he has successfully used in cleaning up the Philadelphia waterfront: "a Catholic philosophy of life and living."

Education

This theory he has effected by educating the men in teaching them, "respect for other men."

Father Comey placed his success in reducing strikes in the hands of the laborers when he said, "My strength is entirely in the rank and file."

Arbitration Record

During his work on the Philadelphia docks last year, there were five strikes, none lasting more than four days or effecting more than one shift. Within this same time in New York, there were fifty-two waterfront strikes, lasting not longer than three weeks and effecting many shifts.

Problem of Corruption

Corruption on the docks proposes one of the big problems. "The waterfronts are open to abuse not only in Philadelphia and New York but also all over the world."

Bribery and corruption are due to two major causes. The first is the haste in which ships must be loaded or unloaded. To facilitate matters a fee is paid by the shippers to the union man so that he will order his men to work in conditions which are not suited to them or at wages not in proportion to their input.

Contract Violation

The second problem is that of the unions' putting more men in the work gangs than the contracts call for. Unions pay the shippers' men not to complain about additional men in the gangs.

Reconciliation

Father Comey reconciled these problems as he met them by following the contracts which the parties, prior to his action "normally did not read."

Vol. 29—No. 7 VILLANOVA UNIVERSITY, VILLANOVA, PA. Nov. 24, 1953

University Issue

In observing the recent declaration of Villanova as a University, the Villanovan takes pleasure in presenting this special edition. On pages 2 and 3 will be found the story behind Villanova's academic, spiritual and extra-curricular rise to its new status. Pages 6, 7 and 8 cover the present Villanova U. athletic scene in an expanded sports section. Campus news is covered on page 5.

Happy University to Villanova and Happy Thanksgiving to our readers.

Villanova Declared University

Legal Action Passes Title Amendment

With the signing of a final decree by the four sitting Judges of the Court of Common Pleas in Delaware County, Villanova College became Villanova University last Wednesday, at 10:30 A. M.

The brief ceremony was presided over by Judge Harold L. Ervin in the county courthouse in Media. Other justices attending were Henry G. Sweeney, William R. Toal, and Arthur P. Brethericck.

Attorney Joseph Mulray, a Villanova graduate, represented Villanova at the hearing. He read the decree to the judges, citing the report of the State Council on Education.

Very Rev. Francis X. N. McMcGuire, O.S.A., president of the school, then traced the history of the Augustinian order from St. Augustine's time to the present. He included the history of Villanova, how it was founded, and the dates of the founding of each of the schools of Villanova. Father McGuire pointed out that Villanova has been a University in fact, though not in name, for many years, since it has had several schools under the one title.

An interesting note at the signing was the use of Villanova's quill pen. Also during the signing and the picture taking which followed, Judge Bretherick point out that as an undergraduate at Temple he had many recollections of the fierce rivalry at that time between Villanova and Temple.

Representing Villanova at the ceremonies, which began at 10 Wednesday morning and closed at 10:30, were, in addition to Father McGuire, Rev. Edward B. McKee, O. S. A., vice president; Eugene Ruane, publicity director; George Harris, secretary-treasurer of the Alumni Association; and attorney Mulray.

REV. FRANCIS X. N. McGUIRE, Villanova's president, speaks before Justices Brethericck, Sweeney, Ervin, and Toal (not pictured) at the Court of Common Pleas in Media, Pa., prior to the signing of the decree which made Villanova a university.

President's Message

The entire Villanova family, Faculty, Students, and Alumni, rejoices today in the action of the Court of Delaware County. In the midst of such rejoicing, we humbly render thanks to Almighty God and to Our Lady of Good Counsel for having led us to this memorable success in our long and noble history.

Pursuant to the provisions of a recent act of the Pennsylvania legislature, the Court of Delaware County has seen fit to confer on us the title of Villanova University.

It is with a great deal of pride that we assume this title. At the same time we are thoroughly cognizant of the responsibility thus thrust upon us. We shall aim to be a University in the strict sense of the term. We look forward to years of academic achievement, to greater service to our Community, to the Nation, and to Holy Mother Church.

Early Days

Historical Event Recalls A Great Villanova Saga

John Randolph, American Revolutionary War officer and signer of the Declaration of Independence, probably never dreamed that his rambling country estate "Belle Air" would one day be the site of one of the greatest Catholic universities in America.

Today, at midcentury, Villanova is just that.

The University's 2200 full-time day and resident students and 218 faculty and administration members, exclusive of maintenance personnel, present a far cry from the 13 students and 9 faculty members who attended the first opening Mass of the college, celebrated by Father John O'Dwyer, OSA, on August 28, 1843.

The property was purchased on October 31, 1841, for the sum of $18,000 by Rev. Patrick E. Moriarty, Augustinian commissioner in the United States. In March, 1848, Governor Francis Shunk of Pennsylvania signed "an act to incorporate the Augustinian College of Villanova", giving the school legal recognition. Only a few years after turning out its first graduates, hard times plus a wave of anti-Catholicism forced the college to close its doors. When the Civil War came to a close in 1865, Villanova resumed operations, and has been expanding ever since.

The life of a Villanova student in those early days was a rigorous one. Reveille was at 5:30 A.M; no student could leave his room until the signal was given. Classes began at 8:30 A.M., and continued 'till noon. Afternoon sessions started at 2:00 P.M. and adjourned at 4:30 P.M; they resumed at 5:00 ended at 6:00 P.M. Evening classes were from 7:00 P. M. P.M. to 8:00 P.M. At 9 o'clock the student retired, but there were three periods set aside for prayer and four for rcreation. Silence was enforced in the washroom, dormitory, refectory and study hall. Tuition fees amounted to $125.00 per year.

Villanova's aim was not only to educate young men in the principles of Christian living, but to perpetuate the Augustinian order in the United States. Members of the order had been sent abroad for their education, but on May 18, 1848, Mr. Charles Egan was received into the novitiate, becoming the first member of the Order to be received at Villanova. It is worthy of note that the Seminary has always been considered a distinct branch of the college.

After the War between the States, Villanova began to build for the future. Most of the old buildings were remodeled or torn down and many new ones were built. In 1917 there were six large structures, exclusive of the farm buildings, which were maintained by the lay brothers. Father Mullen was the first president after the school was reopened in 1865, and the curriculum was practically the same as that of '57. Father Patrick Stanton, the next president, who took office in 1869, gave Villanova its first gymnasium.

At the golden jubilee of 1893, the college contained a faculty of 16 priests and 90 students. Father Fedigan undertook the construction of two immense buildings, College Hall (present-day Mendel), and the Monastery. At that time the project was dubbed "Fedigan's Folly", for it was believed that the enormous capacity of these edifices would never be used. These beliefs were soon proved to be false.

The School of Engineering was opened in 1905, and ten years later the pre-Medical course was introduced. Summer school and extension school did not appear on the scene until 1918 and 1919, respectively. During the First World War, Villianova became a training school for Army officers.

New Status Necessitates Many Minor Adjustments

With the announcement that Villanova had become a University came not only much joy but many problems and several rearrangements throughout the campus. The big chairman Bill Koehler got the final word to go ahead and order the first Villanova University rings. Although the pocket emblem on this year's blazer does not designate either "college" or "university," the committee is meeting to decide if the latter can or should be added.

The Bookstore, expecting the engraving on their stationary to change for a long time, has been leeting the stock of "college" material run low. Only recently the supply of envelopes ran out and a new huge supply was ordered. All further stationary and supplies in the bookstore will bear the new title.

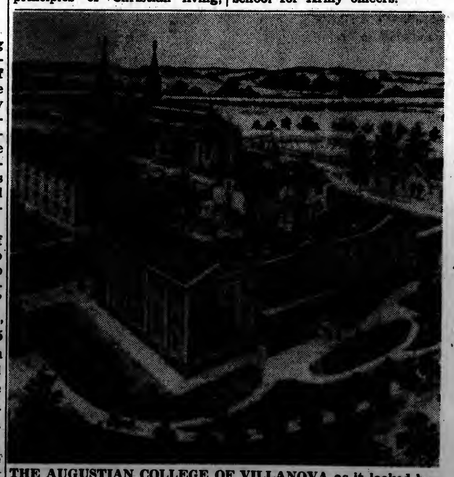
Evening division Dean, Eugene Powers, enthusiastic about the new status, believes that the name "University" suggests higher standards of education and makes Villanova sound bigger. He is hoping that the new appeal might encourage enrollment in the rapidly expanding evening school.

A committee is working now on a plan to offer a wider range of studies to evening students next year by adding courses in Accounting, Social Studies and Business Administration leading to a BS degree.

Among the dusty Villanova College banners, toys, sweaters and jackets that adorn the walls of the Pie Shop, new Villanova U. sportswear and novelties beam. Newly engraved jewelry and new decals fill the showcases.

The lone "Villanova College" sign behind St. Rita's hall, facing the railroad tracks, has been torn down to make room for a successor.

The most obvious new addition to the campus, however, was the big black rubber door mat with the white letters "Villanova University" which now greets all visitors at the main entrance to Mendel Hall.



Penn State Title University Also

Penn State College, applying the same provision which facilitated Villanova's change of status, officially became The Pennsylvania State University November 14th. The bill provides that any non-profit organization, in existence before the enactment of the State constitution in 1877, can change its name by a decree of the local courts rather than the state legislature.

Subsequent to the change of title, Penn State, is planning to change its various schools to "colleges" and the smaller departments in turn, to "schools."

Located in State College, Pa., Penn State was chartered in 1855 as "Farmer's High School"; in 1862 it became the Agricultural School of Pennsylvania. The official name "The Pennsylvania State College" was taken in 1874.

Authorities at Penn State have conveyed their "congratulations to Villanova on becoming a University".

THE AUGUSTIAN COLLEGE OF VILLANOVA as it looked before the turn of the century. Alumni Hall, the large building, was then the main hall of the college. Other buildings were torn down in later years.

From College To University: Outline

GOVERNOR JOHN S. FINE of Pennsylvania, signs the act which enabled Villanova to become a University. Witnessing the signing are: M. Joseph Connelly, republican representativ of Delaware County, Very Rev. Joseph M. Doughrty, Prior Provincial, Rev. Edward B. McKee, and Father McGuire.

Title Change Necessitated Complex Legal Workings

How did the "Augustinian College of Villanova in the state of Pennsylvania" become "Villanova University"? Let's try to trace the necessary steps.

On March 6, 1953, M. Joseph Connelly, Republican representative from Delaware county (and brother of former Villanova athletic director Bill Connelly) introduced to the Pennsylvania House of Representatives House Bill No. 581.

This bill proposes to amend Pamphlet Law 289 (passed May 5, 1933) so as to include a subsection allowing nonprofit corporations which have been incorporated prior to 1874 to change their names without filing a certificate accepting the Constitution of Pennsylvania.

Two months later, on May 6, the bill passed the House of Representatives and was sent to the Senate for confirmation. Due to the press of business in the state Senate, it was held until the third reading, when it was finally passed. Governor John S. Fine put the final signature to the bill on August 26.

The next step was up to Villanova. We presented a petition for status as a university to be passed by the proper channels.

This petition was presented to the office of the secretary of the commonwealth, where it was approved. It was then forwarded to the Pennsylvania Bureau of Corporations, which also gave its approval. The State Council on Education then passed the request, verifying that Villanova was eligible for university status.

The Court of Common Pleas next received the petition, where final papers were signed, officially changing our name from "The Augustinian College of Villanova in the State of Pennsylvania" to "Villanova University".

Official wording of the subsection is: "E. Any corporation incorporated prior to 1874 by any general or special act which has not filed with the Department of State a certificate accepting the provisions of the Constitution of Pennsylvania and of the act herein amended may amend its charter for the purpose of changing its name as provided in article seven of this act in the same manner and to the same extent as if it had filed the certificate of acceptance provided for in the section herein amended."

Seminary Is Vital Element

One of the main reasons for the founding of Villanova was the desire to establish a Seminary in a location such as its present site. Because of necessity the Seminary has naturally developed with the school.

The Augustinians established a novitiate at Philadelphia in 1796. Upon the founding of Villanova, the seminary was immediately transferred here. At first most of the members received all their training here, but as the numbers increased many had to be sent abroad for their higher studies because of the lack of room at Villanova.

Through the generosity of Mr. Bernard Corr of Philadelphia, St. Mary's Hall was built in 1912. Although no novitate training is now offered here, the seminary is of great importance for higher learning.

The value of the seminary cannot be overestimated because of its education of parish priests, educators, missionaries.

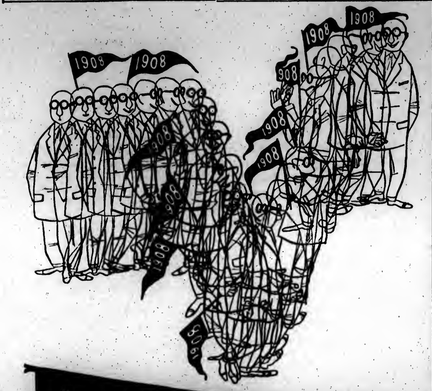
SC Picks Dec. 18 As University Day



A special session of the Student Council was called Nov. 19 to agree upon the date for a non-class day, commemorating Villanova's acquisition of University status. The Council voted for Dec. 18, and it was approved by Very Rev. F. X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., President of the University.

Wildcat's History Traced By Student Publications

The year 1953 not only marks the change of Villanova from a college to a University, but it also marks the 25th anniversary of the Villanovan as a weekly publication. However, there was a "Villanovan" in existence as early as 1893. At that time it was a monthly issue, devoted to literary rather than journalistic efforts.

It continued for four years, until July 1897. Just before World War I it was revived by Father Hickey in a literary form, which ran until 1927. The modern Villanovan reached its present position under the guidance of Rev. John A. Klekotka, and Rev. Edward B. McKee, O.S.A.

Another outstanding Villanova publication, the Belle Air Yearbook, is now going into its 22nd year. The first issue came out in 1922, during the presidency of Father Driscoll, under the energetic direction of student editor William O'Leary. The yearbook had so expanded in scope that a moderator was appointed and in 1940 Father Sullivan joined with Father Faivey in guiding the students in their publishing efforts. Well known among the university's publications is the Lynx, which is the successor to the early literary magazine, the Villanovan. Published four times yearly, the Lynx contains creative and informative poetic, fictional and essay contributions that reflect the various facets of college life and students viewpoints.

Poll Expresses Challenges

What effect do you think the change from College to University should have upon Villanova?

These are the answers to that question, given by a cross-sectional group of Villanova students last week when the announcement of that change of title was made public.

Tom McInery, C&F, Day-hop, '56: "My sincere congratulations to the administration for attaining the goal of University status. The next step is to cultivate the student's interest, so that he or she will be proud of our University as a producer of outstanding, well-balanced individuals. In my opinion, this can be attained through more emphasis on the cultural aspects of education and activities."

Gene Filipski, Arts, Resident, '54: "Villanova University . . . the name itself sounds like something big and important. It is now up to us to make it that way. Sure, we need a change; we have criticized freely all phases of Villanova activity: we haven't been men. Let's change our attitude and be proud to bear the name of Villanova; be proud openly and freely. There's the challenge. Villanova has matured. Can you?"

Sr. M. Alma, O.S.F., Education, '54: "Congratulations to Villanova on its new status . . . Villanova University. The University could add to its prestige by opening Art and Music Departments, and also by becoming a completely co-ed institution, by opening all departments to female students."

Don Sabia, C&F, Day-hop, '55: "Perhaps now that we have a University status, we could inaugurate a few University ideas; the Honor system, and a more careful selection of students, by standards of quality, not quantity."

'U' For University, 'U' For Unity . . . An Editorial

Perhaps we can feel more at home now. What has long been actual for us has finally been made official. One of America's oldest colleges is now America's youngest university.

The differece between college and university is the difference between Villanova's past and present. From 1842 until the second world war Villanova was satisfied with being a college. The school had a tidy and only gradually increasing enrollment. Facilities were expanded as the need arose. It was actually possible to meet an immediate need with an immediate answer.

During these first hundred years Villanova enjoyed all the often-quoted advantages of the small college and appeared intent on keeping these advantages. Progress was to be cautious and to be kept within limits.

But the abnormalities of war had their effect. Enrollment nearly tripled within ten years. Naturally the problem of adjusting to this growth was huge for students, faculty, and administration. The several temporary buildings on the campus stand as monuments to the struggle. Even with the end of the war there was no end to the problem.

Temporary buildings had to be replaced with permanent ones. Several large buildings were built but the need is still great. Many students are forced to live off campus; the dining hall is crowded; and often classrooms are crowded. With this the curriculum has been maintained at high standards and expanded to include a nursing division and a law school.

Much must be done, and in recognition of the necessity, much is planned. Villanova has clearly outgrown the term college and all that the term represents. Smallness is for colleges, bigness is for universities.

Accepting the distinction "University" is a symbolic step away from instability. The very term implies standards, goals, and achievements. It indicates recognition of the inevitable.

For the students it means more work as well as prestige. Clearly an opportunity is offered to develop a true unity, including a tradition and spirit. The past is but a miniature of the present and future.

This unity may have had its beginnings already. Last Thursday's pep rally included a rebirth of the competition between dormitories for the Basca Award. A promising, wonderful spirit was in evidence at Saturday's football game. Of course true spirit must prevail in losing as well as in winning. But these are encouraging signs.

Villanova's faculty and administration can only be promised many headaches until Villanova's physical plant is finally enlarged to meet the great need. Their responsibility as teachers and administrators necessarily increase as the size of the school increases.

Our share is easy. We are charter members in Villanova University, and our share consists mainly in recognizing that we belong, and this may best be demonstrated by action.

Mark McCormick

Kudos To S. C.

A general derogatory remark about the Student Council caused us to do a little research on this year's group.

As you will note in the story on page five, the Student Council has met five times in the last five weeks. This alone demonstrates that these members are different from those of previous years who met sporadically to reiterate the same platitudes in a few different ways.

We think the Student Council deserves praise for its fine accomplishments this year. Several members stand out. Don McGahan and Bernie Steinfelt had the Spirit Committee working from before most of us even registered in September to build up Villanova enthusiasm. We saw the results at Saturday's game.

The Nick Basca Memorial award was the result of council work and has been paid for from the money set aside for its use by the administration. The urging of Art Quinn, Red McGahan, Bob Fredericks, Joe Kenney and the rest of the members had much to do with the success of the celebration.

In other fields, the council expanded as it presented seats to WVIL, the Beta Gamma Debating society, and the Marketing Club. Attempts are being made to give the Nursing Division representation, too. A poll is being conducted for that purpose.

The Student-Faculty committee has been rejuvenated and held its first meeting last Thursday with the faculty members. One of the problems before this group is the attempt to bring back the Villanova Forum and restore it to a prominent place on the calendar.

The day set aside for celebration of the declaration of Villanova as a university was decided by the council, showing evidence that Father McGuire and the administration recognize the group as representative of the students.

Joe Kenney, president of the council, also has stated many times that the meetings of the council are open to all students, and suggestions are welcome.

Kenney also reminds that the presentation and solution of student problems is one of major reasons for the existence of the council.

In view of these accomplishments this year, we hope that perhaps in the future students inclined to tear down the usefulness of the council will look over the record.

Writer Refutes The Idea Of "Too Many People"

By M. McCormick

There are a great many hungry people in the world, even in the United States. It was only twenty years ago that a president asserted that one-third of the population of the United States was ill-fed. In more crowded nations such as India and China the charge is often made that millions are starving.

Two weeks ago a member of an Indian Census Commission recommended to his government that Indian families be restricted to three children because of present and future food scarcities. This is a popular but incorrect position, indicative of muddled thinking.

It is an attempt to solve an economic problem through biological means.

The New York Times of August 9, 1952, as quoted in Catholic Mind of January 1953 reports: "About 20 million Indian peasants are suffering acute distress because of crop failures . . . Paradoxically government warehouses are so filled with grain that the United States and Canada have been asked to postpone shipments of 750,000 tons of wheat until next year."

Are people servants of economics or are economics intended to be used to serve the people? Certainly it is a warped type of thought that recommends this subjugation of natural rights to a servant institution.

It has often been asserted even in the United States that if our high standard of living is to be maintained, population must be controlled. But it is not because there are too many people that a nation becomes poor; it is rather because of lack of economic development. Italy has the same population density as India and yet produces twice as much per square mile of arable land. Denmark produces five times as much as India per unit of land.

The solution consists in better control of economics, not of population. Even conservative economists estimate that, with better efficiency, technology would support twice the present world population.

Human beings should not become means for the better working of any institution. It is an outright rejection of man's spiritual purpose to assert that economic prosperity must be obtained at all costs.

It is a denial of faith to assert that a benevolent creator would allow too many people to be born. Rather Providence has ordered procreation through the sacrament of marriage; He set no limits.

Churchill has warned his nation's mothers that England's future depends upon her youth. The decline of France as a world power has been attributed to decline in her youthful population. In India Mahatma Ghandi advised that population control would be the nation's deathtrap.

The world may have too many cattle, too many dogs, too many monkeys, and too much corn, but it will never have too many people.

Is The McCarran Policy On Subversives Unjust?

ED. NOTE: This is the third and final article written on different aspects of the McCarran-Walters Immigration Law. The first was concerned with the security provisions of the law, the second with its quota system, and now Ed Daly concludes with a treatment of the deportation stipulations.

Few aspects of American policy regarding immigrants have caused more controversy than the widespread deportation of subersives. Actually deportations are far more numerous than most people think for they average over 20,000 a year. The issue is merely brought to the public attention when some immigrant of long residence in America is arrested and threatened with deportation and the press takes up his cause.

No Dispute

The great majority of deportations are for reasons that really should cause no dispute. For instance deportable classes of aliens include those who entered the country through fraud or without inspection or who violated the terms of their entry (for example, persons who had student visas to study at colleges here and who simply stayed after graduation).

Temporary Communists

Most disputes that arise concern subversives. Every once in a while the papers feature the arrest of some person who became a Communist in 1936, quit the following year, and who is now threatened with deportation for that action. Of course in cases where the facts are that simple and where the person concerned is obviously no longer a Communist or communist sympathizer, deportation would be unjust. Probably, however, the number of cases of that nature has been greatly exaggerated. In many of these cases, as it turns out, the apparently innocent victim of the law has further complicated the matter by stating under oath in an application for citizenship that he never has been a Communist. This, of course, is perjury, and perjury certainly constitutes valid grounds for deportation.

Present Suggestions

The weakness of the law which does permit the deportation of persons who are no longer subversives and who have committed no other crimes could be eliminated by increasing the attorney general's discretionary powers to permit him to refrain from deportation proceedings in such a case, or better still, by rephrasing the law in such a way that once such proceedings have been begun, the courts can prevent the deportation of a person who can not be conclusively proved to have been either a Communist or actively connected with some other subversive organization since the beginning of our present bad relations with Russia, say in 1945 or 1946. Such a provision would eliminate those who were deceived by communist propaganda during the Depression or during the Second World War, when Russia was our glorious ally who could not possibly be plotting anything against the best interests of the United States. However, no exception should be made for those who were guilty of perjury regarding their Communist status at any time.

Up To Congress

This provision could be written into a new act embodying needed changes in the existing law regarding immigration.

5 Weeks—5 Meetings

Council Meets Once More To Hear Committee Heads

The Student Council continued its series of weekly sessions last week with its fifth meeting in as many weeks. Joe Kenney presided as the council heard the reports by committee heads on recent accomplishments.

Bob Gold, fraternities and societies chairman, complimented the NFCCS for their fine work in stimulating open discussions among the various clubs and organizations to assist each other in solving problems. These meetings are opened to any group on campus seeking advice for organizational or activity problems.

Zator Reports

Joe Zator, ways and means chairman, reported that the nurses are in favor of representation for themselves on the council. An amendment, providing for this will be drawn up before the next meeting.

Don McGahan, spirit committee chairman, commented on the great success of the Boston University rally. He credited Frank Licopoli for his work with the band at the rallies this year.

The Marketing Club received a unanimous vote of confidence when it was welcomed as a new member of the council. Bill Mittenmeyer, president of the club, outlined their aims and activities.

Dick Winfield, Villanovan editor, proposed that the council back the reinstatement of the Villanova Forum. The matter will be turned over to the Student-Faculty Board for further consideration.

Record Turnout At Soph Cotillion

A record 700 couples donned leis and jammed into the Hawaiian atmosphere of Field House Friday night to enjoy the Sophomore Cotillion and dance to the music of the Criterions.

Bernie Steinfelt, president of the Sophomore Class, expressed his great pleasure and that of the entire class on the outstanding success of the affair.

Dance chairman Dick Fitzpatrick was also unrestrained in his praise of the various committees and the jobs they did to make the dance a success.

The Cotillion was the opening event of Villanova University's first big weekend, which also saw a spectacular upset football victory over Syracuse University.

Father Thomas F. Calpin, O.S.A., moderator of the Sophomore Class, said the success and nopularity of the Sophomore Cotillion was indicative of the spirit which permeates the Class of 1956. Father Calpin also commended the wonderful work of Fitzpatrick, Stenfelt, and their committees.

A musical organization from West Chester State Teachers College, the Criterons played dance tunes before a papier-mache back-drop of Mauna Loa, the 13,680 foot active volcano on Hawaii, the largest in the world. Young men in multi-colored sport shirts served Cokes to the 1400 guests.

ICG Sends Four To State Affair

Dr. Fred J. Khouri, faculty adviser, and Thomas Knestout, chairman of the Villanova Intercollegiate Conference on Government, attended the annual executive meeting of the Pennsylvania I.C.G. in Harrisburg on Sunday, Nov. 25th.

Representatives of the junior class Jim Borden and Joe Roddy also were part of the Villanova delegation.

Plans for the annual state convention to be held April 8-11 were discussed under the leadership of Miss Genevieve Blatt, executive director.

The I.C.G. will meet in a Model National Congress this year and plans are being set up for a miniature Model National Congress on the regional level. Drexel Institute has offered the use of its facilities as host for the proposed Congress.

Villanova and Rosemont groups will meet in the near future to discuss the possibilities of a jointly conducted program of activities to raise funds and to provide entertainment for the I.C.G. members.

"Collegians" For Dec. 7

Fran Leonard, chairman of the Charity Ball Committee announces that "The Collegiants" have been chosen to play for the Orphan's Dance to be held December 7.

The dance will be in the Field House from 9:00 to 1:00 A.M., and tickets will be priced at $2.00. These may be purchased from Drew Higgins, Good Counsel, Duke Micone, Delurey, Adrian Hatton, Austin, Hugh Humphreys, Alumni, and Fran Leonard, O'Dwyer Hall. Tickets may also be obtained in the Pie Shoppe or at the door on the night of the affair.

According to Orphanage Co-chairmen Red McGahan and Lou Fournier and the Collegians will be one of the fastest and finest bands to play at this affair in recent years. Decorations are being planned by decoration Chairman Hugh Humphreys, who guarantees that an annual but appropriate theme has been selected.

Elsewhere on the orphanage front plans for the Orphan's party scheduled for December 10, have also been announced. There will be student entertainment highlighted by the appearance of Bill Kohler as Santa Claus. Members of the committee will give the orphans presents elaborately wrapped by the girls from Rosemont College.

Thousand Cheer at Rally; Simpson Takes Plaque

NICK BASCA AWARD WINNERS, residents of Simpson Hall pose with trophy held by dorm decoration chairman Frank Gunther.

An aroused and greatly spirited student body surged into the Field House last Thursday night to demonstrate that Villanova spirit is not dead.

Some thousand yelling, cheering students greeted the football team, Bud Dudley, Pete Pihos, Bill "Go" Ryan, and Jim Leaming, with standing ovations.

Featuring the hour-and-a-half long rally was the presentation of the Nick Basca Student Council Award, an engraved plaque, to Simpson Hall, which beat runnerup Delurey by one point.

Simpson's decorations were highlighted by a "flying saucer," a graveyard - strewn football field, a gallows for the Syracuse Orangemen, and an ingenious arrangement of venetians blinds with BEAT and SYRACUSE on opposite sides.

Second place Delurey had two rotating wheels, one showing healthy Syracuse football players entering Franklin Field and the other showing damaged participants leaving the stadium.

Speakers

Guest speakers at the rally included Pete Pihos, All-League end from the National Football Leagues's Philadelphia Eagles; Ambrose "Bud" Dudley, Villanova University's Athletic Director; Athletic Secretary Bill Ryan, who celebrated his birthday and was presented with a cake; and WIP's ace sportscaster and Westinghouse game-of-the-week telecaster Jim Leaming.

Gene Filipski, representing the team members who were present, thanked the students for their support and pointed out that the enthusiasm and support of the student body would give the team a tremendous lift against last year's winners of the Lambert trophy.

Student energy was exhibited through the evening as cheers, sirens, songs, firecrackers and applause rang through the Field House.

Dorm Discussed By Dagit, Farrell

"Villanova's new dormitory is being constructed to harmonize with other campus buildings, comply with state regulations, satisfy the needs of the students, and fit in with the long-range development program of the university."

That is what Albert F. Dagit, architect, and Joseph R. Farrell, contractor, told students attending a joint meeting of the A.S.C.E. and A.I.E.E. held last Tuesday.

The building was located with an eye to utility and future development. The best location would have been at the corner of Lancaster Pike and Ithan Avenue, but, because of the barracks, it was impossible to locracks, it was impossible to build it there. So it has been lobe one of several dorms to be build in the area. By placing it on the side of a hill, it will be possible to have ground level rooms and will enable the construction of 200 rooms without having to have a fourth story. Convenience to the student has been provided by locating the dorm between the Field House and the academic buildings.

Late News

The Registrar's Office yesterday released the names of 27 seniors who have been selected to be listed in the 1953-'54 "Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities." Members of the class of 1954 who have been honored include:

Harry M. Anger, William E. Barbary, Terence F. Cooke, Francis A. Cunning, James J. Delaney, Frederick A. Dwyer, George F. Eberle, Eugene C. Filipski, and John P. Fucigna.

Also Paul B. Hanrahan, Joseph H. Kenney, Arthur L. Knowlton, Henry B. Leonardi, Michael A. Lim Sue, Louis M. Lolli, Charles G. McGuckin, Edward F. McMahon, Donald N. Miller, Bart J. Moynahan, James L. Nolin, John J. Quindlen and Arthur L. Quinn.

Also James J. Ranieri, Donald J. Schmidt, Thomas E. Sheehan, Thomas W. Welsh and Joseph A. Zator.

Play, Consul, at Noche Espanola

"Adelita Wishes to Learn Spanish", written and directed by Rev. Lorenzo Lozano, O.S.A., moderator, will headline the Spanish Club's annual Noche Espanola, to be held Dec. 7.

Don Herman Caso, Spanish consul, will be the feature speaker at the cultural and social event. Representatives from most of the Central and South American countries will also be there, said Father Lozano.

The night will be divided into two parts. The first will feature a display of artistic talent by Villanova and Immaculata students. The second half will follow the serving of refreshments.

The one-act play, in Spanish and English, includes in its cast Rosemont students Pat Denier, Joan McIntyre, Blanquita Bird, Grace Howley, and Alicia Martinez, and Villanovans Frank LaGuardia, Jose Oriani, Miguel Puma, Hector Valdes, Ed Novatsaka, Peter Alberse and Louis Donatelli.

Only Spanish club members and their invited guests may attend this affair, which will be presented in the C&F auditorium at 7:30.

CHEERS

Bob Tomonto, head cheerleader, announces that the C&F auditorium will be the scene of a reorganization and signing of new members meeting Mon., Dec. 2 at 6:30 P.M.

Those interested in leading cheers during the basketball season and those interested in next year are urged to attend this meeting.

Gala Weekend

The annual Alumni Thanksgiving dance on Friday night opens the Fordham weekend for the social Villanovan.

Tickets on campus (Alumni office - 114 Mendel) are $4.00 per couple. All tickets at the Hotel Astor, site of the dance, will be $5.00.

The dance will be highlighted by a Bud Dudley - Bill Ryan-led Pep Rally.

Sunday, Nov. 29, Villanova students will be given special rates on regular $3.60 seat at the Giants-Eagles game. Student price will be $2.35, a saving of $1.25.

Twelve Seniors In Collegiate Finale Saturday

By Joe Heaps

Twelve Villanova seniors, headed by All-American halfback Gene Filipski and Captain Joe Faragalli, end their college gridiron careers this Saturday with the Fordham game.

For Filipski it will be his last chance to better his position as a possible repeater of last year's All-American honors.

All twelve men have, at some time in the past three years, been members of the starting team, and each one, with the exception of Chuck McGuckin, were mainstays in last season's two platoon squad that posted a fine 7-1-1 record.

Starters of this year's eleven who are departing are halfbacks Ralph Cecere and Filipski, quarterback Chuck McGuckin, guards Pete Carrieri and Tom Fitzpatrick, tackle Faragalli, and end Roy Kershaw.

Injuries Costly

Injuries have limited the play of several key men during their senior season. Halfback Ben Addiego, quarterback Joe McNicholas, and guards Bob Berg

Jack Helm
Extra Points and Irony

and Bob Volonino were all forced to assume lesser roles on the club following unfortunate injuries in previous games.

Last year standouts Bob Irvin and Ed Prorok, both '54 graduates, were unable to play this fall because of physical disabilities.

Departing Reserves

Guard Art Knowlton and end Ray Rigney, who were valuable bench strength, are the other fourth-year men who are winding up their college football days against Fordham.

During their three years of varsity competition, these players have provided Villanova fans with many thrills. The quick bursts through the line by Filipski, the aggressive line play of Faragalli, Volonino, and Kershaw, the excellent punting and running of Cecere, and the fine job of quarterbacking by McGuckin after a three year absence from football will all leave fond memories with Mainline supporters.

With such talented material leaving, Coach Art Raimo will have a great task replacing them in the future.

COVER

Against a reproduction of the original charter granted to Villanova by the State of Pennsylvania in .1848, stands Senior Dick Brady tacking up a University banner, discarding a College pennant. Designed by Bernie Coyne.

The entire Wildcat squad surrounds Coach Art Raimo in a pre-Syracuse game strategy get-together. It paid off, evidently . . . The Main Liners won, 14-13.

Villanovans Meet Rams In Renewal Of Rivalry

Two Catholic institutions, one famous in days gone by far its legendary "Seven Rocks of Granite," and the other the possessor of one of the country's finest aggregations last season, come to bitter grips this Saturday afternoon in the renewal of a potentially heated and tradition—enlivened gridiron rivalry.

Fordham, the Rams under the astute direction of Ed Danowski, and Villanova University, guided by former star Art Raimo, end mediocre '53 outings at the Polo Grounds—game time is 2 o'clock.

Mediocre Seasons

Both ball clubs will meet at Coogan's Bluff with one primary purpose in mind—to apply finishing touches to campaigns that have not been especially pleasing to look back upon, although Fordham has displayed occasional superior form in compiling a 4-4 mark, having descended to the .500 mark at the hands of Holy Cross last week-end. The visiting Main Liners, on the other hand, have been out of reach of the even-steven mark since their surprising loss to Boston University two weeks ago; nevertheless, the concensus is leaning toward the suspicion that this Villanova outfit is an infinitely finer and more explosive team than is indicated by its lone trio of victories.

Lost to BC

The Knickerbockers, neatly illustrating the folly of faith in comparitive scores, have lost to one opponent that decisioned the Wildcats—Boston College, by 20-13—and have defeated another which also included Villanova on its victim list—Detroit, by a 21-7 score. The other losses were to powerful Syracuse, 20-13, to Penn State, 28-21, and to Holy Cross, 20-7. The three additional wins were over Miami U., 20-0, Temple, 28-0, and Rutgers, 40-13.

Fordham relies mainly on its passing offense, directed by senior Roger Franz, second in the East last year with 106 completions, but banks with fair success on a running game spearheaded by bull-dozing fullback John Griffin.

Edge On Ground

Villanova's running game, paced by Ralph Cecere, Jack Helm and Gene Filipski, is superior to the Fordham ground attack, and the passing potential on a par with that of the Rams'. The ball game will probably be decided largely on the basis of line play and breaks. Villanova, in spite of its unexpectedly disastrous season and its 3-6 record, should win. A ball club that contains such explosive power and drive as practically this same team used last year to pile up its 7-1-1 mark just can't remain dormant forever.

Potential Realized In Upset Win

By Harry Nash

Villanova University's incensed football club, finally realizing the potential that so many of its followers had anticipated even through early-campaign disasters, scoffed at its season-long critics at Franklin Field Saturday and bolted to a 14-13 upset triumph over favored Syracuse.

It was without a doubt one of the most stout-hearted "team victories" ever displayed by a Wildcat aggregation in 60 years of gridiron endeavor.

For here was a team that had been taking it on the chin all year long—from the press, from the opposition, from a lack of support; here was a ball club that not only was, by way of its tremendous effort Saturday, celebrating its Alma Mater's ascent to the University status, but was also, and primarily, proving to the slightly frenzied crowd of near-13,000 that it could play the brand of ball reminescent of its predessessors who last year were denied an Orange Bowl bid that was, ironically, handed out to this same Syracuse club. (61-6, Alabama.)

Tom Fitzpatrick
Interference Specialist

Villanova was unmistakably inspired from start to finish. The Main Liners—all of them—tackled with a vengeance; the line blocked is if possessed by the devil; the backfield members never stopped churning—they ran as if life itself was at stake. The whole crew was magnificent. There's no doubt about—they "wanted" that ball game.

Ralph Cecere was great—his 88-yard scamper in the second quarter produced the first score; Gene Filipski was a padded perpetual motion machine; Joe McNicholas took off repeatedly around end for gains—his choice of plays was clever and deceptive; Jack Helm, who booted the crucial conversions, intercepted a Orange pass in the third period and ran it back 54 yards before being hauled down—this play led ultimately to the second VU score.

Line Tremendous

Justice in words can't be done to the line. Roy Kershaw was his unsual invaluable self and Don McComb and Ray Rigney were both instrumental in the scores—lanky Ray's crushing tackle late in the third period caused a Syracuse fumble on a punt return that eventually materialized as Villanova's second scoring thrust McComb and Mike Mayock were immovable throughout. Main Liners List Eight New Yorkers

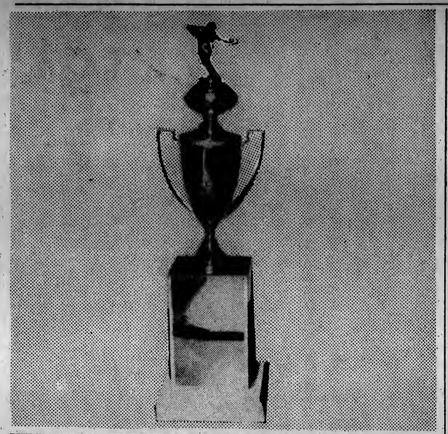
By Tom Mentzer

When Villanova clashes with Fordham University this Saturday afternoon in the season's football finale at the Polo Grounds in New York, it will be sort of a private "homecoming" day for some eight members of this year's varsity eleven. Ray Rigney, Tom Fitzpatrick, Charlie McGuckin, Joe Leichtweis, Joe Viverito, Bill McGarry, Nelson Marshall, and Pete Cassidy are the native New Yorkers who will be performing as Wildcats for the first time this season before the home folks.

Linemen Represented



Fitzpatrick and Rigney, both three-year veterans, and Charlie McGuckin are the only seniors among the group. Fitzpatrick, a burly 225-pound guard, has been a boulder of strength in this year's forward wall. Always a good defensive player, Fitz quickly adapted himself to the one-platoon type of play to win a starting berth on the 1953 team.

At 6 feet, 8 inches, Ray Rigney is the tallest man on this year's squad. Always a top-flight receiver, Ray led the Main Line wingmen in passes caught last year by snaring 23 for a total of 253 yards. This year, with the elimination of two platoon, Ray has divided the right end duties with Roy Kershaw.

Where's Charlie?

"Where was Charlie before this?" That's what Villanova followers asked themselves after Chuck McGuckin, a star on the baseball diamond but a virtual unknown on the gridiron—at least in college, came off the bench to spark the then lethargic Mainliners to an all-out effort against powerful Kentucky and a win over Xavier. A clever play-caller and an adroit passer, Charlie came to the coaches' eyes just a few years too late.

Foremost among the Gothamites who are juniors is big Joe Leichtweis, a tackle who made the starting team as a freshman and has held down the left tackle position ever since. Though hampered this year by a painful back injury, Joe nevertheless has managed to play 45 to 50 minutes of every game, which is ample testimony of VILLANOVA TROPHY, presented annually to the winner in Eastern Intercollegiate 150-lb. League play. This year the beautiful gold cup will go to Navy.

SPORTS CHATTER

A Time For Decision

By Dick Confoy

It's taken an awfully long time and quite a few hard jolts to make the situation obvious, but it looks as if the powers of Eastern football have finally read the handwriting on the wall. And that handwriting spells a good, solid financial loss for every major independent college in the East unless one of two courses are taken, and these are either to 1) de-emphasize or 2) unite.

The dropping of football in quick succession by Georgetown, NYU, Niagara, and St. Bonaventure should have been the cue for some positive action but obviously the heads were still in the sand. The 1952 season, however pushed quite a few of the powers' back to the wall, and the realization of that fact is just about dawning on the East at this moment. Last year Villanova (7-1-1) and Holy Cross (7-2) had the two best records in the East, yet even these teams, each averaging a paltry 11,000 per game, absorbed a tidy loss on football. If the winners were drawing gates like these, what then of the mediocre clubs in the East, the teams with losing records? The Wildcats, playing out a poor '53 season before near-empty stands, have found out the answer to that question.

Loss Of Prestige

The near-fatal blow to Eastern prestige, however, coming right after the shocker that once-mighty Fordham was seriously contemplating dropping the sport, was the complete annihilation of the Lambert Trophy winner, Syracuse, in the Orange Bowl on New Year's Day. The handwriting should have been glaringly legible by this time, but it took still another financially rocky season and a final push by Villanova's own Bud Dudley to shake at least a few college domos out of their lethargy.

Conference Proposed

Dudley's answer, of course, is the proposed Northeast Conference to be composed of such as Villanova, BC, BU, Holy Cross, Syracuse, Penn State, Rutgers, Colgate, Temple, etc. The advantages to such a conference are both obvious and numerous; the main one being that it would stimulate interest in a sport that is rapidly losing its grip on Eastern customers. With the conference winner going possibly to a major bowl, added significance would be given to every league game. Dudley cites many other advantages of union; traveling expenses would be cut, scheduling problems reduced, standardized competition would be possible, and a closer relationship between the participating teams would be realized, helping to create rivalries in other sports. The major advantage, however, is its boosts to the box-office; the nearness of the teams would make it possible for each to support the others' gate, and an established rivalry always draws even when the teams have mediocre records.

Return to Reality

This, then, is the answer to the plight of Eastern football and the only thing preventing it from success is the natural reluctance of a sleeping man to rouse himself and get down to business. Other factors come into play, of course, such as the dreams of Holy Cross and Colgate for future Ivy League affiliation and Pitt for the Big Ten, but even these schools have finally begun to face reality. There is still a long way to go, however; it is one thing to get the ball rolling and quite another to get final agreement down on paper. But at least Bud Dudley is carrying the ball and he was, and is still is, a pretty tough fullback to bring down.

Now Or Never

The boys had better sit up and start listening before the whole thing gets out of hand; the major bowls are almost completely tied up, and the pros are getting more and more popular as the college gates dwindle. The chips are down for Eastern footbtall, and unless someone does something beside bluff, everyone might as well start planning a nice long-range program for building character.

That's about the only thing anyone will be able to afford.

Cage Practice Nears End; Club Still Question Mark

EARLY OUTLOOK:

Opening Trio Features Bevo, Lebanon Valley

By Harry Nash

A little-known college quint from Maryland, a team from Ohio that last year produced perhaps the most widely-publicized ball player in the country, and a cage-conscious club from Annville, Pennsylvania, that upended favored Fordham in the NCAA sectional playoffs last season constitute the opposition for Al Severance's rejuvenated Villanova hardwood squad in the team's opening trio of games.

St. Mary's Opener

The Wildcats open December 2 against Mount St. Mary's of Emmitsburg, Maryland on the Field House floor, meet Bevo Francis and Crew, otherwise known as Rio Grande, December 4 at the Philadelphia Arena and the following night set up camp in the Palestra against Lebanon Valley is the second half of a double-header, with Penn's Quakers competing in the opener, as will be the case for the entire year at the Palestra.

Bevo Francis
50 Per Game

Mount St. Mary's, a small Catholic institution that places a great deal of emphasis on basketball as its major sport, has failed to distinguish itself of late in Eastern hardwood circles; it features long-distance shooting ability in place of extremely tall men, which it lacks.

Bevo Attraction

Of course, the name that Rio Grande has achieved in the past year has been primarily due to its phenomenal 6' 9" center who hogged so many national sport headlines in the 1952-53 basketball wars, and who landed a perch for himself on the Associated Press Third team and the United Press second club—that would be one Bevo Francis. This unassuming lad (Clarence is his real name) dunked in points to the tune of an unbelievable 50-point average, playing for a school that enrolls only a little over 100 students, over a tenth of which play basketball. Francis, as a freshman last season, topped all his former accomplishments by astounding the cage world against Ashland Junior College with a mildly-sensational 116 points.

These totals, as most experts argue, must be taken with tongue in cheek because of the inept competition that is usually thrown into the Rio Grande schedule; and until the Ohioans meet teams the like of Villanova and N. C. State and Butler, as they will in the course of the upcoming campaign, definite appraisals of "Bevo's" tangibles will be hard to form.

Lots of Support

Rio Grande Coach Newt Oliver has no one-man team, by any means—all of his starters are back, including the boy who last year was, curiously enough, chosen Most Valuable Player in preference to Francis—Wayne "Wonder" Wiseman, who led the nation with a tremendous field goal percentage of .629. Wiseman's an even 6 feet, will team with three other over-6 starters in addition to Francis. Villanova will perhaps be the first genuine obstacle in this club's hopes for national recognition as a truly good team. In the past two seasons, Rio has won (this sounds like Knute Rockne's Notre Dame records) 62 and lost two.

Great Season

Lebanon Valley, with three main cogs under six feet, had a great 20-3 1952-'53 season, losing to Wake Forest and L.S.U. in the NCAA regionals at Raleigh after downing Fordham earlier in the year. The club loses its high-scorer, Leon Miller, but will retaliate with its comparatively small men—Lou Sorrentino, Howie Landa, and Herb Finkelstein. Landa made the NCAA All-Tournament team at Raleigh.

Vets, Sophs Severance's Main Hopes

Villanova's hoopsters move into their final week of practice today with the fortunes of the 1953-54 basketball edition still a big question mark. Led by returning lettermen Bob Schafer and Jack Devine, the club has shown surprisingly strong offensive strength, but nevertheless the fact remains that it will be a very inexperienced squad taking the court next Wednesday at the Fieldhouse.

One of the main reasons for a show of optimism in the Mainline camp has been the consistent excellent showing of sophomore John Cirino. Along with captain Jack Devine, the 6'4" forward from Malverne, L. I. should give the Wildcats the board strength and steady scoring necessary to a winning ball club. Marty Milligan and Larry Tierney, almost certain starters next week, are showing well, and with sharpshooter Bobby Schafer looking more like the departed Larry Hennessy every day the Cats could well be on their way to a big year.

Weave Again

The Severancemen will work out of their traditional weave

Jack Devine
Rebounding Hope

again this season with perhaps Devine, Schafer and Cirino moving into the pivot on occasions. The squad has been working well against a zone defense which they expect to encounter more than once in the near future.

Reserve Strength

The most aid from the secondary is expected to come from Tom Foley, a 6'5" sophomore from Hartford, Connecticut, and the new Steve Gepp, Joe Servon. Six-foot-two Dave Clune could very well become a most valuable cog, and diminutive John Meade will be counted on for much spot action. Dave Sigalove, at 6'6" the team's tallest member; Joe Donnelly, a set-shot specialist and defensive ace; and Jim Brady, a jump-shot artist from the Panama Canal Zone, will also be expected to see reserve duty for the Mainliners.

Barry 2nd In IC4-A Meet; Kelley, MSC Clinch Firsts

By Norm Feldpush

Johnny Kelley, twenty-two year old senior from Boston University, transformed the nightmare of Cemetary Hill into the dream of his first major collegiate triumph in the forty-fifth annual IC4-A cross-country championship run at Van Cortland Park last Monday. Kelley stunned the onlookers in winning by the comfortable margin of forty yards over the talented field of 163 competitors in 24:15.7. Michigan State barely retained the team championship by defeating Pittsburgh and Penn State by the slender margin of 82-84-88.

Villanova's John Joe Barry, the pre-meet co-favorite, completed a successful jaunt of the treacherous five mile grind in 24:58 to capture second position, and improve his fourth place finish of last year. Robert Hollen, Penn State, Ray Osterhout, runner-up from Syracuse the last two years, and Lamont Smith, Penn State, followed in that order.

BULLETIN

Wes Santee of Kansas ran the second fastest time in the NCAA cross-country history at Lansing, Michigan, Monday afternoon in beating out John Kelley of BU and John Joe Barry of Villanova — second and third, respectively.

John Joe Barry will close his legendary career at Villanova in February. Four years have passed since the red-faced Irishman journeyed from the Emerald Isle, where he had held every distance record from the half-mile to the three mile, to firmly imprint his name in the annals of Villanova and United States track history.

The pride of Erin has captured the National AAU indoor mile championship as well as the IC4-A outdoor two-mile championship. He has been a constant threat to the victory hopes of many Villanova opponents througout his stay. Barry climaxed his final season, in which he remained undefeated in dual meet competition, by his second place performance in New York. Though the role of runner-up is not always favored by a competitor like John, it is evidence of a magnificent effort and struggle in quest of victory.

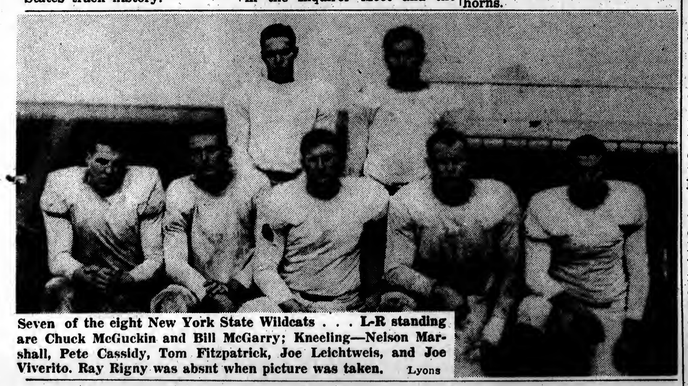
Villanova was omitted from the team standings because the Wildcats failed to provide five finishes. Other Villanovans to finish were Guy Speciale (67), Ray Wheiler (131), and Jim Drumm (158). The Wildcats continued to be hampered by injuries with the loss of Fred Dwyer and Bill Rock.

Dwyer, like his fellow Irish speedster Barry, will conclude his collegiate career in February. Fred, who came to Villanova from Seton Hall Prep by way of Notre Dame, suffered a back injury and was out of action for the last three weeks of the season. He finished fifth in the IC4-A run last year before his spectacular indoor season. As a sophomore, Dwyer won the IC4-A outdoor mile title, and repeated by also taking the indoor crown. Thus, prior to the 1952-53 season, Fred was no stranger to the victory stand.

Dwyer's meteoric rise to indoor mile supremacy is well known to track fans. He became the first miler to win the IC4-A and National A.A.U. indoor crowns in the same year. His achievements include victories in the Inquirer Meet and the Millrose Games. In the Wanamaker Mile, a blazing 4:08.2 journey around the boards was the fourth fastest ever run at the Millrose Games.

The loss of Barry and Dwyer will be a severe blow to Villanova's track fortunes. However, an excellent freshman squad may be able to furnish milers who may even eclipse the feats of fabulous Freddy.

Two of Villanova's all-time track greats, John Joe Barry, (L), and Fred Dwyer, both top participants in a highly successful Wildcat cinder era.



Team Victory

played perhaps the top game of his college career. He threw key blocks in Cecere's jaunt (he took four Orangemen out of the play) and tossed his 225-pound frame into two more would-be tacklers as McNicholas ran back an intercention 55 yards to the losers' 16 in the third quarter. Captain Joe Faragalli made his last home game a memorable one; he, Joe Leichtweis, until he was injured late in the game, Pete Carrieri and Nelson Marshall were all indispensable in the success of Villanova's line play, which was jarring and sharp throughout.

Great Improvement

This was a really "hungry" club if there ever was one; its use and application of the fundamentals was noticable as never before. The irony of it all is embodied in the final score—14-13—with the extra points deciding the outcome; it wasn't so long ago, in vain effort against Texas and Georgia and Wake Forest, that the extra point was so conspicious in its abscense. There's been great improvement in all departments — without sarcasm, it can really be said that Villanova University IS undefeated.

Now to take the Ram by the horns.

Charminade Grad

Joe Viverito, one of the four members of the group who are graduates of Charminade High School, is a 21 year-old junior who is a sound, steady performer at center. Although used mostly as a reserve this year, Joe still managed to see a good deal of action.

Another junior of whom great things are expected next year is Bill McGarry, a halfback. Standing 6 feet, 1 inch, Bill is the fastest man on the squad and potentially an extremely valuable broken-field man.

Defensive Find

Like McGuckin, Nelson Marshall is another late season find. Only in Nelson's case, things do not assume such a rueful appearance since he is only a sophomore and will be around for a few more seasons.

The last member of the group is Pete Cassidy, a sophomore wingman. Pete, too, is an imminent factor in Villanova's rebuilding plan.

Rath Addresses ASME

Mr. Edward R. Rath, executive secretary of the American Leather Belting Association, addressed the Villanova chapter of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers No. 16.

Mr. Rath spoke on the "Industrial Preparation and Application of Leather Belting".

Next meeting of the group will be Dec. 7 at 11:30 in room 201 CJB, announced chairman Walt Miller. Michael Kelley will then present a paper on "Dust Filtration."

'Swimorama' Geisz idea Set For Pool On Dec. 5

Another "first", the latest in a string, will come to Villanova on Saturday, Dec. 5.

"Swimorama," the brainchild of Ed Geisz (who holds a copatent on the word) has been added to the previous "firsts"—(Ladies' Night, the Acme store deal, the halftime fashion show).

Bill "Go" Ryan (who else) will be master of ceremonies for the day, which will feature some of the most famous swimmers and coaches in the world.

In keeping with the title ("rama" means "overall view")' Bud Dudley, Athletic Director, and Swim Coach Geisz have contracted leaders in all swim departments to give discussions and demonstrations.

Bob Kiphuth, Yale and Olympic coach, will be on hand with some of his outstanding swimmers. He will talk on "Conditioning the Swimmer." Joe Verdeur, winner of the 200 meter breast stroke in the 1952 Olympics and holder of several world and U. S. records for that event, will join with a present LaSalle star in a discussion and demonstration of the breast stroke.

Many present and former All-American swimmers will speak on their specialties. Jack Medica, coach of Penn and winner of many 1500 meter titles, will handle "Long - distance Swimming", Princeton's coach Bob Cannon will talk on "Backstroking". "Relay Swimming" will be the title of Rider coach Major David Rowan's talk, while LaSalle sprint champ Jack Lumsden will speak on "Prep and High School Swimming."

Charles O. Roeser, chairman of the National Amateur Athletic Union, will outline the rules governing competitive swimming, and Jim McAdoo, coach of the Swarthmore natators, will discuss "What is Expected of a Swimming Coach."

All coaches will bring along their outstanding swimmers to demonstrate while they speak.

Bleachers Provided

Stands will be set up alongside the pool to accomodate 500 persons. Admission for the whole day (10 A.M. to 5 P.M.) will be one dollar. All surrounding college, high school, and prep school coaches and swimmers have been invited.

Seniors to Vote On Class' Gift

In an effort to dispel some of the rumors that have been heard concerning the donation of the Statue of Our Lady of Good Counsel, Senior class president Ted Sheehan devoted most of the last class meeting to this subject.

Sheehan outlined the history of the gift. He emphasized that since that time it has been the class' idea—and no one else's idea—to give this donation.

He went on to say that condition have made it impossible to use the breakage fee for this purpose and that if the wishes to donate it still persist, some sacrifices must be made.

"I intend to have the final details ready in a few days for a poll to be given, asking if seniors are willing to donate the necessary five dollars per man. There are also suggestions that we work the donation in with some suitable Senior Weekend souvenir", Sheehan said.

The final decision on the statue will probably rest with the answers received from the poll.

Moynahan Chosen DPM President

Bart Moynahan defeated fellow seniors Jim Nolin and Ward Welsh in a tight race for president at last week's election of the Arts fraternity, Delta Pi Mu.

Four of the six officers elected were sophomores. Vice-president of the new fraternity is Dick Fitzpatrick, corresponding secretary is Harry Nash, treasurer is Frank Adams, and student council representative is Owen Hickey. All are members of the class of '56. Eugene Kennedy, '54, was elected recording secretary.

The new president was given a unanimous standing vote of confidence by the members on a motion by the defeated candidates.

Dr. McEnerney, moderator, met last Thursday with the officers and the committees appointed to discuss plans for the coming year. The following chairmen were appointed by the president: Program, Dick Fitzpatrick; Refreshments, Frank Adams; and Social activities Bob Reber.

Science majors have been granted permission by Rev. Robert Sullivan, O.S.A., dean of Arts and Sciences, to become members of the frat.

Turf and Tinsel

All Villanova students interested in working on the business staff of Turf and Tinsel, Villanova's musical organization, are asked to contact Bob Whelan in the business office at the Field House, or to see Jim Boyle, 204 Fedigan Hall.

Dudley Speaks

Honor Vincent, '28 Grad At Grid Banquet Monday

Mr. William H. Vincent, '28, prominent local attorney, will receive the 22nd annual Loyalty Award at this year's Football banquet.

Mr. Vincent, former member of the Board of Governors of the National Alumni Association and a present member of the Executive committee, was selected by a vote of the former recipients of the award. This will be the thirty-second annual football banquet sponsored by the Villanova Club of Philadelphia.

The Loyalty Award is given each year to the alumnus who "demonstrates zeal in alumni affairs and loyalty to alma mater".

Bud Dudley.

Dudley To Speak

The Banquet will feature "Bud" Dudley, Athletic Director, as the principal speaker, followed by short talks by Art Raimo, football head coach; Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O. S. A. University President, Rev. Joseph Dougherty, O. S. A., and Rev. James Donnellon, O. S. A.

The seniors on the squad, including the managers, will be awarded miniature gold football helmets. Other presentations to be made at the same time to yet unnamed players, are the Most Valuable Player Award, given by the National Alumni Association and the Cyril J. Burke Award to the "most improved Player".

The Banquet will be held at the Bellvue-Stratford Hotel in Philadelphia on December 14, starting at seven o'clock. Tickets will be put on sale at the Business Office in Mendel Hall and will cost $6.50 per person.

1st Convocation Hears President

The expansion program, the process of becoming a University in name as well as in fact, and the attendant responsibilities on the students featured the talk by Very Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O. S. A., president of Villanova, at last Tuesday's 1:30 convocation.

Plans have already been submitted by architects for the construction of a student union building, said Father McGuire. Equipment alone will cost $300,000. The whole expansion phase in the next few years will cost over two million dollars.

The student - union building will house a new modern dining hall.

University

The steps in becoming a University were also outlined at the convocation. Father McGuire traced the charter and explained the necessary procedures the school went through.

He said that we must continue to be a University in fact as well as in name and progress steadily and surely in that direction. He pointed out that our present machine age exercises an unhappy influence on study habits. (Continued on Page 7)

Fund Goal Set At $21 Million

McGuire Reveals Latest Plans

The Villanova University Development Fund Program has set a goal of twenty-one million, one h undred fifty thousand dollars ($21,150,000) for increased endowment and new buildings during the next twenty years, according to Very Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O.S.A., President.

Student leaders on campus were informed of the development plans when the Student Council heard Mr. Donald Eyster, representative of the American City Bureau, speak at a special meeting Monday afternoon.

New Buildings

Projects included in the Development Program are those for increased endowment, a new Student Activities and Dining Building, a new Dormitory, buildings for the School of Law, Engineering, Science, Nursing Education, Dramatic Arts and an Administration and Classroom Building.

Post-War Growth

The past decade of activity on the Main Line has been marked by a definite period of expansion through the efforts of the University and the Augustian Order. The Chemical Engineering Building, the NROTC Building, and the Library were built during this period. As a result of the increased enrollment under the G.I. Program, during and after the Second World War, the barracks were constructed. It is planned that these will eventually be razed as additional permanent building planned by the University will become a reality.

"In addition to the Dormitory now under construction", said Fr. McGuire "it is hoped that plans for a student activities and dining building will be approved at the earliest possible time." In addition to this Building Program, which basically dates since 1946, the University added a School of Nursing Education and a School of Law.

Expansion Figures

....Villanova's twenty year planned expansion program will cost over $21 million, as can be seen in the table below. During the next ten years buildings for the Law School and the School of Engineering will go up, and the faculty will be enlarged and gain a boost in pay. The last ten will see the rise of a science building, another dorm, and a dramatic arts building, among others.

Endowment, Scholarships, & Research	3,250,000
Total		$21,150,000

Alumni Groups Pledge Support

In commenting on the accelerated activity here on the Main Line Father McGuire, said "Villanova has long visualized the Program now underway and manifested by its increased expansion program since World War II. It has been close to the minds and heart of the Order of Saint Augustine, the Alumni, and the students. We are fully confident that our many friends and Alumni will support the Development Program and we are equally confident that the students now in residence will particularly appreciate Villanova's efforts to continue its development and become one of the oustanding Universities in America."

Alumni Support

Working in complete cooperation with the University, the Villanova Alumni Association is now integrating its Program with that of the Villanova Development Program by reactivation of many Alumni Clubs throughout the country and the organization of many new clubs is already underway. A foundation has been authorized by its Board of Governors which will work closely with the University in allocating Alumni Funds for Building and Endowment Plans.

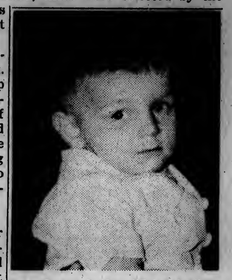
'Johnnies' Feted By V. U. Men Sat.

Wanamaker's Department Store, 13th and Chestnut Sts., will play this Saturday to three hundred and fifty Villanova students, and their guests from the St. John's Orphanage for this year "Operation Yule."

Co-chairmen Red McGahan and Lou Fournier announced that 700 pledges to take out orphans were received. However, since only 350 would actually be needed, these were selected by the "Hat and pin" method as this was thought to be the fairest way.

All those chosen will be notified before the end of this week. The entire number of day-hop applicants were accepted together with an equal number of resident students. It is requested that all day-hops with cars come and help out by transporting students and orphans who do not have a means of transportation.

Donations Requested



Both McGahan and Fournier wish to sincerely thank all volunteers, even those who could not be chosen, and urge that these students give a portion of what they would have spent on the outing in the collection box, in the pie shoppe, to help others who are taking out an orphan.

Buses for resident students will leave from the rear entrance of the dining hall between 8:30 and 9:00 A. M. After arriving at the orphanage and picking up the orphans the party will then go to two Horn and Hardart stores for lunch.

These are located at 1508 Market St. and 244 North Broad St. with the Orphanage group scheduled to arrive there at 11:00 A. M. The cost of the meal including orphan and student will be $1.50.

Santa Claus

The party will then proceed to Wanamaker's where a visit to Toy land will be in order and the orphans will also see Santa Claus. The store will also conduct a brief Christmas play for the benefit of the orphans.

One of the "Johnnies"
A man is never so tall . . .

Finally at 1:30 P.M., students and orphans will go to the Commodore Theatre to see a special Christmas show. The theatre has been contracted exclusively for the orphanage group and all expenses have been paid by the Orphanage Committee. When this is over the orphans will return to the Orphanage home at 5:30 P.M. and the orphans' big day will be completed.

For those who plan to go by automobile, the best route is along Lancaster Avenue to 52nd St. Go down 52nd to Wyalusing Street and then turn left. The orphanage is right there.

It is also pointed out that those who wish to bring a date may do so, the only extra cost being the price of an additional lunch. Co-chairmen Red McGahan and Lou Fournier state that there is still an urgent need for funds so all those able to contribute are asked to do so.

Orphans Party

The other big event of the Orphanage drive is the Orphan's party to be held this Thursday. This will be held for the benefit of the orphans by the members of the Orphanage Committee and a contingent from the Villanova band will also be present.

Noche Espanola Proves Success

Don Herman Caso, Spanish consul, was the main speaker at Monday night's annual Noche Espanola, held in the C&F auditorium before a medium-sized audience.

The second part of the evening's activities was featured by a one-act play in Spanish and English, "Adelita Quiere Aprender Ingles", written and directed by Rev. Lorenzo Lozano, O.S.A., moderator of the Spanish Club.

Featured in the cast were the Misses Pat Denier, Joan McIntyre, Blanquita Bird, Grace Howley, and Alicia Martinez, from Rosemont, and Villanova students William LaGuardia, Jose Oriani, Miguel Puma, Hector Valdes, Ed Novasatka, Peter Albesse, and Louis Donatelli.

Refreshments were served after the first part of the program.

2000 Years — 2000 Dollars

Today begins the one hundredth year since the pronouncement of the dogma of the Immaculate Conception. With this occasion the Church has proclaimed that December 1953 to December 1954 shall be celebrated as the Marian year, a time for increased devotion to the Virgin Mother of God.

An attempt is begin made to complete the beautiful Shrine of the Immaculate Conception in Washington D. C. so that it may be fully used as a part of this great movement.

Villanova has a project of its own, no less important to us. The senior class is considering by vote on today, Thursday, and Friday the purchase of a seven foot marble statue of Our Lady of Good Counsel for the unfinished shrine near Alumni Hall. The purchase amounts to nearly two thusand dollars.

Each dollar of that nearly two thousand dollars will represent one of the nearly two thousand years that Mary has inspired the Church. Whenever religion was rejected in these two thousand years the world suffered. Today at the alleged height of civilization inhumanity is as prevalent as it ever was.

In 1917 man received this simple message from his Blessed Mother: "Cease offending". Since then the worst war of all has been fought. Pope Pius XII has pointed out that the remedy is to be sought at a higher source than government. Then only can it be hoped that Christian morality will again flourish."

No one can look out for a man like his mother. No one else is quite so willing to bend over backward to look out for his interests. And when this particular mother happens to be the Church's greatest saint there can be no doubt of it. She is man's greatest advocate in the court of heaven.

The need is evident; man must move "back to God". The means is also clear. Help from the Mother of God is necessary, and it is through greater devotion to her that this help will be received.

We advise that Villanova's seniors let each dollar contributed to the purchase of their gift statue represent an offering in retribution for one year of man's rejection of Divine Will. Then the gift will be more than just a token offering. It will mean something and be worthwhile.

Unless Villanova University's seniors have as their motive a true devotion to Mary, the real significance of the gift will have been lost.

This gift can represent a dedication by the seniors and by Villanova to the purpose of the Marian year, a consecration of all to their Blessed Mother.

Charity does not admit of pride in the giver, but it will not prevent the rest of Villanova from being proud of the Class of 1954 and from saying, "Thank you, seniors".

The Overlooked Nation: Franco Rises To Power

By Ed Daly

In a series of three articles, Daly will trace the evolution of Spanish Government from the time of Generalissimo Franco's command of the revolution forces, to the recent mutual security pacts between the United States and Spain.—Feature Ed.

The very name of Francisco Franco is usually enough to start off a train of very definite and partisan thoughts in the mind of the average American. To some he is the savior of Spain, a noble crusader against Communism, and one of the bulwarks of western Europe. To others he is a villainous Fascist, the friend of Hitler and Mussolini, a brutal tyrant unworthy of trust or even of recognition. Because of the importance of Spain in America's present defense plans in Europe, it behooves Americans to learn which of these portrayals of Franco is the true one, if either be true.

Spanish Civil War

To understand Franco, a person must remember the situation in Spain in 1936 at the outbreak of the Spanish Civil War. After the downfall of the Spanish monarchy in 1931, a republic was set up in Spain. In February, 1936, a Popular Front of left-wing parties obtained control of the government following an election whose honesty was questioned by conservatives. A rash of church burnings and assassinations, which the government did little to check, followed in the wake of the election, culminating in the assassination on July 12th of Jose Calvo Sotelo, one of the monarchist leaders. Five days later the army revolted in Spanish Morocco.

At this time Franco, a former War Minister and Chief of Staff, was in command in the Canary Islands, in virtual exile because of his conservative views. Although he previously refused to lead a military revolt because of his belief that the army should keep out of politics, Franco flew back to Morocco to take command of the revolting forces.

Backed by most of the army, the Moors, the Foreign Legion and the more conservative and clerical segments of the population, Franco invaded Spain. His supporters, thanks to military coups that were successful in some cities such as Seville, and to a remarkable popular rising of the devoutly Catholic people of Navarre, already controlled some parts of the Spanish mainland. The war raged on until March, 1939, when Franco succeeded in capturing Madrid, after a siege of nearly three years.

Reign Of Terror

A virtual reign of terror took place in the areas under "Loyalist" (anti-Franco) rule following the outbreak of the Civil War. There had been numerous outrages before this, such as the burning of 162 churches between February and May, but these were insignificant compared to those that followed. Between July, 1936, and March, 1937, when a more moderate element gained control of the Loyalist government, an estimated 16,000 priests and 300,00-500,000 civilians were slaughtered by Communists and anarchists, without the slightest governmental opposition. Churches and convents were burned throughout Loyalist Spain, and unspeakable outrages were committed on nuns, priests, and many others. The government during this period was under the strong domination from the most extreme-left wing parties.

Help From Nazis

At the same time Franco was receiving help from Nazi Germany and Facist Italy, just as the Loyalists were receiving help from Communist Russia. Liberal papers abroad charged that these supporters of Franco were also committing outrages, and hosts of authors wrote books and articles denouncing Franco for these alleged atrocities. Of course it is ridiculous to suppose that none of Franco's soldiers went to extremes in revenging themselves for the crimes committed upon their friends or relations by the Loyalists. It was a war of terrible cruelty, and Franco's army was not composed of saints. The charges brought against them were often exaggerated, however, if not completely false. One such charge could be cited here. One liberal columnist wrote an article describing the horrible cruelty of Franco's troops after the capture of Badajoz. It was later discovered that the article had been copied, word for word, from a book written in 1815 describing the fall of that city to Wellington. That was typical of many "atrocity" reports.

Franco's conduct after he had obtained control of Spain, particularly during the Second World War, will be described in a subsequent article.

College News Picked At Random

The Villanovan presents here a roundup of news items from the campuses of world-wide colleges and universities in the past few weeks.—Ed.

CENSORSHIP, MARYLAND STYLE . . .

A photograph showing crowded dormitory conditions prompted the dean of men at the University of Maryland to confiscate several thousand copies of the Diamondback, student newspaper.

When Dean Geary Eppley objected to a picture of basement living quarters for 24 women students, he decided to make off with the papers so nobody else could see it.

It wasn't the first censorship attempt at Maryland. According to Elin Lake, Diamondback editor, the administration tried earlier this year to keep the public from knowing that the dean of women received a summons for failing to stop for a school bus that was loading and unloading passengers.

When a reporter from the Baltimore Sun was sent to the Maryland campus to cover the University's censorship activities, he was arrested by a campus policeman and momentarily kept from phoning the story to his paper.

WELL, THAT'S NEW YORK . . .

Bruce Wormald, a Columbia University student, has been having car trouble—for more than two years now.

It began back in 1951, when the engine of his 1936 model automobile conked out near New York City's Welfare Island. Unable to get the car started again, Wormald pushed it into a secluded corner and left it parked.

This month he received a warning letter from Welfare Island officials. They wanted him to retrieve his deserted car. So he and a friend went back to the Island and, failing to get the motor running, they pushed the vehicle off a 24-foot cliff and into the ocean.

An alert doctor saw the car being dumped, though, and notified the police. Now the two students are charged with "dumping refuse into New York City waters in violation of the Sanitary Code," and the police are grappling for Wormald's white elephant.

RUSSIA: TV IN SIBERIA . . .

Students at Tomsk Polytechnical Institute in Siberia are producing their own television programs on a transmitter they built themselves. It took 50 students 18 months to do the job. Now they are putting on regular news, documentary and variety shows.

ORPHAN'S OUTING . . . This Saturday, the Junior class is having their annual party for the orphans of St. John's . . . Probably everyone has heard about it by now but what are you doing about it? . . . Sign up and take out one of these less fortunate than yourself and you'll see how much they (and you) will enjoy the time that the committee has arranged—(includes two meals, at a nominal cost; a free movie and a trip to toy town at Wanamaker's) . . . Some guys will enjoy that more than the kids!!! . . . But if you can't go, why not contribute to the fund? . . . Remember: "A helping hand is a welcome hand" . . . FOOTBALL NOTES . . . There are a few postscripts to the season . . . Congrads are due to Gene Filipski who is going to play in the Senior Bowl and also the East-West game (where Bobby Haner distinguished himself last year) and also Ralph Cecere who is going to the North-South game . . . Next year's football schedule will see the inclusion of Utah State and Florida State . . . Seven games have been scheduled but none definitely for home as of yet . . . Navy is also being contacted . . . News has it that Phil is going to get himself a new CAFETERIA in the near future. It is to be located in a student union building which will be situated between Alumni Hall, the Library, and the Monastery . . . 27 of our high and illustrious seniors were chosen for "WHO'S WHO" and are to be congratulated on their achievement . . . For those Juniors who are interested, their Blazers will be here about Dec. 15 and you'll have to cough up an additional $22.50 to get them . . .

27 Seniors Listed In 'Who's Who'

Marks, Service, Bases For Committee Choices

At the first Villanova University Convocation in the Field House last Tuesday, President Very Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire introduced the twenty-seven members of the senior class who were elected to the 1953-54 "Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities."

Nominated by a special committee of faculty and administration, the honored seniors will be listed in the forthcoming issue of the publication and each will receive a certificate of recognition.

These men were selected on the basis of scholastic excellence and sincerety, leadership and participation in extra-curricular activities, service to the college and promise of future usefulness in business and society.

The 27 outstanding seniors, their home towns, degrees, and some of their extracurricular activities are listed below:

"Stalag 17" Announced As Belle Masque April Play

"Stalag 17", by Donald Bevan and Edmund Trczinski, will be the spring production of the Belle Masque dramatic society, Rev. William J. Krupa, O. S. A., moderator of the group, announced last week.

All Villanovans wishing to try out for parts in the play must sign up in the Belle Masque office in the basement of Austin Hall between 2.30 and 5.00 P.M. today, Wednesday, Dec. 9. Those who have classes at that time must sign up in room 239 Austin before 10:00 that night. None may sign up after that time, Father Krupa said. There are 22 male parts in the play. Tryouts are open to all, whether they have had previous acting experience or not. The movie version of the play was recently seen on the local screens.

The play was released only recently for amateur production. Belle Masque will be one of the first non-professional groups to put it on.

Tryouts Scheduled

Bill Cunningham, president of the society, stated that tryouts will be Wednesday afternoon, Thursday evening, and Friday afternoon of this week. All tryouts will be in the radio station. Those who sign up for tryouts will be given a mimeographed sheet with some excerpts from the major characters' parts and the play types on it, he said.

There are no females in the play, which takes place in a German prisoner of war enclosure, called a "stalag".

Cunningham also stated that men are needed for the stage crew and for the publicity staff. Ticket goal has already been set at 2,000, announced Cunningham.

Beta Gamma Wins 4 at Tournament

Villanova's workhorse debaters fought the season's first tournament engagement at Muhlenberg College, Saturday November 21. Their argumentative warfare netted them a record of four wins, two ties, and two losses. The national topic was debated: "The United States should adopt a policy of free trade."

Notable among the three victories of the affirmative was a hard - fought triumph over Princeton. The negative duo succeeded in tieing Penn State, over-all winner among the nineteen schools from Pennsylvania, New York, and New Jersey which participated in the tournament.

Representing Villanova on the affirmative were Frank Cunning and Mark McCormick; negative team members were Joe Roddy and Bob Gerstung.

Tuesday December 1, the debaters blanked Temple in a dual meet at Villanova. Victorious for Villanova were Bob Tomonto and Mark McCormick on the affirmative and Joe Wynne and George Minser on the negative.

Dr. McEnerney Speaks At D.P.M. Social Meeting

Dr. John I. McEnerney, professor of Latin, was the guest speaker at last Thursday's night meeting of Delta Pi Mu, Arts and Science fraternity.

It was the first social meeting of the fraternity since April of 1951.

In a talk entitled "Little Caesar", Dr. McEnerney traced the line of Egyptian succession from about 350 B. C. to 30 A.D. During that time he pointed out that there were 31 murdered monarchs. Only two rulers died from natural causes in the some 280 years.

The main personality included in the talk was Cleopatra. She was pictured as a very ambitious woman and her biggest ambition was to become the ruler of the world. She attempted to reach this goal by marrying Caesar. When Caesar refused to marry her, she turned her attentions to Anthony. Little Caesar was the name given to the child born of Caesar and Cleopatra.

In business of the meeting, president Bart Moynahan said that all dues must be paid by the next monthly meeting. Refreshments were served after the talk.

Francis And Schafer Tops In Overtime

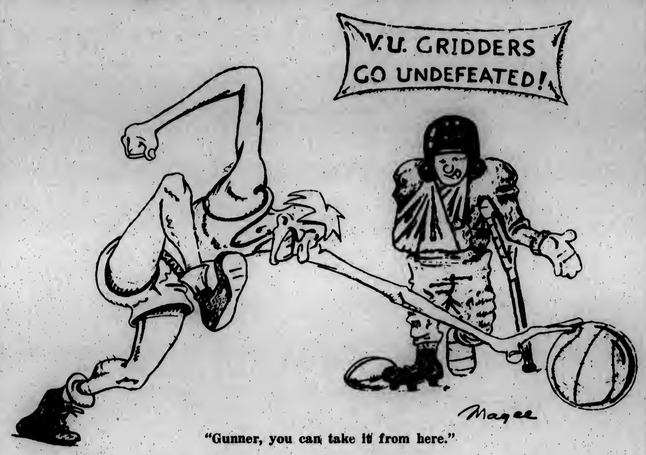
By Dick Confoy

A sensational sleeper play by sophomore Marty Milligan in the last ten seconds of play pinned a heart-breaking 93-92 overtime loss on Bevo Francis and Rio Grande last Friday night at the Arena. Milligan's score followed some great clutch basketball by Vilianova's guts-it Wildcats who had to rebound from red-hot performances by both Jim McKenzie and Bevo Francis.

'Cats Behind

The Mainliners were in trouble from the start, with the Ohioans jumping off to leads of 18-6 and 32-19. Five-foot-ten McKenzie went on an 18 point spree to keep the visitors in the lead throughout almost the entire first half, and it was practically Bevo vs. Villanova from there on in. The fabulous 6'9" sophomore put on a great second half show, tossing in 28 of his 29 points to come within seconds of upsetting the exhausted winners.

For Villanova the game was a team victory all the way, and it brought into the spotlight much needed bench and rebounding strength in Tom Foley, a sophomore whose 19 points kept the club in the ball game time and time again. Sophs John Cirino and Larry Tierney contributed yeoman defensive work, and Milligan, with 18 under-fire points, showed the poise of a veteran.



Devine Stars

Jack Devine, captain and bossman of the ballclub, once again was the guiding light in the Cats' second of three wins as he put in 16 points to go with his 17 rebounds. John's tremendous floor and offensive improvement has been the cause of much of the optimism towards the tough times ahead. Bobby Schafer, of course, had another great night, although his 42% field goal percentage (11 for 26) netted his season's low of 25 points.

Bevo Ties It

The see-saw battle saw the game tied 13 times and the lead change hands on 17 different occasions. The Wildcats finally grabbed a five point lead with just over a minute left in regular time but Bevo emerged after a wild scramble to knot it all up with a jump shot from 15 feet out.

The teams traded basket-for-basket in the nerve-wracking five minute overtime until, with the score, 92-91, Milligan took a perfect full-court pass from Devine and laid it up all alone as the Arena went wild.

"Gunner, you can take it from here."

Swimming Stars Feature Well-Executed Swimorama

Some of the greatest stars of the world of swimming were present in the Villanova Field House last Saturday to witness the first "Swim-o-rama" ever held. The brain-child of Ed Geisz, Villanova's Swimming Director, was carried out flawlessly from the time that Bill Ryan made the opening announcements at 10 A.M. until Geisz's closing note late in the afternoon.

It was indeed one of the best organized and nicely-executed events ever to be staged at Villanova.

Inaugurating this unique type of swimming clinic was a thorough analysis of recent rule changes in the sport by Charles O. Roeser, Chairman of the National AAU Swimming Committee. Mr. Roeser, who has held many offices on international swimming committees, was questioned extensively by the coaches and swimmers who comprised the bulk of the several hundred spectators present.

Many Notables

The publicity campaign for the event was deliberately deemphasized on the University campus in order to facilitate the seating araringements for coaches and swimming notables from the metropolitan area of Philadelphia and the surrounding districts. As a result, few students of Villanova had a chance to witness what is hoped to be the first of a series of annual affairs under the auspices of the Villanova University Swimming Association.

Former Eastern Inter-Collegiate diving champion Bill Cant followed Mr. Roeser at the microphone with a comprehensive run-down on the judging of a college diver. His demonstrator on the board was Bob McLennan, Jr., Catholic League Champion of Philadelphia.

Coaching Requirements

Swarthmore's swimming coach, Jim McAdoo, an outstanding natator in his college career, ended the morning agenda with a general description of the requirements of a swimming coach. Following Mr. McAdoo's talk, the speakers had luncheon with Fr. George F. McLaughlin, Dean of Student Activities, at the Conestoga Mill in Bryn Mawr.

Members of Villanova's own tank squad led off on the afternoon program with a demonstration of relay swimming. Narration and description of this phase was handled by Major Dave Rowan of La Salle College.

Knicks Lead Bowling

The see-saw battle for first place in the bowling loop shifted again; this time in favor of Bob Bishop's Knickerbockers who dropped Vic's Magetti's Hoods from the top slot with a sweep of four straight games in a close-scoring set.

The Nostrikes won three out of four from the last place Dukes while the Elks swept four from the Streamers.

The standings:

Knicks	19	5
Hoods	17	7
Nostrikes	15	9
Elks	14	10
Streamers	5	19
Dukes	2	22

Riflers Lost First

The NROTC Rifle and Pistol aggregations suffered their first loss of the season to the Lower Merion Police despite turning in their best performance of the year. The L. M. Police, best pistol team in Eastern Pennsylvania, outshot the Middies by only twenty points with a score of 1477-1457. Jim Delaney sparkled with 299 out of a possible 300.

Previous to the loss the Navy pistol marksmen beat the Norristown Police with a complete 1170 to 890 rout. Conversely, however, the rifle team was hard pressed to edge the Navy Yard Marines, with their highly-touted NRA shooters, by marking 1355-1352.

Mount, Lebanon Valley Victims Of Unbeaten 'Cats

Shaking off the effects of a sluggish first half, Villanova University's sophomore and junior - paced basketball club soundly trounced Mount St. Mary's last Wednesday at the Field Housee, 74 to 59.

The game marked the Wildcats' debut in this, their 34th hardwood season, and was their 55th consecutive Field House win.

Paced by junior Bob Schafer, who began to hit in the second half after a poor start, Jack Devine, the 1953-54 captain and rebound specialist, and a trio of sophomores, Al Severance's crew scored 39 points in the final half to the visitor's 24. The score was tied up at halftife, 35-35.

"Dutch" Gets Hot

Schafer, who at one point hit four straight sets, a foul shot, and a jump shot in succession, wound up with 31 points to lead all scorers by a wide margin. Cohort Devine, who also found time to do a masterful job under the boards, dunked 19, and was aided nicely in both offensive and rebounding departments by soph John Cirino, who chipped in with 10 markers in his first varisty appearance.

Milligan

The other two starters, sophomores Marty Milligan and Larry Tierney, turned in very creditable jobs—Milligan, playing along with the latter at guard, came up with 8 points mainly from outside, and Tierney was a downright demon on defense and added a lot of needed speed to the winners' perenial five-man weave.

The Wildcats pulled away immediately after play resumed in the second half. Schafer's nine straight points and control of the boards by Cirino and Devine helped the Liners gain a 19-point advantage with only five minutes left.

In their first Palestra appearance of the season, Villanova dumped Lebanon Valley 74-60 for their third straight victory of the young campaign. Improving with each contest, the Wildcats played a deliberate game to conserve their energy while staging the third game in four nights.

Bob Schafer again led the attack, netting 27 points. Playing the pivot slot, he drove under for most of his field goals and converted 13 of the 18 fouls he drew. John Devine, with his

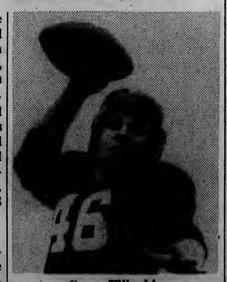
Ram Win Ends Season

By Bob Strayton

Highlighted by the novel innovations of Villanova's congenial Athletic Director, Ambrose "Bud" Dudley, the Wildcats concluded their sixtieth season of intercollegiate gridiron endeavor with a victory over the Fordham Rams at the Polo Grounds on Nov. 28.

Spearheaded by the fine quarter backing of Joe McNicholas, the 'Cats took an early lead when Gene Filipski went for 19 yards around right end in the opening minutes of the game. The conversion was missed.

Rams Take Lead



A few minutes later the Rams took the lead when a Drake aerial netted a touchdown, and the point was added. Fordham later scored on a Drake aerial, and the score stood at 13-6 when the conversion was unsuccessful.

The 'Cats opened in the third period when Filipski bulled his way to the one yard line, and from there plunged into the end zone for Villanova's second tally. Jack Helm kicked the point, and the Wildcats took a 14-13 lead.

Loyola, Princeton Tigers First Road Tests For Cats

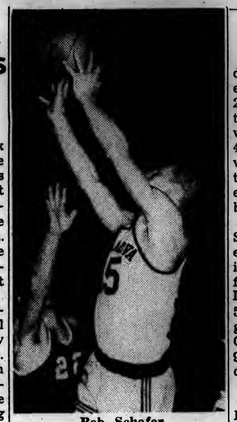
by Tom Mentzer

Swinging into the second week of its 1953-54 court season, the Villanova University five faces three more important court tests. On the road to meet Loyola of Baltimore today, the Mainliners return to face St. Francis of Loretta at the Palestra Saturdy and finally invade the Ivy League against Princeton next Tuesday night.



When the Wildcats meet Loyola on the latter's floor, they will be facing a team that usually stresses a possession-type game. Having lost rebounding strength from last year's squad which almost upset Seton Hall, the Greyhounds return highscoring forwards Joel Hittleman and Tony Pastorio.

Lettermen Return

Led by Haurice Stokes, a 6' 6" spring-legged giant, who last year tallied 27 points and controlled the boards in a great one-man show against the Liners that almost succeeded in defeating them single-handedly, St. Francis comes to the Palestra with the hope of avenging last year's 84-76 loss. Besides rolling his two year point total up to 922 last year, the fabulous Stokes also averaged 22 rebounds a game and led the nation's major colleges in field goal percentage. Stokes is aided by seven returning lettermen, including Ed Dugan, who posted a 15.6 average, and Gene Phelps, who limited Larry Hennessy to six points in 1951. Comparatively unknown in basketball circles until the past two years, the Frankies have gradually established themselves as one of the top court schools in the East. This clash with the up-staters should prove to be one of the toughest games for the Cats during the first part of their campaign.

usual fine performance, steadied the team and contributed 12 counters. Defensive hawk John Cirino grabbed 16 rebounds to give Villanova control of boards. Tireless performers Marty Milligan and Larry Tierney turned on the speed when needed to jumble the fast-moving offensive of the Flying Dutchman. Proving to be a very capable sixth man, Tom Foley repeated his previous night's showing against Rio Grande, by hitting on five late attempts and picking off half a dozen rebounds in the 22 minutes he played.

The score was tied at the end of the first period, but the Cats got ten straight points at the start of the second quarter for a lead they never relinquished.

down, and again Helm converted, and the game ended in a 20-13 victory for the 'Cats, as the 1953 season came to a close, with the final record standing at 4 and 6, which meant little in view of the fact that this was the most formidable schedule ever faced by a Villanova football contingent.

Opening against Georgia on Sept. 19, the 'Cats got off to an early lead, but the Bulldog passing attack ended in a 32-19 defeat for the Mainliners. "Bud" Dudley's unprecedented sale of 58,000 tickets for the Georgia game to the American Stores Corp., drew a record crowd of 98,000 fans to Municipal Stadium.

Defeat Eagles

Losses to Texas and Wake Forest, and a victory over Boston College followed, before the Wildcats were able to prove themselves against Kentucky. Although the club lost, its surprisingly inspired play received much praise from the sports world.

On the rebound, the 'Cats defeated Xavier 21-14, but lost to Boston University up in Back Bay, before they encountered Syracuse at Franklin Field, and defeated the heavily - favored Orange 14-13, for one of the most sensational upsets of the year. From there the 'Cats travelled to New York for the Fordham finale, and displayed rare form in defeating the Rams. For many, that was their last game wearing the Blue and White.

Seniors' Last Game

The Seniors who played their final game were: Gene Filipski, whose brilliant and untiring efforts gained him an All-Eastern berth, Joe McNicholas, who sparkled both on offense and defense, Charle McGuckin, a newcomer whose passing attack was a main cog, Ralph Cecere, who balanced the backfield with his fine running ability, Joe Faragalli, team captain and stalwart of the line, along with Tommy Fitzpatrick, Art Knowlton, Pete Carrierl, Roy Kershaw, and Ray Rigney, who turned in impressive performances in every game.

A vast contingent of Raimomen who will return to bolster next year's squad include: Joe Leichtweis, who excelled at tackle, Nelson Marshall, who did a splendid job at center, and Don McComb and Mike Mayock, who could always be counted on for steady performances at their end positions. In the backfield, Jack Helm will again assume his role of workhorse in the fullback slot, as the Wildcats will move to better their 4 and 6 mark when the 1954 season rolls around.

of the day for many of the spectators, then slipped into the water for a demonstration of his type of swimming. Many of the onlookers came to their feet immediately as Joe pushed off and swam fifty yards with his amazing "butterfly" stroke. Joe Kirk, Verdeur's coach from his college days, explained that Joe's stroke was possible only because his shoulders were double-jointed.

An excellent talk on backstroke swimming was then given by Howie Canoune, swimming coach of Princeton University. Mr. Canoune's demonstrator was his protegee Bill O'Brien. Concluding talks were given by Jack Lumsden, assisted by Allen Rhodes; and Joe McQuillen, Haverford School Coach.

SPORTS CHATTER

Dream or Reality?

By Harry Nash

In light of Athletic Director Ambrose "Bud" Dudley's recent and continued efforts to mold together a 'Northeast League,' composed of various Catholic and other independent football clubs in the East, perhaps it would be interesting to quote a few statements from a by-line story on the subject in the past issue of "The Sign," a Catholic magazine produced in New Jersey.

This story, written by one Charles G. Johnson in the December edition, begins thus:

"Big time Catholic college football is as dead as the Dodo bird," writes Mr. Johnson in his article entitled "Farewell to Catholic College Football." He continues, rather grimly, "By 1955 or positively by 1956—all Catholic institutions of higher learning will quit big time football cold! With one obvious exception—Notre Dame."

Now, there may be those who share this frank and point-blank opinion held by Mr. Johnson, and, admittedly, he does have quite a bit of evidence on his side that may back up his conclusion—mainly the fact that in the past decade such former gridiron citadels as Duquesne, Georgetown, Manhattan, De Paul and several others (some of which are on the West Coast) have watched their demise from a previous perch among the football elite.

However, it seems that, disregarding this prominent evidence, the fault and cause of this downward trend can be traced to factors that are not intrinsically tied up with Catholic college football.

In fact, as Johnson infers, the real causes could probably be listed:

1. a lack of unity among the independent Catholic institutions.
2. a lack of sound front office management.
3. over-ambitious scheduling.
4. over-zealous desire for a general so-called "social climb" that was over the head of the material that was available.

The first reason is the one that Dudley is trying to overcome in his pioneering attempts even now.

The second, of course, is actually the basis for the final two defects, mainly because the athletic policies of the aforementioned schools that have dropped football were either unsound in policy or in judgement, resulting in head-long dashes toward unattainable peaks on a par with long-established football powers. As far as over-ambitious scheduling and blind dashes with big time glory as the goal, Mr. Johnson provides a good argument, although what he concludes may not be widely accepted.

"Catholic colleges have sacrificed substantial sums of money, and no little stature, while imprudently shooting for the moon. For all these schools, (referring to those which have dropped the sport) an end has finally come to the long, economically unsound "social climb." In other words, Johnson is placing the blame for a crumbling Catholic grid empire on economic miscalculations and misjudgements, a "shooting-for-the-moon" policy, rather than on the elements that are actually considered chronic —such as fan indifference, lack of backers and lack of good material. In presenting his argument, Johnson may inadvertantly be meeting out a ray of hope by unconsciously implying that, with unity and better management, such as Dudley is trying to introduce, with more level-headed scheduling and an emphasis and expansion program in sports that is head and shoulders with the material at hand and not leaps and bounds out in front (a situation that has drained many a school's financial and athletic resources Catholic college football will be able to survive. And then, perhaps, through a slow and sound build-up and a tightening of common bonds by way of leagues, Mr. Johnson's "vanishing empire" will be no more.

'Catholic college football is an empire that never really existed . . . except in the dreams of school administrators and fans," says our Mr. Johnson, continuing his dour predictions.

We'll see, Mr. Johnson. Maybe some day that "dream" will be a reality.

Seniors Polled This Week To Decide Statue Gift

The culmination of the long debate over the donation by the Senior Class of the Statue of Our Lady of Good Counsel takes place today, tomorrow and Friday as the seniors mark their choice in the class-wide poll being conducted in the eight Religion sections.

The eight-question form will sound ou the class and final action will depend entirely upon the results, according to class president Ted Sheehan. The final tallies will be published in next Tuesday's "Villanovan."

The seniors are asked in the questionnaire if they are in favor of the class donating the statue, if they are willing to donate their share ($5.00), and if they are, how they would like it to be used. Among the choices are a tie-in with a Senior Weekend souvenir and a direct donation on the style of the St. John's Orphanage Fund.

The statue which will be erected atop the new shrine between St. Mary's and Alumni Halls is being sculptured in Pietrasanta, Italy and is scheduled to arrive in New York in the next few weeks. Its cost will be over nineteen hundred dollars.

At a meeting in the library Thursday, Belle Air Ball chairmen began work for the February 27 Prom. Program decoration, and publicity chairmen have begun their jobs.

Entertainment chairman, Harry Anger expects to have definite word on the band shortly. The choices for the band have been narrowed down to Ralph Martieri, Claude Thornhill, Tex Beneke and Buddy Morrow.

Orphans

Features of this party will be student entertainment and the appearance of Santa Claus who will give each orphan a present. Committee members who have worked to the success of this affair are: George Kuhn and Dan Murphy, refreshment chairmen, Hank Smith, Santa Claus, and Bob Bishop and John Thornton, co-chairmen of the decorations.

Rally Kicks Off Basketball Year

Villanova's basketball season got off to a good start last Tuesday night as some 500 students attended a rally in the Field House.

Coach Alex Severance introduced the team members and gave a short talk on the prospects for the coming year. He stressed the fact that the team was young and inexperienced. Even the sophomores lack freshman experience, he said, due to last year's small six game schedule. Much of the burden will have to be carried by returning lettermen Bob Schafer and "Andy" Devine, captain of the team. He praised Schafer, last year's second high scorer, as one of the best ball players in the country and Devine for his fine all-around play.

Severence also pointed out that Villanova will play its usual rough schedule this year, including such top-ranked teams as Dayton, Seton Hall, and Duquesne.

HUGHES Cooperative Fellowship Program for

Purpose	The Hughes Cooperative Fellowship Program has been established to enable outstanding graduates to pursue work for the Master of Science degree while employed in industry and making significant contributions to important military projects.	Recipients will earn five-eighths of a normal salary each year. This salary will be determined by the individual's qualifications and experience, and will reflect current salary practices in the electronics industry. Salary growth will be on the same basis as for full-time members of the scientific-engineering staff. Recipients will also be eligible for health, accident and life insurance benefits, as well as other privileges accruing to full-time staff members.	Salaries
Eligibility	Eligible for consideration are students who will receive the B.S. degree during the coming year and members of the Armed Services being honorably separated and holding B.S. degrees. In either case the field of the B.S. degree must be: ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING PHYSICS, OR MECHANICAL ENGINEERING The awards will be made to applicants who have evidenced outstanding ability and some degree of creativeness. They must also possess traits enabling them to work well with others.	Tuition, admission fee, and required books at either the University of California at Los Angeles or the University of Southern California, covering the number of units required to earn an M. S. degree, will be provided.	Sponsorship
		For those residing outside the Southern California area, actual travel and moving expenses to this area will be allowed up to 10 percent of the full starting annual salary.	Travel Expenses
Citizenship	Applicants must be United States citizens for whom appropriate security clearance can be obtained, as their work in the Hughes Laboratories may be related to National Defense projects.	If a sufficient number of qualified candidates present themselves, as many as 100 Fellowships will be awarded each year.	Number of Awards
Universities	Applicants must be able to meet the requirements for admission to graduate standing at the University of California at Los Angeles or the University of Southern California.	Candidates will be selected by the Committee for Graduate Study of Hughes Research and Development Laboratories.	Selection of Candidates
Program	Participants will be employed at Hughes full time in the summer and 25 hours a week during the university year while pursuing half-time graduate work.	Application forms should be obtained immediately. Completed applications must be accompanied by detailed college transcripts.	Application Procedure

Law Dean Heads Schola; Choir To Entertain Profs

Ambitious plans were announced for the 1953 Schola Cantorum last week by its director, Harold G. Ruschlein, Dean of Villanova University's Law School and former choir master and organist at the Church of St. Bernard of Clairvaux, the largest in the diocese of Pittsburgh.

First evidences of the group's pratice sessions will be on view at the Annual Faculty dinner given by Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O. S. A., president of Villanova, on Dec. 15.

Practice Underway

Dean Reuschlein expressed the desire to have the Schola Cantorum develope into a group able to sing a solemn High Mass from beginning to end. Already the students have begun practice on the ordinary of the Mass, put to modern setting by the late Pietro Yon. They will sing Yon's "Missa Regina Pacis".

Other types of approved music to be studied by the choir include the Propers of the Mass (Full Gregorian), according to the official Vatican melodies as found in approved editions of the "Liber Usualis"; and four part polyphomic numbers from the great masters of the 16th and 17th centuries.

Weekly Mass

Hopes are held for a weekly solemn High Mass in the chapel, sung by the Schola Cantorum. Present indications are that this will be an evening Mass.

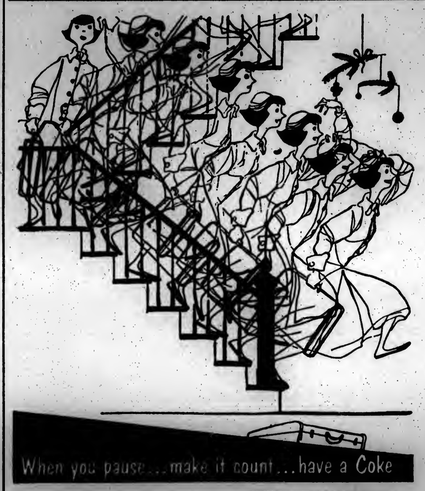
Also anticipated is aid in the form of cassock and surplices for the singers to enable them to function as a vested choir.

Meetings so far have been attended by 25 to 30 m.. each time. The success of the group depends on the maintenance of this initial enthusiasm, said Dean Ruschlein.

Schola At '53 Dinner

The Schola Cantorum will make its first appearance of the year at the annual faculty dinner given by the president of Villanova, Very Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O. S. A., on Dec. 15.

Under the direction of Harold Gill Ruschlein, Dean of the School of Law at Villanova, the choir will present four numbers for the faculty.



Rev. Robert M. Sullivan, O. S. A., Dean of the School of Arts and Sciences, will be soloist for the traditional "Adeste Fidelis."

Other numbers to be sung are: "Lo! How a Rose E'er Blooming", "Tollite Hostias" from the Christmas Oratorio by Camille Saint-Saens, "Beautiful Saviour", Franz Gruber's "Silent Night".

CONVOCATION

The place of a student in a University should be one of burning zeal. He must lend himself to the influence and leadership of the instructor and dutifully give himself to be molded in virtue.

Also at the convocation the seniors honored by listing in the Who's Who were praised by Father McGuire.

"Bud" Dudley's unprecedented sale of 58,000 tickets for the Georgia game to the American Stores Corp., drew a record crowd of 98,000 fans to Municipal Stadium.

Defeat Eagles

Losses to Texas and Wake Forest, and a victory over Boston College followed, before the Wildcats were able to prove themselves against Kentucky. Although the club lost, its surprisingly inspired play received much praise from the sports world.

On the rebound, the 'Cats defeated Xavier 21-14, but lost to Boston University up in Back Bay, before they encountered Syracuse at Franklin Field, and defeated the heavily - favored Orange 14-13, for one of the most sensational upsets of the year. From there the 'Cats travelled to New York for the Fordham finale, and displayed rare form in defeating the Rams. For many, that was their last game wearing the Blue and White.

Seniors' Last Game

The Seniors who played their final game were: Gene Filipski, whose brilliant and untiring efforts gained him an All-Eastern berth, Joe McNicholas, who sparkled both on offense and defense, Charle McGuckin, a newcomer whose passing attack was a main cog, Ralph Cecere, who balanced the backfield with his fine running ability, Joe Faragalli, team captain and stalwart of the line, along with Tommy Fitzpatrick, Art Knowlton, Pete Carrieri, Roy Kershaw, and Ray Rigney, who turned in impressive performances in every game.

A vast contingent of Raimomen who will return to bolster next year's squad include: Joe Leichtweis, who excelled at tackle, Nelson Marshall, who did a splendid job at center, and Don McComb and Mike Mayock, who could always be counted on for steady performances at their end positions. In the backfield, Jack Helm will again assume his role of workhorse in the fullback slot, as the Wildcats will move to better their 4 and 6 mark when the 1954 season rolls around.

of the day for many of the spectators, then slipped into the water for a demonstration of his type of swimming. Many of the onlookers came to their feet immediately as Joe pushed off and swam fifty yards with his amazing "butterfly" stroke. Joe Kirk, Verdeur's coach from his college days, explained that Joe's stroke was possible only because his shoulders were double-jointed.

An excellent talk on backstroke swimming was then given by Howie Canoune, swimming coach of Princeton University. Mr. Canoune's demonstrator was his protegee Bill O'Brien. Concluding talks were given by Jack Lumsden, assisted by Allen Rhodes; and Joe McQuillen, Haverford School Coach.

SPORTS CHATTER

Dream or Reality?

By Harry Nash

In light of Athletic Director Ambrose "Bud" Dudley's recent and continued efforts to mold together a 'Northeast League,' composed of various Catholic and other independent football clubs in the East, perhaps it would be interesting to quote a few statements from a by-line story on the subject in the past issue of "The Sign," a Catholic magazine produced in New Jersey.

This story, written by one Charles G. Johnson in the December edition, begins thus:

"Big time Catholic college football is as dead as the Dodo bird," writes Mr. Johnson in his article entitled "Farewell to Catholic College Football." He continues, rather grimly, "By 1955 or positively by 1956—all Catholic institutions of higher learning will quit big time football cold! With one obvious exception—Notre Dame."

Now, there may be those who share this frank and point-blank opinion held by Mr. Johnson, and, admittedly, he does have quite a bit of evidence on his side that may back up his conclusion—mainly the fact that in the past decade such former gridiron citadels as Duquesne, Georgetown, Manhattan, De Paul and several others (some of which are on the West Coast) have watched their demise from a previous perch among the football elite.

However, it seems that, disregarding this prominent evidence, the fault and cause of this downward trend can be traced to factors that are not intrinsically tied up with Catholic college football.

In fact, as Johnson infers, the real causes could probably be listed:

1. a lack of unity among the independent Catholic institutions.
2. a lack of sound front office management.
3. over-ambitious scheduling.
4. over-zealous desire for a general so-called "social climb" that was over the head of the material that was available.

The first reason is the one that Dudley is trying to overcome in his pioneering attempts even now.

The second, of course, is actually the basis for the final two defects, mainly because the athletic policies of the aforementioned schools that have dropped football were either unsound in policy or in judgement, resulting in head-long dashes toward unattainable peaks on a par with long-established football powers. As far as over-ambitious scheduling and blind dashes with big time glory as the goal, Mr. Johnson provides a good argument, although what he concludes may not be widely accepted.

"Catholic colleges have sacrificed substantial sums of money, and no little stature, while imprudently shooting for the moon. For all these schools, (referring to those which have dropped the sport) an end has finally come to the long, economically unsound "social climb." In other words, Johnson is placing the blame for a crumbling Catholic grid empire on economic miscalculations and misjudgements, a "shooting-for-the-moon" policy, rather than on the elements that are actually considered chronic —such as fan indifference, lack of backers and lack of good material. In presenting his argument, Johnson may inadvertantly be meeting out a ray of hope by unconsciously implying that, with unity and better management, such as Dudley is trying to introduce, with more level-headed scheduling and an emphasis and expansion program in sports that is head and shoulders with the material at hand and not leaps and bounds out in front (a situation that has drained many a school's financial and athletic resources Catholic college football will be able to survive. And then, perhaps, through a slow and sound build-up and a tightening of common bonds by way of leagues, Mr. Johnson's "vanishing empire" will be no more.

'Catholic college football is an empire that never really existed . . . except in the dreams of school administrators and fans," says our Mr. Johnson, continuing his dour predictions.

We'll see, Mr. Johnson. Maybe some day that "dream" will be a reality.

Seniors Polled This Week To Decide Statue Gift

The culmination of the long debate over the donation by the Senior Class of the Statue of Our Lady of Good Counsel takes place today, tomorrow and Friday as the seniors mark their choice in the class-wide poll being conducted in the eight Religion sections.

The eight-question form will sound ou the class and final action will depend entirely upon the results, according to class president Ted Sheehan. The final tallies will be published in next Tuesday's "Villanovan."

The seniors are asked in the questionnaire if they are in favor of the class donating the statue, if they are willing to donate their share ($5.00), and if they are, how they would like it to be used. Among the choices are a tie-in with a Senior Weekend souvenir and a direct donation on the style of the St. John's Orphanage Fund.

The statue which will be erected atop the new shrine between St. Mary's and Alumni Halls is being sculptured in Pietrasanta, Italy and is scheduled to arrive in New York in the next few weeks. Its cost will be over nineteen hundred dollars.

At a meeting in the library Thursday, Belle Air Ball chairmen began work for the February 27 Prom. Program decoration, and publicity chairmen have begun their jobs.

Entertainment chairman, Harry Anger expects to have definite word on the band shortly. The choices for the band have been narrowed down to Ralph Martieri, Claude Thornhill, Tex Beneke and Buddy Morrow.

Orphans

Features of this party will be student entertainment and the appearance of Santa Claus who will give each orphan a present. Committee members who have worked to the success of this affair are: George Kuhn and Dan Murphy, refreshment chairmen, Hank Smith, Santa Claus, and Bob Bishop and John Thornton, co-chairmen of the decorations.

Rally Kicks Off Basketball Year

Villanova's basketball season got off to a good start last Tuesday night as some 500 students attended a rally in the Field House.

Coach Alex Severance introduced the team members and gave a short talk on the prospects for the coming year. He stressed the fact that the team was young and inexperienced. Even the sophomores lack freshman experience, he said, due to last year's small six game schedule. Much of the burden will have to be carried by returning lettermen Bob Schafer and "Andy" Devine, captain of the team. He praised Schafer, last year's second high scorer, as one of the best ball players in the country and Devine for his fine all-around play.

Severence also pointed out that Villanova will play its usual rough schedule this year, including such top-ranked teams as Dayton, Seton Hall, and Duquesne.

DEGREES

Purpose — The Hughes Cooperative Fellowship Program has been established to enable outstanding graduates to pursue work for the Master of Science degree while employed in industry and making significant contributions to important military projects.

Eligibility — Eligible for consideration are students who will receive the B.S. degree during the coming year and members of the Armed Services being honorably separated and holding B.S. degrees. In either case the field of the B.S. degree must be:
ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING
PHYSICS, OR MECHANICAL ENGINEERING
The awards will be made to applicants who have evidenced outstanding ability and some degree of creativeness. They must also possess traits enabling them to work well with others.

Citizenship — Applicants must be United States citizens for whom appropriate security clearance can be obtained, as their work in the Hughes Laboratories may be related to National Defense projects.

Universities — Applicants must be able to meet the requirements for admission to graduate standing at the University of California at Los Angeles or the University of Southern California.

Program — Participants will be employed at Hughes full time in the summer and 25 hours a week during the university year while pursuing half-time graduate work.

Salaries — Recipients will earn five-eighths of a normal salary each year. This salary will be determined by the individual's qualifications and experience, and will reflect current salary practices in the electronics industry. Salary growth will be on the same basis as for full-time members of the scientific-engineering staff. Recipients will also be eligible for health, accident and life insurance benefits, as well as other privileges accruing to full-time staff members.

Sponsorship — Tuition, admission fee, and required books at either the University of California at Los Angeles or the University of Southern California, covering the number of units required to earn an M. S. degree, will be provided.

Travel Expenses — For those residing outside the Southern California area, actual travel and moving expenses to this area will be allowed up to 10 percent of the full starting annual salary.

Number of Awards — If a sufficient number of qualified candidates present themselves, as many as 100 Fellowships will be awarded each year.

Selection of Candidates — Candidates will be selected by the Committee for Graduate Study of Hughes Research and Development Laboratories.

Application Procedure — Application forms should be obtained immediately. Completed applications must be accompanied by detailed college transcripts.

Law Dean Heads Schola; Choir To Entertain Profs

Ambitious plans were announced for the 1953 Schola Cantorum last week by its director, Harold G. Ruschlein, Dean of Villanova University's Law School and former choir master and organist at the Church of St. Bernard of Clairvaux, the largest in the diocese of Pittsburgh.

First evidences of the group's pratice sessions will be on view at the Annual Faculty dinner given by Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O. S. A., president of Villanova, on Dec. 15.

Practice Underway

Dean Reuschlein expressed the desire to have the Schola Cantorum develope into a group able to sing a solemn High Mass from beginning to end. Already the students have begun practice on the ordinary of the Mass, put to modern setting by the late Pietro Yon. They will sing Yon's "Missa Regina Pacis".

Other types of approved music to be studied by the choir include the Propers of the Mass (Full Gregorian), according to the official Vatican melodies as found in approved editions of the "Liber Usualis"; and four part polyphomic numbers from the great masters of the 16th and 17th centuries.

Weekly Mass

Hopes are held for a weekly solemn High Mass in the chapel, sung by the Schola Cantorum. Present indications are that this will be an evening Mass.

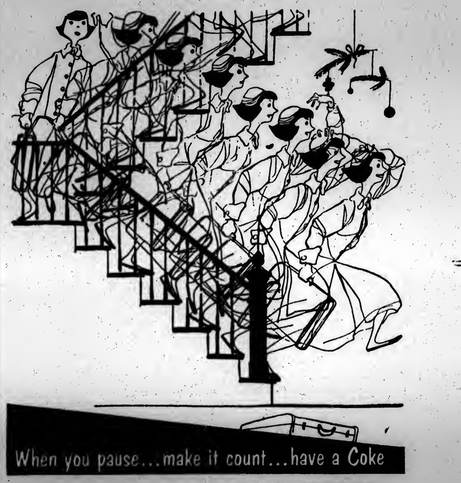
Also anticipated is aid in the form of cassock and surplices for the singers to enable them to function as a vested choir.

Meetings so far have been attended by 25 to 30 men each time. The success of the group depends on the maintenance of this initial enthusiasm, said Dean Ruschlein.

Schola At '53 Dinner

The Schola Cantorum will make its first appearance of the year at the annual faculty dinner given by the president of Villanova, Very Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O. S. A., on Dec. 15.

Under the direction of Harold Gill Ruschlein, Dean of the School of Law at Villanova, the choir will present four numbers for the faculty.



Rev. Robert M. Sullivan, O. S. A., Dean of the School of Arts and Sciences, will be soloist for the traditional "Adeste Fidelis."

Other numbers to be sung are: "Lo! How a Rose E'er Blooming", "Tollite Hostias" from the Christmas Oratorio by Camille Saint-Saens, "Beautiful Saviour", Franz Gruber's "Silent Night".

CONVOCATION

The place of a student in a University should be one of burning zeal. He must lend himself to the influence and leadership of the instructor and dutifully give himself to be molded in virtue.

Also at the convocation the seniors honored by listing in the Who's Who were praised by Father McGuire.

WVIL Broadcasts Tonite

WVIL, the radio voice of Villanova University at 640 on the radio dial, will resume broadcasting this evening, Wednesday, from 7:30 P.M. until 11:00 P.M., and will maintain regular broadcasting hours, Sunday through Thursday, at this time.

Broadcasting had been temporally suspended by Station Manager Dave Peterson to allow for reorganization of the technical and programing of the station.

The most significant change of the technical reorganization of the station was the introduction of transmission via carrier current rather than via antenna. By injecting the broadcast diretly into the power lines of the University, WVIL hopes to make its programs heard equally well throughout the campus. . . . . .

As for the revision of programs, a series of production shows has been inaugurated and will be presented Monday through Thursday from 8:30 to 9:00 P. M. Featured in these presentations will be the drama societies of Rosemont College, Immaculata College, and our own Belle Masque society. Production will be directed by Bernie Coyne and Harry Anger.

Meeting

There will be a meeting of all members of this year's 150-pound football club in the Blue Room of the Field House tomorrow morning at 10:30.

Late News

Rosemont's glee club will make its traditional visit to the Villanova chapel tomorrow night to present a program of Christmas carols. All students are invited.

Junior blazers will be delivered to the campus on or before December 15th, announced Tom Ulrich, Junior Blazer chairman. Balance of $22.50 will be paid at that time.

Freshmen Whip St. James High To Open Season

The potent Freshman basketball team opened its 21-game schedule in an impressive manner last Wednesday night as they toppled St. James 76-50.

Villanova built up a 37-26 half-time lead and coasted home, with Coach McDonnell substituted freely in the final half.

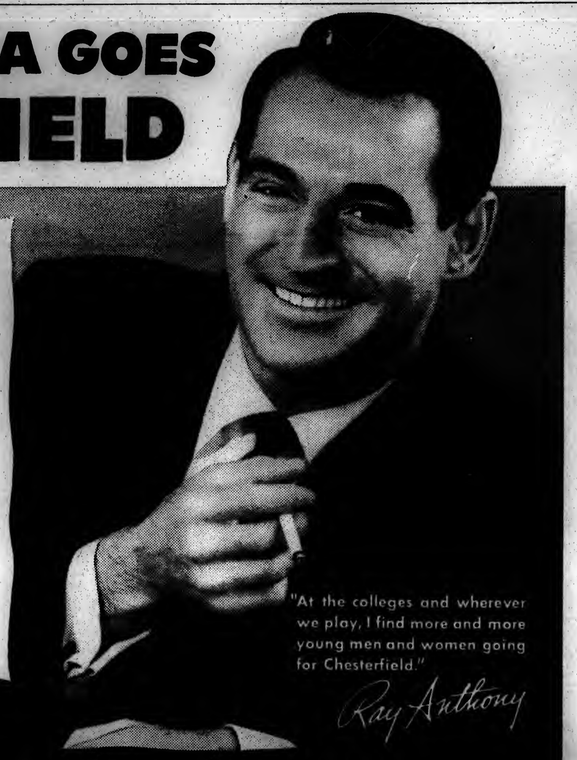
Jerry Wiesmann, Jim Smith, Sonny DiCarlo, and Bobby Powers paced the team. Wiesmann and Smith proved to be aggressive rebounders and DiCarlo and Powers smooth floor men. All four hit in the double figures.

On Friday afternoon the frosh made it two straight as they whipped West Catholic's champion club 74-66.

Bowling

The bowling alleys in the field house are open from 7:30 every evening under the direction of Stan Stone, the local bowling loops ace bowler, who is also providing free instructions.

J. Paul Sheedy* Switched to Wildroot Cream-Oil Because He Flunked The Finger-Nail Test



Here's a sad cotton tale: poor Paul was in a stew about his hare until his paw wrote: "I ear you got a bun on because your girl left you. Now, lettuce look at the bre'r facts. To get in on the bunny huggin', smart rabbits foot it down to any toilet goods counter for Wildroot Cream-Oil, America's biggest-selling hare tonic. So fuzz thing tomorrow, invest 29¢ in a bottle or handy tube. Contains soothing Lanolin. Non-alcoholic. Grooms the hare. Relieves annoying dryness. Removes loose, ugly dandruff. Helps you pass the Finger-Nail Test." Sheedy tried Wildroot Cream-Oil and now he's a jump ahead of every Tom, Dick and Harvey. So what're you waiting fur? McCORMICK ON COMMERCIALISM IN CHRISTMAS Page 2

Vol. 29—No. 9 VILLANOVA UNIVERSITY, VILLANOVA, PA. Dec. 15, 1953

President's Yule Message

My dear Villanova Students:

It is always a source of pleasure when this opportunity of saying "Merry Christmas" to you is afforded me. It is a happy occasion when we can congratulate each other on the fact that we together share the humanity which God's own Son shared with us centuries ago, and still shares with us.

It sometimes passes our notice that Christ's birth is really the most significant event in history. The passage of the centuries has even brought it about that we tend not to realize that Christ's birth—the birth of God's Son as a Human Being—was a true, historic event. It is as historically real as the assassination of Caesar, as the Battle of Hastings, as the Fall of Constantinople, as the D-Day landings on Omaha Beach. It is just as historical as the explosion of the first Atomic bomb.

Every Christmas day, then, is a celebration which should be chiefly a reminder. It should remind us of the great, sublime, and mysterious union, which took place in the person of Christ between God the Creator and Man His Creature. We shoud recall, as a consequence, the great dignity and value we have in the eyes of Almighty God merely, because we are Human Beings, for His Son was one of us.

The joy of Christmas, the real job, is derived from our recalling the meaning to us of Christ's birthday. The kindly generosity which characterizes Christmas can only be properly understood and acted upon when we remind ourselves that generosity is a response to joy. We give and receive because we are glad to give and receive as a token of the greater thing that all men now share together; the fact that God's Son was One of us.

Only a deep realization of the fact, and a corresponding deep return of Love from us (each one of us) to Christ on the anniversary of His Birth can make Christmas the Day that it should be.

God bless you and a Very Merry Christmas!

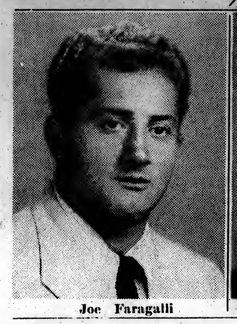
St. John's Boys Happy After "Day"

Three events in one week made the 1953 "Operation Yule" a great success. The first was the Charity Ball, held in the Field House on Monday night, Dec. 7, when more than three hundred couples danced to the music of the "Collegians".

On Thursday, the Alumni Orphan's Party was held at St. John's Home, with Hank Smith as Santa Claus, and a contingent from the Villanova Band and student entertainers providing the Christmas spirit. Each orphan received a present; this wasn't the end.

Visit Santa



On Saturday, the boys from Villanova showed up to take the children out for eats and entertainment. After lunch at two Horn and Hardart restaurants, which are located at 1508 Market St. and 244 North Broad st., the group went to Wanamaker's Department Store where the orphans made a visit to toyland and to Santa, followed by a brief Christmas play presented by the store.

At 1:30, the entire party went to the Commodore Theatre, which had been previously reserved, and saw an afternoon of special short subjects. After this the boys took the orphans back to the Home, where the big day came to a happy end.

A good crowd of local alumni filled the Main Ballroom of the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel last night for the 32nd Annual Football Banquet, sponsored by the Villanova Club of Philadelphia.

After dinner, the guests were addressed by Athletic Director Bud Dudley, principal speaker, and several other notables including Coach Art Raimo, Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O. S. A. University president, Very Reverend Joseph Dougherty, O. S. A. Provincial of the Augustinian Order and Reverend James Donnellon, Prior.

Awards

The presentation of five awards highlighted the evening. Recipients of honors were:

The 22nd Annual Loyalty Award—William H. Vincent, '28. This award is given each year to the alumnus who demonstrates the most zeal in alumni affairs and loyalty to Villanova.

The Most Valuable Player Award—Ralph Cecere. Presented to the player voted by his team-mates as most valuable in the recent campaign.

The Cyril J. Burke Award—Joe Faragalli '54, captain of the 1953 Wildcat squad, voted by the team the "Most Consistent Player" for the season.

New Award

Mailmen In White Bucks Hustle For Green Ones

Once again the Bunion Derby will begin for college students throughout the good old U. S. A. We gather up our relay keys and hit the mail trail.

The annual race for the shortest route and the easiest superintendent has begun. Starting Friday many of us will begin to lug mail for Uncle Sam's Post Office in the quest for Christmas and Prom money.

Street addresses once unheard of will become as familiar as our own, and every dog will be looked upon with suspicion. An extra dog-biscuit will become standard equipment for the foresighted.

Those with indoor work can look forward to stacking, sorting, or deciphering. The last is the most fun, since you can sometimes reroute a particularly illegible letter to Chicago or Kansas City. The stamping of packages marked "Fragile—Use Hand Stamp" is usually another sought after-job indoor. Probably the most-disliked and shunned task is that behind the stamp counter. A clamor has recently been raised by these clerks petitioning for peppermint-flavored glue, such as is put on some envelopes, for the backs of the stamps. In any case, the $1.565 per hour will come in handy. Anybody have some extra corn-plasters?

Villanova Night

Villanova's annual night at Frank Dailey's Meadowbrook will be held December 27, Dan Paris and Jack Soley, Co-chairmen, stated last weeks.

Johnny Long's band will headline the evening's entertainment. The Meadowbrook is located in Cedar Grove, New Jersey. Reservations can be made through the campus representatives at their rooms, 106 or 116 Fedigan Hall.

"INJUN JOE" SADOWSKY gets a going over by boys at St. John's Orphanage during their Christmas party Thursday afternoon. Some 330 orphans enjoyed the annual affair sponsored by the Junior Class.

The Real Source

We hear much talk today of the terms, "human dignity, human rights and human freedom". Statesmen everyday are firing these words at the public. In the United Nations they are noted among the very ends of that great international body.

Man has been seeking the achievement of these ends for many centuries and at the present time the search continues, probably on a larger scale and with more concentrated efforts than ever before.

But, where is man searching? We find him delving into the records of States for the bases of these rights and revealing them as gifts of the state. Great politicians proclaim them as if they were pouring these gifts upon the people themselves. Dictators seek these rights by conquering the masses of the people and in our "just" democracy human rights are gained "by the majority vote of the people."

We dare say: "All this searching is in vain." Man is searching for an assurance of these principles in utter darkness while the source of his quest is shining in his face.

On Christmas Day we celebrate not only a great birthday but the descent of Almighty God from heaven to take upon himself the flesh and blood which he constituted to be man—demonstrating the means by which every man assumes all his rights, his freedom, his dignity —by the union of the human and the divine.

Man is only man by virtue of his immortal soul. He is only raised above the animal order because he embodies a two fold nature—body and soul.

Why then do we search the courts for the true source of our rights, when it is manifest before our eyes in the Feast of Christmas. Human dignity is a gift of Almighty God and if we are to preserve it today we must turn to him . . . not to any human source.

Let us at Christmas time turn our hearts toward the Christ child and reaffirm our faith, our realization, that only thorough true Christian endeavor can we preserve our great heritage of "human rights, dignity, and freedom."

In this the last issue of the Villanovan before Christmas, we, the editors and staff extend our sincerest wishes for a happy and holy Christmas and a bright and promising New Year for each of our readers.

Not Too Early

At the risk of being premature, we'd like to let you in on our New Year's resolutions, however heady and journalistic they may be. The Villanovan, in the coming year, resolves to:

✓Support the seniors in their campaign to raise $2000 among themselves to donate the statue of Our Lady of Good Counsel to the University.

✓Give impetus, in no uncertain terms, to the re-establishment of the Villanova Forum. We believe it unthinkable that a forward -looking university should be without a program of lectures presented by outside authorities on many fields.

✓Put our full weight behind the University's Development Program, keping our readers informed of both plans and progress of the drive to expand Villanova.

✓Support Athletic Director Dudley's idea to form a Northeast League of Eastern football independents.

✓And finally, maintain the highest standards of journalism. presenting accurate and objective news and commentary, while consciously building Villanova's "case" wherever the Villanovan is read.

Franco Avoids World War; Spanish Economy Recovers

By Ed Daly

Franco's supporters in the Spanish Civil War came of several different politicial groups united in opposition to the Loyalist regime. Generally speaking they were conservative in their views, although the excesses of the Loyalists forced some persons of more or less liberal views to side with Franco as the lesser of the two evils. Two of the more important political groups favoring the Nationalists (as Franco's supporters were called) were the Carlists, a highly conservative, deeply Catholic monarchist group dominant in Navarre, and a quasi-Fascist party known as the Falange.

Falange Movement

The latter party became dominant in Spain and received a place in the Spanish political system resembling, but not equal to, that of the Italian Fascist party. A governmental and economic system resembling that of Italy was set up, and the Grand Council of the Falange was granted great powers, the Cortes, or Parliament, being retained only as a consultative body whose members were mostly appointed by Franco. General Franco himself was proclaimed prime minister, generalissimo, national chief of the Falange, and Caudillo (Leader) of Spain.

Pro-Axis Sentiment

The outbreak of the Second World War placed Franco in a very difficult position. Hitler and Mussolini, although certainly not from altruistic motives, had given him enormous aid during the Civil War. He, himself, had signed the Anti-Comintern Pact with the Axis powers in April, 1939, thus definitely linking Spain to the Axis. The Falange Party had a deep sympathy for the Italian Fascist Party, and Serrano Suner, Franco's brother-in-law and Foreign Minister, was strongly pro-Axis.

But Franco realized that Spain had to have peace. Time would be required to restore the shattered Spanish economy, to repair the damages done in the Civil War, and to establish his government on a really firm foundation. Outside of all this, Spain was war-weary after thirty-two months of fighting.

German Support

Consequently he temporized with the Nazis. He permitted Germany to buy the Wolfram ore desperately needed for their war effort. After the outbreak of war with Russia, he sent the Blue Legion, a force of Spanish volunteers, to aid the Germans. He permitted the Axis powers virtually unlimited propaganda within Spain's borders. But he did not actually declare war on the side of Germany and Italy.

Indeed at the same time he was also rendering aid to the Allies. He permitted French volunteers to pass through Spain to join DeGaulle. He even allowed Allied airmen to cross Spanish territory to rejoin their forces, a palpable violation of International Law. Far from excluding the Allies from the Wolfram market, he welcomed them, since their purchese drove the Germans to bid higher, thereby increasing the Spanish profit. His very neutrality aided the Allied cause, since Spanish participation on either side might have rendered Gibraltar untenable, in the event of a German invasion of Spain as much as in that of a Spanish attack on the British fortress.

Switch Of Support

When he felt convinced that victory would be with the Allies, Franco took more positive steps. He gradually withdrew the Blue Legion from Russia. He excluded Germany from the Wolfram market. Most significant of all, he ousted Serrano Suner from his post as foreign minister, and replaced him with an officinl known to be friendly to the Allies.

Franco's policy may be critized as being one of mere expediency, but it should be noted that any other course would have involved Spain in disaster. Certainly the balance of Franco's activities during the Second World War favors the Allies rather than the Axis, a fact that is often forgotten in this country.

Christmas '53 Let's Bounce Scrooge

By M. McCormick

Christmas means many things to many people. Mention of the holiday presents to some people visions of aggressive shoppers, weary clerks, and ugly neckties. For others it may mean an excuse for a little rest or a lot of noise.

Some well-intentioned people consider Christmas an occasion for transplanting a tree from the front of the grocery store to the front room and hiding it under a blanket of shredded tin.

Christmas day is popularly stretched into a month or more. It seems that the last summer's heat wave has hardly passed before stores begin featuring Christmas displays and a universal shout goes up: "Get your Christmas shopping done Early!" Before the indigestion from Thanksgiving has departed the radio begins to offer soothing renditions of "Silent Night".

The nostalgic Christmas Carol of Charles Dickens is offered again by a tired Lionel Barrymore. Scrooge seems more the villian every year. The favorite early-story expression of Scrooge is "humbug!". This term very aptly applies to much which masquerades today as the Christmas Spirit.

The essence of modern Christmas spirit is spirits at Christmas. It is evident that the exchanging of gifts has devoted into a duty for many. (And you had better be good because Santa is coming.) If Christmas means no more than gift-giving it might as well be any day in the year.

If the exchange of gifts is to be continued as a custom at Christmas it will have no importance, other than to the merchant, unless the giving represents a proof of love. "The gift without the giver is bare", but also the gift of little material value if accompanied by love is everything.

Certainly a de-emphasis of the commercial aspects of Christmas is necessary.

This is not intended to be a rejection of the notion that Christmas should be a season of good cheer and merriment. Man has every right to be joyful over the birth of mankind's Savior, but he should not forget why he may be joyful.

The remedy for all the distortions about Christmas is contained in the simple recognition that the holiday celebrates the birthday of Christ and that this anniversary is commemorated so that man will not neglect to have hope and faith.

It is a modern fad to go through the formalities of this aspect of Christmas. Custom dictates church-going for many, but this phase of the holiday is watered down and its appreciation is probably more apparent than real.

Christmas is a beautiful, wonderful occasion and should be observed in a sincere manner. It offers the perpetual hope of peace on earth and good will toward men.

EDITORS IN RUSSIA . . .

Three college editors are in Soviet Russia this week as a result of an idea that hit them last spring.

Daniel Berger, editor of the Oberlin (Ohio) Record, Mark Edmond, editor of the Colorado Daily, and Zander Hollander, feature editor of the Michigan Daily, were among seven United States editors who requested and were given permission to tour Russia and inspect Soviet University and college newspaper facilities.

The other four editors who were granted the trip said they couldn't make it because of their college registration dates.

The trio has been allowed free hand to roam Moscow streets, and to plan their own activities. They were even permitted to walk in and out of Soviet classrooms, questioning students and instructors.

Pity The Poor Consumer

By Rees James

EVER SINCE I REACHED that consummate position in life when a young man can enter a store with complete savoir-faire, request a specific object from the debonair clerk, place his own money into the clerk's hand, and emerge from that store a sanguine and satisfied sharer in our system of free enterprise, I have envied people who can successfully do those very things.

Fashionable Vestments

Close to a month ago I decided I needed a new suit. I wanted a salt-and-pepper gray flannel, single breasted suit with three buttons, narrow lapels, and a high gorge. I wanted these fashionable vestments and nothing else. One hour and thirteen minutes later I left the same store owning a midnight blue with a one-button roll, sixteen-inch pegs, a light blue hemstitch, and pistol pockets. I also possessed a pair of blue and white suede shoes, a white suede belt, three pastel shirts with spread collars, and a shaken spirit.

This is what happened. From past experience, I realized that when entering the store, I must look calm, poised, and have the mien of a Back Bay aristocrat. I squared my shoulders and entered. I am quite certain that all the clerks and floorwalkers turned to observe me, began whispering animatedly to each other. I wasn't going to be defeated this quickly. I straightened my tie, adopted an even more smug look, raise my head high, and walked head-on into the floorwalker.

"May I help you, young man?" he asked me pleasantly as he dusted off his pants.

"I would like a suit for myself," I replied bravely.

He led me through the plain pipe racks to a sinister looking man with inch-thick glasses, a wrinkled yellow tape around his neck, and no hair.

"Yes?" he wheezed.

In Command?

In a clear and emphatic manner, I told him exactly what I wanted. I was in complete command of the situation. At last, I thought, I am no longer at their mercy. He told me he had just the thing. The sinister man then brought a suit into view resembling the color of grass in Technicolor movies.

"No," I said, wincing. "Gray, gray flannel."

"A little too bright for you, eh?" he said knowingly.

He brought out an orange suite, then a darker green, then a cream, and finally a powder blue.

"G-g-gray flannel," I was beginning to stammer.

"The girls really go for these suits," he replied, nudging me familiarly.

"I'd like something a little more conservative," I whimpered.

"I have a nice midnight blue," he said, a little more sternly.

A beaten man, I relented.

"We have some nice shirts."

"NO SHIRTS!"

"We have them in plain spread collars or 'Mr. B' rolls. In fucia, lavender, chartreuse, or tutti-frutti. French or plain.

"No shir . . ."

Clerk Wins

I staggered blindly from the store. I was broken. My shoulders sagged from the weight of defeat and packages. I am sure I heard the people in the store applauding the clerk. The jocular strains of "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" followed me down the street and into a bar.

"I'll have a bottle of Millers." said I, with a pity-seeking look.

"Esslingers is a nice beer," the bartender blandly replied.

Suddenly his jovial countenance turned pale with fright as a massive, snarling monster clawed its way over the bar.

FRANCE: A FLYING SEMINAR . . .

Two professors at the Sorbonne have started holding their classes up in the sky, and teaching method has been so successful that beginning this semester the "flying seminar" will be a required course in the natural science department.

The idea has proved particulary good in the study of geography and geology, but the professors promise to improve instruction in enthnology, botany, zoology, archeology, city planning and physics by use of the airplane, too.

Their system is this: first a lecture on the ground, then a flight over the area being studied. A second lecture—or actually a brief period of description, since there isn't time to give a real lecture—takes place in the plane, which holds 40. Students listen to the instructor's words through earphones to eliminate the noise of the plane's motor.

Students learn much more on one of these flights, the professors say, than they previously did by spending many lecture hours before a map.

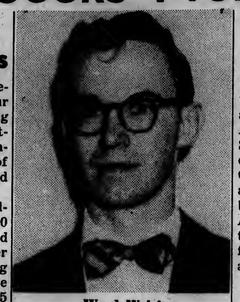
Seniors WILL Buy Statue; Anger Seeks Prom Band



Classroom Poll Reveals Opinions

The Class of 1954 will definitely donate the statue of Our Lady of Good Counsel according to the results of the poll conducted last week in the eight senior religion sections. A total of 323 of the 380 seniors returned the questionaires.

When asked if they were willing to donate the necessary $5.00 per person, 199 seniors agreed while 102 said "no". In the other important question concerning how many were in favor of the donation, the count was 185-135 in the affirmative. But of the 135 negative votes only 54 were not willing to go along with the plan even if the rest of the class voted to approve it.

Breaking those figures down to a percentage basis, 61.6% were willing to donate the five dollars, 57.2% were in favor of the donation and only 16.7% of those polled were not willing to abide by the decision of the class.

Concerning the method used to collect the money, 173 agreed to a direct donation spread of a period of time while 105 wanted the donation connected with

Class President Ted Sheehan said that he was quite pleased by the results of the poll. "There is no doubt left now that there is big enough sentiment in the class to go through with the donation. It is just another example of the generous attitude this class has for any good cause."

The exact mechanics of the collection system will be worked out over the vacation and the next edition of the "Villanovan" will publish them.

Chairmen Plan Feb. Weekend

"Final word on the band for the Belle Air Ball will be heard any day now," says Harry Anger, entertainment chairman. Since narrowing the choices down to four, Ralph Martieri, Claude Thornhill, Tex Beneke, and Buddy Morrow, Anger has been negotiating with the United Artists Corporation in New York to get the best band possible for a price the senior class can afford.

All the above mentioned bands are free on February 26th, the night of the prom.

Decoration chairmen Joe McGarigle and Hal Pickett, working with Prom chairman Ward Welsh, have completed plans for their big job. "We've got some terrific ideas", commented Welsh, "and access to just about all the materials we'll need. We're going to need plenty of help, though, when the actual work begins."

Faculty To Nominate 9 For Arts, Science Honors

Rev. Robert M. Sullivan, O. S.A., Dean of the School of Arts and Sciences, last week gave the first announcement concerning eligibility and requirements for membership in the Catholic Honor Society, Delta Epsilon Sigma.

The honorary society is based almost entirely on marks, he said. The preliminary requirement is membership in the School of Arts and Sciences with a cumulative average of 3.00 or above.

The National Catholic Education Association sponsors the society. Present national offices are in Kansas City, Missouri.

Selections

Students are picked on the basis of marks and "contribution to Catholic intellectual life which the student is likely to make as a graduate." Faculty selectors are Father Sullivan, Rev. John McShea, O. S. A., Associate Professor of English; Rev. Edward F. Jenkins, O. S. A., Associate Professor of Chemistry; Dr. John I. McEnerney, Associate Professor of Classics; and Dr. John A. McLain, Professor of Biology.

Seniors Eligible

Nominees will be seniors with the necessary average. They will then be required to write a paper on one of three or four assigned books. Nine men will be picked from the approximately twelve to be nominated by the faculty selectors. Transfer students who spent two years at other schools will not be eligible for nomination.

Induction of successful candidates will take place immediately after Easter.

Univ. Welcomes Dr. Geo. E. Matlin

Dr. George E. Matlin has joined the University staff as Assistant Placement director and instructor in Mathematics of Finance, it was announced last week.

Dr. Matlin comes to Villanova from Penn State. He was originally at St. Francis of Loretto Pa. After receiving his Bachelors degree in 1942 at St. Francis, where he played varsity football and baseball and was adjudged the most valuable player in his senior year (football), he joined the service.

His 46 months in service were spent in Africa, Italy and Japan. His last position in the Army was an advisory one with ASCOMO in Kobe, Japan.

Upon his honorable discharge in '46, he returned to St. Francis as Graduate Manager of Athletics and backfield coach of the football team. Head Coach was Jim Leonard, who later became head coach at Villanova. Dr. Matlin then went to Penn State and received his Ph. D. there in Aug., 1953.

Frosh-All-Star Tilt Proposed For Intramurals

With the basketball league, which got underway on Nov. 17, began a full program of intramural activities, outlined by Villanova's busy Athletic Director, Ed Geisz. Other activities, including chess, checkers, and gin rummy tournaments, will round out the winter intramural program.

Includes 50 teams

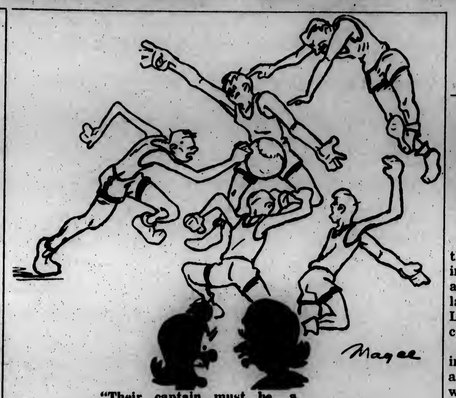
The fifty teams which make up the basketball league are divided into 12 sections, with each team playing five games before the Christmas holidays. Leading the league thus far are the Fedigo Ramblers, paced by Dan Paris and Joe Kenney, with a 3-0 record. At the conclusion of the season, on Feb. 17, there will be a round-robin palyoff between the winner of each section to decide the league champ.

Highlights of the present basketball league will be a proposed game in the Field House between the Freshmen team and the Intramurals All-Stars. The playoffs for the league championship will also be played on the Field House hardwood.

John Cirino

The tennis league, which ended two weeks ago, was dominated by the fine play of Terry Cooke, who topped 70 entries to capture the tennis title. Cooke will compete against the Philadelphia tennis pro, Bill Kenny, in a feature match next spring.

Again lending his talents to the intramuarls scene, Cooke outclassed 132 ping-pong aspirants to gain top honors in that tourney, which was concluded last week. The chess tournament, being held in the Blue Room of the Field House, has 52 Villanovans vying for top honors.



Girl Keglers

In the planning stage is the program of girls' bowling, which will get underway at the beginning of next year, along with proposed gin rummy and checker leagues. Pin boys will be supplied for the co-eds by the intramural department.

This full schedule of intramurals will last until the spring, when an extensive program consisting of water basketball, swimming, volleyball, track, and horseshoes will go into effect.

Stokes Wrecks Liners; First Loss of Season

'Dutch's' 31 Tops

By Bruce Mantin

Villanova dropped its first game of the season Saturday night at the Palestra to St. Francis College of Pennsylvania, 72 to 65.

The Wildcats trailed the whole game but in the last few minutes finally started to click, as they had in past games, to close a sixteen point margin to seven. Possibly if time hadn't run out the 'Cats might have been able to pull it out.

St. Francis, paced by towering 6.6" center Maurice Stokes was able to control the backboards most of the game, and that was the difference. Stokes gathered in 26 rebounds to lead both teams in that department.

Bobby Schafer paced the Mainliners with 31 points, followed by Jack Devine's 13 and Larry Tierney's 10. Until the last few minutes when the Wildcats started playing as in other games, Tierney seemed to be holding the team together with his exceptional floor play. Devine played his usual fine game as did Schafer who hit for 11 field goals and nine out of ten fouls.

St. Francis jumped to a quick first quarter lead, 24 to 14, led by Stoke's fine ball handling and rebounding and Dugan's great outside shots.

Villanova won the second quarter 17-15 but dropped the third 16-11 as St. Francis started playing possession basketball. With the Spirited last few minutes drive the 'Cats took the last period scoring honors 23-17 paced by Schafer, Devine and Tierney.

The whole difference can be seen in the totals. St. Francis sunk 27 of the 66 shots they took for 41%, while Villanova only was able to drop 24 of 87 shots taken or 26%. Add this to Stoke's great rebounding and you have the victory of St. Francis.

More than likely, if the 'Cats had found themselves earlier the outcome would have been different.

Villanova stands four victories to one defeat thus far this season. The Blue and White journey to Princeton, New Jersey to meet the Tigers of Princeton University tonight.

Mainliners Travel To Princeton; Xavier Next

Loyola Fourth Victim; Schafer Big Gun, 73-53

By Joe Heaps

Villanova's first away game of the still-young season resulted in a 73-53 romp for Al Severance's aggregation in Baltimore last Wednesday night against Loyola in a sometimes-sloppy contest.

Bob Schafer, again maintaining his near 30 point per game average, scored 28 to lead the winners' offensive.

An early 8-0 lead in the first period gave the Wildcats running room from the start and Loyola never held the upper hand after that. The Greyhounds put forth their best effort in the third period, scoring on an even par with the Main Liners— netting 17 points.

Rebounding Factor

Superior board strength was a major factor in Villanova's fourth straight win. John Devine and John Cirino gathered in 30 rebounds between them to limit most Loyola scoring efforts to one try.

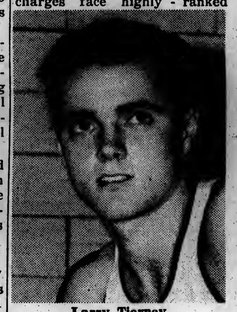
Drives from the weave provided the main punch in the Wildcat attack, and supplemented by Schafer's outside shooting and 10 for 12 mark on the foul line, off-set the 24-point performance by Loyola's ace, Joel Hittleman.

Cirino, with 12 counters, and Devine and Marty Milligan, with 9 each, backed Schafer in the scoring column. Tom Foley contributed 6 points and 8 rebounds in the last half.

14-Point Halftime Lead

Villanova was in front by 14 points at halftime. The losers sliced the gap down to 51-41 late in the third period, however, but the visitors untilized the comeback powers they have displayed so effectively of late and rallied to a 55-41 edge by the end of that period. By this time Severance was substituting freely.

Loyola was decidedly handicapped by the absence of a sound outside shot, and was futile in its attempts to drive down the middle by an effective VU defense.



Tonight the 'Cats travel to Princeton, N. J., where they'll meet the Princeton Tigers, their lone Ivy League opponents of the year, in a pre-holiday game, before the typically - rough Christmas schedule descends upon Villanova's hoopsters.

Mindful of last year's 8-point defeat at the hands of the Wildcats, the Tigers will be out to avenge themselves, and with their 2-1-2 zone defense, plus the fact they they are playing on their home court, they should prove quite an obstacle for the Liners, as they look to their holiday struggles.

Then Xavier

Open against the Musketeers from Xavier on Dec. 16 at the Palestra, a team which is always a threat, the Cats will have to face fine ball players in Bob Heim, and Chuck Hofmann, the sparkplugs of the Xavier club. The following day, Villanova travels up to Buffalo where they counter Jim Young and Co. of Canisius, another dangerous team, before turning South, to the Kentucky Tournament.

On Dec. 28, Al Severance's charges face highly - ranked

Larry Tierney

Louisville in the Tournament opener, which should prove to be a thrilling tilt, as Peck Hickman's aggregation is ranked 14th in the country, and boast such standout performers as John Prudhoe, a 6'11" center, who is an excellent rebounder, Chuck Noble, a forward who gained an All-South berth by his outstanding performances on the hardwood last year, and vast bench strength that should prove them almost unbeatable.

Should the Cats prove victorious in the Louisville opener. then they would go on to meet the Xavier-Murray State game winner in the second round of the Tournament, on Dec. 29. Other entrants in the Tournament which the Liners might have to face include: Western Kentucky, Eastern Kentucky, Siena, and Houston.

Four Possibilities

Returning home from the Tournament, the club takes a three day rest before meeting North Carolina State at the Palestra on Jan. 2. The Wolfpack, ranked tenth in the nation, boasts such standouts as Mel Thompson, who tallied 536 points last season, Dave Gotkin, All-Southern choice last year, and a bevy of superlative sophomores who make this year's

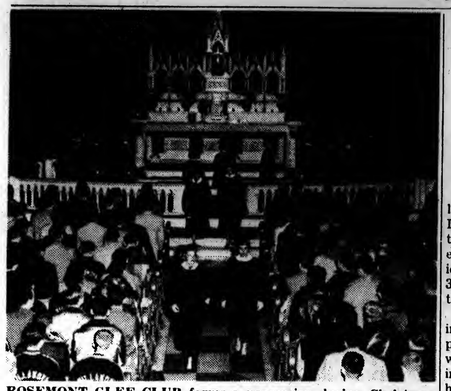
Coleman Award To Dwyer

Fred Dwyer, the Mainliners' champion miler, and nucleus of Villanova's track clubs for the last 4 years, was awarded the "Buck" Coleman trophy as the "outstanding trackman at Villanova University."



The Wildcats' triple-threat halfback, Ralph Cecere, was also named last night as the recipient of the Most Valuable Player Award given by the National Alumni Association. Cecere, who earlier in the season was named as the outstanding player in the nation throughout the opening two weeks, was cited because of his combined offensive and defensive contributions to the Wildcat's 1953 grid machine.

Fred Dwyer

Also honored was Joe Faragalli, the club's 225-pound right tackle, who received the Cyril J. Burke award as the squad's most consistent player. Faragalli, the '53 Captain, was the team's inspirational leader in additional to his steady, outstanding play during the season.

All awards were made at the thirty-second annual football banquet sponsored by the Villanova Club of Philadelphia. Awards of miniature gold football helmets were made to all the seniors on the squad, including the managers. Principal speeches were made by Art Raimo, football head coach, and Ambrose "Bud" Dudley, Villanova's Athletic Director.

Dr. George E. Matlin has joined the University staff as Assistant Placement director and instructor in Mathematics of Finance, it was announced last week.

Dr. Matlin comes to Villanova from Penn State. He was originally at St. Francis of Loretto Pa. After receiving his Bachelors degree in 1942 at St. Francis, where he played varsity football and baseball and was adjudged the most valuable player in his senior year (football), he joined the service.

His 46 months in service were spent in Africa, Italy and Japan. His last position in the Army was an advisory one with ASCOMO in Kobe, Japan.

Upon his honorable discharge in '46, he returned to St. Francis as Graduate Manager of Athletics and backfield coach of the football team. Head Coach was Jim Leonard, who later became head coach at Villanova. Dr. Matlin then went to Penn State and received his Ph. D. there in Aug., 1953.

MALVERN PREP DANCE

All alumni and friends of Malvern Preparatory School are invited to a dance to be held on Dec. 30, at the Warwick Hotel, 18th and Locust Sts. in Philadelphia. The affair will be semi-formal, lasting from 9 'til 1, with tickets at $5.00 per couple on sale at the door, or from campus representatives Edwin K. Daly.

ASME ACTIVITY

Senior Michael Kelly presented his paper on Dust Filtration at a meeting of the Villanova Chapter of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers last Dec. 7.

The paper covered the construction and application of filters to insure the safety of workers and to keep the atmosphere of communities pure.

Later in the week, on Dec. 11, an informal smoker was held, at which movies of the Fordham and Syracuse games were shown.

Yesterday, Dec. 14, Mr. Henry Lawson, an engineering specialist from General Electric, spoke to the members on gas turbines.

Frosh-All-Star Tilt Proposed For Intramurals

With the basketball league, which got underway on Nov. 17, began a full program of intramural activities, outlined by Villanova's busy Athletic Director, Ed Geisz. Other activities, including chess, checkers, and gin rummy tournaments, will round out the winter intramural program.

Includes 50 teams

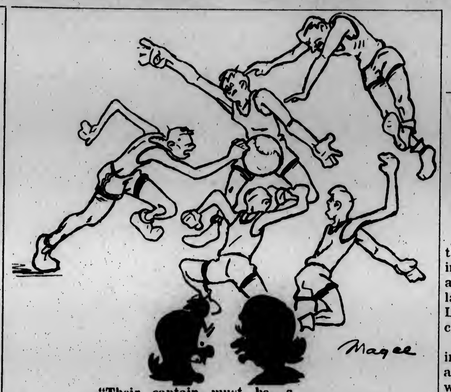
The fifty teams which make up the basketball league are divided into 12 sections, with each team playing five games before the Christmas holidays. Leading the league thus far are the Fedigo Ramblers, paced by Dan Paris and Joe Kenney, with a 3-0 record. At the conclusion of the season, on Feb. 17, there will be a round-robin palyoff between the winner of each section to decide the league champ.

Highlights of the present basketball league will be a proposed game in the Field House between the Freshmen team and the Intramurals All-Stars. The playoffs for the league championship will also be played on the Field House hardwood.

John Cirino

The tennis league, which ended two weeks ago, was dominated by the fine play of Terry Cooke, who topped 70 entries to capture the tennis title. Cooke will compete against the Philadelphia tennis pro, Bill Kenny, in a feature match next spring.

Again lending his talents to the intramuarls scene, Cooke outclassed 132 ping-pong aspirants to gain top honors in that tourney, which was concluded last week. The chess tournament, being held in the Blue Room of the Field House, has 52 Villanovans vying for top honors.



Girl Keglers

In the planning stage is the program of girls' bowling, which will get underway at the beginning of next year, along with proposed gin rummy and checker leagues. Pin boys will be supplied for the co-eds by the intramural department.

This full schedule of intramurals will last until the spring, when an extensive program consisting of water basketball, swimming, volleyball, track, and horseshoes will go into effect.

Stokes Wrecks Liners; First Loss of Season

'Dutch's' 31 Tops

By Bruce Mantin

Villanova dropped its first game of the season Saturday night at the Palestra to St. Francis College of Pennsylvania, 72 to 65.

The Wildcats trailed the whole game but in the last few minutes finally started to click, as they had in past games, to close a sixteen point margin to seven. Possibly if time hadn't run out the 'Cats might have been able to pull it out.

St. Francis, paced by towering 6.6" center Maurice Stokes was able to control the backboards most of the game, and that was the difference. Stokes gathered in 26 rebounds to lead both teams in that department.

Bobby Schafer paced the Mainliners with 31 points, followed by Jack Devine's 13 and Larry Tierney's 10. Until the last few minutes when the Wildcats started playing as in other games, Tierney seemed to be holding the team together with his exceptional floor play. Devine played his usual fine game as did Schafer who hit for 11 field goals and nine out of ten fouls.

St. Francis jumped to a quick first quarter lead, 24 to 14, led by Stoke's fine ball handling and rebounding and Dugan's great outside shots.

Villanova won the second quarter 17-15 but dropped the third 16-11 as St. Francis started playing possession basketball. With the Spirited last few minutes drive the 'Cats took the last period scoring honors 23-17 paced by Schafer, Devine and Tierney.

The whole difference can be seen in the totals. St. Francis sunk 27 of the 66 shots they took for 41%, while Villanova only was able to drop 24 of 87 shots taken or 26%. Add this to Stoke's great rebounding and you have the victory of St. Francis.

More than likely, if the 'Cats had found themselves earlier the outcome would have been different.

Villanova stands four victories to one defeat thus far this season. The Blue and White journey to Princeton, New Jersey to meet the Tigers of Princeton University tonight.

Mainliners Travel To Princeton; Xavier Next

Loyola Fourth Victim; Schafer Big Gun, 73-53

By Joe Heaps

Villanova's first away game of the still-young season resulted in a 73-53 romp for Al Severance's aggregation in Baltimore last Wednesday night against Loyola in a sometimes-sloppy contest.

Bob Schafer, again maintaining his near 30 point per game average, scored 28 to lead the winners' offensive.

An early 8-0 lead in the first period gave the Wildcats running room from the start and Loyola never held the upper hand after that. The Greyhounds put forth their best effort in the third period, scoring on an even par with the Main Liners— netting 17 points.

Rebounding Factor

Superior board strength was a major factor in Villanova's fourth straight win. John Devine and John Cirino gathered in 30 rebounds between them to limit most Loyola scoring efforts to one try.

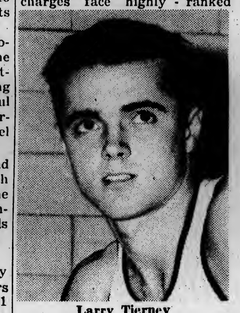
Drives from the weave provided the main punch in the Wildcat attack, and supplemented by Schafer's outside shooting and 10 for 12 mark on the foul line, off-set the 24-point performance by Loyola's ace, Joel Hittleman.

Cirino, with 12 counters, and Devine and Marty Milligan, with 9 each, backed Schafer in the scoring column. Tom Foley contributed 6 points and 8 rebounds in the last half.

14-Point Halftime Lead

Villanova was in front by 14 points at halftime. The losers sliced the gap down to 51-41 late in the third period, however, but the visitors untilized the comeback powers they have displayed so effectively of late and rallied to a 55-41 edge by the end of that period. By this time Severance was substituting freely.

Loyola was decidedly handicapped by the absence of a sound outside shot, and was futile in its attempts to drive down the middle by an effective VU defense.



Tonight the 'Cats travel to Princeton, N. J., where they'll meet the Princeton Tigers, their lone Ivy League opponents of the year, in a pre-holiday game, before the typically - rough Christmas schedule descends upon Villanova's hoopsters.

Mindful of last year's 8-point defeat at the hands of the Wildcats, the Tigers will be out to avenge themselves, and with their 2-1-2 zone defense, plus the fact they they are playing on their home court, they should prove quite an obstacle for the Liners, as they look to their holiday struggles.

Then Xavier

Open against the Musketeers from Xavier on Dec. 16 at the Palestra, a team which is always a threat, the Cats will have to face fine ball players in Bob Heim, and Chuck Hofmann, the sparkplugs of the Xavier club. The following day, Villanova travels up to Buffalo where they counter Jim Young and Co. of Canisius, another dangerous team, before turning South, to the Kentucky Tournament.

On Dec. 28, Al Severance's charges face highly - ranked

Larry Tierney

Louisville in the Tournament opener, which should prove to be a thrilling tilt, as Peck Hickman's aggregation is ranked 14th in the country, and boast such standout performers as John Prudhoe, a 6'11" center, who is an excellent rebounder, Chuck Noble, a forward who gained an All-South berth by his outstanding performances on the hardwood last year, and vast bench strength that should prove them almost unbeatable.

Should the Cats prove victorious in the Louisville opener. then they would go on to meet the Xavier-Murray State game winner in the second round of the Tournament, on Dec. 29. Other entrants in the Tournament which the Liners might have to face include: Western Kentucky, Eastern Kentucky, Siena, and Houston.

Four Possibilities

Returning home from the Tournament, the club takes a three day rest before meeting North Carolina State at the Palestra on Jan. 2. The Wolfpack, ranked tenth in the nation, boasts such standouts as Mel Thompson, who tallied 536 points last season, Dave Gotkin, All-Southern choice last year, and a bevy of superlative sophomores who make this year's

Coleman Award To Dwyer

Fred Dwyer, the Mainliners' champion miler, and nucleus of Villanova's track clubs for the last 4 years, was awarded the "Buck" Coleman trophy as the "outstanding trackman at Villanova University."

The Wildcats' triple-threat halfback, Ralph Cecere, was also named last night as the recipient of the Most Valuable Player Award given by the National Alumni Association. Cecere, who earlier in the season was named as the outstanding player in the nation throughout the opening two weeks, was cited because of his combined offensive and defensive contributions to the Wildcat's 1953 grid machine.

Fred Dwyer

Also honored was Joe Faragalli, the club's 225-pound right tackle, who received the Cyril J. Burke award as the squad's most consistent player. Faragalli, the '53 Captain, was the team's inspirational leader in additional to his steady, outstanding play during the season.

All awards were made at the thirty-second annual football banquet sponsored by the Villanova Club of Philadelphia. Awards of miniature gold football helmets were made to all the seniors on the squad, including the managers. Principal speeches were made by Art Raimo, football head coach, and Ambrose "Bud" Dudley, Villanova's Athletic Director.

HIGH FLYING BOB SCHAFER takes a jump shot over the hands of St. Francis' (Loretto, Pa.) 6'6" center, Maurice Stokes at the Palestra Saturday night. Mainliners dropped the game 72-65 as Schafer tallied 31 points.

SPORTS CHATTER

By Dick Confoy

Villanova's All-Opponent team, not yet completed, will feature Zeke Bratkowski at quarterback, with Carson (Georgia) and Perkins (Syracuse) at ends. Kentucky will probably place the most men on the team, with Correl at guard, Adkins at center and Paolone in the fullback slot.

1954 Schedule

The football slate for 1954 will probably include seven road games, including the only newcomer to the schedule so far, Florida State. Other contests away from home will be at Kentucky, Syracuse, Detroit, Fordham, Boston College, and Boston U. The season opener may be against the Orange at Syracuse, N. Y.

Suicide Slate?

The St. Francis game last Saturday night made rather clear what has been known all along; that the Wildcats are going to have it far from easy all the way. The varsity just cannot afford a poor game by either Devine or Schafer against a team of any strength, and with the packed schedule Villanova plays, losses cannot help but be frequent.

What does not seem logical, in this corner at least, is why Villanova insists upon booking such a cut-throat schedule, including home-and-home contests every year with three of the best clubs in the nation. Certainly the consistently high national ratings of such schools as Holy Cross, LaSalle, and Seton Hall, who season after season have no better ball players than V. U., yet build up impressive records thanks to pushover schedoles should make it clear: playing the best is not the answer to the Mainline's objective of gaining the recognition that they deserve as one of the country's top basketball schools.

Athlete of the Year

This seems to be Award time, what with four different Villanovans receiving honors within the past week. Ralph Cecere and Joe Faragalli, of course, were feted at the Football Banquet last night, and Fred Dwyer received the first annual Bucky Coleman award as Villanova's outstanding trackman of the year. Tom Foley, the 6'5" one-man bench, came in for his share of honors, getting the vote of the Philadelphia basketball writers as the number one player in the area for the opening week of the season.

Speaking of such, how about a trophy awarded annually to the top athlete in Villanova? Had this yet unborn award been made for last year ('52-'53), both an All-American (Gene Filipski), and the man who scored the second highest average in basketball history (Larry Hennessy) would probably have failed to win the trophy due to the tremendous indoor season of IC4A and AAU champ Freddie Dwyer. Certainly no other school in the nation had three such individual performances in a single school year, and such a trophy should help to gain some needed publicity for Villanova's outstanding athletic talent.

Battle of the Alumni

Two fairly well-known alumni, pretty fair ballplayers in any league, met against each other for the first time a few weeks ago. Quantico's Paul Arizin poured in 39 points to win the scoring honors over Fort Eustice's Larry Hennessy, who managed to throw in a mere 38 himself. Quantico, one of the top service teams around, won the ball game too, with ex-Wildcat Jim Mooney chipping in with 14.

Statistical Breakdown

With five games already history in the 1953-54 basketball season, here's a breakdown of the individual statistics for the club. Bobby Schafer leads the squad in field goals, shots attempted, foul goals, fouls attempted, and, of course, both total and average points. Schafer's field goal percentage is a respectable 37.1%, and his foul record is 72%. Marty Milligan tops the team in f.g. percentage (38.5%), and foul accuracy (81%). John Cirino is runner-up in both departments with 38 and 75%. Jack Devine leads Cirino 63-47 in rebounds, with Schafer third. The personal foul leader is Cirino (20), followed by Larry Tierney (16). For the team as a whole: f.g. percentage, 37%, fouls 69.7%, average points per game, 75.8 for, 67.2 against.

Steadying Factor:

Devine, Wildcat Captain, Actually Club 'Bossman'

By Harry Nash

Al Severance was slightly frantic.

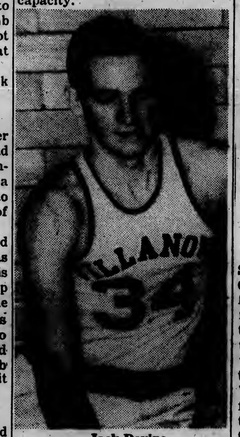
Lebanon Valley had cut deeply into a previous 14-point lead and Villanova was winning by only three at this point-midway the third period. Severance was shouting instructions to one of his ball players, who seemed completely removed from the mayhem in the stands and the tension on the floor. He listened to his coach's pleas for a minute, looked unusually serious for a time, and then turned to Severance, cupped his thumb and index finger in a 'we've got it made' sign and winked at Severance.

It could only have been Jack Devine.

Nonchalant Brilliance

For perhaps no other member of this year's basketball squad shows such an unruffled nonchalance that is actually only a cover-up for a great desire to win and a passionate hatred of losing.

This apparently disinterested gesture is only a paradox as far as this big (6'4") fellow is concerned—he's one of the top competitors on the club; he never lets up, but he maintains a cool demeanor that has no doubt gone a long way toward this partially inexperienced club playing the fine type of ball it has displayed thus far.



Teammate of Beck

Devine, a junior who starred with Ernie Beck in his high school days at West Catholic, was elected Captain of the 1953-54 squad as the result of his headiness and fine rebound play ever since he first gladdened Severance's heart as a frehman back in '51. He also found time to manage just under 10 points a game last year, in spite of the fact that the club included such great shots as Nick McGuire and the storied Larry Hennessy.

His improvement this year has been very noticeable . . . his dribbling late in close games has been invaluable as well as crowd-pleasing, and his shooting has taken a healthy jump in average so far 14 points a game. Probably his most indispensable asset is his "take charge" attitude, which has a calming effect on the team's sophomores and has made the club's offense the steady machine it has proved to be.

Great Off Boards

He's a demon on rebounds-incidentally, he grabbed off more rebounds last year than even Jim Mooney, who went on to aid the Warriors in a like capacity.

Jack Devine

Devine doesn't limit his activities to the court entirely; he's on the Student Council, serves as chairman of the SC's Miscellaneous Committee. He also belongs to the Monogram Club.

Cool, Steady

Maybe he won't chalk up any 25-point averages, but watch him during a tight ball game. He's cool, steady, alert, and manages to toss in a few dryly humorous gestures to boot. He doesn't go for a lot of superficial back-slapping when he leaves the court after a typically fine performance. In fact, he usually has a smile for only one guy.

Just ask Jake Nevin.

Kittens Win 4th Straight At Palestra

By Jack Pettit

Last Saturday night, at the Palestra, the Wildcat Frosh breezed to their fourth straight triumph with a 72-56 win over the Penn frosh. Leading the way in this 16 point victory were Jimmy Smith, who becomes eligible for varsity play in February, and Bobby Powers, each of whom fired in 22 points. The frosh got off to a fast start and were never headed, as they led by 10 at half-time. During the second half they continued to pour it on and won going away by 16.

Four kitten players finished in double figures including the team's leading scorer Sonny DiCarlo who has scored 60 points in 4 games. He is closely followed by Jimmy Smith with 58 points, who also leads the team in rebounding, and Bobby Powers who along with scoring 56 points in a utility role leads the team in assists with 12.

Road Win

After two straight wins over St. James of Chester and West Catholic of Phila., the Villanova freshman left the friendly confines of the field house and travelled to Baltimore to engage the Loyola U. freshmen. For the Villanova kittens this was their first taste of the "Wildcat Wanderlust." The kittens refused to be shaken and came through with an 11 point victory.

Club Deep

The freshmen, in winning this hotly contested game, were coached by varsity ace Bob Schafer. Due to the great depth of the club, the freshmen worked under a platoon system. The club, through the use of a full court press, built up a 13 point lead. The big thing which prevents the frosh from making a rout of the game was their exceptionally poor foul shooting. The key man was high scorer Sonny Di Carlo who chipped in with 18. Bobby Powers and Jack Griffith played their usual fine games as did the rest of the club.

All Star Game

There is a chance of a post-season game against a team of intramural All Stars. The highlight of the season will come February 9 when the kittens travel to South Orange to meet the powerful Setonia frosh who are supposedly the tallest freshman team in Seton Hall history.

Late News

Gene Filipski, senior halfback, was voted most valuable player on the 1953 Villanova University football team as results of a contest among Wildcat fans, Robert M. Brown, Vice-President of Esslinger's, Inc., announced today.

Filipski will receive the first annual Esslinger Award on television tomorrow night at 11 p. m. on WCAU-TV. John Facenda will present the citation.

UN Members Not Parent Group, Require Change

By George Ferguson

We have already seen (Villanovan, Nov. 10) that United Nations is an instrument for international cooperation, and that like an automobile or any other instrument, it cannot operate by itself. It requires the sustained efforts of sincere and competent people to make it work.

Some critics of the world organization suggest overhauling UN, abolishing the veto, or expelling Russia, in order to make the international body function more smoothly. At the present time, no overhaul of UN is necessary. Rather, it is fundamental changes within nations themselves that are required. The world now, with regard to international organization, is at the same stage that the United States was during the period of government under the Articles of Confederation. The concept of sovereignty is the stumbling block today to effective international cooperation, just as it was to cooperation among the thirteen American states in 1783. People in the various nations today must be educated to the necessity of world cooperation. They must be made to realize that a certain degree of national sovereignty must be voluntarily given up, (just as the 13 states gave some of theirs to the U. S. national government) in order to make UN work effectively.

Abolition of the veto is not actually necessary for smoother functioning of United Nations. The veto can be used only in the Security Council. There is no veto at all in the General Assembly. The proper solution here is to make greater use of the General Assembly.

Russia Secure

Regarding expulsion of Russia from the world body, it should be pointed out that the Soviet Union cannot be compelled to withdraw from United Nations without its own consent. Expulsion must be recommended by the Security Council, and here Russia's veto would apply. If the Soviets were to voluntarily leave UN, they might conceivably set up their own UN, after which we would be farther away than ever from world unity.

It must be borne in mind that United Nations is the only place where East and West can meet. It is the only alternative to a World War III. Recent developments in thermo-nuclear weapons indicate to all reasonable people that even if the West were to completely ruin Russia, nobody would be the winner, at the end of such a cataclysmic struggle. Western civilization as we know it, our high standard of living, and probably even democracy itself would be destroyed. Only by making United Nations work can we hope to prevent war.

No Red Victory

It has been claimed by Red China that she won the Korean War, and defeated the United Nations military forces in Korea. This is not true. On the contrary, the Korean War was an outstanding victory for the forces of the United Nations. During a recent visit to UN in New York, we learned that UN diplomats are enthusiastic over this victory and its meaning for the world. The lesson is: aggression does not pay. The Chinese Reds and North Koreans learned this at a cost of over one million casualties, as well as great quantities of material and equipment, and the almost total destruction of North Korea.

In a final article, the organization of United Nations will be set forth, as well as a list of the organization's many outstanding achievements.

Chairmen Meet To Coordinate Junior Planning

Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O. S. A., Junior class moderator, and Bernie Finan, class president, called a meeting of the committee chairmen last Thursday night in order to conciliate the work of the various groups so that no duplication of work will occur. At the meeting, Tom Ulrich, Blazer Chairman, reported that the Junior blazers will arrive C. O. D. at the Villanova postoffice either today or tomorrow. Those students having mail orders for home delivery will receive them some time this week. The balance due on all blazers is $22.50.

Ring Delivery

Ring Chairman, Bill Kohler, said that the rings would be received sometime in February, but the exact date is unknown. The company, however, has promised early delivery.

Hugh Humphries and Bud Ford, Prom Chairmen, state that the theme for the dance in May will soon be set.

Early in February, there will be a steering committee meeting followed by a class meeting, (the date has not been set) at which Junior Week and its plans will be discussed.

DE PROFUNDIS

The prayers of the Villanova student body and faculty are extended for the repose of the souls of Norbert Walker, Sr., '23, past president of the Villanova Alumni Association and father of Norbert Walker Jr., C&F junior; and of the wife of James Grady, '13.

Seek Association Of Religion Profs

Rev. John P. Maher, O. S. A., Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O. S. A., and Rev. Robert E. Regan, O. S. A., represented Villanova at a meeting of religion teachers at LaSalle College last Dec. 8.

Purpose of the meeting was to attempt to form a national society of teachers of college and university religion courses. The movement for such an organization was started in the Catholic colleges in Washington D. C., and is still in the formative stage.

A meeting to draw up a constitution for the proposed association will be held in late January of 1954. Such a group is both desirable and feasible, said Father Regan. Villanova will belong to the society.

Goal

The ultimate goal of the teachers who met at LaSalle is the organization of a national society, but the immediate goal is an organization of the religion teachers into a strong eastern group.

Father Maher is the head of Villanova's Religion department, Father Regan is an Associate Professor of Religion and Father Grimes is an Instructor of Religion and an Associate Professor of History.

APPLICATIONS DUE

Seniors wishing to obtain positions through the Placement Bureau must procure the necessary forms from Mr. Harris' office (113 Mendel) and return them before going home for the Christmas holidays.

No senior will be considered for an interview on campus unless he has complied with this regulation.

Turf and Tinsel

All Villanova students interested in working on the business staff of Turf and Tinsel, Villanova's musical organization, are asked to contact Bob Whelan in the business office at the Field House, or to see Jim Boyle, 204 Fedigan Hall.

Student Council Hears Development 'Chart-Talk'

Mr. Donald Eyster, representative of the American City Bureau, spoke to the Student Council on Dec. 7 concerning the Villanova University Development Fund Program. He stressed the essential support necessary for completion of this undertaking.

The Villanova alumni association, headed by one of the nation's leading engineers, Col. Wilfred G. MacCarthy, is working in coordination with the Development Program in reactivating many alumni clubs throughout the country and organizing new clubs. Col. MacCarthy, a leading electronics and television consulting engineer, was mentioned for his excellent work and generosity in allotting so much of his valuable time for this cause.

Public relations and publicity have already begun to enlighten those from whom support is needed, he said. Trustees are demonstrating great progressive leadership in policy making. The Advisory Board is expanding, he explained, and the alumni association is counseling and advising the many groups. More faculty meetings, along with better administration, faculty, and student body relationships are being encouraged.

Interested constituency, including the Order of St. Augustine, administration, faculty, student body, and alumni, plus individuals of influence, such as corporations, foundations, residents of metropolitan Philadelphia and institutions of higher education will gain favorably from their wholehearted support.

These stockholders in higher education will tend to preserve Christian values in our troubled world. They will then be associated with an outstanding University, professing higher standards of education, he pointed out. The many new building facilities with outstanding undergraduate, graduate, and professional schools will continue to serve the community for a second century, he added.

J. Paul Sheedy* Switched to Wildroot Cream-Oil Because He Flunked The Finger-Nail Test

"Your hair's no yoke" bellowed Sheedy's gal. "Those cowlicks look awful. Why not take the bull by the horns and get yourself some Wildroot Cream-Oil, America's favorite hair tonic? Keeps hair combed without greasiness. Makes you look cud-dly. Removes loose, ugly dandruff. Relieves annoying dryness. Contains Lanolin. Non-alcoholic. I won't cow-tow 'til you start using it heifery day." Paul was udderly stunned, so he bought some Wildroot Cream-Oil for just 29¢. He told his girl the good moos and now they're hitched for life. So just steer yourself down to any toilet goods counter for a bottle or handy tube. And remember to ox your barber for Wildroot Cream-Oil too. You'll be the cream of the campus—and that's no bull.

Athlete of the Year

This seems to be Award time, what with four different Villanovans receiving honors within the past week. Ralph Cecere and Joe Faragalli, of course, were feted at the Football Banquet last night, and Fred Dwyer received the first annual Bucky Coleman award as Villanova's outstanding trackman of the year. Tom Foley, the 6'5" one-man bench, came in for his share of honors, getting the vote of the Philadelphia basketball writers as the number one player in the area for the opening week of the season.

Speaking of such, how about a trophy awarded annually to the top athlete in Villanova? Had this yet unborn award been made for last year ('52-'53), both an All-American (Gene Filipski), and the man who scored the second highest average in basketball history (Larry Hennessy) would probably have failed to win the trophy due to the tremendous indoor season of IC4A and AAU champ Freddie Dwyer. Certainly no other school in the nation had three such individual performances in a single school year, and such a trophy should help to gain some needed publicity for Villanova's outstanding athletic talent.

Battle of the Alumni

Two fairly well-known alumni, pretty fair ballplayers in any league, met against each other for the first time a few weeks ago. Quantico's Paul Arizin poured in 39 points to win the scoring honors over Fort Eustice's Larry Hennessy, who managed to throw in a mere 38 himself. Quantico, one of the top service teams around, won the ball game too, with ex-Wildcat Jim Mooney chipping in with 14.

Statistical Breakdown

With five games already history in the 1953-54 basketball season, here's a breakdown of the individual statistics for the club. Bobby Schafer leads the squad in field goals, shots attempted, foul goals, fouls attempted, and, of course, both total and average points. Schafer's field goal percentage is a respectable 37.1%, and his foul record is 72%. Marty Milligan tops the team in f.g. percentage (38.5%), and foul accuracy (81%). John Cirino is runner-up in both departments with 38 and 75%. Jack Devine leads Cirino 63-47 in rebounds, with Schafer third. The personal foul leader is Cirino (20), followed by Larry Tierney (16). For the team as a whole: f.g. percentage, 37%, fouls 69.7%, average points per game, 75.8 for, 67.2 against.

Steadying Factor:

Devine, Wildcat Captain, Actually Club 'Bossman'

By Harry Nash

Al Severance was slightly frantic.

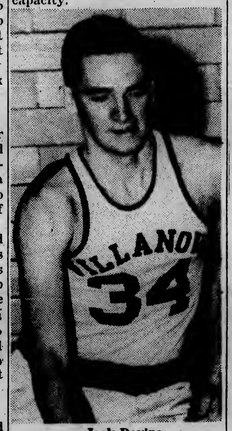
Lebanon Valley had cut deeply into a previous 14-point lead and Villanova was winning by only three at this point-midway the third period. Severance was shouting instructions to one of his ball players, who seemed completely removed from the mayhem in the stands and the tension on the floor. He listened to his coach's pleas for a minute, looked unusually serious for a time, and then turned to Severance, cupped his thumb and index finger in a 'we've got it made' sign and winked at Severance.

It could only have been Jack Devine.

Nonchalant Brilliance

For perhaps no other member of this year's basketball squad shows such an unruffled nonchalance that is actually only a cover-up for a great desire to win and a passionate hatred of losing.

This apparently disinterested gesture is only a paradox as far as this big (6'4") fellow is concerned—he's one of the top competitors on the club; he never lets up, but he maintains a cool demeanor that has no doubt gone a long way toward this partially inexperienced club playing the fine type of ball it has displayed thus far.



Teammate of Beck

Devine, a junior who starred with Ernie Beck in his high school days at West Catholic, was elected Captain of the 1953-54 squad as the result of his headiness and fine rebound play ever since he first gladdened Severance's heart as a frehman back in '51. He also found time to manage just under 10 points a game last year, in spite of the fact that the club included such great shots as Nick McGuire and the storied Larry Hennessy.

His improvement this year has been very noticeable . . . his dribbling late in close games has been invaluable as well as crowd-pleasing, and his shooting has taken a healthy jump in average so far 14 points a game. Probably his most indispensable asset is his "take charge" attitude, which has a calming effect on the team's sophomores and has made the club's offense the steady machine it has proved to be.

Great Off Boards

He's a demon on rebounds-incidentally, he grabbed off more rebounds last year than even Jim Mooney, who went on to aid the Warriors in a like capacity.

Jack Devine

Devine doesn't limit his activities to the court entirely; he's on the Student Council, serves as chairman of the SC's Miscellaneous Committee. He also belongs to the Monogram Club.

Cool, Steady

Maybe he won't chalk up any 25-point averages, but watch him during a tight ball game. He's cool, steady, alert, and manages to toss in a few dryly humorous gestures to boot. He doesn't go for a lot of superficial back-slapping when he leaves the court after a typically fine performance. In fact, he usually has a smile for only one guy.

Just ask Jake Nevin.

In two meetings with the Wolfpack last year, the Wildcats captured one game; North Carolina State took the other, which should add a great deal of incentive to both teams to win this rubber game.

Kittens Win 4th Straight At Palestra

By Jack Pettit

Last Saturday night, at the Palestra, the Wildcat Frosh breezed to their fourth straight triumph with a 72-56 win over the Penn frosh. Leading the way in this 16 point victory were Jimmy Smith, who becomes eligible for varsity play in February, and Bobby Powers, each of whom fired in 22 points. The frosh got off to a fast start and were never headed, as they led by 10 at half-time. During the second half they continued to pour it on and won going away by 16.

Four kitten players finished in double figures including the team's leading scorer Sonny DiCarlo who has scored 60 points in 4 games. He is closely followed by Jimmy Smith with 58 points, who also leads the team in rebounding, and Bobby Powers who along with scoring 56 points in a utility role leads the team in assists with 12.

Road Win

After two straight wins over St. James of Chester and West Catholic of Phila., the Villanova freshman left the friendly confines of the field house and travelled to Baltimore to engage the Loyola U. freshmen. For the Villanova kittens this was their first taste of the "Wildcat Wanderlust." The kittens refused to be shaken and came through with an 11 point victory.

Club Deep

The freshmen, in winning this hotly contested game, were coached by varsity ace Bob Schafer. Due to the great depth of the club, the freshmen worked under a platoon system. The club, through the use of a full court press, built up a 13 point lead. The big thing which prevents the frosh from making a rout of the game was their exceptionally poor foul shooting. The key man was high scorer Sonny Di Carlo who chipped in with 18. Bobby Powers and Jack Griffith played their usual fine games as did the rest of the club.

All Star Game

There is a chance of a post-season game against a team of intramural All Stars. The highlight of the season will come February 9 when the kittens travel to South Orange to meet the powerful Setonia frosh who are supposedly the tallest freshman team in Seton Hall history.

Late News

Gene Filipski, senior halfback, was voted most valuable player on the 1953 Villanova University football team as results of a contest among Wildcat fans, Robert M. Brown, Vice-President of Esslinger's, Inc., announced today.

Filipski will receive the first annual Esslinger Award on television tomorrow night at 11 p. m. on WCAU-TV. John Facenda will present the citation.

UN Members Not Parent Group, Require Change

By George Ferguson

We have already seen (Villanovan, Nov. 10) that United Nations is an instrument for international cooperation, and that like an automobile or any other instrument, it cannot operate by itself. It requires the sustained efforts of sincere and competent people to make it work.

Some critics of the world organization suggest overhauling UN, abolishing the veto, or expelling Russia, in order to make the international body function more smoothly. At the present time, no overhaul of UN is necessary. Rather, it is fundamental changes within nations themselves that are required. The world now, with regard to international organization, is at the same stage that the United States was during the period of government under the Articles of Confederation. The concept of sovereignty is the stumbling block today to effective international cooperation, just as it was to cooperation among the thirteen American states in 1783. People in the various nations today must be educated to the necessity of world cooperation. They must be made to realize that a certain degree of national sovereignty must be voluntarily given up, (just as the 13 states gave some of theirs to the U. S. national government) in order to make UN work effectively.

Abolition of the veto is not actually necessary for smoother functioning of United Nations. The veto can be used only in the Security Council. There is no veto at all in the General Assembly. The proper solution here is to make greater use of the General Assembly.

Russia Secure

Regarding expulsion of Russia from the world body, it should be pointed out that the Soviet Union cannot be compelled to withdraw from United Nations without its own consent. Expulsion must be recommended by the Security Council, and here Russia's veto would apply. If the Soviets were to voluntarily leave UN, they might conceivably set up their own UN, after which we would be farther away than ever from world unity.

It must be borne in mind that United Nations is the only place where East and West can meet. It is the only alternative to a World War III. Recent developments in thermo-nuclear weapons indicate to all reasonable people that even if the West were to completely ruin Russia, nobody would be the winner, at the end of such a cataclysmic struggle. Western civilization as we know it, our high standard of living, and probably even democracy itself would be destroyed. Only by making United Nations work can we hope to prevent war.

No Red Victory

It has been claimed by Red China that she won the Korean War, and defeated the United Nations military forces in Korea. This is not true. On the contrary, the Korean War was an outstanding victory for the forces of the United Nations. During a recent visit to UN in New York, we learned that UN diplomats are enthusiastic over this victory and its meaning for the world. The lesson is: aggression does not pay. The Chinese Reds and North Koreans learned this at a cost of over one million casualties, as well as great quantities of material and equipment, and the almost total destruction of North Korea.

In a final article, the organization of United Nations will be set forth, as well as a list of the organization's many outstanding achievements.

J. Paul Sheedy* Switched to Wildroot Cream-Oil Because He Flunked The Finger-Nail Test

"Your hair's no yoke" bellowed Sheedy's gal. "Those cowlicks look awful. Why not take the bull by the horns and get yourself some Wildroot Cream-Oil, America's favorite hair tonic? Keeps hair combed without greasiness. Makes you look cud-dly. Removes loose, ugly dandruff. Relieves annoying dryness. Contains Lanolin. Non-alcoholic. I won't cow-tow 'til you start using it heifery day." Paul was udderly stunned, so he bought some Wildroot Cream-Oil for just 29¢. He told his girl the good moos and now they're hitched for life. So just steer yourself down to any toilet goods counter for a bottle or handy tube. And remember to ox your barber for Wildroot Cream-Oil too. You'll be the cream of the campus—and that's no bull.

Student Council Hears Development 'Chart-Talk'

Mr. Donald Eyster, representative of the American City Bureau, spoke to the Student Council on Dec. 7 concerning the Villanova University Development Fund Program. He stressed the essential support necessary for completion of this undertaking.

The Villanova alumni association, headed by one of the nation's leading engineers, Col. Wilfred G. MacCarthy, is working in coordination with the Development Program in reactivating many alumni clubs throughout the country and organizing new clubs. Col. MacCarthy, a leading electronics and television consulting engineer, was mentioned for his excellent work and generosity in allotting so much of his valuable time for this cause.

Public relations and publicity have already begun to enlighten those from whom support is needed, he said. Trustees are demonstrating great progressive leadership in policy making. The Advisory Board is expanding, he explained, and the alumni association is counseling and advising the many groups. More faculty meetings, along with better administration, faculty, and student body relationships are being encouraged.

Interested constituency, including the Order of St. Augustine, administration, faculty, student body, and alumni, plus individuals of influence, such as corporations, foundations, residents of metropolitan Philadelphia and institutions of higher education will gain favorably from their wholehearted support.

These stockholders in higher education will tend to preserve Christian values in our troubled world. They will then be associated with an outstanding University, professing higher standards of education, he pointed out. The many new building facilities with outstanding undergraduate, graduate, and professional schools will continue to serve the community for a second century, he added.

Chairmen Meet To Coordinate Junior Planning

Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O. S. A., Junior class moderator, and Bernie Finan, class president, called a meeting of the committee chairmen last Thursday night in order to conciliate the work of the various groups so that no duplication of work will occur. At the meeting, Tom Ulrich, Blazer Chairman, reported that the Junior blazers will arrive C. O. D. at the Villanova postoffice either today or tomorrow. Those students having mail orders for home delivery will receive them some time this week. The balance due on all blazers is $22.50.

Ring Delivery

Ring Chairman, Bill Kohler, said that the rings would be received sometime in February, but the exact date is unknown. The company, however, has promised early delivery.

Hugh Humphries and Bud Ford, Prom Chairmen, state that the theme for the dance in May will soon be set.

Early in February, there will be a steering committee meeting followed by a class meeting, (the date has not been set) at which Junior Week and its plans will be discussed.

DE PROFUNDIS

The prayers of the Villanova student body and faculty are extended for the repose of the souls of Norbert Walker, Sr., '23, past president of the Villanova Alumni Association and father of Norbert Walker Jr., C&F junior; and of the wife of James Grady, '13.

Seek Association Of Religion Profs

Rev. John P. Maher, O. S. A., Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O. S. A., and Rev. Robert E. Regan, O. S. A., represented Villanova at a meeting of religion teachers at LaSalle College last Dec. 8.

Purpose of the meeting was to attempt to form a national society of teachers of college and university religion courses. The movement for such an organization was started in the Catholic colleges in Washington D. C., and is still in the formative stage.

A meeting to draw up a constitution for the proposed association will be held in late January of 1954. Such a group is both desirable and feasible, said Father Regan. Villanova will belong to the society.

Goal

The ultimate goal of the teachers who met at LaSalle is the organization of a national society, but the immediate goal is an organization of the religion teachers into a strong eastern group.

Father Maher is the head of Villanova's Religion department. Father Regan is an Associate Professor of Religion and Father Grimes is an Instructor of Religion and an Associate Professor of History.

APPLICATIONS DUE

Seniors wishing to obtain positions through the Placement Bureau must procure the necessary forms from Mr. Harris' office (113 Mendel) and return them before going home for the Christmas holidays.

No senior will be considered for an interview on campus unless he has complied with this regulation.

Turf and Tinsel

All Villanova students interested in working on the business staff of Turf and Tinsel, Villanova's musical organization, are asked to contact Bob Whelan in the business office at the Field House, or to see Jim Boyle, 204 Fedigan Hall.

70 Try 'Stalag' Roles

ONE OF SEVENTY prospective actors competing for roles in "Stalag 17", a Belle Masque comedy on life in a German prison camp, shows Fr. William Krupa, O.S.A., moderator of the organization, what he can do. Show is coming early in May.

Belle Masque tryouts for its Spring play, Stalag 17, last week drew one of the larger turnouts in the society's history, said Bill Cunningham, president of the group.

The play has 22 male parts. There are no females in the play, the setting of which takes place in a German prisoner-of-war camp.

Belle Masque's production, under the direction of Rev. William Krupa, O. S. A., will be one of the first amateur presentations of the play, which was only recently released for non-professional groups.

Cunningham said that there still plenty of openings for men to work on the ticket and publicity staffs.

Cunningham also stated that men are needed for the stage crew and for the publicity staff. Ticket goal has already been set at 2,000, announced Cunningham.

Law School Board Meets; Prof. Macartney Honored

The first meeting of the Law School Board of Consulters was held last week, announced Dean Ruschlein.

The 12-man Board is responsible to a considerable extent for the launching of the school and has served as advisers from the beginning. It features such outstanding men as Hon. Vincent A. Carrol, Judge of the Court of Common Pleas No. 2; Hon. Thomas J. Clary, Judge in the United States District Court; Hon. James P. McGranery, former Attorney General of the United States; and Judge Theodore L. Reimel of the Court of Common Pleas No. 5 and a Villanova graduate.

At the meeting Dean Harold Gill Ruschlein reported on the accomplishments of the school so far and the faculty spoke on various phases of the students activities that they were planning, such a Law Review, a Moot Court, and a Student Bar Review.

In other Law School news, the Philadelphia Bar Association announced last week that Professor John Macartney, of the Law School, has been appointed to an important committee headed by former Senator George Wharton Pepper.

The committee's purpose is to arrange for a permanent home for the Bar Association.

Professor Macartney also currently serves as a member of the Executive Committee of the Philadelphia Bar Association and as a member of the Pennsylvania Bankers' Association Committee on Laws of Decedents' Estates and Trusts.

CHARLES CIVITELLO CELEBRATES HIS 20TH ANNIVERSARY

IN CASE YOU'RE WONDERING, that's Mike Horan, Arts Sophomore, and he's just realized that finals are looming.

Midnight Oil Stocked Up As Scholars Face Exams

Christmas vacation came and went like Santa Claus and already the boys are planning for the Easter vacation. But there will be a slight pause for final exams before the home stretch comes into view.

This lad is typical of the scholars at Villanova, getting ready to stay up late for something else besides a hangover. The sounds of books being cracked for the first time this semester resounding through the halls will help to keep him awake. Courage, Son, things aren't that bad. A short rest is on the way—it's the annual break for the second semester registrations scheduled to begin this year on Monday, Feb. 1.

The final exams have been set for the week of January 25-29 inclusive; registration follows right on the trail of the exams on the first three days of the week of February 1. Second semester classes will commence on Thursday, February 4.

Following the precedent of 1952, the annual Four Day Retreat will be held just prior to the Easter recess. The school calendar indicates that Villanovans are faced with the prospect of nine consecutive weeks of classes with Washington's Birthday (a three-day weekend) as the only relief.

Sounds bad, doesn't it? But look at it this way—there are only fifty-four days of school until Easter vacation. There will be many activities to take the minds of the students off their work, including the Senior Prom on February 26. The three-day weekend provides a rest period, and the basketball team will have an active home schedule. Seton Hall, Dayton and Duquesne are three of the many top attractions booked for the Palestra hardwood.

Claude Thornhill and his fine band will keep the seniors gliding for the Prom, and Tony Desmond will take over the same function for their Dinner Dance at the Walt Whitman Hotel in Camden. So it really isn't as bad as it sounds. Once the exams are over life will be sweet again.

Blazer Alterations Offer Announced

Any Juniors dissatisfied with the fit of their blazers may secure free alterations by taking them to the Bryn Mawr Cleaners and Dyers, 1003½ Lancaster Ave., announced Blazer chairmen Tom Ulrich.

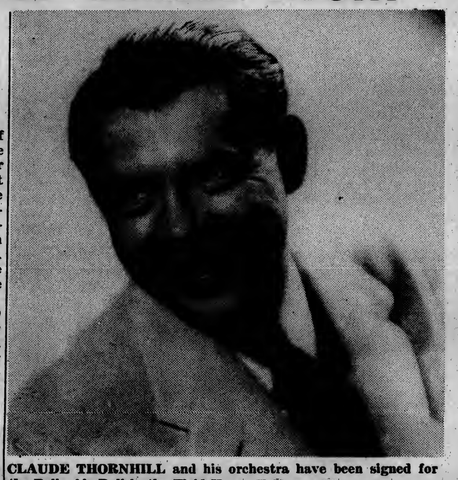
Robert Rollins Co., makers of the blazers, said that January 22 will be the final date for taking advantage of this offer.

Select Claude Thornhill Band For Senior Prom

53's Choice To Return On Feb. 26

Claude Thornhill, one of America's most popular dance bands in the seniors' choice for the Belle Aire Ball. The great band leader will bring his fine musical aggregation to Villanova on February 26 to demonstrate why music critics pick him as one of the all time favorites. It will be the second appearance of this group at the Mainline Fieldhouse.

Thornhill did such a fine job at the senior prom last year, he was a popular favorite to get the job again. Those who saw and heard him then will agree that a better choice would have been almost impossible.



Mr. Thornhill is one of the few band leaders today who is a triple-threat man. The talented gentleman from Cincinnati is a composer, arranger, and does some outstanding work at the keyboard. Probably the best known result of his combined talents is the beautiful "Snowfall" which serves as the orchestra's theme song.

The band has long been popular at college dates, and Villanova is one of the many spots that make it a habit to have Thornhill.

The Prom committee extends sincere thanks to Howard Sinnott of General Artists Corporation who made possible this fine musical background for the Belle Aire Ball. Mr. Sinnott has been a big help to the class in getting bands these past two years.

Program chairmen Jim McGee and Jack Joyce have announced they will start soliciting for boosters right after mid-semes-

Sheehan Announces Start Of Senior Statue Drive

"Starting next week letters will be sent out to all seniors requesting their donations to the statue fund," senior class prexy Ted Sheehan stated yesterday.

"Since over two-thirds of the class expressed their willingness to contribute to the statue as the class gift," he continued, "we have decided to begin collecting to reach our goal of $2000. The letters, which will be sent to every senior, will contain a stamped, addressed envelope to facilitate the return of the gift donations."

Sheehan went on to say that the deadline for all returns is March 1. The campaign will close then.

"The statue will be dedicated this spring, at a time chosen by the class," he said.

The statue is a seven foot white Carrara marble sculpture of Our Lady of Good Counsel holding the infant Jesus in her arms.

From Italy

It will be sent to this country from Pietrasanta, Italy, where it has been prepared by the Daprato studios. The statue will cost about 1926 dollars before shipping costs are paid. The final figure will be a few dollars over $2000.

It will be placed in the new shrine, located between Alumni Hall and the library. The shrine itself was designed by Rev. John Vrana, O. S. A. It will replace a void created by the removal of the shrine which used to reside by the library, three years ago. Almost $2500 dollars was spent for the beautification of the shrine.

Mr. Dominic Cannito, the stone mason who had charge of the construction of the library, the Naval Science building, and the Chemical Engineering Building, also handled the construction of the shrine.

The statue of Our Lady of Good Counsel will be unique inasmuch as the Blessed Mother is usually represented with that title in a picture, the original of which resides in an Augustinian Church in Gennazzano, Italy.

Father McGuire Enthusiastic

Forum Revival Visualized

If the outspoken enthusiasm of Villanova's President, Very Reverend Francis X. N. McGuire, O. S. A. is a good indication, then the Villanova Forum is well on its way to being resurrected.

Father McGuire, speaking to a Villanovan reporter last week, said, "I would like very much to revive the Forum, but for a different purpose: to bring to Villanova, for the education of the student body, a number of speakers, all specialists in respective fields of economics, philosophy, technology, political science, business and science."

Support Needed

With an objective of reviving the Forum as a lecture series for students in conjunction with classwork, Father McGuire observed that the faculty and student leaders must co-operate in a greater measure to support the program. He agreed that better promotion could insure the success of the new Forum.

Originator Told

Mr. Charles P. Bruderle, assistant professor of history who originated the Forum in 1948 and directed its activities until the series was dropped in the spring of 1952, was informed last week of the statements made by Father McGuire.

Mr. Bruderle commented that this news was "heartening" and noted that he would probably be unable to undertake the Forum's revival because he was busy with post-graduate work at the University of Pennsylvania.

This Spring??

Father McGuire visualized the re-establishment of the Forum as early as this spring, with lectures presented in March, April, and May. "Although no allotment has been assigned to the Forum in the present Budget," said Father McGuire, "we may tap the Student Activities budget moderately. We will find five or six hundred dollars somewhere."

Lernen sie!

This past weekend, while "thumbing" home after a weekend in Virginia, a certain friend of ours was picked up by German physicist. The man, who spoke only broken English, had come recently from Germany, done some teaching in a state university in this country and was at the present time employed by a large industrial concern.

Despite his company position, however, the middle-aged Aryan's prime interest was education. He spoke ably about American and European education all the way from Washington D. C. to Wilmington, Delaware.

Listening with great interest to the learned man's comments, our friend asked his opinions of a Catholic school education.

"I attended a Catholic high school for a short time in Europe," he related. "The Catholic Church has behind it an enviable background as an educator, since its founding, through the middle ages when all studying took place in the monasteries of the continent, and right up to the present time.

"I do believe, however," he continued with his German accent," that in the Catholic universities today, students are preached Catholicism and never question it. You hear this comment frequently: 'Catholic school students never have a chance to seek out answers for themselves . . . everything is preached to them."

Is this conviction true?

To this extent it is: We, as Catholics have been endowed with an invaluable gift: our faith. We went to Mass 20 years ago in the arms of Mom and Dad; learned the Catechism through our grammar school days and received instructions during our high school years—we have been "preached" Catholicism. And today, at Villanova, it is a required course.

How many of us, however, have ever, with an open and inquisitive mind, staked Catholicism against the criticism it has received, tested its laws and investigated critically its extensive dogma, not in order to weaken it but or the sake of strengthening our own convictions?

Only in this way can our faith prove itself to us and assume its proper use in our everyday lives. Its value will thus be multiplied hundredfold.

Many Catholic students are guilty of merely accepting their faith without ever studying its doctrine, or knowing the reasons of its greatness. These are the Catholics who fall away; these are the Catholics who don't know just what to say when their Protestant neighbors inquire about Catholicism . . . these are the Catholics our German physicist was talking about.

We here at Villanova can study our aith, can test it against all adversity, can prove it, and establish it ourselves as a way of life, not just as a Sunday morning habit.

This is not merely our opportunity as students . . . his is our duty as Catholics.

We sincerely expect to have an academic scoop on our hands with our preview of Handbook of Logic and Workbook of Logic, both of which will be in the Villanova bookstore on or about Feb. 1.

Spain Is Indispensable As Ally Of The West

By Ed Daly

Relations between the western Allies and Spain is one of the most important diplomatic problems confronting the United States today.

The Franco government is still extremely unpopular in most countries, particularly in France, England, and the United States. Organized anti-Franco propaganda combined with a natural suspicion of dictatorships has created a vast amount of hostility to the present Spanish regime. The crisis now existing between Russia and the United States however has brought Spain into focus as an important possible future ally of the West.

Just how important is Spain to the West? Spain's location is its most important advantage. The Pyrenees are difficult enough to cross in peace time; in war time, they constitute an almost impossible natural line of fortifications. Of course, it is to be hoped that no Russian army will ever advance that far, but it is vital to have a final stronghold in the event of a possible retreat. Spain would be one of the very strongest fortresses in which a defeated army could be regrouped and made ready to resume the offensive.

A second strategic advantage of Spain is Gibraltar. The loss of this fortress to Russia would close the Mediterranean to Allied shipping. A weak Spain might be unable to prevent the Reds from breaking through the Pyrenees and reaching Gibraltar. A strong Spain could hold the line of the Pyrenees almost indefiinitely and thus make such a disaster impossible.

The natural fortress of the Pyrenees makes Spain important for yet another reason. Airfields built in Spain are far more secure than those built in most other European countries, because they are far less accessible to enemy land forces. The construction of air fields in Spain has been one of the chief subjects of discussion between America and Spanish representatives.

Of course, in discussing Franco's Spain, the important issue of whether or not General Franco can be trusted arises at once. I personally think that Franco is trustworthy on the issue of fighting Communism. Franco attained power in Spain largely by opposing the excesses of the extreme Left. His most important support, both inside Spain and abroad, comes from the Catholic Church. Franco, himself, is apparently a very devout Catholic and a very sincere anti-Communist.

However, even if Franco is looked upon as completely insincere, it can be argued that he would be cutting his own throat, by failing to fight the Reds since he would simply alienate his own supporters and would be delivering himself into the hands of the Communists, who have been his bitter enemies for many years.

Therefore it is in the best interests of the United States to turn Franco into an effective ally. To do this, we must supply Franco with adequate equipment for his army, which is chiefly equipped with obsolete weapons, and we must give sufficient financial aid to enable Franco to modernize the antiquated Spanish transportation system. Without improvements in these two fields, Spain cannot render aid to the Allied cause in any degree approaching its full capacity.

In dealing with Franco, we should remember that he is a very hard bargainer, and is a man determined to obtain as much for Spain as is humanly possible. We should yield sufficient concessions to Spain to make possible the modernization just mentioned, with the possible addition of some rejuvenations of the nation's agriculture to make Spain capable of feeding an allied army which might be forced to take refuge there. Since the chief aim of the United States in giving aid should be the protection of its own interests, not worldwide charity at the taxpayers' expense, we should not go beyond this.

In return we should expect adequate air and naval bases and a Spanish pledge to suspend its claims to Gibraltar, since it is very definitely to our advantage to have that fortress occupied by Great Britain rather than Spain.

Some of these things have already been done. Much more should be given, and much more should be obtained. This, after all, is of great importance to the defense of the West, and at the same time, does not involve too great a sacrifice of material goods and none of principle, since Franco, although a dictator, is still not a bloody tyrant like Tito. If again we resurrect the legends of the Spanish Civil War and treat Franco like a Fascist monster, we in America will lose by it, for the West will be deprived of a valuable ally.

Letter

Student Seeks Answer To Residents' Driving

Sirs:

This is written in the nature of a modern parable. Its message is in no way profound but it is serious and sincere . . .

"In a land somewhat like Villanova, long ago, a certain married couple decided to adopt some children, intending to train these young people in the ways of right-living. First this couple adopted only one boy and carefully trained him to manhood. When the boy was mature enough he left the home to earn his own way in the world, achieving no little success.

Family Grew

This experience had worked out so well that the still-young couple decided to adopt several children, and so they adopted six, five boys and one girl. They realized that they would be straining income greatly but felt that their purpose was noble enough to justify great sacrifice. Four of the children appreciated the efforts of their foster parents, but two of the boys entered the home reluctantly, not openly rebellious only because the orphanage which sent them there would hesitate to readmit them if they were rejected by the foster parents.

Tragedy struck this family when one of the more obedient boys was seriously hurt when he fell from a playground swing. The grieving parents were upset by the fact that their other children still wanted to play on the swings. They even felt a little guilty for having allowed them to use the swings in the first place, and to prevent the tragedy from being repeated, they forbade the other children to play at the playground, using as reasons the possibility of the accident being repeated, and a desire for the children to stay home to help around the house. house.

They were secretly apprehensive that, in the event of another accident, the orphanage might take all of the children away from them.

Recreation Time Remained

However, these children had a lot of free time, even with helping around the house. They began to improvise games, and, although these games were not as enjoyable as those at the playground, they helped pass the time. But two of the boys were disobedient, often sneaking off to the playground and its forbidden swings when the parents weren't looking. Eventually, since they had always gotten away with their misbehavior, they became more open about it, even to the extent of letting themselves be seen by their foster mother while they were on the swings at the forbidden playground. She cautioned them to be careful but said nothing else.

The father, who was at work when this happened, was made none the wiser. But he often repeated his rule forbidding the children usage of the playground and threatened as punishment expulsion from the home. His wife said, nothing, but her silence seemed to signify agreement.

And nevertheless, the two miscreants continued to defy the rule, daring punishment from the mother but receiving none. The father, hardly ever home in his efforts to earn an adequate income for the family, remained in the dark concerning this disobedience.

Meanwhile however, the obedient children became very much disturbed. They reasoned that a rule must have some reasons for being, and they investigated the reasons for this particular rule. They were not satisfied with these reasons and discussed the matter with their father who told them that he thought the rule had been working well enough and that the children didn't seem to be suffering from being denied use of the playground. But they were more upset than ever and asked their mother about it. She agreed with her husband, even though it was evident that she had no intention of enforcing the regulation. Since in this case the enforcing of the rule had been left by the father to his wife, it was not enforced at all.

Inconsistency Unchanged

Yet the rule remained; the good children were thereby deprived of what was after all probably a legitimate form of exercise, with no more danger than other forms, by a rule which their mother evidently disagreed with and did not enforce. The disobedient children thrived on their swinging and their good foster father was still none the wiser."

there doesn't seem to be much difference between children using a playground and young men driving automobiles. (Signed) Allegory.

LAY TEACHERS MEET

"Engineering Students and the Liberal Arts Curriculum" will be the subject of this Thursday's discussion by the Villanova University chapter of the American Association of University Professors.

Mr. Harry Apoian, Instructor of Mechanical Engineering; Mr. Miles Potter, Associate Professor of Civil Engineering, and Dr. James O'Brien, Instructor Philosophy, will lead the program.

Scissors That Satisfy

Civitello Here 20 Years

Many of you may think you know what a crewcut is, but Mr. Charles Civitello, the head barber at the Villanova Campus Barber Shop will tell you that you are wrong. Mr. Civitello, who has been cutting hair at Villanova for 20 years says that students do not know the correct names of hair styles.

Some of the students are fortunate that they do not receive a genuine crewcut, he explains. Crews on the boats that had no barbers, had their hair crudely clipped short except for the top which was cut fairly short, then parted in the middle The proper name for this type of haircut is a pompador.

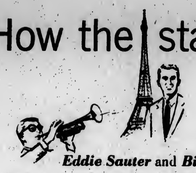
Things Have Changed

When Mr. Civitello came here in 1934 he had already been cutting hair for 31 years. He says, and perhaps because of the depression, that the students of 20 years ago were more serious-minded and the students who came to college were the ones whose families were more financially independent than the majority of today's students.

These boys would often come to the shop for not merely a haircut, as one would today, but also for shampoos, massages, shaves, and anything that is or was possible to get in a barber-shop. At that time the barber shop was a "foxhole" in the basement of Mendel Hall, and the cost of a haircut was 40c, as compared with a dollar today, but Mr. Civitello's carfare was 10c then but now it is 30c. He says, though, that a barber's income has kept up with increasing prices and his livelihood is as stable as it was 20 years ago.

Rabenda

CHARLES CIVITELLO, the gentleman who has cut the hair of a generation of Villanovans, here applies his skill on the head of Pete Blackwood. In the background is Mr. Civitello's assistant, Alverino Ausili.



Shop Moved

Six years ago the shop was moved to its present site. A bigger school with more students is much better than a small school because the conditions are improved, and especially if many of the students are coeds, says Mr. Civitello, then he would set up a hairdessing shop for the girls.

He claims that the present styles in college haircuts are essentially the same as twenty years ago. The complaint style is almost non-existent at Villanova. The two barbers at Villanova receive only about one complaint out of a 1000 haircuts.

Alverino Ausili is the assistant who has just come to the country from Argentina with his son-in-law. He speaks very little English, but he would enjoy speaking with some Spanish students. He likes the United States and Villanova very much, but most important of all is that he gives a good haircut.

'Villanovan' Writer On TV!

Ed Daly Quizzes Dean On Korean Situation

Arts Junior Ed Daly represented Villanova on last week's nationally televised Junior Press Conference.

Ambassador Arthur Dean, special envoy to the Korean peace talks, was the guest on the American Broadcasting Comany Show.

Daly appeared on a panel with representatives from the University of Pennsylvania, Harvard, and Columbia. The program is a discussion panel in which the students ask the guest any question in which they think college students are interested.

Discussion Opens

The Villanovan political writer began the discussion by asking Mr. Dean if he believed the preliminary peace talks would be resumed, and if so, when.

Dean replied that he believes that the talks will start up again. "If this comes about," he said, "it will be in the very near future."

Dean said that he did not think that his walking out on the peace negotiations last month would be an insurmountable obstacle to the resumption of the talks. He said that in breaking off the talks, he did not demand a formal apology from the communists for referring to him as being guilty of perfidy.

Panel Members

Daly was joined on the panel by Paul Sigmund of Harvard, Marciarose Shestack of the University of Pennsylvania and a delegate to the National Student Association, and Peter Kenen of Columbia. Permanent moderator of the program is Ruth Geri Hagy. The show was seen locally on WFIL-TV.

Aviation Observer In 2nd 'Engineer' Published Friday

Second edition of the Engineer, student publication of the Engineering school, will be distributed this Friday, Jan. 15, editor Edward McMahon stated last week.

Two articles commemorating the anniversary of the Wright Brothers flight at Kitty Hawk will be featured in the issue. One will deal with speed records made since 1903. Special note will be made of the methods of recording the speeds of the different planes.

The other will be a story on the North American F-100. Both articles are written by Dick Schlicher, a sophomore ME.

Senior EE Charles Quinn has contributed an article on "Printed Circuits." The second of four installments on the Fairless Steel Mill in Morrisville, Pa., concerning the electrical engineering phase of the plant, will also appear in this edition of the Engineer.

A humorous piece by Villanovan feature Rees James has also been included in this issue.

There will be a meeting of all staff members in the Engineer office this Thursday at 10:30. Yearbook pictures will be taken.

The play, only recently released for amateur use, will play the evenings of April 29th and 30th, and May 1 and 2.

'Stalag' Roles Assigned

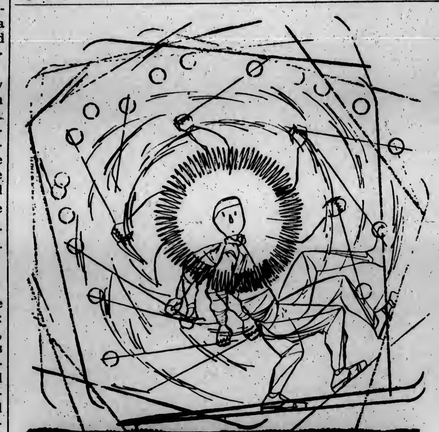
Kern, Erskine, Anger In Leads

Rev. William J. Krupa, O. S. A., moderator of Belle Masque, announced the selection of successful candidates for the spring production, "Stalag 17".

Lead roles have been assigned to Tom Kern, as Sefton, Harry Anger, as Harry Shapiro, and Bob Erskine as "Animal." George Minser will play the part of Schultz, the German guard. All are seniors.

Others featured in the all-male cast are: Bernie Coyne as Hoffman, the barracks leader; Drew Higgins as Price, the security officer planted by the Germans: Mike Clarke as Herb, Sefton's buddy; Jim Borden as Duke, Jim Howe as McCarthy; Joe Blimm as Marko; and Dick Winfield as the strict German Commandant.

Also in the play are: Kevin Duff as Dunbar, the flyer; Dave Peterson, as Horney; Bill Silhol as Reed; Hank Smith as Peterson; Murray Smith as Red-Dog; Charley Magee as Witherspoon; Bill Cunningham as McKay; Walt Doyle as the Geneva Man, and Tom Curran, Conrad Urban, and Tom Keeler as German guards.



The play takes place entirely in the confines of a German prisoner-of-war camp, Stalag 17. Main action deals with the prisoners in barracks four. A suspected infomer is proved to be just a man with a grudge against the world, and a trusted security officer turns out to be a spy planted by the Germans. Rehearsals have already begun.

De Profundis

Prayers are requested for the happy repose of the souls of: the fathers of Alfred Miklos, Biology sophomore, James Scheuren, C&F sophomore, Professor Wilson Frescoln, and Franklin DiSantis, Arts sophomore; the mother of Richard Citta, Biology senior; the father-in-law of Dr. Campanella, the husband of nursing student Marjorie Buckley, and for Lt. John T. Welsh, '47.

Schafer's 46 Shatters Record

Club Fourth in Holiday Tourney; Loses to State

Things were not so bad for Villanova's hardwood aggregation during the holiday interlude. Led by the cord-searing shooting of Bobby Schafer, who tallied 172 points in six outings, the Main Liners compiled a 3 and 3 record, and a 4th place consolation slot in the Kentucky Tournament.

Opening against Xavier on Dec. 16th, the Wildcats fell prey to the surprisingly well-balanced Musketeers, who captured a 81-73 victory. Schafer shone as usual with his 26 points, and was followed closely by Jack Devine, who netted 17, and Larry Tierney with 14. John Cirino also hit the double figures with his 12 point effort.

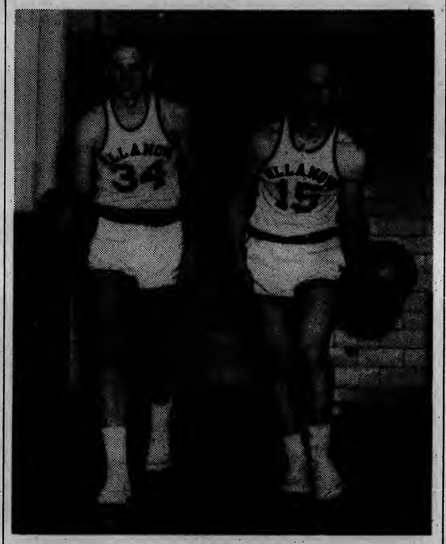
On Dec. 19, the team traveled up to Buffalo where it met Canisius. With Schafer again paving the way with 24 the 'Cats triumphed by a 61-57 count. Devine and Tierney again hit the double figures with 14 and 11 respectively.

Statistics

	FG.	F.	Pts.	Av.
Schafer	141	136	418	29.9
Devine	87	45	219	15.6
Cirino	44	26	114	8.1
Tierney	43	25	111	7.9
Milligan	25	35	85	6.5
Foley	24	4	52	4.0

Tournament Entry

The Kentucky Tournament on Dec. 28th saw the 'Cats engage Louisville in the opener. Tied at the end of the first quarter with the country's No. 11 team, the club finally succumbed to the over-powering Colonels, 79-65. Schafer again was his brilliant self, and the high scorer of the game with 28 points. Captain Devine added another 18, and picked off 11 rebounds in the scrap. Top man for Louisville was Chuck Noble, who scored 21.



Murray State was the next opponent, and the visitors captured that one by a 74-65 victory. Needless to say, Schafer was again the man of the hour, and besides his 31 points, he also snared 12 rebounds. Other 10-or-over scorers for the 'Cats were Jack Devine with 15, and Larry Tierney and John Cirino with 11 apiece.

In the Dec. 30th finale, the 'Cats met Houston in a contest for fourth place consolation ranking in the tourney. Villanova won 73-66. Schafer paced the club in the first half, with 18 points, but fouled out with two minutes gone in the third period, still able to show 20 points for his efforts. Jack Devine picked up 16 points, and the season's high of 18 rebounds, while Cirino and Tierney hit for 11 and 12 respectively, to help gain the coveted consolation trophy for Villanova.

Schafer Excels

The New Year brought the 'Cats face to face with North Carolina State in a Jan. 3rd meeting at the Palestra. It was a tight battle all the way. Villanva led by seven at the end of the first quarter, but fell behind by one at the half-time intermission. In the second half it was all Bobby Schafer, as he scored 30 of the 'Cats 35 points.

JACK DEVINE (L) AND BOB SCHAFER, Villanova's basketball bombers, who are helping to put the surging Wildcats on the basketball map and are largely responsible for the Liners' fine 10-4 mark so far.

Ball-Hawking Tierney Valuable Varsity Addition

A former All-Metropolitan performer at St. Anne's High in New York City — sophomore guard Larry Tierney—has continued to display his schoolboy basketball talents for Al Severance's 1953-54 cage edition and figures to be a main cog for the next two years.

Tierney learned the rudiments of basketball, which he applies so effectively now, on the schoolyard and playground courts of the big city—courts that have previously bred such current pro and college greats as Dolph Shayes, the McGuire brothers, Bob Zawoluk and Cy Green of Duquesne.

All-Met In '51-'52

Larry entered St. Anne's in 1948 and was forced to play in the shadow of Danny Powers, who is one of the finest products of New York's annual high school talent turn-out. As a senior, however, Tierney was a co-captain of his squad, which won the City Catholic championship. One of his cohorts that year was John Meade, who made first-string All-met; Larry gained a second-team berth.

The 170-pound, 6-foot Tierney matriculated here at Villanova in fall of 1952, and won a starting role on the frosh club, mainly as a result of his eternal hustling, defensive adroitness and steady scoring ability. He ended up third in team scoring.

Succeeds Glassmire

Shortly after varsity practice opened this fall, it became apparent that Tierney was going to be called upon to fill the defensive and playmaking shoes of graduated Sam Glassmire. He has accustomed himself to his task remarkably, and has come through in a consistent, level-headed style that has delighted Severance no little. He has continually been assigned the opposition's top man—Vic Modulet of N. C. State, Louisville's Corky Cox, Jimmy Young of Canisus.

He's no slouch as far as point-making is concerned, either, by any means. As of the Millersville game, he was third in team scoring.

Looks For Betterment

Tierney feels that the club will improve even more as the year progresses, and should be a truly top-notch outfit by the end of the season, especially with the addition of Jimmy Smith at the start of the second semester.

Just like all ball players, Larry has pet goals, to beat a Kentucky team in Kentucky, and perhaps to play in Madison Square Garden.

One thing is for sure.

Wherever the guy plays, he'll be appreciated.

Hennessy's Palestra Mark Falls; Devine Brilliant

By Harry Nash

A guy who swears he was ineffective with the set shot in high school supplied perhaps the most masterful long-shot exhibition ever seen in the smoky expanses of Penn's Palestra last Friday night.

And in the process this same unassuming Villanova junior—one Robert Thomas Schafer—found time to pump in 46 crowd-thrilling points against Baldwin-Wallace and thereby smash a record of 45 set last year by his former teammate, Larry Hennessy, himself one of the finest and most prolific scorers to ever grace this same or any basketball court.

Leads Three Departments

In so doing this new toast of Villanova's long hardwood annals accomplished several things:

He maintained his nation-leading scoring total, boosting his accumulation to 418 points.

He upped his fifth-place national per-game production to 29.9, one tenth of a percentage point below an average that has never yet been attained by any major college player in history.

He maintained his field goal total lead, having now scored 141 floor shots, tops in the nation, for major colleges.

He moved his nation-pacing total of foul shots made to 136, an accuracy percentage of 70.5 -136 for 193.

Year's Point High

Aside from individual merits, Schafer helped his team to its 10th victory against four defeats, a win that broke a three-game losing string at the Palestra, and its highest point total of the year.

Somewhat unnoticed perhaps because of Schafer's record performance was a rebounding and scoring feat by Bob's roommate, Captain Jack Devine, who, in one of the finest outputs of his career, pulled down 20 stray shots and poured in 28 timely points, most of which came at a time in the contest when Schafer was experimencing a spell of inaccuracy.

Devine, whose previous high of his career was 25 points, is now averaging 15.6 a game. He has also managed to place himself among the top rebounders through-out the country, averaging 13.1 per engagement.

The final score, by the way, a fact somewhat ignored in the flurry of individual record-making, was 95-78.

31 In Second Half

Schafer scored only, 15 points in the first half, and his club left the floor at intermission trailing 28-37. Schafer's first

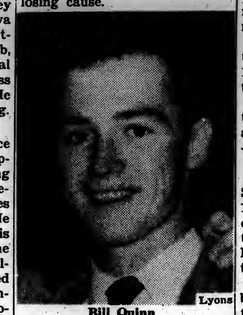
LaSalle, Tigers Top VU Tankmen; Quinn Excels



Villanova's attempt at a successful swim comeback after twelve years of inactivity was delayed last Thursday night as LaSalle swamped the tanksters 56-28. Coach Ed Geisz's proteges were able to pick up only one first and two seconds as the Explorers pulled away to a 29-3 lead after four of the ten events.

Captain Bill Quinn proved to be the outstanding merman for Villanova as he took the lone first with a 5:55.3 victory in the 440-yard free-style. Ben Addiego and Jack McGrath both captured places for the Main Liners, scoring in the diving and 200-yard backstroke, respectively.

Two nights later, the club traveled to Princeton and received its second setback of the young season, this time by the rather overwhelming count of 74-10. With the Tigers entering only two men in every event, Tom Donohue was the lone tankman able to gain a second place for Villanova, as he was edged out by Ken Lange in the 50-yard freestyle in 0:25.8.

Gerstung Takes Third

Bill Quinn and Bob Gerstung each took two third places for the Wildcats. Quinn showed in the 220 and 440-yard freestyle event and Gerstung in the 150-yard individual medley and 200-yard backstroke. Pat Kean, Ben Addiego and Tom Donohue took single third-place honors in a losing cause.

SPORTS CHATTER

Tough Road Ahead

By Harry Nash

Al Severance's proteges, having won three of five during a much-travelled Christmas holiday, have established two apparent facts so far in compiling a 10-4 mark against some of the best competition available.

The first and most pleasant point is this: that the Squire and his comparatively inexperienced pupils have done an extremely commendable job thus far, what with only two starters with previous varsity warfare, and an overall lack of extraordinary height as current college dunkers go.

The other fact, perhaps a little less palatable for Villanova's hardwood fans, is this: the road in the two months ahead is going to be slightly rocky, insofar as such national stalwarts as Duquesne, Fordham, N. C. State, Dayton and Seton Hall dominate the remainder of the aggregation's 31-game listing.

The Dukes, with Dick Ricketts, Jim Tucker and sophomore newcomer Cy Green mowing down just about everybody in sight, are rated by many would-be experts and students of the game alike as the top five in the nation, given the nod over that revenge-minded group from the hinterlands of Kentucky that had probably the finest intramural team in the history of basketball last year. Adolph Rupp's Hagan-headed club, given a fatherly NCAA whack on the behind in the form of a one-year suspension for alleged "fixings", the stink of which caused seven-foot Bill Spivey to quit school altogether, is rated by the AP as the current best, with Duquesne and Indiana close behind.

Fordham, making hay in the metropolitan area to the tune of a current 26th place in the weekly poll, pulls into the Palestra February 27, the Rams' lone engagement with the Main Liners. The Rose Hillers dumped New York University last week, 87-60, and still face the tough portion of their schedule.

Play State There

Another Wildcat obstacle, N. C. State, edged Bob Schafer and Co. a week or so ago by a mere four points after a last-ditch rally abetted mainly by a stronger bench. The Wolfpack, in spite of that win, are by no means of the caliber of the past Dickey-Ranzino reign at the Raleigh institution, and have been beaten four times thus far. Two of the losses came in the recent Dixie Classic, an unaccustomed situation, inasmuch as Everett Case's prodigies had begun to look upon themselves as perennial top dog in that three-day affair (and with good reason—State had clinched the winners' spot for the past four years). Villanova travels to R. J. Reynolds' Coliseum in Raleigh for the second meeting with State, and this figures to be much tougher, for the Casemen have become wary of disappointing their hometown clan which turns out en masse for practically every home get-together.

Dayton and Seton Hall aren't listed highly in either the AP or UP polls, but both clubs provide a peck of trouble, as always.

A team that may be unwisely overlooked because of its small-time nature, Belmont Abbey, entertains the 'Cats February 7, at the Abbey. This institution is run by the Benedictines, about 16 miles outside of Charlotte, N. C. and goes in for basketball in no small manner. They consistently turn out good clubs, although the fact that they tour the South almost exclusively tends to obscure their reputation hereabouts.

Real Ball Club

So, with 17 to go, things look comparatively good. One thing is for sure, we have a team that is just that. You won't find guys everywhere who play together the way this club does, in spite of the large experience gap between its two starting juniors and the three sophomores. The big weakness so far has been replete with occasional defensive let-downs, a situation that is bound to improve as the season progress. Bob Schafer, of course, has been the big gun . . . he's averaging close to 30 a game and has shown encouraging ability (as in the Lebanon Valley game) to go into the pivot against the zone and still maintain his scoring pace that usually is carried on mainly from the outside weave.

Captain Jack Devine has been chipping in effectively yet unnoticably with points most of the time, but his biggest contribution, perhaps just as unheralded, is an intangible factor, namely his leadership qualities on the court, directing an attack that has functioned remarkably well up to this stage.

Sophomores Impressive

The most-employed sophomores, Larry Tierney, Marty Milligan, John Cirino and Tom Foley, have demonstrated valuable aptitudes in several departments. Tierney, a former All-Metropolitan high school player as was present teammate John Meade, has been a defensive demon and has added a good deal of speed to the weave, and Milligan and Cirino have both shown spurts of scoring potential.

Let's turn out tomorrow night and watch the 'Cats hang up their 57th consecutive winning effort at the Field House.

Frosh Club Takes No. 7; Down CMCG

By Norm Feldpush

Villanova's undefeated freshmen extended their winning streak to six games as they thumped Millersville J. V. 92-72 last Wednesday. Al Griffith paced the club with 20 points, but yielded scoring honors to the visitors' Bill Wentzel, who tallied 22. The frosh maintained a slim lead throughout the first half, and used their superior bench to insure victory in the second half.

Twelve players participated in the scoring, with four in double figures. Jack Wiseman trailed Griffith in the scoring parade with 15 points, followed by hard-driving Sonny DiCarlo with 12 and hustling Jim Smith with 11. Bob Powers and Bill Haley with 8 and 7 respectively, aided the cause.

Cape May Loses

Cape May Cost Guard provided the opposition on Friday and became the seventh consecutive conquest for the frosh, losing 93-81. Sonny DiCarlo, the team's leading scorer, sparkled with a 25 point performance on 11 field goals and 3 fouls. Messer, Connor, and Rouse led the visitors with a combined output of 52 points. Four other yearlings reached double figures. Smith had 21, Wiseman, and Powers and Griffith 10 each, as the freshmen continued their high-scoring antics to rally in the last quarter and clinch the contest.

With just two minutes left in the game, Villanova led by 4, but State, led by all-American candidate Mel Thompson, who had 25, was able to dump in eight points, and the game ended in a 69-65 N. C. State victory.

For Schafer, the North Carolina State game was a milestone in his career, for in it he broke his own scoring record for an individual game with a phenominal 43 points, and he also captured one of the most sought after records in basketball, by compiling a lifetime total of more than 1000 points.

Ramblers Lone Unbeaten Outfit; Playoffs Nearing

With the playoffs only a month away, the 76 teams entered in the Intramural Basketball Leagues are completing their schedules in the quest for one of the post-season spots. Each of the 12 leagues will send its winner to the round-robin elimination tournament that will decide the Villanova Intramural Basketball Championship for 1953-54.

Fedigan Tops

The Fedigan Ramblers, with their great experience and rebounding ability, appear to be the team to beat. They are the only undefeated club remaining. The Elbow Benders, Alumni Shamrocks, and Peerless Five are other top contenders who look like they will be in the fight for first-place honors.

Intramural Athletic Director Ed Geisz announces that all games postponed from the extra vacation day before Christmas have been rescheduled at the end of the regular season.

The outstanding players in the league will be selected to compose an Intramural All-Star team that will play the Freshman in a Field House preliminary encounter sometime in March.

Gene Filipski
Auspicious Debut

Back Gains 109 Yards For North

Villanova's Gene Filipski, who signed with the Cleveland Browns less than a week ago, vindicated his future coach's judgement at Mobile Saturday, leading Paul Brown's North to a 20-14 triumph over the South in the annual Senior Bowl.

The pile-driving Sacremento, California native, as a result of his highly successful debut into the pro ranks, was named Most Valuable Player of the tightly - contested game, in which he gained 109 yards in 19 carries and spearheaded the winners' decisive 95-yard scoring advance in the third period.

Sparks Advance

Filipski, who also competed with the cream of the nation's eastern talent recently in the Shriners' East-West game, moved the ball from his team's own 5-yard line to its 30 in three successive plays to add impetus to the drive that eventually proved the deciding factor. He went to the 12 on the first play, to the 20 on the next and romped 10 more yards before being brought down on his third consecutive gaining success. This sequence of plays changed the entire comolexion of the game, since the South leading at that point, 14-13, and had the Yankees deep in their own territory.

The 180-pound halfback, who, as did all the members of the North squad, received $500 for his afternoon's activities, was a major contributor to his team's first down total of 23, as compared with the Rebels' 11.

Cecere In North-South

Filipski's VU teammate, Ralph Cecere, also took part in an earlier North-South game, which the South won, 42-19. Filipski was a co-captain of fthe East squad in the Shriner's contest.

Filipski was the first draft choice of the Browns last year in the annual college talent picks.

floor attempt, with 20 seconds gone in the first quarter, was successful but nullified by a foul. He didn't score from the floor again until 7:50 had elapsed, when he hit on a jump push. He came through at the foul line corner with 16 out of 20 tries, hitting on 15 out of 40 attempts from the court. The second half was a different story, however, as the 'Dutchman' colloborated with Devine's scoring splurge to pull the club away to a 63-56 lead at the start of the final period. From then on it was merely a case of suspense, as Schafer edged toward the former mark of 45.

Villanova's swimming team goes in search of its first win tomorrow night against Swarthmore at the Swarthmore pool. The club's first home meet will be against Loyola of Baltimore this Saturday afternoon at 2:30 in the Fieldhouse.

Ten Being Considered For National Honors

Faculty selectors began last week to judge the papers of ten seniors eligible for the national Catholic Honor Society, Delta Epsilon Sigma.

Heading the selection committee is Rev. Robert M. Sullivan, O. S A, Dean of Arts and Sciences. Assisting in the selection are Rev. John McShea, O. S. A., Associate Professor of English; Rev. Edward F. Jenkins, O. S. A., Associate Professor of Chemistry, Dr. John I. McEnerney, Associate Professor of Classics; and Dr. John A. McLain, Professor of Biology.

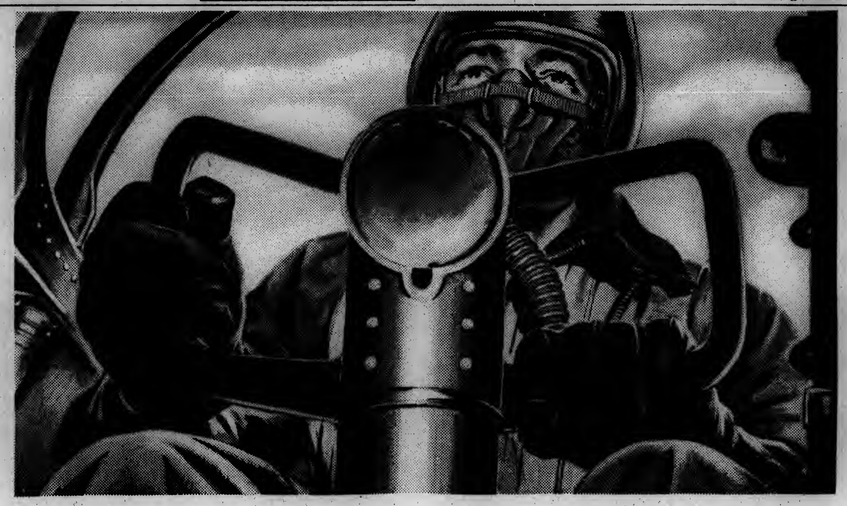
Each member of the committee will read each student's paper. Only those adjudged of high literary quality will enable their authors to gain entrance into this society, sponsored by the National Catholic Education Association. Present national offices are in Kansas City, Missouri.

All nominees were selected on the basis of marks and "contribution to Catholic intellectual life which the student is likely to make as a graduate." Successful nominees will be announced around February 15, said Father Sullivan. Induction will take place at Easter time.

There is no definite quota assigned to Villanova, it was announced, so only those papers showing real ability will gain their authors a place in the brotherhood.

Watch Bishop Fulton J. Sheen, tonight and every Tuesday night at 8:00 P. M. on TV, Channel 6.

Dean to Address DPM on Thursday



Harold Gill Reuschlein, Dean of the Law School, will be the guest speaker at this Thursday's meeting of the Delta Pi Mu Arts fraternity.

Room 206 C&F will be the scene of his talk, which will begin promptly at 7:30. Dean Reuschlein is the second in a list of speakers the fraternity will present for its members. Dr. John I. McEnerney, Associate Professor of Classics at Villanova, was the first.

Bart Moynahan, president of the Fraternity, has announced that all dues must be paid by the time of the meeting. Any one who has not done this will be dropped from the membership list and will not be allowed to join the fraternity until next year.

THREE EDITORS of the 1954 Belle Air finish routine layout and selection work in anticipation of the deadline. They are, l. to r., Art Quinn, editor-in-chief; Joe Zator, layout editor, and George Gorman, college editor.

Your hands on the Future!

When you grip the wheel of an Air Force jet, your hands are on a fast, high flying future that leads to the top in jet aviation.

● Once behind the controls of an Air Force jet, you leave the humdrum of everyday life . . . soar far above the cares of the crowd into a bright new future of adventure and excitement. You're part of a select flying team, playing for the highest stakes of all . . . mastery of the Jet Age! You'll win too, because you've been trained to win. You have confidence in yourself, in your fellows, and in your plane, the fastest and safest flying equipment in the world.

As an Air Force Aviation Cadet, you get in on the ground floor of jet aviation, learn jet flight with the latest equipment and best instructors. You graduate as an Air Force lieutenant earning over $5,000 a year . . . a man thoroughly prepared for leadership in both military and commercial aviation. Join the many fine young men who keep their hands on the future. Train as an Aviation Cadet!

You may be eligible

To qualify as an Aviation Cadet, you must be at least a high school graduate. However, you will be of more value to the Air Force if you stay in college, graduate, and then volunteer for training. In addition, you must be between 19 and 26½ years, unmarried, and in good physical condition.

☆ Win an Air Force Commission
☆ Earn over $5,000 A Year

HERE'S WHAT YOU DO:

1. Take your high school diploma or certificate of graduation and a copy of your birth certificate to your nearest Air Force Base or Recruiting Station. Fill out the application they give you.

2. If application is accepted, the Air Force will arrange for you to take a physical examination at government expense.

3. Next, you will be given a written and manual aptitude test.

4. If you pass your physical and other tests, you will be scheduled for an Aviation Cadet training class. The Selective Service Act allows you a four-month deferment while waiting class assignment.

Quinn Lauds Progress On '54 Annual

With two deadlines already met, Belle Air editor Art Quinn stated last week that indications are that the first University yearbook will rank with the outstanding editions of past years, including the famed 1943 publication.

For the first time in Villanova yearbook history, every senior has had his picture taken, Quinn pointed out. That deadline was met two weeks ago.

Layout editor Joe Zator and sports editor Harry Anger were praised especially for their hard work in meeting difficulties. All sports copy except baseball and intramurals has gone to the printers. Quinn suggests that the sports section, with a different type of layout, stressing more pictures than did those of former years, will be one of the many innovations in this book.

New Features

Other new features will include more informal photographs, and an easier-to-follow general layout. The Cooke Publishing Company, publishers of the book, have offered many invaluable suggestions on all phases.

The advertising campaign has also brought many dollars into the yearbook fund. This money will make possible the addition of several extra items. Since all money from ads is not yet in, no definite statement on these extras may be made at this time.

In connection with this, the editor reminds those who still plan to get ads that the deadline is January 31. All ads must be in by that time. First proofs will be made up immediately and sent to the advertiser. Commissions will be paid soon afterwards.

V. U. Voice Heard Again

A newly revamped and reorganized WVIL, 640 on the radio dial, began broadcasting just a month ago and inaugurated tranamission via carrier current on the Villanova University campus. By injecting broadcasts directly into the University power lines, WVIL became solely a campus radio station. The Drama Societies of Rosemont, Immaculata, and our own Belle Masquers are in the process of preparing dramatic programs in union with WVIL's production department, under the direction of Bernie Coyne. An informal 30 minutes with Harry Anger and Jim Borden will become a must on 640, as they spin records, comment, cause general mayhem, and . . . comment.

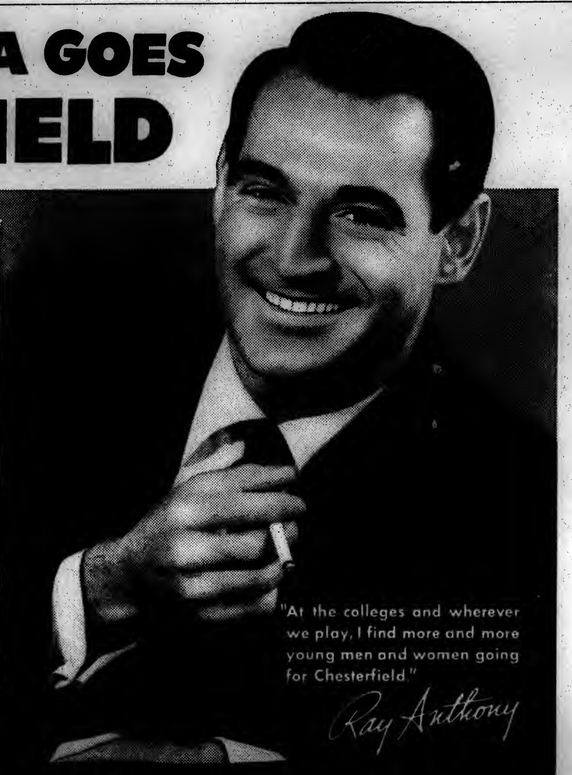
A flurry of pre-Christmas debates saw Beta Gamma participate in a five-team tournament on December 11 at Swarthmore College and in a home-and-home meet with Haverford on December 15. Five victories and three losses netted the team second place in the tournament, and Haverford was blanked in the dual meet.

Representing Villanova at Swarthmore were: affirmative; Jim Wrzesinski and Mark McCormick, and negative; Joe Roddy and Bob Gerstung. Debating against Haverford were, on the affirmative, Joe McNulty and TcCormick; the negative was upheld by Bill Eckenrode and Al Nowak.

BELLE AIR ADS

All those who have ads for the yearbook are reminded that the deadline is January 31. All ads must be handed in before that time. Commissions will be paid after first proofs have been sent to advertisers.

VALENTINE HOP



Senior delegate Bob Gold gave out preliminary plans for the annual NFCCS dance, the Valentine Hop, last week.

The charity dance will be held Feb. 12 in the Field House. Chairman for the affair will be Bob Ervin. He has been making arrangements for the evening since the vacation.

Tickets will be $1.50 per couple. Theme will be based on Valentine's Day, although plans are still in the formative stage. formative stage.

Set Final Plans For Senior Prom

Tix Coming February 12

Ward Welsh

The Belle Air Ball, listed in the student's handbook as "The outstanding social function of the year," is well on its way to becoming just that. Set for the night of February 26th in the Field House, the senior prom will see Claude Thornhill and his fine band back for a return engagement at Villanova.

"The fact that this is the senior prom," points out chairman Ward Welsh, "means it is given by the seniors. The dance is for the whole school, though; we especially want to see the freshmen, sophs and juniors out for it."

Tickets In Pie Shoppe

Ticket chairmen Frank Saul and Bob Gold will put tickets on sale Feb. 14th in the Pie Shoppe. Bids will cost $6. Jim McGee and Jack Joyce, handling programs and favors, have come up with something new in the way of gifts for the girls at the dance.

Chairman Welsh is quite enthusiastic over the decorations being prepared by Joe McGarrigle and Hal Pickett.

"These boys have the ideas and the ability and experience to set the field house in a terrific atmosphere for the prom. The decorations surely will be outstanding," said Welsh.

DEADLINE

Due to the press of mid-term examinations there will be no issue of the Villanovan until February 16. Club secretaries and Villanovan staff members are reminded that the next deadline for the paper will be 4:00 P. M., Thursday afternoon, February 11. Copy may be left in the Villanovan office or with any of the editors. All copy must be in by that time.

Law School Exam Set

Villanova University has been designated as a testing center for the nationwide administration of the Law School Admission Test on February 20, April 10, and August 7, 1954, Dean Harold Gill Reuschlein of the Villanova School of Law announced today.

College seniors, juniors, and in some instances, sophomores are eligible to take these tests. Each applicant should find out as soon as possible from the Law Schools in which he is interested whether he should take the test and on what date. The Law School Admission Test is prepared and administered by the Educational Testing Service, Princeton, New Jersey.

Application blanks and information bulletins describing registration procedures and containing sample test questions should be obtained four or five weeks in advance from the Law School or directly from the Law

S. C. Debates Nurses' Vote; 'Who's Who'

Reports on old and new business featured the opening meeting of student council January 12 in its old grounds, 215 Mendel.

Joe Zator of the Ways and Means Committee reported that the results of a poll of the Nursing Division showed the majority in favor of representation on the council. Not only do they want to elect their own representatives, they also want a full vote on the council, he reported. (At present class representatives get one full vote, while club representatives get half a vote.) A new amendment along this line will be formulated and voted upon at the next meeting.

To Hold Survey

The Marketing club representative also announced that the Marketing Club will sponsor a survey asking the students their views on school spirit, student-administration relationship, the honor system, the cut system, the Student Council, the part of athletics at Villanova, student facilities, and the selection of candidates for the National Collegiate Who's Who.

The council set the dates for election of freshman class officers at Feb. 11. Nominations will be January 21.

HAROLD GILL REUSCHLEIN, dean of Villanova's new law school, shown addressing members of Delta Pi Mu, Arts School Fraternity.

Law School Dean Lauds Liberal Arts Curriculum

Harold Gill Reuschlein, the Dean of the Villanova Law School, told members of the Delta Pi Mu Arts fraternity at their meeting last Thursday night that "a man who is truly educated must have an understanding of the subjects embraced by the liberal arts college", namely, English, History and Philosophy.

Before a group of about 80 DPM brothers, Dean Reuschlein reviewed various aspects of a law education and in particular, the Villanova Law School. Speaking with conversational ease he explained the new graduate school's place at Villanova, its purpose, and the means it is taking to attain its ends.

The Dean pointed out that the best pre-law course is not a business curriculum but one of liberal arts, or more specifically, a study of English literature. Through the study of literature one can gain a knowledge of all the historical and social processes.

Business Approach Weak

The business approach to pre-law, said the Dean, is less satisfactory because at an undergratuate level law courses are simplified to such an extent as to cause the student trouble when he undertakes his graduate studies.

Before Dean Reuschlein's talk, Bath Moynahan, president of the DPM, brought to the floor the question of whether pre-med students should be admitted to the fraternity. The pre-meds were the only men in the Arts and Sciences division who are not admitted. The motion to allow them membership was carried by a unanimous vote.

The DPM will hold an important business meeting during the activities period Thursday in Room 206 C&F.

At Last: The Logical Text Book

Prof's Co-Author New Logic Book

The first week of February will see the appearance on campus of a new textbook written by two members of Villanova's faculty. The book, designed as a text for the introductory course in Logic (Philosophy 101, is a product of the joint efforts of Mr. Roland Houde of the Department of Philosophy and Mr. Jerome J. Fischer of the Department of English.

Entitled Handbook of Logic, the text is to be accompanied by a workbook of problems, to be called Workbook of Logic. Both books are being published by the Wm. C. Brown Company of Dubuque, Iowa, publishers of the new and widely heralded collection of philosophical books in the Aquinas Library series.

Need Stated

According to the co-authors, the new book has been planned to fill a long standing need in the field for a new kind of text with a new method of presentation, to bring logic home to the student, to teach it not as a theory but as a tool to be used by all men in the practical concerns of their everyday life.

In accordance with this, say Professors Houde and Fischer, the text aims first to present the student with the fundamentals of the science, as founded by Aristotle and propounded in the Middle Ages by St. Thomas Aquinas and his followers and later by the great thinkers of the Scholastic tradition, and second to bring the student to an awareness of the impact of modern developments in the field upon the traditional.

Logic, like most branches of learning in modern times, has had to face the onslaught of questioning, doubt, rebellion, and outright denial which are results of the philosophy of naturalism and the resultant materialism, physicalism, and positivism that have infested almost all areas of contemporary thought. Specifically, this conflict has taken the form, in logic, of a rejection in many quarters of the traditional logic of Aristotle and Aquinas and a substitution of a new "mathematical" logic of symbols devoid of any fixed meaning, a rejection in effect of a relationship between language and ideas.

New Thomism Is Brought To Light

Their new book as a consequence, in the words of the authors, "represents the attempt to provide the student in the introductory course in logic with:

1) A handbook of the fundamentals of the science, brief and succinct enough to be practical and yet substantial enough to provide him with the solid foundation of the traditional from which to approach the 'mysteries' of modern developments in the field.

2) A working knowledge of the science of which he may build the personal equipment to enable him to solve for himself the problems posed by the impact of the new on the old."

Contemporary Trends

It is in keeping with this,

Open Fund Drive

Letters were mailed yesterday morning to all the seniors, at home to the day students and for the boarders to their campus address, thereby kicking off the Statue Fund Drive of the Class of 1954.

In addition to the letter, a stamped self-addressed envelope was included to help the senior in making his contribution. A goal of two thousand dollars is sought and to meet this amount each senior is being asked to donate five dollars. The deadline for the fund raising drive is March 1st.

An Evaluation

Exam time is here again and it's about time for an evaluation of the last semester.

For freshmen the end of the term marks the end of their first semester of contact with college life. A few (very few) have found the courses only slightly harder than those in high school. Many more have discovered, perhaps much to their chagrin, that much more is needed besides lackadaisical attention in class and a cursory examination of the textbook before each test.

January 1954 also marks the termination of another semester, their third, for the sophomore class. For the NROTC regulars it was their first contact with the traditional bugaboo, Physics. For others it was an introduction to more work than they had ever before been confronted with. Sophomore year has often been said to be the year when the men are separated from the boys.

Introduction to more specialized courses marked this semester for the class of 1955. The transition in most cases was not too hard. Juniors will probably be able to take the exams more in stride. Engineers and pre-meds saw more of the labs and less of the day-light, but all realized that they were much closer to their final objectives.

For seniors the end of this semester will be marked by increased activity along the lines of securing jobs or filling out final applications for graduate study.

In any case, no matter what class you're in, good luck in the exams.

A Challenge

Yesterday afternoon a group of aspiring students from the freshman, sophomore, junior and senior classes met in their new office in the basement of the Commerce and Finance building. These men mapped out the plans toward a goal which they are determined to achieve.

Their immediate goal: to reestablish Villanova's literary magazine, "The Lynx" and place it in the public's eye both on campus and elsewhere. In recent years, the task of publishing the Lynx has fallen upon the backs of a few interested English majors and a very earnest English teacher who tried in vain to keep it alive. No job can be done properly in this manner. The Lynx did not publish this past summer and fall. It takes work, enthusiasm, and even more, cooperation. These are all manifest in the group that met yesterday.

This rebirth of a magazine, however, has deeper meaning than is evident to the ordinary observer. It envisions a further goal.

Self-expression, through the fine arts, is needed at Villanova; it is coming to Villanova. A survey taken last Spring showed that the students recognize the need for opportunities to cultivate the fine arts. As in every other field at Villanova, progress is beginning. We have a fine dramatic organization and through the efforts of our Law School Dean, a choir is rehearsing now to sing a weekly Mass on campus, beginning this semester.

The coming of the Lynx opens new fields. Here is an opportunity for the artist or illustrator to present his work; the photographer his. The new Lynx office is always open to receive the work of the poet, essayist or any writer whether his interest be in fiction, non-fiction, science writing or any field.

Any ailing body needs nourishment to get back on its feet. You students, your interest and your acceptance will be the nourishment of THE NEW LYNX.

Politicians Said To Be Pleasing All; And None

By Mark McCormick

An advocate of modern art was recently commissioned to paint the portrait of a famous successful politician. The picture which resulted astonished everyone who saw it.

Strange Animal

It portrayed a creature with the normal allotment of two eyes but with one eye drawn in the front of the head (foresight) and the other in back (hindsight). The nose was shown pressed against a grindstone, and the mouth was open, letting a silver tongue show. A large, gold heart was drawn, suspended, of course, in the "right place." Significantly, the politician was depicted with both feet on the ground but with one on each side of a fence.

Shortly after the completion of the painting, the politician went to his doctor complaining of an ear-ache. No one was more surprised than this humble man of medical science when his flashlight shined into the left ear and out the right. A quick diagnosis disclosed that the politician had nothing at all between his ears!

The artist had summed up in his portrait of this one politician the popular impression of the ideal qualities for politicial success. This impression and the doctor's diagnosis symbolize the neglect of real worth in the determination of success in politics.

Newspaper Evidence

There is evidence of this on the front page of any newspaper. Assertion after assertion is hurled back and forth among alleged authorities, who are replete with bombastic, conflicting opinions. The epithet, "demagogue" is exchanged so often that it usually seems applicable to all sides in a controversy.

Political success is too often achieved by a very carefully worked out program which consists of promising the most in services to the greatest number of interests. Consonant with this is the traditional and usually contradictory promise to give more services and at the same time lower taxes. The American people are thus treated in many instances like greedy children. Every pill, in the estimation of some political leaders, must be carefully coated with sugar, and every pang of hunger must be satisfied.

Result-Compromise

The result however has been a political system which practices compromise as the single virtue, and contradiction as consistency.

It is the politician who sticks to principles and ideals in the face of great odds—who refuses to acknowledge that white is black even if a poll shows that 66.78% of his grade school constituents say that white is black and the rest are undecided—who is a statesman. For he realizes that in attempting to satisfy every one a politician descends to the level of the least of the selfish interests that he is seeking to represent, and in a democracy interests are considered selfish when they contradict the common, ultimate good.

The citizens of the United States have enough basic wisdom to recognize a need for integrity and honesty among their elected representatives, and the repeated call for statesmen rather than politicians is evidence that it's doubtful that they ever believed in paternal government.

Politicians Hesitant

Too many politicians are hesitant to tell the truth and to think for themselves. They are too worried about political success to step on any one's toes in support of that which is just and true. The very election of a political leader is indicative that the people have expressed confidence in the abilities of a particular man to aid in wise government, and not merely to appease every interest.

Duty To Lead

Concerning the Presidency, history offers the examples of Abraham Lincoln and Woodrow Wilson, men who were unpopular with the vocal interest during their administrations, but men who never hestitated to act in what they estimated to be the common good. Politicians will become statesmen when they realize that it is their duty to lead, to transform rather than to conform.

New York law students have been offered a chance to do "volunteer laboratory work" by hunting Communists for the government. Forty-eight students, including three women, are now working part-time without pay in the offices of U. S. attorneys in Manhattan and Brooklyn.

The New Yorkers are the first to participate in a plan begun by Attorney General Herbert Brownell. The scheme eventually will be extended until college students are hunting Communists part-time in each of the nation's 94 U. S. attorneys' offices.

Brownell said the students will do "volunteer laboratory work for us and help us dig out the evidence to prosecute the subversives and criminals."

When John Clarke, a pre-law student at Texas A & M, wrote a letter to the editor of the Battalion, student newspaper, he received a warning to "get out of town in 30 calendar minutes" or get shoved around by his fellow students.

The reason? Clarke's letter had criticized the student body for "childish actions".

Rees James Turns Poll-Conscious; First Liquor; Now Tobacco

By Rees James

None of the students at Villanova ever QUIT smoking. They just quit buying. These manifestations of will power reached new heights over the past few months with the announcement that lung cancer goes hand in hand with heavy smoking. The economic implications of such a campus situation are horrendous, but because we possess a semi-scientific turn of mind, we decided to confine our investigations to the medical aspects of the question. Respecting authority, we went to a man who knows.

"What cigarette do you smoke, Doctor?"

"Turkish Mamas," he replied. "A rare blend of Turkish and domestic tobaccoes that scintillate-who-me?-I don't smoke at all. Causes cancer you know. Darn testimonials."

This was Doctor Emmit Fagir, the eminent T-Zone specialist. We were interviewing him at the Naval Induction Center where he is employed as second hypo man on the afternoon shift. To get a start we asked him a few personal questions.

"I'm known as the thirty-day wonder among the boys in the trade," he began, blowing a smoke ring in my face. "Darn testimonials." He wasn't smoking.

Sleeping Weeds

"I was educated at some school in North Carolina. I forget the name. It was right next to a tobacco plantation. I remember they used to dry the leaves in the field house. Big signs all over the place. QUIET. TOBACCO ASLEEP. Every Thursday we had tobacco instead of grits with our eggs. Great school. Forget the name of it though."

We asked him when he first became interested in the connection between lung cancer and smoking.

"When they first told me I had lung cancer. I never smoked in my life you know," he answered, blowing another ring. It curled down to his desk and settled around a faded photograph of Mae Busch.

"That started me thinking" he continued, "about what might have caused my trouble. I opened vast new fields of research and came up with a few outstanding facts."

"What are they?" we innocently asked.

"Well, lung cancer can also be caused by eating grits for breakfast. I found that almost every Southerner suffering from lung cancer ate grits for breakfast at one time or another. Terrible thing, grits. I ran some tests in the laboratory to support these statistics. I fed thirty white mice grits for breakfast for thirty days."

"What happened?" we asked, the epitome of interest.

"One day they all marched out of here whistling 'Dixie' and shouting something about 'on to Gettysburg' whatever that is. Haven't seen hide nor hair of the darn things since."

The realization that we had heard as much from this bird as we could endure at one sitting coupled with the fact that the room was so filled with smoke that we could hardly breathe, led us to bring the interview to an abrupt conclusion.

"Well, thanks a lot, Doctor. I hear my mother calling me. I'd better go." This was an old ruse we had used many times.

Don't Go!

"No, no. Don't go." he urged, jumping in our lap. "You haven't heard the rest of my theories. Do you know that 3-D films can cause cancer of the optic nerve? That watching television can cause cancer of the lower spine? That studying can cause—"

"Too much trouble, Doctor. I have to go."

"Then let me tell you how I can blow these smoke rings without smoking." he said with a fiendish leer.

"No!" we shouted, choking back a coughing spasm. "Not at all."

We scurried from his office and out into the fresh, clean Philadelphia air. The entire episode was about as funny as cancer. No, nothing else is new.

For Election Year 1954:

Mud-Slinging Should Stop

By Dan Kerrish

Election year! Time to sharpen up the hatchets, grind the axes, and dig up the sledge-hammers and mud slingers. Is it significant that we always seem to think of a campaign in these terms? Did you ever wonder why such things as shovels or cranes or screwdrivers or nails are never used? Could it be that we have come to associate the weapons of destruction, those associated with tearing down, rather than those which carry the idea of constructive work, with our politicial campaigns? To me, no other explanation is possible.

Don't Let Them Get Away

During the past three presidential elections, and the past five congressional elections, the main issues have been how good or bad the past administration had been and don't let them take it away or get away with it, depending on which side of the fence you were on. There has been a notable lack, on the other hand, of constructive thought. Both parties have most assiduously avoided forming platforms offering plans for the future, or solutions to particularly controversial issues. The reason for this is apparent: they do not wish to alienate any portion of the American people. As a rather sad example, the Civil Rights issue has been politely avoided for two presidential elections, because it was "too hot."

A Sad Commentary

This is a sad commentary on modern America, that her people are unable to see beyond their own immediate interests to the ultimate good of the nation. The political leaders are not to be entirely blamed for this lack of foresight, they must try to gain and/or keep power in the government. It is in the people themselves, who have become snug and content in the status quo, and are unwilling to disturb it. They have lost the realization that our country became great by feeding upon the blood and sweat, the hardships and willing sacrifices of those who have gone before us; and that our country can continue its upward surge only as long as these ingredients are supplied.

Constructive Thought

There was a time when we were the most vital and rapidly developing of countries, but that time has passed. Yet it can come again if the voters of America would only wake to the realization that we are stagnating, and force the parties to adopt platforms based on constructive thought and endeavor. Let us, as individuals and as a nation, look to the future, rather than to the past, and the United States shall assume among the nations of the world a position of leadership held by respect and perhaps even awe rather than the dollar.

Rome Mission Completed, Father Rongione Returns

Rev. Louis A. Rongione, O. S. A., former Dean of the Evening School and Assistant Professor of Philosophy and Religion has returned to Villanova after a 14 month absence.

Father Rongione was taken from his position here and appointed Chief Librarian of the International College of St. Monica, in Rome, Italy, by the Most Rev. Joseph A. Hickey, O. S. A., then Prior General of the Augustinian Order and a former president of Villanova.

Father Rongione's assignment in the Eternal City was to catalogue the vast library, which contains 30,000 volumes in 20 different languages.

The library is primarily theological, and includes the allied sciences — scripture, liturgy, church history and the like. The college it serves is the international headquarters of the Augustinian Order. Augustinian students from all over the world come to Rome to study there.

Highlights Of Trip

Among the highlights of his trip abroad were several audiences with his holiness Pope Pius XII, both at St. Peter's Basilica and at the Pope's summer residence, Castel Gondolfo.

In his free time he traveled through southern Europe. He spent three weeks at a United States military camp near Chinon, France, during one of his vacations. He preached the 40 hours devotion there. Chinon is well known for its connection with historical incidences in the life of St. Joan of Arc.

In Spain, Father was the guest at the home of Lt. Colonel Louis Mendez, United States military attache to Madrid. The famous El Escorial was the most impressive thing he saw in that country.

Another excursion brought him to the shrine of Our Mother Of Good Counsel, at Gennazzano, Italy. He saw the renowned miraculous picture of Our Lady which stays on a wall with no visible means of support.

Set 'Lynx' Publication

The Lynx, Villanova's student literary magazine is again in existence. Through the efforts of James Mitchell and Dr. John Phillipson, English profs, and a group of interested students, the quarter-annual publication is being reorganized. The first issue will appear next month.

Ward Welsh, recently chosen editor, called the first meeting of staff members last week. They also met yesterday in their new office in the basement of the C&F building.

"The turnout and the enthusiasm shown is encouraging," said Welsh. "We're determined to put the Lynx back on a high level worthy of a university publication. We need student help from every department though."

James Managing Editor

Rees James, Arts '55, is managing editor of the magazine. Other department heads are: Mark McCormick, copy editor; Tom McNichol, poetry editor; Charlie Magee and Walt Punke, are co-editors; Paul Landau, circulation manager; Ed Karkut, promotion; and Mike Maliniak and Phil Stahl, business managers.

NFCCS Dance Set:

Ervin Tells Of Completion Of Valentine Hop Plans

"Chairmen have been assigned and most of the final plans have been completed for the annual Valentine Hop," said general chairman Bob Ervin last week.

Assisting Ervin in the charity affair will be Nick Elsier and Ed Kerney, tickets; Jim Rath, refreshments; Joe McNulty, publicity, and senior delegate Bob Gold, decorations.

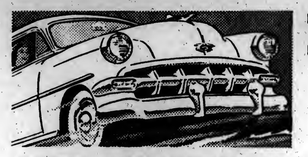
"I am confident that Villanovans will continue their aid to charities by their support of this dance", said Ervin. "All money collected will go to the NFCCS Overseas Service Program, to aid the needy in countries like Africa, India, and Asia."

"The dance will be well worth attending," he said. "Music will be supplied by The Collegians, and the price will fit everybody's pocketbook.

Tickets for the dance, the first social event of the second semester, will cost $1.50 per couple. The informal lasts from 9 to 1, and will be held in the Field House.

DPE Members Hear Speaker

Mr. Samuel Birraunao, consulting engineer to R.C.A., spoke on the place of Catholic attitudes in business at Sunday's communion breakfast of the Delta Pi Epsilon fraternity.



The 55 members attending heard that Catholic Action should be a part of the business lives of Catholics.

Bob Ervin served in the dual capacity of chairman of the function and toastmaster. The fraternity received communion in a body at the 9 o'clock mass in the chapel. Rev. Edward B. McKee, O. S. A., vice-president of Villanova, said the mass.

Breakfast was served in the priests' dining hall. Rev. Richard McNally, O. S. A., moderator, and Mike Quinn, president, also spoke to the group.

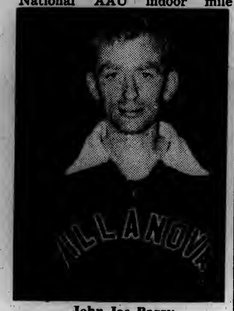
Frosh Star In Boston Meet

Inimitable Irishman:



Fred Dwyer, John Barry — The End Of A Trafk Era

By Norm Feldpush

A highly successful era in Villanova track history will draw to a close in February with the conclusion of the collegiate careers of two internationally famous runners. Perhaps the most formidable distance duo to represent an Eastern college, John Joe Barry and Fred Dwyer, the inimitable Irishmen, need no introduction to even a casual sport enthusist. They have elevated Villanova's name to championship heights from the Boston Garden to the Los Angeles Coliseum with the efficiency, determination, and confidence which distinguishes a champion from a mediocre performer.

AAU Champion

John Joe Barry's arrival immediately served notice of difficult times ahead for future Villanova opponents. Despite the handicap of an adjustment to a new country, the former Irish Olympic team member performed brilliantly. He triumphed in the 1950 Boston K. of C. mile run, and followed by winning the National AAU indoor mile championship with a 4:11.4 performance. Boston was also the scene of Barry's fastest two mile time, a glittering 8:56. John captured his first major outdoor title by winning the 1950 I. C. 4A. two mile run.

Third in NCAA's

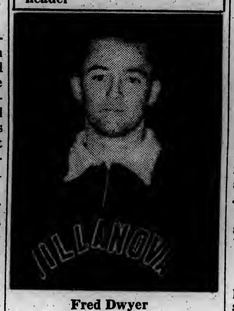
John has guided Villanova to cross - country prominence throughout his stay. A fourth place finish in the I. C. 4A. cross-country meet climaxed the 1952 season. An undefeated dual meet record highlighted John's 1953 campaign. John Kelley upset Barry in the I. C. 4A. championships with a closing spurt. John followed this second place finish with third position in the NCAA meet, his last race for Villanova.

John Joe Barry has received the rewards of hard work and a constant desire for improvement. He has concluded his career as a credit to his native country, his school, and himself, with name indelibly inscribed in the records of the spiked-shoe sport.

IC4A Titlist

Fred Dwyer entered Villanova as the New Jersey state mile champion from Seton Hall Prep, and quickly established himself as the top miler in the East. Dwyer's meteoric career began in his sophomore year when he lifted the indoor and outdoor I. C. 4A. mile titles. His best time of the year, a 4:14.1 effort, established a Connecticut state record which still exists.

A fifth place finish in the 1952 I. C. 4A. cross-country meet served as a spring board for another successful indoor season. Fred captured his third straight I. C. 4A. mile title with a 4:13 jaunt around the boards. Dwyer was a member of Villanova's excellent two mile relay team which barely missed the world's record at Los Angeles Coliseum in 1952.



Indoor King

Fred became the indoor sensation with his brilliant record-smashing performances of the 1952-53 campaign. He recorded eight consecutive mile victories, and won the 1000 yard event at Boston. A 4:09.4 clocking at the Philadelphia Inquirer meet established four records. Fred was the first runner in history to capture the National AAU and I. C. 4A. indoor mile titles in the same year.

All American

Dwyer continued his pace outdoors by establishing a stadium record of 4:11.9 on Blue and White day last year. Later he ran the fastest mile of his career, 4:07.1, only to finish second to Wes Santee of Kansas. This performance, the fifth fastest ever run by an American, earned him a berth on the NCAA All American track team.

The graduation of Fred Dwyer will mark the end of the finest chapter in Villanova track history. His achievements, the result of an overwhelming eagerness for perfection, will stand as an inspiration for all future Villanova trackmen.

Civino Assists VU Rebounding, Scoring Attack

By Tom Mentzer

A recent writeup of a Villanova basketball victory contained a statement which read: "John Cirino also hit double figures with his twelve point effort." To the off-campus reader this reference to Cirino meant little more than that some guy on the team, other than the sharp-shooting Schafer, or the capable Devine, had happened to score more than ten points. But to others, notably Coach Severance, and the rest of the members of the team it meant something else. It meant that John Cirino, a 6 ft. 4 in. sophomore, could be counted on to assume his share of the scoring burden when the need arose.

Rebounding Ace

His ability to score needed points, however, is not his only stock in trade. Possessing good

Agostini And Jenkins Score K of C Triumphs

By Dick Confoy

Villanova's fabulous frosh boardmen opened their collegiate careers last Saturday night and within hours were the sensation of the track world as Michael Agostini and Charley Jenkins sped to victories in two of the first three invitational features of Boston's K. of C. meet.

Agostini, who smashed the meet and track record with a flashy :05.6, whipped two Olympic titleholders and the IC4A champion in the year's first indoor carnival.

Beats Stanfield

An 18-year-old import from Trinidad, Agostini's quick start in the 50-yard dash gave him a lead over Andy Stanfield and Lindy Remigino which he never relinquished. The speedy Jamaican, who was running his first race on boards, holds the high school 100-yard dash record of 9.4, just a tenth second off the Olympic and world's record of 9.3.

Victorious Debut

In the next invitational run, the Prout 600, Charley Jenkins made his debut in indoor cup competition by beating George Rhoden, the Olympic 400 meter champion and record-holder. Jenkins, winner of the National Interscolastic 440 last year, fought off a final homestretch bid by Columbia's Fred Schlereth to win in 1:22.2.

The next Wildcat victory was a team and varsity one, with Jim Moran, Bill Reilly, Al Liggorelli and Joe Gaffney combining to take the mile relay over NYU and Georgetown. Gaffney, twelve yards behind as he started the anchor run, made them up to win in 3:25.5.

0:51.2 Quarter

Minutes later it was Jenkins and the freshmen again, this time beating Georgetown and Seton Hall in the frosh mile relay as Jenkins ran his anchor quarter mile in $:51.2. This final effort wrapped up the negro speedster's selection as the outstanding athlete of the meet, beating out Josey Barthel of Luxembourg, the mile winner (in 4:10), 51 points to 39.

Wheiler Fifth

In the Prout 1000, Villanova's Ray Wheiler set the early pace but lost the lead after three laps and faded to fifth at the finish as Marine ace Carl Joyce sped to a 2:11.9 win.

Other individual winners in the Boston Garden opener were Harrison Dillard in the 45 high hurdles ('05.63), Horace Ashenfelter in the two-mile (9:04), and Don Laz over Bob Richards, 14'9"-14'3", in the pole vault.

on their usual possession-type offense to set up either Jim Hill, Ed Hirsch, or Bob Curry for the one good shot. Always a tough club on their home court, they have added incentive of reversing last year's loss to the Wildcats.

Host To Hall

Mainliner fans get their last chance for two weeks to watch Coach Severance's gang this Saturday. Seton Hall, reigning N. I. T. champs, comes to town with a well-balanced squad.

Unbeaten Frosh Win 9th

Villanova's undefeated freshman Club met a powerful Camden Catholic High School team last Saturday on the Field House boards and captured its 9th consecutive victory by a 91-87 score.

Led by the timely shooting of Bobby Powers, who tallied 16 points, the Frosh had little trouble in over-coming Camden.

Besides playing brilliantly on defense, Jim Smith and Sonny DiCarlo also added to the final mark with a total of 23 points between them. Jack Weissman and Alex Griffith, plus a vast number of substitutes, amassed the rest of the points in the game for the Frosh.

Nine Straight

The game marks the ninth consecutive victory for this year's ball club, one of the finest at Villanova for a long time. Some of the teams they have faced are: Penn Freshman, Fort Dix, Loyola, Cape May Coast Guard, and the U. S. Air Base in Atlantic City.

Coach Robert "Maje" McDonnell's successful season thus far is accounted for by the fact that a classy first team, and a wealth of bench strength, is capable of hitting high figures in every outing.

Smith and Weissman, high-scorers on the club thus far this season, are backed up by the all-around play of Powers, DiCarlo, and Griffith, the remainder of the starting five.

. . . . Excellent Shots . . . .

Brilliant shooting is a major factor in the team's success. Weissman, with an average of 12.3 per game, leads the club, while Jim Smith's unerring set shots make him second. Sonny DiCarlo and Bobby Powers have fine driving lay-ups, as does Griffith.

Ball - hawking DiCarlo and Smith supply the all important defensive prowess. Stealing passes, and ball-snatching make them mainstays on the first club.

Height Present

Nor is height lacking. Although the first team can only floor an average height of 6-foot 1-inch, reserve strength on the bench ranges from 5-9 to 6-6. "Re" Fahey, a center who towers at 6-6, and Dave Warsen, at 6-5, are the big men on the team, and valuable rebounding assets.

Seton Hall At Palestra; State, Duquesne Away

By Joe Heaps

Taking their fine 11-5 record with them, the Villanova quintet hits the road tomorrow night for the start of a three-week, six-game tour of the nation's best teams. Beginning with Siena, the Cats then take on Dayton, Duquesne, North Carolina State, Belmont Abbey, and Seton Hall. Interspersed with these away games is a Palestra encounter Saturday night with the Hall.

Despite the shocking loss of their 6' 9" center, Tom Poffenburgh, through an ankle fracture, Siena will field a troublesome team tomorrow night at Albany. The Indians will depend

SPORTS CHATTER

The Polling Paradox

By Dick Confoy

Less than two weeks ago, the nation's sports pages headlined Villanova's Gene Filipski as the outstanding player in the annual Senior Bowl. A week before that Gene took the field as the acting captain of the East squad, having been named earlier to such teams as All-East and All-Catholic. Yet this same Filipski was just a second stringer when the star-studded A. P. All-Pennsylvania team was announced—the second halfback on the second team, beaten out by backs from West Chester, Gettysburg and Scranton.

But Filipski at least made second team, quite a bit more than what the Wildcats' most valuable player, Ralph Cecere, accomplished. Cecere, who was named the outstanding player in the nation during the first two weeks of the season and finished up his collegiate career playing in the North-South game, wasn't even considered among the ten best halfbacks in the state.

"Name" Schools Predominate

Here are some of the big-time football schools whose backs beat out Ralph for All-State honors: Clarion, Shippenburg, Kings, Scranton, Bloomsburg, West Chester, W&J, Lafayette and Gettysburg. Other schools whose players ranked over such as Joe Faragalli, Joe Leichtweis, Don McComb (All-Sophomore All-American) and Nelson Marshall were Juniata, Kutztown, Wilkes, Slippery Rock, Westminister, East Stroudsberg, California Teachers, Mansfield, and Weybeloe Normal.

But this farce poll was at least only a state-wide farce; unfortunately every week the A. P. and U. P. come out with their nation-wide frauds. And many of the consensus votes of the so-called "experts" are truly ludricrous. The final 1953 AP poll, for instance, gave West Virginia the fifth most first place votes in the nation. Anyone who saw the Moutaineers avalanched 42-19 on New Year's Day will tell you the value of that excellent prediction. The basketball polls, if possible, are even more ridiculous than those rating the gridiron greats, mainly because there are more teams considered and therefore a greater range for error.

Inaccuracy Unlimited

Why are the polls so often completely off base? Here are some of the main reasons:

1. The voters look too much to fancy records, paying little or no attention to the caliber of teams played. Current examples are Wichita, George Washington, and Holy Cross, eleventh, seventh and sixth respectivly in the latest polls, who have built up undefeated slates against, almost exclusively, the dregs of the basketball world. This poll policy has made it "smart" for clubs to play set-up schedules, with the best teams in the nation preferring to engage sure losers rather than chance their rating against clubs more in their class.

2. The voters in general do not take into consideration whether games upon which they judge their picks were played at home or away. With everyone within a few hundred miles screaming for the home club, a familiar court, and even the refs, intentionally or not, working for the home team, a visitor is actually spotting a good 10-15 points at the start. But, for example, should Dayton lose to N. C. State by three points at Carolina, it would be Dayton which would drop in the polls rather than the Wolfpack.

Main Weakness

3. The Number One indictment against the A. P. and U. P. polls is that the voters have not seen, in the vast majority, the teams (or players) they are voting for. How can Al Severance, let alone a coach from some Far West college, say whether Niagara is actually better than Holy Cross, or vice versa, when he has never seen either team or any of their players perform? This, then, is their main weakness, the reason why the sport polls can never be more than just a pleasant fantasy employed to fill up the early week lull on the sport pages.

They're hardly worth the space.

KC 11th Victim, 87-68; Wildcats Bow To Terriers

Lose Fifth As Schafer Totals 25

VILLANOVA'S BOBBY SCHAFER, who chipped in 25 points in his team's losing effort against St. Francis Saturday night, goes up for a lay-up in the second period surrounded by three Terrier defenders.

Sweeping past King's College at the Field House by a 87-68 mark last Wednesday night, the Wildcats came face to face with a talented St. Francis five, and suffered their fifth defeat of the season by a 72-62 count at the Palestra on Saturday.

The defeat of the Kingsmen was the 58th straight victory at the Field House for Villanova Clubs, and the current team's 11th triumph of the season.

Paced by red-hot Bobby Schafer, who scored 37 points, Villanova took an early lead, but the scrappy Kings five kept the game close by some effective second-period shooting. The halftime score was a close 38-36, with Villanova on top.

Second Half Decisive

The second half told the story, however, as the hosts rolled up tally after tally, with Schafer, Jack Devine, and John Cirino adding heavily to the score. Bill Burke was able to maintain 22 points for the losers, but his effort was not enough to overcome the final 19 point buldge held by the Main Liners.

The St. Francis tilt saw Villanova take an early lead, but an aggressive style displayed by the Terriers resulted in a final minute thrust which completely dominated the Wildcats, who were on the short end of the 72-62 count.

Cirino Graps 16

Frank Dentico and Hank Daubenschmidt were the big guns of the St. Francis attack with

John Cirino
Board Man

22 and 19 respectively. Daubenschmidt, 6'8", besides his 19 point effort, pulled down 18 rebounds, but was given a lot of trouble by 6-3 John Cirino, who snared 16 under the boards.

A big factor in the outcome of the game was the fact that both Jack Devine and Bobby Schafer, the VU high scorers, fouled out of the game in the early minutes of the fourth period. Schafer, nevertheless, was Villanova's big man, with 25 points, and Larry Tierney followed with 10.

Swimmers Lose First Home Meet

Last Saturday the Field House was the scene of the first Villanova swimming meet at home in 12 years, when the mermen from Loyola University were the guests of the Wildcat swimmers. Loyola won this inaugural meet 52-32.

Lou McComas, a Loyola aquaman, shared the spotlight with Villanova's Bill Quinn for top honors at the meet. Quinn won two events: the 220 freestyle, and the 440 freestyle while McComas, the Mason-Dixon champion last year, placed first in both the 150 individual medley, and also the 200 yd. backstroke.

Kean Dives

Tom Donahue and Pat Kean also shone for the Wildcats. Donahue took the 100 freestyle, and placed second in the 50 freestyle. Kean was Villanova's lone entrant in the diving competition, and came out with second honors for the losers.

The 400 freestyle relay was the only other Villanova first place. The team of John Quinn, Pat Kean, Paul Donahue, and Tom Donahue finished in 4:18.5 to cop the final round in the meet.

It was the fourth loss for the Wildcat swimmers in as many outings.

Cirino Assists

leaping ability and long arms, John, together with Captain Devine, has proved to be perhaps Villanova's chief asset under the boards.

Not infrequently you will see him come out of a melee under the defensive board with the ball, or else follow up a missed try from the field with a masterful tap-in attempt. The team statistics bear ample testimony to these two achievements—his 8.1 points per game average, third to Schafer and Devine, and his 9.0 rebounds per game, second only to Captain "Ding."

All-County Selection

John is a graduate of Malverne High School in Malverne, Long Island, where he gained All-Nassau County honors in basketball. Along with his two Soph classmates and fellow-starters, Marty Milligan and Larry Tierney, he figures to play an important part in Villanova's future basketball fortunes.

For if he continues to progress as he has progressed through this first half of his initial varsity season, Mr. Severances's worries about a second good big man to implement his weave-type offense should be considerably eased.

Dukes Entertain

Two nights later Villanova meets the magnificent Dukes of Duquesne. Tucker, Ricketts, Green, Johnson, Winograd, McLane form the nucleus of the powerhouse that is currently chasing Kentucky for the number one position in the polls. Add to these a benchful of Joes who could be stars on many college teams and the tremendous strength of Coach Dudey Moore's charges is evident. Height, experience, class, speed—they've got them all with a great abundance.

Arnie Ring, Ron Nathanic, and Harry Brooks are returning starters from last season's amazing aggregation. Coach Honey Russell added 6' 6" Richie Lohr at center and the soph sensation Ed Petrie to these three and blended them into a smooth-working five. Even though they no longer have Walt Dukes or Richie Regan, the Pirates remain one of the best independents in the East.

The giant of Dayton, nationally-ranked in the top twenty, are host on January 30 to the traveling Wildcats. From last year's squad—which was the first to knock off Seton Hall—only one man has been lost and the Flyers have come up with Bill Uhl, one inch under seven feet, to replace him. High-scoring John Horan is back, which enables Dayton to place two of the tallest college players of the country on the court at the same time.

Counselling Book Hailed; Faculty Member Is Author

Mr. Lester N. Recktenwald, Assistant Professor of Education, published his first book last summer, to join the select group of faculty members who have done that.

The book, Guidance and Counselling, was printed by the Catholic University Of America Press. It was extremely well received by the reviewers.

Said the American Catholic Psychological Association in its November News-Letter: "The author demonstrates unusual ability in integrating principles and techniques in a concise, almost terse, point by-point notation."

Other professional comments: "The presentation is clear and concise", (Student Personnel Methods Bulletin); "first of its kind in the Catholic field," (The Register, Sept. 6, 1953); "(There is) . . . an interesting section on analyzing a higher instiution." (Dec. 1953 Highlights, a publication of the Pupil Personnel Services of the University of the State of New York).

Who's Who

Art Quinn, Belle Air editor, requests all seniors selected for the 1953-1954 Who's Who among Students in Amerian Colleges and Universities to remember that the formal group picture will be taken tomorrow night. All men are asked to be in front of Fedigan Hall at 6:45 P. M. with tuxedos on.

Watch Bishop Fulton J. Sheen, tonight and every Tuesday night at 8:00 P. M. on TV, Channel 6.

Mystery Melody Returns to WVIL

The "Mystery Melody," one of the newly revised features of WVIL, will return to the air tonight over 640. The grand prize, awarded for correctly identifying the tune and the artist, will be two tickets to a Saturday night doubleheader at the Palestra, supplied by, and with the compliments of, the Villanova University Athletic Office.

This week's winner will be awarded tickets for the Villanova-Seton Hall, Pennsylvania-Dartmouth twin bill this Saturday night. The second person to identify the tune will receive a carton of cigarettes.

The "Mystery Melody" will be presented sometime between the hours of 9:00 and 10:00 P. M.

Law Dean Whistle-Stopping Selling New V. U. School

Dean Harold Gill Reuschlein of the Law School began the first in a planned series of talks to pre-law students in eastern colleges yesterday.

First stop was Niagara University, in upper New York state. Today he is visiting at Gannon College in Erie, Pa. Later this month he will speak to the pre-law students at St. Peter's College (Jersey City, N. J.).

The purpose of Dean Reuschlein's talks will be to acquaint the students at these colleges of the facilities available at Villanova for the attainment of a law degree. The advantages of a Catholic training in the important profession will doubtless be stressed.

February will see the New England and New York portion of the tour begun. On successive days Dean Reuschlein will be entertained at Merrimack and Holy Cross in Massachusetts, Fairfield College in Connecticut, and Manhattan and Siena in the Empire State.

Later in February he will speak with students at Mt. St. Mary's (Maryland), St. Vincent's (Latrobe, Pa.), St. Francis of Loretto, Pa., and St. Bonaventure (Olean, New York.)

Other Law School news includes the visit of the Law faculties of Pennsylvania and Temple on succeeding Fridays.

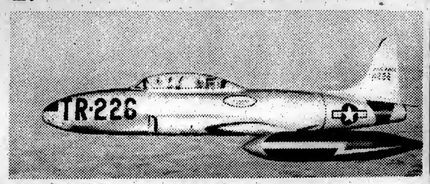
December 11 saw the Temple law professors become acquainted with the Villanova campus, while the Penn faculty members were shown around on the 18th. Both meetings served to introduce Villanova's faculty members to the city scholars.

The faculty also visited Chicago during the Christmas vacation for the yearly meeting of the Association of American Law Schools.

College Men!

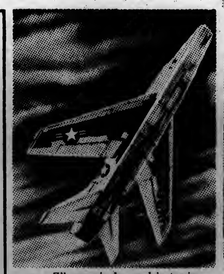
Fly with the Finest in the Air Force

QUALIFIED APPLICANTS WIN WINGS AS AIR FORCE LIEUTENANTS, EARN OVER $5,000 A YEAR!



1. Pilot training begins at Lackland Air Force Base, where Aviation Cadets get 3 months of officer indoctrination.

2. It's a hard grind, but Cadets also find time to relax.



3. In primary training the Cadet flies his first planes, a Piper Cub, and this T-6. Later he will fly the more advanced T-28.

4. After flying conventional planes, he moves on to jets... going up with an instructor in this T-33 trainer.

5. He wins his wings as an Air Force officer, earning over $5,000 a year.

6. Then winds up his training with the latest and fastest planes in the air.

7. He's tested those silver wings . . . And won the respect and admiration that go to every jet pilot in the United States Air Force! From now on he'll rule the skies in an Air Force jet.

● For a fast, exciting and rewarding career, make your future in the sky as an Air Force pilot. As a college student, you are now able to join that small, select band of young men who race the wind in Air Force jets. You'll have the same opportunities to learn, advance and establish yourself in the growing new world of jet aviation.

Fly as one of the best

The pilot training you get in the Air Force is the best in the world—the kind that makes jet aces. You'll learn to fly the fastest, latest planes in the air—and fly them safely and well. Those who look to the skies will look to you for leadership and confidence.

Into a brilliant future

You'll graduate as an Air Force lieutenant, earning over $5,000 a year. Your Air Force wings will serve as credentials for important positions both in military and commercial aviation. Air Force wings mark you as the very best in the flying profession.

How to qualify for Pilot Training as an Aviation Cadet!

To qualify, you must be at least a high school graduate. However, you will be of more value to the Air Force if you stay in college, graduate, and then volunteer for training. In addition, you must be between the ages of 19 and 26½, and in top physical condition. If you think you are eligible, here's what you do: Take your high school diploma or certificate of graduation together with a copy of your birth certificate down to your nearest Air Force base or recruiting station. Fill out the application they give you. If you pass your physical and other tests, you will be scheduled for an Aviation Cadet Training Class.

I.R.C. Convenes To Discuss Plans

Bill Phipps, president, announced last week that the International Relations Club will meet tomorrow (Wed.) at 4:30 in 215 Mendel. Future plans, the intercollegiate international relations conference at the College of Notre Dame in Baltimore Maryland, and the University of Pennsylvania conference, will be discussed.

All members of the International Relations Club are urged to attend this meeting since the decisions made at it will affect the membership as a whole, and full agreement is desired.

A Logical Text

Messrs. Houde and Fischer have explained, that their book, after establishing the student on the foundation of the traditional, undertakes to introduce him to contemporary concerns in the field of symbolic logic, semantics, logical positivism, etc.

Among the special features of the new textbook are two that, according to the co-authors, are to be found in no other books of this kind. The first is the bringing together of the syntax of the language and the terminology of logic, or the order of the language with the order of thought—based on their belief that the true thinker must be a master not only of logic but also of grammar.

The second of these features is a specially arranged series of supplementary reading titles, designed to cover the whole field of logic, to show where research, investigation, thinking has been done, is being done, or remains yet to be done.

These titles, say the authors, constitute a bibliography of the subjects which is the first of its kind.

Both the Handbook and Workbook have been planned for use not only at Villanova but for Catholic and universities in general. And while it is hard to get any prognostications from the authors, who refuse out of superstition to be boastful, rumor has it that at least one very large university in the East is already interested in the books.

1954: Villanova University Grows

Effective Fund-Raisers:

Alumni Play Major Role In Development Plans

The Alumni Association of Villanova University has taken upon itself a very large part of the burden of the general development program launched recently. Through the efforts of the Board of Governor, the Villanova Alumni Association Fund Organization has been formed to fulfill the alumni's task: fundraising.

W.G. MacCarthy

Threefold Task

According to Alumni Fund Chairman Colonel Wilfred Glenn MacCarthy, the aims of the organization are threefold: "to effectuate a strong Alumni Relations Program, a sound Financial Plan, and a rigorous Alumni." The plan is both universal, as seen by the organization chart below, and long-range; a twenty year period has been set for the task.

Chairmen will be assigned in each of the seven global zones. These men will, in turn, enlist Regional Chairmen proportionate to the number of alumni in the area. Within the continental United States, regional and state chairmen will be chosen to work in close co-operation with the individual Alumni Clubs and the Fund Organization.

New Committees

New committees are also being formed to assist. The Executive Committee will make decisions on policy and procedure. The Alumni Relations Committee will work outside the alumni improving public relations in behalf of the University, and the Budget Committee will handle the Association's proceeds and expenses.

Colonel MacCarthy, '11, is a resident of Chicago. He has been a member of the Board of Governors of the Alumni Association since 1950.

New Dorm Still Ahead Of Schedule

This week, four months after ground was broken for the construction of Villanova's new 200 room dormitory, the skeleton of the four story structure stands among piles of stone and lumber, and the equipment and shacks of the Joseph R. Farrell construction company near the barracks.

Ahead Of Schedule

"Until the snow this past week," said Joseph Farrell, Jr., foreman on the job, "construction was going way ahead of schedule. We've been pretty fortunate with the mild weather thus far."

"As it stands now," he continued, "we're still ahead of schedule but the weather isn't helping much."

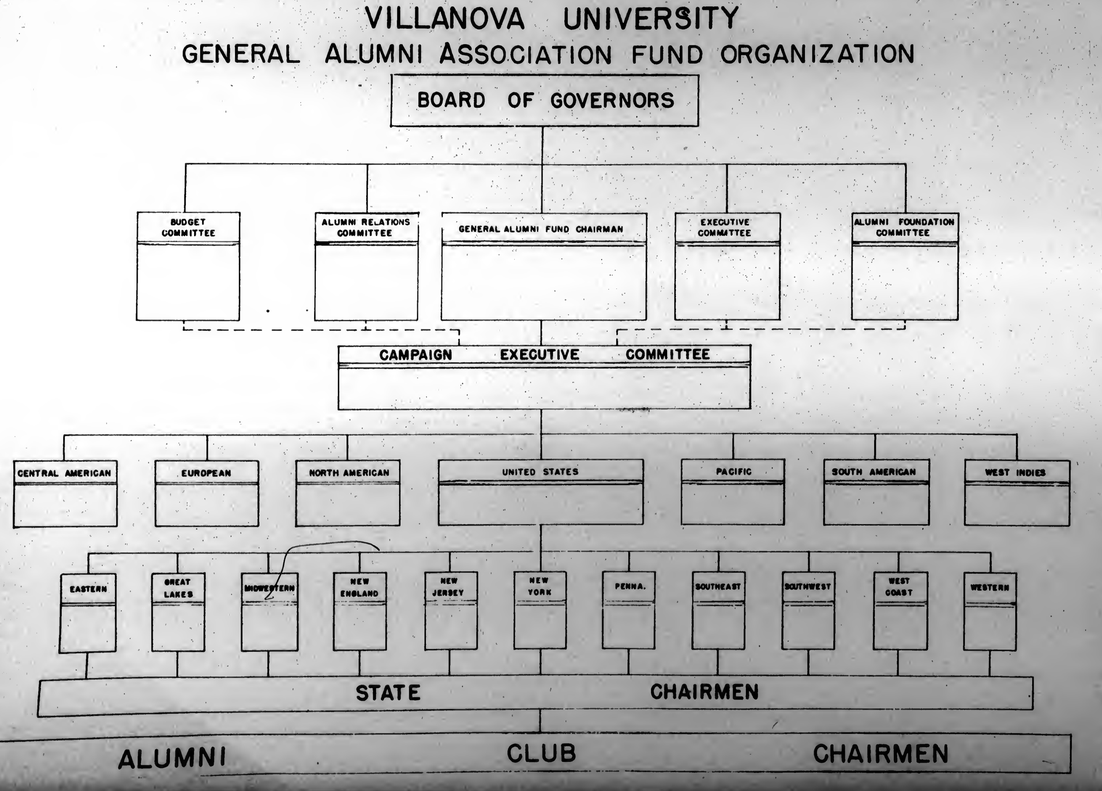
Farrell explained that the wings of the 305 foot long, U-shaped building have been completed far enough to let the brick and stone masons begin work. The center, now only one floor high, will rise soon.

The building, financed with the aid of a government loan, was designed by Henry D. Dagit and Sons, Architects and will be of modified collegiate Gothic architecture. Besides housing some 400 students, the dorm will hold two large recreation halls, rooms for prefects and two large lavatories of tile and marble.

HEAVY SNOW caused only a temporary stoppage of work on the new dormitory, situated between the pie shop and the barracks.

Asphalt tile will be used for the floors and glazed tile for the stairs.

Because of the cold weather recently it has been necessary for the concrete workers to work under lights after dark and even into the early hours of the morning to smooth the floors while the cement is pliable.



Ready In January '55

Completion of the building is set for next January. Farrell said Thursday that there is no doubt that "the building will be ready for use by the second semester next year."

"The school authorities seem quite pleased with the progress we've made", the foreman related. "Everything has been going very smoothly."

Other New Buildings

The Development Fund Program has estimated the cost of the building at $1,250,000 in their $21 million dollar, 20 year budget published recently. Other buildings foreseen within the next decade are a Dining and Student Activities Building an enlarged Chapel, a Law Building, an Engineering Building, and an Administration and Classroom Building.

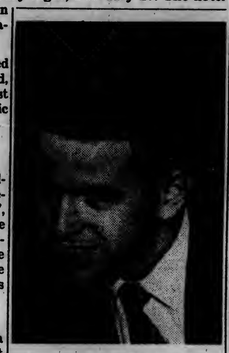
Seniors Await "Holiday" Weekend

Dinner Dance A Sellout; Prom Theme Revealed

Despite the fact that Senior Dinner-Dance tickets are almost sold out after a week of sales, George Eberle, chairman, assures seniors that enough tables will be made available to accomodate all who wish to attend.



The affair, open only to seniors, will be held in the Walt Whitman Hotel, Camden, Saturday night, February 27. The hotel is a few minutes from downtown Philadelphia across the Delaware River Bridge.

Dinner music will be played by a trio and Tony Desmond, well known at Villanova in past years, will supply dance music until midnight.

First Day Rush

"Evidently those who attended last year's dinner-dance remember the fine time they had", commented Eberle, "because when ticket chairmen Noel Spillane and Bob Reber opened the ticket booth in the Pie Shoppe Tuesday, they sold 125 tickets in a few hours."

"There has never been such a response in past years at Villanova," he continued. He urged seniors who have not yet bought tickets to do so as soon as possible. Tables are being distributed on a first-come, first-serve basis.

George Eberle

Tickets for the dance went on sale yesterday in the Pie Shoppe and will be sold throughout the campus all next week. Bids cost $6, a dollar less than at last year's prom. Underclassmen are invited to attend.

Decorating Next Week

McGarrigle and Pickett will begin decorating the Fieldhouse this weekend and will have the gym at their disposal for the whole week preceding the prom.

"We'll need all the help we can get during that week," they urge "let's see a good crowd of seniors down to give us a hand."

Both the prom and the dinner dance are formal.

From Theme "Holiday Inn"

Guests at Belle Air Ball, the Friday night event of Senior Weekend, will dance to the music of Claude Thornhill at the glamourous ski lodge, Holiday Inn.

Decoration Chairmen Joe McGarrigle and Hall Pickett have combined snow-covered mountains moonlight, and a warm, friendly Swiss chalet to create the romantic atmosphere for the prom.

Junior Week Chairmen Meet To Integrate Plans

In a meeting held Thursday, February 4, Junior Prom Chairman Bud Ford announced that Hugh Humphreys and Rees James had been chosen as co-chairmen of decorations for the Junior Prom.

The theme for this year's prom has been decided upon, but at present is still a closely-guarded secret. Conferences have already begun with stage decorating experts and interior decorators, prior to beginning the actual work on theme decorations.

Bud Ford also reports that several bands are being considered, and that the final selection will be voted upon in a Junior Class meeting, which will be held this March.

Junior Dinner Dance chairman, Frank Gunther, reports that Tony Desmond has been selected to play this year's Junior Dinner Dance. Tony Desmond and his band are no strangers here at Villanova, as they also performed at last year's Junior Dinner Dance. The dance will be held Saturday, May 8, at the Penn-Sheraton Hotel.

In other Junior activities Mother's Day chairman, Ted Clarkson states that Smyth caterers have been contracted to prepare the buffet luncheon for the mothers. Ring chairman, Bill Kohler, reports that work on the rings has been very satisfactory, and that the times for fittings, and the final delivery date will soon be announced.

15 Midyear Grads Get Certificates

The first Villanova University degrees were conferred upon 15 mid-year graduates last month. Although the seniors did not actually receive their diplomas, they were awarded temporary certificates which they will exchange for their "sheepskins" in June with the rest of the senior class.

The January graduates included seven Commerce and Finance students, five Arts men, two Education majors and a Biology major from the Science school.

The following men received Bachelor or Arts degrees:

George S. Adams Jr., Robert G. Battaglini, Dudley C. Buzby Jr., Rudolph Jones, and Paul C. Molloy.

Bachelor of Science degrees were given to:

DEADLINE

Because of the holiday, the Villanovan will not be published next week. Deadline for the next issue, March 2, will be Thursday afternoon, February 25. All copy should be in by 4:30 of that date.

Club secretaries are reminded that the Villanovan will print notices and other club news handed in to it before the deadline.

HOT - CHA Onlookers approve of the Charleston performed by two dancers at the Valentine Hop sponsored by the Villanova chapter, National Federation of Catholic College Students (NFCCS). The informal dance, first social event of the new semester, was held in the University Field House Friday night; music was supplied by The Collegians. Proceeds, according to Chairman Bob Ervin, are earmarked for the NFCCS Overseas Service Program.

Very Reverend James A. Donnellon, O. S. A., Ph. D.

Father Donnellon Named President

Very Rev. James A. Donnellon, O. S. A., was appointed to succeed the Very Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O. S. A., as president of Villanova University by Very Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O. S. A., Prior Provincial, last Feb. 3.

Father McGuire has been named to supervise the Building Fund Drive. Since he has been with the program from the start, it was felt necessary to let him devote his full time to the job of keeping the campaign going.

Former Position

Father Donnellon assumes his twentieth year as a priest. He has resigned as prior of the monastery and as chairman of the Athletic Board, but will continue as head of the Biology department and will conduct classes.

This latter move is in accord with a policy which Father hopes to develop during his presidency. "I will do all I can to raise the spirit of the student body," he said in an interview with the Villanovan. Father believes that teaching will keep him in close contact with the students so that he may be readily accessible to them.

As a prefect in Fedigan Hall he was made aware of the problem, he said, and he will do all he can to bring a closer contact between the student body and the faculty and administration. "My door will always be open to students who wish to see me about their problems", he went on to say.

To Meet With Council

Father also stated that one of his first acts will be to meet with the student council and arrange for periodic meetings so that he may keep his hand on the pulse of the school. He will have nothing to do with the building fund drive and therefore will be able to spend much time at Villanova, where he is available to all, he said.

Discussing the building program, the new president expressed his enthusiasm and said that the Student Union building will be begun "soon", definitely before the end of this semester.

Very Rev. Patrick Dundon, O. S. A., has been assigned as new prior of the monastery. He is closing up his work in Jacksonville, Florida, and will assume office February 22. Rev. Charles Kropp, O. S. A., is Acting Prior.

Graduate Of Villanova

Father Donnellon received his Bachelor of Arts degree from Villanova, his Master's and Ph. D. degrees from the University of Pennsylvania. His graduate studies included specialization in invertebrate bloodclotting. He is a member of Sigma Xi, the honorary scientific society. Before his appointment as prior of the monastery, Father Donnellon served as sub-prior for six and a half years.

The New President

Very Rev. James A. Donnellon, O. S. A., PH. D., brings a fine record of administrative, scholastic, and teaching successes to the post of president of one of the nation's leading Catholic universities.

Former Prior of the St. Thomas of Villanova Monastery, head of the Biology Department, and authority on marine life, the 48-year-old Villanova graduate has begun his administration on an earnest note of conviction that he will do all in his power to effect a closer contact between the student body and University authorities. To this end, Father Donnellon has said, that he will meet periodically with the Student Council, conduct press conferences with the Villanovan, and open the doors of his offices to all students. Further, he favors a University-wide system of student counselling and intends to maintain contact with the students by continuing to teach biology.

The appointment of Father Donnellon relieves Very Rev. Francis X. N. McGuire, O. S. A., of presidential duties and permits him to devote his full energies to the Development Program.

The Villanovan congratulates both men on their appointments and extends to each its fullest cooperation.

One More Memo

Seniors—your big dates are coming up very soon.

A week from Friday is the date of the Senior Prom and the night after is the Dinner Dance. These are the last important social functions that the Class of 1954 will sponsor. As far as your Senior Class is concerned these two are the final dances of your college careers.

We sincerely hope that as you glide across the floor to the soothing rhythms of Vlaude Thornhill on that Friday night and dance to the fine dance music of Tony Desmond on the following night with that certain extra-special girl you will indeed be having a great time.

Speaking of big dates, there is another one coming up right after your Senior Weekend. This date is coming up on the first of March.

That date is the deadline for your contribution to the Senior Statue Fund. We certainly hope that you have not forgotten.

As you remember a majority of your class decided to contribute to the Statue Fund in the class-wide poll conducted last December. It is hoped that you will all join together and support this very worthy cause.

It strikes us that by giving your contribution before the Senior Weekend you might help yourself enjoy the festivities a little more in a very sincere and heartwarming way.

There are many fine reasons for the donation of the statue. This is the Marian Year celebrating the centenary of the promulgation of the dogma of the Immaculate Conception.

From a personal angle it would be quite beneficial for you, the donor—to place yourself under the patronage of Our Lady of Good Counsel. These next few years might be quite trying. There may be times when you contribution might repay a hundred-fold.

We think enough has been said now about the Statue. The next move is definitely up to you. Don't forget, please.

Political Ties With Tito Pose Major U. S. Problem

By Ed Daly

One of the most important problems of American foreign policy today is that of our Government's relations with Yugoslavia. Since Tito has spilt with Moscow, it has been increasingly our policy to give some aid to the Yugoslav Government, and to make Yugoslavian hostility to the Russian bloc a part of American global strategy.

DALY

Just how wise is this policy? In my last article on Franco, I listed three tests which could be applied to determine whether aid should be given to Spain. These were (1) the nation's ability to give us some positive aid, (2) the trustworthiness of the dictator, and (3) the moral considerations involved in aiding a particular dictatiorial government. These same tests can be applied just as well to Yugoslavia as to Spain.

Aid For Western World

First of all, Yugoslavia very definitely can give the western world positive aid. Tito's army is considered one of the strongest in Europe. The geographical position of Yugoslavia is highly strategic, isolating as it does Communist Albania from the rest of the Iron Curtain countries. With Yugoslavia on the western side, the frontier between the Russian and Western blocs is the borders of Rumania, Hungary, and Bulgaria. If Yugoslavia were to side with the Russian bloc, the frontier would be the boundaries of Italy and Greece. In view of both the military and strategic considerations, Yugoslavia is in a position to make an important contribution to whatever side she chooses to aid.

Unreliable Ally

Whether or not Yugoslavia can be trusted is an entirely different matter. It is important that Marshall Tito is still a Communist; indeed he claims to be more Communist than the Russian Communists. Now a basic part of Communist philosophy is that any means or shift of position may be employed in order to attain the ultimate goal of Communism. Therefore Tito's relations with the Kremlin are dictated by expediency and could become friendly again if it became advantageous for him to do so. A man with a philosophy such as that is a very unreliable ally indeed.

The question remains whether the United States can support Tito in view of the nature of his rule in Yugoslvia. There is no reason to suppose that Tito has repented the vicious persecution of religion that he began after he came to power. He has attempted to convey the impression that he has stopped the persecution by such steps as freejng Cardinal Stepinac from prison and by permitting consecration of new bishops, but despite this there is no reason to believe that he has really granted religious freedom in Yugoslavia. For example, he still does not permit religious education or a religious press. The vast majority of Yugoslavia's priests are still in concentration camps or prisons. It has been estimated that over 16,000 priests have been either killed or imprisoned.

Tito still shows no regard for the rights of property. The small farmers of Yugoslavia are subject to increasing pressure to become collectivized. In all of these ways Tito shows himself no better than any other Communist dictator.

Moral Duty

It is the moral duty of the United States, therefore, to refrain from aiding Tito in any manner which would enable him to carry out his policies of oppression.

Such being the case, the United States should form two basic principles regarding aid to Yugoslavia. First, we should give no aid to Tito that could be used in maintaining his domestic tyranny. Secondly, we must be careful in giving Tito any information or secrets which might be given by him to the Russians in the event that he changed the Yugoslav party line and again became friendly with Russia. Just how this policy is to be carried out must be determined by circumstances.

Public Opinion Polls Are Dubious

By M. McCormick

In the democratic political system we like to think that the majority, the "will of the people", is rarely mistaken. This belief is carried to an extreme expression in the public opinion polls. An alleged cross-section of the people is usually contacted, and their opinions on a particular subject are mathematically catalogued.

In any case the percentage contacted is necessarily small, and the distinctions which are made to determine just what is a cross-section of the people are necessarily arbitrary.

Recently, a poll was taken among students from several high schools in a large eastern city. The results indicated that 55% of the students favored free trade as a federal policy and that the remaining 45% was opposed. This poll was offered as proof that our government should adopt such an economic policy.

We are all familiar with the recent polls of a midwestern school teacher in which he used statements from a diminutive fraction of the people concerned in apparently indicating, "scientifically" that Americans are immoral. Other pools, equally open to criticism, are taken in sports. In football and basketball, for example, a poll is taken in which coaches, who have never seen most of the teams they're voting on, attempt to decide which is best. And of course this assumes that coaches are not prejudiced and that the relative merit of the teams can be judged objectively.

All of these polls are of dubious value.

Opinion is statement of probability and must be consistent with known facts. It must be reasonable. At most the opinions of any authority are worthy of acceptance only when the reasons behind them are understood. Even the authorities who seem best-informed sometimes say somthing irrational due to ignorance or prejudice on a particular suject. If the reasons are insufficient or fallacious, the opinion is probably inaccurate.

Polls are collectors of opinions. By themselves they prove very little; at best they are partial evidence.

Certainly worthy of consideration is the idea that reliance on polls is symbolic of a spirit of anti-intellectualism. Their very persistence is indication that they must be popular. We are inclined to accept the results without questioning their accuracy. In an age of entertainment, an age of leisure, it takes more than animal effort to think, and it is an effort that we neglect to make.

Anyone can voice an opinion, and most people are happy to do so. It is necessary to realize that it is not unpatriotic to think and to disagree. Rather, intelligent opinion, in harmony or not with popular belief, is worth all of the unanimous ill-founded opinion in the world. One reasonably-expressed opinion may be worth much more than a collection of popular myth.

This, naturally, is just one man's opinion, but then, I'm half right 50% of the time.

College Excerpts

NOT A TOY . . .

The editors of the University Daily Kansan, University of Kansas, found themselves in a somewhat unique argument the other day, over how to put out a newspaper.

During a controversy with law students (whom the Kansan called "ambulance chasers" and "future shysters"), 50 prospective lawyers offered to trade places with the newspaper staff for a day. The idea was to show how easy it is to publish a paper, and how hard it is to attend law classes.

The Kansan board, student governing body for the paper, voted to reject the offer, 9-6. It said the Kansan should not become "a toy to be tossed around haphazardly."

"I dislike communism to the extent that I feel any means directed against its destruction are fair."

And, so saying, news editor Paul Bacon of the University of Toronto's student newspaper resigned his job. He was protesting the burning in effigy of Sen. Joseph McCarthy by fellow students, who hung and roasted the senator one night with the full support of the paper.

Note to All Juniors:

Queen Contest Underway

The annual Queen of Junior Week Contest, which was won last year by Miss Janet Murray (pictured here) is now underway. Sponsored by the Junior Class, the contest will determine who will reign over Junior Week, 1954, her "Lady-in-Waiting", and her court.

All judging will be done strictly on a picture basis and the judges of the contest will be announced in a later edition of the Villanovan. Juniors who wish to enter their prom dates in the contest, must submit pictures before midnight, April 9 either to the Villanovan office, in the basement of the Commerce and Finance building, or to the Parlor of Simpson Hall.

The "Queen," "Lady-in-Waiting," and "Court," will be announced in the Junior Week edition of the Villanovan.

The Royal Party will attend Junior Week Activities as guests of the Junior Class and will be presented and honored at the Junior Prom on Friday evening, May 7, at which time the Queen will be crowned. If the Queen is not from the immediate area, she will receive all hotel accommodations, etc., as a gift.

'53's Queen: Janet Murray

GENERAL RULES

1. All members of the Junior Class are eligible to submit one picture.

2. Pictures (preferably at least 5" X 7", must be submitted to the Villanovan office or the Parlor of Simpson Hall by midnight of April 9. All early entries will be eligible for publication in the Villanovan prior to Junior Week.

3. Judging will be done by pictures only and all pictures will be returned immediately after Junior Week.

4. Runner-up to the Queen will be her Lady-in-Waiting, and the next successive four finishers will be the "Court".

5. All pictures must be accompanied by the following information, on a separate piece

DEGREES

Purpose — The Hughes Cooperative Fellowship Program has been established to enable outstanding graduates to pursue work for the Master of Science degree while employed in industry and making significant contributions to important military projects.

Eligibility — Eligible for consideration are students who will receive the B.S. degree during the coming year and members of the Armed Services being honorably separated and holding B.S. degrees. In either case the field of the B.S. degree must be:
ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING
PHYSICS, OR MECHANICAL ENGINEERING
The awards will be made to applicants who have evidenced outstanding ability and some degree of creativeness. They must also possess traits enabling them to work well with others.

Citizenship — Applicants must be United States citizens for whom appropriate security clearance can be obtained, as their work in the Hughes Laboratories may be related to National Defense projects.

Universities — Applicants must be able to meet the requirements for admission to graduate standing at the University of California at Los Angeles or the University of Southern California.

Program — Participants will be employed at Hughes full time in the summer and 25 hours a week during the university year while pursuing half-time graduate work.

Salaries — Recipients will earn five-eighths of a normal salary each year. This salary will be determined by the individual's qualifications and experience, and will reflect current salary practices in the electronics industry. Salary growth will be on the same basis as for full-time members of the scientific-engineering staff. Recipients will also be eligible for health, accident and life insurance benefits, as well as other privileges accruing to full-time staff members.

Sponsorship — Tuition, admission fee, and required books at either the University of California at Los Angeles or the University of Southern California, covering the number of units required to earn an M. S. degree, will be provided.

Travel Expenses — For those residing outside the Southern California area, actual travel and moving expenses to this area will be allowed up to 10 percent of the full starting annual salary.

Number of Awards — If a sufficient number of qualified candidates present themselves, as many as 100 Fellowships will be awarded each year.

Selection of Candidates — Candidates will be selected by the Committee for Graduate Study of Hughes Research and Development Laboratories.

Application Procedure — Application forms should be obtained immediately. Completed applications must be accompanied by detailed college transcripts.

Seniors Are Promised Fun And Financial Frustration

By Noel Spillane

Now is the time when all social seniors start soliciting securities for the various, hilarious, fraternizing festivities of the forth-coming weekend. If you think that's the only problem a senior has to contend with, try getting a ticket to the Dinner Dance. They're scarcer than eagles in Africa. There's also a scarcity of dates and this time roommates won't do!! There has been a bit of difficulty contriving decorations for the Prom so the chairmen have decided to use decorations from all the Proms of the past four years. There will be a Stairway to the Stars, the George Washington Bridge, the Eiffel Tower, a Royal Wedding Cake in the Central Park Pond, an ancient automobile, a large pumpkin, a waterless fountain; there will be dancing in the swimming pool. There is no intermission band so when the Claude Thornhill Orchestra takes its breaks, entertainment will be provided by the Villanova Mermen.

Difficulties

Another difficulty seems prominent — the first semester grades are due home just before the fellows ask their folks for the family car. This is the first time there will be a lot of dancing to and from the Prom as well as at it. Several years ago, it snowed so hard, cars couldn't be used — one-horse sleighs were the thing. There's enough frozen precipitation around after all the snow jobs about bad marks, but there is a scarcity of sleighs — however there is one fellow taking a Kitty Carr.

Seriously though, there is going to be a lot of back-patting after these dances because they promise to be good ones. There also will be some back-patting when the grades get home, only a little lower.

There has been a great difficulty trying to find hotel rooms in this area for fellows importing talent. After due consideration the dance committee offered to convert Brown Prep into a girl's dormitory for the weekend—meals served in the Pie Shoppe.

There is a various assortment of favors for the dates at the Prom including; homing pigeons with clipped wings, clams on the half shell, rusty Wilkie buttons, seven pieces of bituminous coal, and a one-way ticket to Siberia.

As a final touch to frustrated seniors, there are the usual secretive con-men trying to rent odd-sized tuxedos, day-old corsages, and slightly used dates.

But buck up, seniors!! There is one bright side after the good times this coming weekend. Louie will be opening the Pie Shoppe early Monday morning with a new name — "Louie's Pawn Shoppe."

ON THE LINE

With Clyde and Penty

NEVER BEFORE have we seen so many smiling and sunburned faces on the campus. Fully rested after a fine mid-semester vacation, with the prospect of an early graduation and a semester interspersed with long holidays, academic enthusiasm is sure to prevail. It says here . . .

It has come to the ears of this column that the philanthropic young tweeds of Princeton, finding themselves unemployed and in the area for the weekend condescended last Friday to waft their harmonious airs at the "Tea". We congratulate the young sophisticates of Rosemont on their conguest of the NASSOONS. Thanks to the Bryn Mawr girls who footed the bill . . .

Of the cosmopolites who wandered to the Green Hills of New Hampshire, a representative number from this area voted Villanova's JUNIOR WEEK superior to the most famous of college weekends, Dartmouth's famed Winter Carnival. A hearty "skol" to the big Green for a fine weekend of Outdoor Activity . . .

The SENIOR PROM, outstanding drain on undergraduate capital looms on the calendar and the industrious among those caught short form an endless line of door pounders peddling anything from formal dresses to a bridal suite in the barracks. We never realized that our pleasure was so much a concern of our brother Wildcats . . .

With Villanova antiquity crumbling at our feet our feeling of remorse was trebled when news reached here that a certain squire was pursued by the alphabet boys. OH! IS NOTHING SACRED?

Advise 400 At Career Conference

Almost 400 seniors took advantange of the annual Career Conference held February 5th to find out about the interviews and any other questions they wished answered concerning their future employment.

Three ten-minute talks were followed by an extended question and answer session, during which the seniors in attendance were allowed to address their questions to anyone of the approximately 60 representatives of industry present at the conference.

Question Period

Mr. Eugene Powers, Dean of the Evening Division, acted as chairman of the panel discussion and the question-answer period. Represented on the panel were Edward F. Krieg, Villanova graduate of the class of 1950, and at present a sales representative of IBM, who spoke on preparation for the interview; John Niece, from Sears, Roebuck's personnel department who explained what the employer looks for in the interview; and Maurice Norton, representing General Electric, who pointed out what information the student should expect from the interview.

Very Rev. Francis X. McGuire, O.S.A., Director of the Villanova University Development Foundation, was the guest speaker at the luncheon for the representatives which followed.

Villanova Offers Television Course

Villanova University's Evening Division, in cooperation with the school's department of education, is offering a course in television this semester under the general direction of Mr. Eugene Powers, Dean of the Evening Division, it was announced last week.

Designed to permit teachers to obtain a better understanding of the background and technical problems involved in television, the course features guest consultants from Philadelphia television stations who discuss various phases of the medium.

Local Personalities Guests

Included in these representatives are such well known local personalities as Mary Margaret Kearney, Lee Vorker, Ed McMahon, Jan Ozog, Clair Roskam, Charles Shaw, and Joseph Tinney, Jr., a Villanova graduate.

The topics of discussion include: The horizons and future of television, television production and operation, programs and continuity writing, television formats and sources of material, and the integration of motion picture films in television production.

Six Selected For D. E. S., National Honor Society

Six Villanovans were named to Delta Epsilon Sigma, the national Catholic Liberal Arts Honors Society, at a meeting of the faculty committee held last Thursday.

Terence Cooke, John Graziano, Eugene Kennedy, Bart Moynahan, Charles Noel, and James Nolin were the honored seniors were chosen on the basis of marks and "contribution to Catholic intellectual life which the student is likely to make as a graduate."

The society is sponsored by the National Catholic Education Association. Present national offices are in Kansas City, Missouri.

Requirements

Preliminary requirement for membership in the School of Arts and Sciences with a cumulative average of 3.00 or above.

Those eligible were then required to submit a paper on one of three books offered. These reports were then evaluated by each member of the faculty committee and the above six were selected.

Induction ceremonies will be held during the week of the retreat here.

Faculty Selectors

Faculty selectors were: Rev. Robert M. Sullivan, Dean of Arts and Sciences and head of the English Department; Rev. Edward F. Jenkins, O.S.A., Associate Professor of Chemistry; Rev. John McShea, O.S.A., Associate Professor of English; Dr. John McLain, Professor of Biology; and Dr. John I. McEnerney, Associate Professor of Classics.

Masque Comedy Takes Shape

Rehearsals are well under way for the Belle Masque spring production of the award-winning play "Stalag 17". The production will be staged on the nights of March 31, and April 1, 2, and 3 in the Field House.

Publicity releases have been sent to about forty schools in the area concerning the student rate tickets, which will sell for $1.00. An intensive ad campaign will begin Monday designed to acquaint the public with the merits of this presentation, which will star seniors Tom Kern, Harry Anger, Bob Erskine, and junior Bernie Coyne.

The crew is getting things in shape to make this a truly memorable production behind scenes as well as in the spotlight.

Statue Deadline Nears; Dayhop Response Strong

With a little less than two weeks remaining before the deadline, the Senior Class Statue Fund Drive is taking very definite shape. The returns up to this date have the day students ahead of the boarders by a ratio of almost ten to one.

Class president Ted Sheehan is still confident that the needed two thousand dollars will be reached in time for the deadline. The statue has already arrived in this country and at present is in Philadelphia. Dedication is set for some date in the spring. In the meanwhile, the University will pay all storage and insurance expenses.

Five dollars is being asked from each member of the Class of 1954.

Marriage Talks May Be Stopped

"Whether or not Villanova will continue its annual series of Pre-Cana Lectures this year will depend entirely upon student interest," said Rev. Robert E. Regan, conference director, last week.

Due to the fact that attendance at the lectures has fallen off in recent years and also because similar conferences are being conducted in the Archdiocese of Philadelphia, the Lenten series of talks on marriage will only be held if a substantial number of students shows interest.

Must Sign Up

Father Reagan requests that all who wish to attend sign up in the Chaplain's office on the first floor of Mendel Hall. All men and women of college age who are interested, even remotely, in the marriage vocation are invited. The talks are tentatively scheduled for the Sundays of March 14th, March 21st, March 28th, and April 4th.

Main Liners Record 15th Win

Seton Hall, St. Peter's Defeated

By Dick Confoy

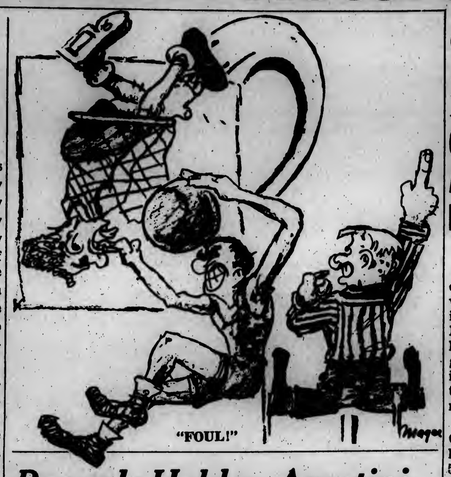
Villanova's surging Wildcats made it two victories in as many nights last Wednesday as they held off a last quarter rally by stubborn St. Peter's of Jersey City to win, 74-70. Pulling off to an early fourteen point bulge and leading by as many as ten late in the third quarter, the Mainliners held on to rack up their 58th consecutive Fieldhouse win.

After Bob Schafer tossed in eleven points in the first period, St. Peter's went into a four and one zone defense, with Bernie Cicerelli guarding the Wildcat star. Used mostly as a decoy after that, Schafer still managed to be the games high scorer with 24 points, hitting on 14 of 16 free throws.

All-Court Press

With Jim Smith playing another strong game in his brief varsity career and Jack Devine providing his usual stellar floorwork, the Wildcats appeared to have the situation well in hand until the visitors started trading fouls for field goals early in the final stanza. The losers' all-court press brought them to within 2 points at the two minute mark, but quick baskets by John Cirino and Smith and two free throws by Larry Tierney put the game on ice.

Comeback Win



The night before it was Villanova coming from behind to defeat Seton Hall, breaking a five-game losing streak against the now Dukes-less Pirates. A tremendous team effort overcame a 26-point scoring spree by the Hall's Harry Brooks as the Wildcats posted a heartstopping 61-59 win.

Balanced Scoring

Starting their move late in the third quarter, the Mainliners' evenly-balanced scoring drew them closer and closer to the Setonians until, with 2½ minutes left, the home club fell behind by two. The Hall got possession twice after that despite an excellent freeze by the weaving Blue and White, but with Mickey Hannon missing two long sets the score remained as Villanova tied the series at twelve all. The Seton Hall win was one of three in four days in 3 different states, with Belmont Abbey wilting under a 34 point attack by Bob Schafer to become the first victim by a 95-66 count.

"FOUL!"

Record-Holder Agostini Self-Tutored Trackman

By Norm Feldpush

As the diminutive speedster snapped the tape, the judges blinked at the 0:09.6 clocking on their watches. Michael Agostini, Villanova's freshman sprint sensation from Trinidad, had just celebrated his nineteenth birthday by breaking the world indoor 100-yard dash record. This victory in the Washington Star Games, only his third competitive effort on the boards, surpassed the thirty-year-old record by two-tenths of a second, and established Agostini as a national standout.

Mike Agostini

Mike joined the already talented frosh thinclad aggregation as the sprint champion of the British West Indies of 1953. Record breaking victories have highlighted his career from St. Mary's High School in Port of Spain, the capital city of Trinidad, to his brief stay at Villanova. Mike reigned as the schoolboy champ by establishing eight high school records in various age brackets for distances from 100 to 440 yards.

Scholastic Records

Jamaica provided the setting for Mike's most outstanding performances. A 0:9.4 clocking for the century enabled him to tie the world high school mark held by Jesse Owens. At the Coronation Meet in Jamaica last year, Agostini sped 220 yards in 0:21.1 to establish the world interscholastic record for that distance around one turn.

These phenomenal achievements were accomplished without the benefit of coaching. St. Mary's had no coach, so Mike often tutored his teammates while training on his own initiative. His development was the result of experience, help from other athletes, and an intensive study of many books. His versatility was displayed by participation in a soccer game against a touring team as a member of the Trinidad all-star team in 1950. Since then Agostini has confined his athletic endeavors solely to track.

While competing in the National A.A.U. meet at Dayton last summer, Agostini was introduced to 'Jumbo' Elliot by Herb McKenley. An interest in Villanova was cultivated through correspondence, and Mike enrolled in February.

Defeats Stanfield

The first indoor meet of Mike's career furnished another record for his rapidly growing collection. Agostini defeated Olympic champions Lindy Remigino and Andy Stanfield at the Boston K. of C. Games to win the 50-yard dash and established a new meet record of 0:05.3.

One week later, Mike made his home debut at the Philadelphia Inquire Meet, but ran afoul of the Ben Ogden starting gate and was shut out in the semi-final heat. Twenty-four hours later he convinced all skeptics of his ability with his electrifying performance at Washington. Agostini followed with third place in the Boston A. A. U. meet 50-yard dash on a return trip to the scene of his earlier record-smashing feat.

Mike thus far maintains a winning percentage against the world's top sprinters. He has decisioned Andy Stanfield, Art Bragg, and Lindy Remigino the majority of times he has faced them. If Agostini continues this mastery, and past performances indicate he will, Villanova will have a new international celebrity of the cinder path.

Club BC, 78-52; Schafer, Smith, Devine Get 61

by Jack Pettit

A revitalized Villanova aggregation took the Boston College Eagles into camp to the tune of 78-52, last Saturday night at the Palestra. For the 'Cats it was their fourth victory in seven days.

The big man in the Wildcat attack was the "Blond Bomber," Bobby Schafer, who ran his season total to 706 points as he led both teams in scoring with 28 markers. It took Bobby a whole half to get warmed up, but when he did, he shot 8 for 18 from the floor in the second half.

The game, however, was not all Schafer,—it was a complete team victory, as shown by the statistics. Besides Schafer, the 'Cats placed three other men in double figures. As in the three previous games last week, it was Jimmy Smith who made a big difference in the game. The insertion of Smitty into the starting lineup gives the club an added scoring punch. He played a stellar role in the first half, scoring some timely baskets, while Schafer was having trouble finding the range. He finished runner-up to Schafer in scoring with 17 points.

Captain Jack Devine and John Cirino hit for 16 and 12 respectively.

1st Half Close

The first half was closely contested all the way; a scant five points separated the two clubs at halftime. However, when the Severancemen took the floor for the second half they set out to win with a vengance. With Schafer finding the range with his long set shots, the team began to break the game wide open —outscoring the visitors 18 to 8 in the third period.

In the final stanza the game began to assume the proportions of a rout.

Gaffney, Bragg, Agostini Excel In NYAC Events

By Dick Confoy

Villanova's track performers continued on their merry and very successful way through the indoor season Saturday night in Madison Square Garden, as Don Bragg and senior Joe Gaffney grabbed most of the spotlight in individual events sponsored by the New York Athletic Club meet.

Running before 11,000 fans, Gaffney won the first race of his career in New York, with a 57.9 second record-smashing effort in the Buermeyer 500. Gaffney's time chopped 1.3 seconds off the meet mark as he left behind Reggie Pearlman of the NY Pioneer Club and J. W. Mashburn, the Oklahoma A & M star who holds the national AAU 440-yard title.

Bragg Second

Bragg, continuing to improve, cleared 14 feet, 4 inches, becoming the first freshman to ever reach that mark in NYAC annals. He tied Don Laz and four others for second with his lofty efforts; the winner was Rev. Bob Richards, who soared four inches higher.

Mike Agostini, meanwhile, was once again up near the top, as he finished in a dead heat for second place in the 60-yard dash with Lindy Remigino, Olympic 100-meter champion. Earlier, the phenomenal freshman ran 6.2 in his semi-final heat, the same speed that the event winner, John Haines of Penn, maintained in tying the meet record.

Relayers Win

Villanova's varsity got back in the picture when Gaffney anchored the relay team—Ray Wheiler, Red Heitman, Al Ligorelli and himself—to a 3.26 mile triumph over Seton Hall and Boston College.

FBI Agent Sets Mark

Other individual meet winners were: Horace Ashenfelter, Josy Barthel, and Harry Bright

HOST TO BONNIES

Villanova's basketball club, 15-10, returns to the Palestra tomorrow night to entertain a visiting St. Bonaventure's aggregation, in the nightcap of the customary doubleheader. Game time is around 9:45. Penn plays Princeton in the opener.

Varsity Addition Smith Assumes Valuable Role

By Joe Heaps

It isn't often that a youngster with no previous big-time college basketball savvy gets up off a bench with his team 20 points in the hole, helps his club narrow that margin to a mere seven points, and still finds time to manage 15 timely markers on his own.

But that's the way Jim Smith is.

And as far as Villanova followers are concerned, that's the way that 'Smitty' is going to be for the next two years.

For this unassuming Philadelphia native, who, until this aforementioned game with N. C. State, had experienced only the tensions of freshman competition, found himself in a situation that has wilted many a lesser ball player. He was playing with a team that was at the time in a definite slump—a club that had lost four straight—but he came through like a veteran, and has been doing so repeatedly ever since that losing effort in Raleigh's Coliseum.

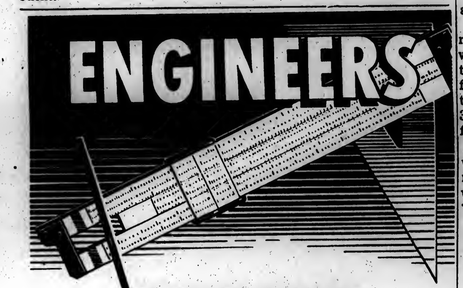
SPORTS CHATTER



By Dick Confoy

With over 4/5 of the basketball season already in the books, it's time to 'talk tournament' and, despite an erratic campaign, the Wildcats are still in the post-season picture. With Duquesne already in the NIT fold and LaSalle, perennially a Garden team, expected to follow the same course, the only major-caliber clubs left in Section 2 (Mid-eastern Seaboard) are Temple, Fordham and Villanova. If the choice narrowed down to a pick between Temple and Villanova, the Main Liners would seem to have the advantage because of the presence of high-scoring Bob Schafer. All of which, unfortunately, leaves Fordham very much in the running. At the moment, the Rams definitely appear well in front of the running for a berth, but Fordham has shown signs of late of repeating last year's late-season foldup. And with the memory of the Rams rather unceremonious dumping at the hands of Lebanon Valley in the opening round in '53 still fresh in NCAA officals minds, as well as many fan's, the New Yorkers are by no means to be considered a shoo-in. Hope springs eternal in the human breast, one of our professors used to tell us before exam time.

Speaking of post-season tounaments, it appears that the three teams that have been running neck-and-neck for the top spot all year may never meet to settle the dispute. Indiana, which lost to Northwestern last week for its second league loss, may have knocked itself right out of the NCAA contention, the only tournament which the Hoosiers will consider. With Duquesne already in the NIT, Kentucky has seen fit to announce that it is definitely not interested in the Garden play-offs, despite the fact that the Wildcats' top three men would be ineligible for the NCAA. Kentucky's position seems completely illogical unless Adolph Rupp would just merely avoid a show-down with the Duquesne powerhouse. Anyhow, with or without the Ruppmen, the NIT remains, as always, the nation's top post-season get-together.

And unless Kentucky heads for New York on March 8, the Dukes must be given the nod as the nation's top collegiate outfit.

Freshman Lose First; Rebound Vs. St. Peter's

Putting an unbeaten skein of 10 consecutive victories on the line, the Villanova freshman five was forced to play three games in as many nights during the past week. The result of this campaigning shows that the balanced win-loss ledger of the Kittens now reads 12 wins and 1 loss . . . to Seton Hall's extremely talented first-year club.

Monday night saw the Frosh romp over the New York Port of Embarkation army team by an 88-45 count. Thirteen of the eighteen players who saw action for Villanova joined in the scoring parade with Jack Weissman and Sonny DiCarlo outstanding with 16 and 13 points respectively.

The Sharp-shooting, fast-breaking Seton Hall freshmen squad dealt the VU yearlings a severe 106-79 shellacking Tuesday night at South Orange. It was close through the opening half with Bobby Powers and Frank Griffith offsetting the excellent marksmanship of the Pirates.

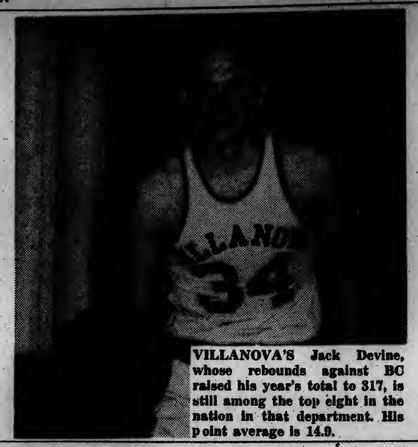
But midway through the third period, Seton Hall started to pull away, and the Kittens were unable to close the gap. Powers and Jim Fahey led the Villanova pointmakers with 24 and 15 markers respectively.

Last Wednesday the Frosh returned to their winning ways with a rousing 77-70 conquest of the St. Peter's Freshmen. A fast surge at the start of the third quarter increased a slim 35-33 halftime margin to a comfortable 45-33 advantage.

A last-ditch St. Peter's rally wasn't enough, and Maje McDonnell's men had nabbed their 12th win in 13 attempts.

Swimmers Win First

Villanova's pioneering swimming team won its first meet of the year last Wednesday after six straight vain attempts, defeating a visiting St. Peter's outfit, 51-33.



Ed Geisz's tankmen, who are representing Villanova in swimming circles for the first time since 1942, placed first in four of the individual events ,and captured two of the top three positions in five individual affairs.

The winners also grabbed off the team events—the 440-yard freestyle and the 300-yard medley relay. The four first-placers for VU were Tom Donahue—50-yard freestyle; Ben Addiego—diving; Donahue—100-yard freestyle; and Tom McGrath — 200-yard backstroke.

LETTERS PRESENTED

The following players are awarded letters and certificates for participation in 150-lb football at Villanova University:

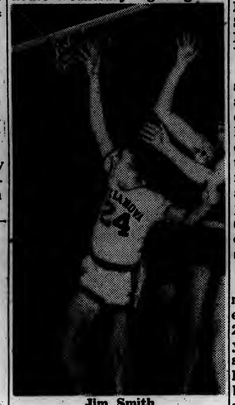
VILLANOVA'S Jack Devine, whose rebounds against BC raised his year's total to 317, is still among the top eight in the nation in that department. His point average is 14.0.



Varsity Addition...

chipping in with 11 in the team's rebounding win against tough little Belmont Abbey the next day, he led his club's vengefully successful effort against Seton Hall two days later, pumping in 16 points to lead his teammates in scoring.

Tough Off Boards

And then, back in the fieldhouse Wednesday night against pesky St. Peter's, Jim, who is no giant as far as today's players go (6'1"), played a definitely outstanding game off the boards and contributed 11 points—his fourth straight double-figure performance. His tap-in attempts are remarkable, considering his size, and his steadying influence has been a major factor in the team's newly-discovered impetus.

Member of WC Champs

Smith is no stranger to his favorite sport, by any means; he was a member of West Catholic's 1951-'52 championship outfit. He matriculated here at VU in the spring semester of '53, after transfering from Loyola of Los Angeles.

VU Presents High School Swim Stars

Villanova University will play host to high school swimming teams from various parts of the country this coming Saturday, Feb. 20, when it presents the National Catholic Interscholastic Swimming and Diving Team and Individual Championships in the Villanova Natatorium.

The affair, which will feature some of the finest Catholic pool aggregations throughout the east, will begin at 10 a. m. and last until 4:30 p. m. A permanent trophy will be presented to the team compiling the highest number of points; medals will be awarded to the 1st, 2nd and 3rd place winners. Points will be scored in the individual event on a 6-4-3-2-1 basis. The relay system will be a 10-8-6-4-2.

Events Named

Swimming Coach Ed Geisz announced that there will be nine events—150-yard medley relay, 200-yard free style relay, 50-yard free style, 100-yard free style, 150-yard individual medley, 220-yard free style, 100-yard breaststroke, 100-yard backstroke and the 1-meter springboard dive. Trials diving begin at 10 a. m. Heats in swimming event begin at 1 p. m.

The last championships of this type was sponsored by LaSalle College in 1949; Villanova's last sponsorship of a similar affair was in 1942.

Future Hopes

The Championships are expected to become one of the primary attractions here at Villanova if this year's presentation is a success. A great deal of top-flight talent will participate in the activities, under the direction of the VU Swimming Committee, including Athletic Director Ambrose 'Bud' Dudley, Athletic Sec'y Bill Ryan and Geisz.

Concert Band Launches Season At St. John's

Last Tuesday night the Villanova University Concert Band opened its 1954 season with its traditional visit to St. John's Orphanage. Judging from the response of the Sisters and boys of St. Johns, it looks like the present band is one of the best to represent Villanova.

This year's program will feature some of the best works of John Phillip Sousa, namely, The Light Cavalry Overture and Stars and Stripes Forever. Also included in the program will be a medley of Best Loved Irish Melodies and The Band of America March.

"Wildcat Five"

In order to add a little variety to this year's concerts, several new features have been added. Foremost among these is the formation of the Wildcat Five, a Dixieland group, which will entertain the audiences with a taste of good Divieland music. Bob Schiller will add his talent to the concerts by being featured in a trumpet solo and Joe Valenti will give out with a vocal rendition of The Bells of Saint Mary's.

The Concert Band will make its second appearance of the year tonight at the Saint Joseph's Hospital Nurses Home in Philadelphia. The complete schedule has not yet been made up, but tentative dates have been set for concerts at the Misercordia, Fitzgerald Mercy, Saint Agnes, and Saint Mary's Nurses Homes. A trip to Wilmington has also been planned.

The Band, which is under the direction of Frank Licopoli, will conclude its season with the annual Mother's Day and Student Concert, the latter of which, weather permitting, will be held outside.

Rev. Joseph Burns, O. S. A. is the moderator of the band

Mission Dance Set for March

The popular Shamokinaki Square Dance will return to the Villanova campus on Friday night March 12, 1954.

The proceeds of this affair will be used to help the Augustinian missions in Japan of which Rev. Thomas Purcell, O. S. A., is the director. Father Purcell formerly taught here at Villanova before his present assignment in the far east. The name of the dance is derived from his hometown, Shamokin, Pa. The dance is being held to provide more financial support for hard-pressed priests of Father's diocese for their labors in the Japanese mission field..

There will be music for straight dancing too, so everybody should have a good time.

Dress is strictly informal, and jeans and dungarees will be the order of the day.

American industry today presents the greatest field ever open to engineering students. And we honestly believe that no opportunities are more rewarding than those offered at

HAMILTON STANDARD
Division of
UNITED AIRCRAFT CORP.
WINDSOR LOCKS, CONNECTICUT

Here you'll have a good starting salary and excellent chance for advancement. You'll work in an atmosphere that challenges every facet of your training and imagination, associating with an exceptionally high calibre engineering staff, many of whom have gained world-wide recognition for their contributions to aeronautical science.

We offer the opportunity to use your complete education on the development of not just one product but many:

Jet Fuel Controls
Jet Engine Starters
Hydraulic Pumps
Cockpit Air Conditioning Systems
Turbine Engine Propellers
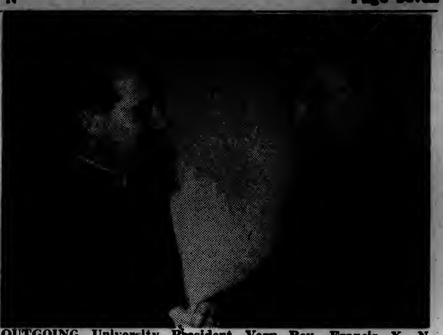
Piston Engine Propellers, and other products still in the early stages of development

Our modern plant is ideally located, midway between Hartford, Conn., and Springfield, Mass., the center of an area rich in cultural and recreational advantages.

OUR REPRESENTATIVE WILL BE HERE FOR INFORMAL INTERVIEWS:



He'll be glad to answer questions and tell you more about the opportunities in our growing organization. No lengthy application to fill out — just come in and get acquainted.

Presidential Succesion Traced Through The Years

Very Reverend James A. Donnellon, O. S. A., is the 22nd man to hold the post of President of Villanova.

Yet his is the 23rd administration since the college was first opened, in 1843.

This seeming paradox dates from early Villanova history, when Father William Harnett, the 2nd president, became also the 4th president of the school. His two separate administrations bracketed the tenure of office of the Very Reverend Patrick Moriarity, third head of the college.

The following is a complete list of Villanova presidents, with their dates of tenure of office.

The Reverends:

1. John P. O'Dwyer 1843-1850
   (celebrated the first Mass at Villanova)
2. William Harnett 1850-1851
3. Patrick Moriarity 1851-1855
   (granted the first AB 1855)
4. William Harnett 1855-1857
   (conferred the first MA 1857)

Villanova College closed, 1857-1865, due to economic depression, Know-Nothing anti-Catholic movement, and the Civil War.

5. Ambrose Mullen 1865-1869
6. Patrick A. Stanton 1869-1872
   (first gymnasium built)
7. Thomas Galberry 1872-1876
   (becamo Bishop of Hartford)
8. Thomas C. Middleton 1876-1878
9. John J. Fedigan 1878-1880
   (college expansion)
10. Joseph A. Coleman 1880-1886
    (built the chapel)
11. Francis M. Sheeran 1886-1890
    (dedicated the chapel)
12. Christopher A. McEvoy 1890-1894
    (Villanova Golden Jubilee)
13. Francis McShane 1894-1895
14. Lawrence Delurey 1895-1910
    (college expansion)
15. Edward G. Dohan 1910-1917
16. James Dean 1917-1920
17. Frank Driscoll 1920-1924
18. Joseph Hickey 1924-1925
19. Mortimer Sullivan 1925-1926
20. James Griffin 1926-1932
    (college expansion)
21. Edward V. Stanford 1932-1944
    (Villanova Centennial)
22. Francis X. N. McGuire 1944-1954
    (college expansion)
23. James A. Donnellon 1954-

Activity News In Review

The Naval ROTC rifle team has made a record of one loss in ten meets to date against stiff competition from local college and service teams.

In recent matches the local sharpshooters have beaten La-Salle and Penn ROTC by large margins while also showing well in two triangular meets, winning one and being edged in the other. The triangle affairs pitted Villanova against Valley Forge Military and Admiral Farragut Academies, the marksmen from Barry Hall taking top honors. In the second meet, they came in second to Georgetown University.

The result of the recent Hearst Trophy Match placed Villanova Navy in eighth place out of seventy-nine teams.

All eligible students who intend to take the Selective Service College Qualification Test in 1954 should file applications at once for the April 22 administration, Selective Service National Headquarters advised today.

An application and a bulletin of information may be obtained at any Selective Service local board. Following instructions in the bulletin, the student should fill out his application immediately and mail it in the special envelope provided. Applications must be postmarked no later than midnight, March 8, 1954. Early filing will be greatly to the student's advantage.

Results will be reported to the student's Selective Service local board of jurisdiction for use in considering his deferment as a student, according to Educational Testing Service, which prepares and administers the College Qualification Test.

Freshmen elections for representatives to the Student Council will be held on Thursday, February 18. Two men will be elected to represent the freshmen class in the Council for the remaining part of this year and all of next year. The voting, which is under the direction of Student Council representative Jack Kneafsey, will take place in Alumni gym starting at 10:30 A. M. Matriculation cards must be shown in order to vote.

Interview List Announced For Seniors & Industries

Dr. George E. Matlin, new assistant placement director, last week released names of business firms which will conduct employment interviews with members of the senior class who will have the required degrees. He revealed that National Biscuit Co. and General Motors have postponed their interviews until a later undecided date.

Scheduled interviews for the remainder of the month and the beginning of March include:

Feb. 23:
Curtiss Wright—Mech. Eng.
Johnson and Johnson—Business, Arts
Feb. 24:
Scintilla-Magneto—Mech. Eng., Elec. Eng.
North American Aviation—Civil, Elec., Mech. Eng.
Hamilton Standard—Mech. & Elec. Eng.
Feb. 25:

Your hands on the Future!

When you grip the wheel of an Air Force jet, your hands are on a fast, high flying future that leads to the top in jet aviation.

● Once behind the controls of an Air Force jet, you leave the humdrum of everyday life . . . soar far above the cares of the crowd into a bright new future of adventure and excitement. You're part of a select flying team, playing for the highest stakes of all . . . mastery of the Jet Age! You'll win too, because you've been trained to win. You have confidence in yourself, in your fellows, and in your plane, the fastest and safest flying equipment in the world.

As an Air Force Aviation Cadet, you get in on the ground floor of jet aviation, learn jet flight with the latest equipment and best instructors. You graduate as an Air Force lieutenant earning over $5,000 a year . . . a man thoroughly prepared for leadership in both military and commercial aviation. Join the many fine young men who keep their hands on the future. Train as an Aviation Cadet!

You may be eligible

To qualify as an Aviation Cadet, you must be at least a high school graduate. However, you will be of more value to the Air Force if you stay in college, graduate, and then volunteer for training. In addition, you must be between 19 and 26½ years, unmarried, and in good physical condition.

☆ Win an Air Force Commission
☆ Earn over $5,000 A Year

HERE'S WHAT YOU DO:

1. Take your high school diploma or certificate of graduation and a copy of your birth certificate to your nearest Air Force Base or Recruiting Station. Fill out the application they give you.

2. If application is accepted, the Air Force will arrange for you to take a physical examination at government expense.

3. Next, you will be given a written and manual aptitude test.

4. If you pass your physical and other tests, you will be scheduled for an Aviation Cadet training class. The Selective Service Act allows you a four-month deferment while waiting class assignment.

WHERE TO GET MORE DETAILS:

Contact your nearest Aviation Cadet Selection Team, Air Force ROTC Unit or Air Force Recruiting Officer. Or write to: Aviation Cadet, Headquarters, U. S. Air Force, Washington 25, D. C.

PICTURE STORY OF SENIOR WEEKEND (Page 8)

March 22 Chosen

Council Nominates Free Day, Hears Fr. Donnellon

With the approval of the Father President, the Student Council has chosen Monday, March 22, as the free day it is allowed to pick each year. No classes will be conducted on that day.

Last night Very Rev. James Donnellon, O. S. A., president of Villanova, addressed the council on student-faculty relationships. Also present at the invitation of Council President Joe Kenney were Dr. Robert Koob, assistant professor of Chemistry and president of the Villanova chapter of the American Association of University Professors, and three other faculty members.

The appearance of Father Donnellon marked the first time Villanova's new president had met with the Council. It was in line with his statement when he took office that he would do all he could to promote better relationships between students and administration and students and faculty.

There was discussion by the members of the possible application for admission to the National Student Association by Villanova. Another member brought up the question of the possibility of a student-faculty appraisal sheet to be distributed here. Both matters will be considered.

The council also decided to postpone final action on the proposed admission of a representative of the Nurses' division to the group. This was because the new proposed amendment had to be adjusted and it was felt that the relationship problem would have a greater effect upon the whole school, and should therefore be considered first.

Speaking of the free day, Rev. George McLaughlin, O. S. A., Dean of Student Activities, pointed out that the number of school days last year was exactly the same as the number this year.

Statue Deadline Extended 3 Weeks

Deadline for contributions to the Statue Fund of the Class of 1954 has been moved to Saturday, March 20th, announced Ted Sheehan, class president. With the many expenses of the Senior Weekend it was thought that by delaying the final deadline many more seniors would be able to contribute.

"Up to this time, the returns have been scattered with most of the answers coming from the day students. It is hoped that with the arrival of Lent many more seniors will take that opportunity to donate. It was also felt that there will be more money in the next few weeks via Navy and Federal Income Tax refund checks," said Sheehan.

The class is seeking to donate a seven-foot statue of Our Lady of Good Counsel, composed of Italian marble. The goal sought is two thousand dollars.

Mamie Politely Refuses

Villanova's Junior Class was the victim of some of Washington's famous "red tape" last week, when they received news that "Mamie" Eisenhower would not be able to act as a judge in their Junior Week Queen Contest due to White House policy which doesn't permit the First Lady to take part in such activities.

Unfilled Grid Slate Lists 1 Home, 8 Away Games

REV. EDWIN T. GRIMES, O. S. A., junior class moderator, advises Bernie Finan, president, on plans for Junior Week, May 3-8.

Juniors Pick Long Band; Second Appearance Here

Johnny Long and his "Shanty in Old Shantytown" will return to Villanova May 7 for the class of '55's Prom, said Prom Chairman Bud Ford at last week's class meeting.

Approximately 150 juniors, or 40 per cent of the class, heard committee chairmen and President Bernie Finan report on prospects for Junior Week.

Long was selected as the popular choice after his fine showing at last year's Junior Prom.

Ring Fittings

At the same meeting Ring Chairman Bill Kohler reported that all fittings will be completed by St. Patrick's day and that rings will be delivered about a week later.

No Changes

He added that fittings will be held one day a week for the next two weeks. No radical changes have been made in the rings, he said, although the wildcat is now sunk a litte deeper in the ring.

Mother's Day Chairman Ted Clarkson stated that the dinner for the day will be prepared by the Smythe Caterers and that lunch will be supplied by the school.

Frank Gunther, Dinner Dance Chairman, told the class that both ballrooms of the Penn Sherwood Hotel, site of this year's event, have been reserved. Five couples will occupy each table for dinner. Bids are set at $8; Tony Desmond will play at the dance.

Johnny Long began his career with his high school days. Later he formed a band on the Duke campus known as the "Freshman Orchestra." This group stayed together during its days at Duke and played at resorts during the summers. Since that time Johnny has tried to keep his music in line with the college crowds. Even his theme song, "Sweetheart of Sigma Nu," is of collegiate origin.

Among his more famous tunes, besides the above mentioned "Shantytown", are "Blue Skies" and "Just Like That", which Long wrote himself.

Very Reverend James A. Donnellon, O. S. A., now embarking on his second month as President of Villanova University, last week confirmed reports that of the nine football games scheduled to date for fall 1954, only one will be played at home.

Scheduling difficulties were named as the cause of this situation; one open date, however, remains on the unreleased schedule.

He further disclosed in an interview with the Villanovan that Rev. Patrick Dundon, O. S. A., new Prior of the St. Thomas of Villanova Monastery and Chairman of the Athletic Board, would arrive here Monday (yesterday) to assume his new duties.

Father Donnellon believes that the new dormitory will be definitely completed by September 1954 and that members of the class of 1955 will probably be given preference in reserving quarters there.

Possible Rise

The new administration, he declared, will enforce more strictly present discipline regulations for students. Additionally, he said that tuition rates for next year may be increased pending a descision by the Board of Trustees in three or four weeks.

The new President envisioned a stadium enlarged to seat between 25,000 and 30,000 fans by 1955; a $150,000 increase in the Stadium Fund is needed to supplement the present balance of $100,000 to realize this effort.

Regarding enrollment, he stated that women will be admitted as full-time students only in the Nursing Division and that the current ratio between resident and non-resident students (about 9 to 11) will be maintained.

Father Donnellon promised investigation of the delay involved between the time that a student's marks are determined and the time that receives them. He stated that he would also investigate a request of the Villanovan to be allowed to cover the heretofore closed meetings of the Student Faculty Committee.

Father Prior

Information released by the Administration reports that the new Prior, Father Dundon,

Pre-Cana Series Retained

"Although results of the poll were not completely gratifying, students did exhibit enough interest to justify the continuation of the Pre-Cana series for this year," stated Rev. Robert Regan, O. S. A., director of the Pre-Cana conferences, last week.

Father Regan had announced that the series would be discontinued unless enough students signed up in advance for the talks. Sixty students complied with the request, which will mean that approximately 90 (counting girls who will be present) will attend the conferences on married life.

Intended for those who are contemplating marriage, even remotely, the series will be held on the Lenten Sundays of March 14, 21, and 28, and April 4.

Rev. Robert E. Regan, O. S. A.

Fifth Year

Father Regan, in charge for the fourth successive year of the five-year old lecture series, will speak the first two Sundays. On March 14 the students will hear "Marriage—A Genuine and Great Vocation", and the following week Father will discuss "The Psychology of the Sexes."

A prominent Catholic wife and mother will speak on March 28, and on April 4 "A Catholic Physician Looks at Marriage."

All lectures will be conducted in the C&F auditorium beginning about 3:15 P. M. A question and answer period will follow each talk. It should be remembered that all interested in the Pre-Cana conferences are urged to attend. It is not necessary to have signed up in order to attend.

To Conduct Retreat

Rev. Robert M. Sullivan, O.S.A., Dean of Arts and Sciences, will conduct a three-day retreat at Rosemont College during Holy Week. Father was chaplain at Rosemont for seven years, until Nov. 1951. During the last five of those years he also taught Junior religion there.

Question of Terms

"Student governments (in other institutions) have frequently encountered faculty opposition to the initiation of a rating program on their campuses. One of the most often cited reasons was the objection to the implication that untrained students would presume to sit in judgment over professionally trained instructors.

"There has also been the suspicion on the part of both faculty and students that this program would be merely another club with which disgruntled students could wreak vengeance on individual members of the teaching staff.

"The aims of this program are positive. The program is meant to make the students aware of his direct responsibilities in his active participation in his own educaton. It grew out of a student feelng that there was too much leading to water without any drinking. The question being asked is: "Am I getting all I possibly could out of this course? If not, why not?" While there may be short-comings in the actual teaching, the student might also discover that his own efforts or motivations were wanting.

"Also beyond any teaching defects, the staff might recognize basic faults in the course or program which have made successful communication impossible. In short, the problem is really that of course evaluation. In this concept, faculty rating as such becomes incidental, and the effectiveness of the educational process becomes paramount. This is the true intent of the program." (from "Course Evaluation", a United States National Student Association publication.)

Proposed to the Student Council last night was a program of course evaluation to be applied in the University. We endorse this program and deem it of highest necessity in the progress of Villanova education.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

I should like to bring to your attention a misrepresentation printed in your feature "On The Line", February 16th issue. The Social Committee of Rosemont College sponsored a joint concert with the Princeton Nassoons and the Paul Stevens Quintet from the Villanova Law School.

The Nassoons were contacted two months in advance of their appearance and they agreed to accept our invitation. Though the group agreed to sing in the Tea House on Friday, February 12th and we later learned of their previous engagement to sing at Bryn Mawr's Freshmen Weekend, February 13th, we had no arrangement what so ever with Bryn Mawr.

We are sorry that this statement appeared in your last issue and we hope that this letter will inform you of the correct circumstances. Thank you for your kind attention to this matter.

Sincerely,
Paula Sanfacon

McCarthy's Latest Attack Might Help Communism

By Ed Daly

Once again the controversial figure of Senator Joseph McCarthy has appeared in the foreground of American politics. This time he has quarreled with an Army brigadier general and crossed swords with the Secretary of the Army. As always partisans of the McCarthy camp and the "anti-McCarthy" element are announcing that this latest incident proves what they have been saying all along, whatever that may be, and more thoughtful Americans are again asking themselves, "Is McCarthy a force for good or evil in American society?"

DALY

As I have said in a previous article, that is a question I don't pretend to be able to answer. I think, however, that it is certainly possible to evaluate this latest occurrence.

To begin with, Senator McCarthy was certainly much more abusive of General Zwicker than the circumstances warranted. No one, not even Senator McCarthy, has suggested that General Zwicker is lacking in patriotism. His only crime was that on the orders of a superior officer he gave an honorable discharge to an officer suspected of being a Communist, who had refused to answer questions before a Senatorial Committee. Whether or not General Zwicker's superior exercised bad judgement does not give General Zwicker the authority to disobey him, nor does his obedience to orders constitute an offense against American patriotism. Yet Senator McCarthy told General Zwicker that he could not help impugning either his honesty or his intelligence, that he was unfit for his position, and that such things as General Zwicker's action were "disgraceful." As a climax, the Senator announced the following day that he was "much too lenient" with General Zwicker, and that if he had to do it all over again, he would be much harsher.

Aid To Communism?

Even the most sincere anti-Communist must admit that this sort of thing is going too far. Abuse of a sincere, patriotic general is not going to hurt Communism; to the contrary, it may help it by bringing about a popular reaction against the whole anti-Communist campaign. That Communists should be pursued relentlessly and driven from whatever governmental and military posts they may hold, most of us would agree. But to imperil the drive against them by vilifying a loyal officer who merely carried out the orders assigned to him is the sheerest madness.

Why did McCarthy do it? Various theories have been advanced to explain this extreme conduct, explanations which range from demagoguery to fanaticism. Some think the cause is very simple—egotism. Being the leader of a large group of anti-Communists, a group often extravagant in its praise of everything McCarthy has done, has gone to his head. McCarthy, instead of merely leading the fight against Communists in the government, has declared a one-man war against anyone who disagrees with him or does anything of which he disapproves. In his own mind, McCarthy seems to be protected by some sort of infallibility and to be the savior of the United States from an all-pervading Communist menace.

Overdoing It

All of this is very unfortunate. Actually McCarthy has rendered the country a definite service by dramatizing the very real menace of Communist infiltration in key places. Now perhaps he is overding it. If so, it is to be hoped that someone will be able to point out to him the disservice he is doing to his own cause by the extravagant abuse of men like General Zwicker. I fear that there may be no one who is able to do this, since McCarthy sincerely believes that what he is doing is for the best interest of this country. However, the fact remains that Senator McCarthy should, for the good of the nation, adopt a more moderate policy in dealing with non-Communist witnesses. If not, the cause of anti-Communism in the United States may receive a definite setback in the unpleasantly near future.

Christianity Put Forward As Force For Social Unity

By Mark McCormick

It is commonly held by historians that an event in history can be most objectively judged after the passage of a few hundred years. Now it is becoming popular to re-evaluate the significance of the Renaissance and its accompanying effects, especially humanism. As a result of these movements in history, society began to emphasize the way of life of the ancient pre-Christian Greek and Roman civilizations.

McCormick

Concomitant to this, of course, was a neglect of Christianity and a neglect of the Christian Culture which had dominated in European society for well over a thousand years. And the result, with the accent on man rather than God, was a worship of the products of man's mind. That the idealism was not fulfulled is evidenced by the rampant liberalism of the nineteenth century and the tragic wars of the twentieth.

Historians are hinting that perhaps the Renaissance wasn't so bright and that perhaps the so-called Dark Ages weren't so grim and unimportant after all.

Christianity

Catholics are beginning to recognize that they possess not only a faith but a culture. Outspoken critics have called for a return to a once-used method in Catholic education, in which Christianity is considered the dominant, unifying force in society.

Christopher Dawson, prominent British historian, asserts that the utilitarianism and specialism which have become powerful recently have caused a lack, even in Catholic education, of an "integrative, humanizing element" and have prevented schools from graduating the "whole man".

Mr. Dawson advocates the realization that Catholicism represented a socially-dominant culture during the majority of Christian history and that it should be accepted now as the "integrative" subject which will save liberal Christian education. He offers as solution the study of Christian philosophy, literature, and history, by every student who would be truly educated.

Culture

He reasonably contends: "As there is an organic relation between the Christian faith and the Christian life, so also is there a relation between Christian life and Christian culture" . . . and that . . . "the more we can realize our spiritual and historical identity by the study of Christian culture, the better we shall be able to withstand the forces of secularism".

Perhaps the most cogent idea expressed by Mr. Dawson is that Christian history should certainly matter to the Christian, if to no one else.

Certainly the modern educational tendency, perhaps a product of the "Age of Enlightenment", is to emphasize quantity of subject matter, rather than quality. And it would be a necessary result with the acceptance by Christians of Christian culture, that Christianity would become a more positive, qualitative force in determining society.

Perhaps society might again recognize that God, and not the mind of man, is the measure of all things.

College Excerpts

HAWAII IN A STATE HOUSE . . .

(ACP)—Enterprising juniors at the University of Utah have produced what is believed to be the most unusual junior prom in the country.

The big dance, top junior social event, was held in the historic rotunda of the Utah State Capitol.

More than 2,000 orchids, flown in from Hawaii, plus palm fronds, fishing nets and sailing ships converted the rotunda from the dignified center of state affairs to a replica of an island hotel club. Hawaiian-born Utah students, complete with ukeleles, welcomed guests as though they had arrived for an "Hawaiian Holiday", and coeds were presented with imported flower leis.

Let's Keep Our Politics Out of Nation's Pastime

By Ress James

In a day and age when such things as Vestal Virgins and the Holy Grail have lost significance to everyone except Sam Goldwyn and Darryl F. Zanuck, we should try to keep something inviolate and free from the libidinous hands of that arch-violator, Politics. The American Civilization (a broad term meaning nothing) thought it had at last completed its Galahadian search when in the nineteenth century a former general got tired of losing his Saturday afternoon game of one-old-cat because his opponents made up the rules as they went along. Due to his military background the general could see nothing else to do but make up his own rules. This he called baseball, to distinguish it from football and basketball which were to come a few years later.

The American people immediately divined the virginal qualities of the new sport and as it is the custom with all cultic races, erected greated shrines with high walls to keep their services undefiled by the stray glances of any passing infidels. (An observer of the rite was even required to make a small sacrifice which has gone up in recent years due to increased salaries and transportation costs.)

Investigation

Sadly enough, however, even this great spiritual panacea has been blasphemed in the worst way. In the past three years baseball has been placed upon the most common ground. It has been investigated by Congress and is apt to be reinvestigated in the near future.

The original problem was brought about by a few malcontent idealists who didn't like being slaves for a minimum salary of five thousand dollars per. (Let us not be hasty with our smirks. Men like these founded our country.) Congress investigated and the Supreme Court ruled. These men were not slaves. They did not have to play baseball. They could be Communists, aliens, or even hockey fans.

Baseball and Beer

The new question involves the same general problem (is organized baseball a monopoly?), but attacks a different aspect of the game. A certain Senator Johnson, Democrat, Colorado, (this is trouble enough already) seems to think that a Mr. August A. Busch, Budweiser, St. Louis Cardinals, is using baseball to promote a beer monopoly. The idea is that Mr. Busch wants to sell Budweiser and Stan Musial over radio and tele-

More Competition Sought in Contest For Jr.'s Queen

The Junior Week Queen Contest, now in its third week, is getting off to a slow start. "Quality," point out the contest chairmen, "far exceeds quantity. The few entries which have been submitted are all worthy contestants for the coveted crown."

The number of entries is expected to increase rapidly as the May weekend approaches and more juniors have gotten their dates. The Villanovan will print all the pictures it can, beginning with the earliest entries.

For those who overlooked the contest details last week, here is a little review (1) all members of the Junior class are eligible to submit one (and only one) picture. (2) Pictures should be of approximately the 5" x 7" size and should be submitted to the Villanovan office or to the Parlor of Simpson Hall by midnight of April 9. (but don't wait till 11 o'clock of the ninth) (3) Judging is to be done by pictures only and all will be returned after Junior Week (4) Runner up to the Queen will be her Lady in Waiting with the next four successive finishers, the "Court" (5) All pictures must be accompanied by the following information either on the picture or on a separate piece of paper: girl's name, address, age, height, weight, color of eyes, color of hair, present occupation, schools attended; also, Junior's name campus or home address, telephone number and school in college (arts, C&F, etc)

Well-Ventilated Mids Bound For Continent

By Bill Quinn

Have you noticed the ingenuous-looking young men who have been staggering around the campus of late? Last week was "Be Punctured and Stay Healthy Week," a gala affair sponsored by the NROTC unit here at Villanova.

The directors of the event, which was held in the impressively-furnished armory of Commodore John Barry Hall, were a crew of Navy Doctors and corpsmen.

It was evident that they were well-skilled in their occupations, but the majority of those inoculated demurred when it was suggested that they stand several paces away from the man with the needle in order to create the effect of a friendly game of darts.

Lads heading abroad this summer on training cruises were inoculated against Cowpox, Tetanus, Typhoid Fever, and Smallpox.

"Reasonable," said one sore-armed sailor; "it is known that a guy can pick up more than antiques and souvenirs abroad." (This statement offered all kinds of inferences, and we hestitated to pursue the matter further.)

The "Contract" student, or the individual who does not receive his text-books and tuition from the Navy, is only subjected to "square needles" and other such phantasms in his Junior year. And even then the inoculations which he receives are somewhat less comprehensive than those given "Regulars" since his training cruise is usually confined to this side of the Atlantic.

But there is no germ-sparing for the "Regulars" — the boy sent through college on Navy funds. It is rumored that by the time he graduates, the "Regular" will have had a taste of every illness running from "the sniffles" to the Hoof and Mouth disease usually found in wild cattle in the Rockies.

So if you noticed anyone falling asleep during one of Father Sullivan's lectures, or staying awake through a film on the inner works of a Mark LA computer, you weren't far wrong in presuming that he was afflicted with a deadly disease of some sort.

LET'S KEEP OUR POLITICS

vision to the occupants of some one-hundred and thirty mid-western hamlets. Sen. Johnson is also president of the Western League which has most of its teams located within this cozy group of towns.

The idea of a beer monopoly is ambitious beyond credibility. Beer and baseball combined are not intrinsically evil; e. g., a certain West Bronx combination of this nature have been doing immensely well although the beer isn't quite as good as the baseball. The point we are trying to make is that this whole thing is a local disturbance. Why drag congress into it? Baseball doesn't plan the violent overthrow of anything but the Yankees. Perhaps if we give the Senators free tickets to our services they will quit breaking icons.

Middle Eastern Educator To Address Joint Session

Rev. Joseph P. Connell, S. J. Dean of Baghdad College for the past 10 years, will speak at Rosemont College's McShain auditorium Thursday evening, March 11, before an audience of members of the Villanova and Rosemont chapters of the International Relations Club and any other interested students. No admission will be charged.

Father Connell has just returned from Iraq, where he has been in close contact with educational leaders there. He is at present on a lecture tour sponsored by the American Friends of the Middle East, Inc.

"Middle Eastern Affairs" will be the topic of Father Connell's talk. That he is well qualified for his position as an authority on Middle Eastern Affairs may be seen by a study of his background.

Attended Boston College

Father Connell received his Master's degree from Boston College. The next six years were spent in studies of the classics, philosophies, and the science of ascetics at the University of St. Joseph in Beirut, Lebanon. He also studied Arabic there. He then taught at Baghdad College from 1935-1937.

He returned to the United States for six more years of study, including Arabic at Columbia University, before returning to Baghdad as Dean. His vacations were spent in travel through the Middle East, including exursions through Lebanon, Palestine, Egypt, and the Kurdish area of Northern Iraq. He resided briefly in Syria, Jordan, Iran, and Kuwait.

In other I. R. C. news, a nine-man Villanova delegation participated in an international relations conference on foreign policy problems in regard to Germany at the College of Notre Dame of Maryland, Baltimore, Md., on Saturday Feb. 6, 1954.

Shamokinaki To Benefit Missionaries

The Shamokinaki Dance will be held on Friday evening, March 12, in the Villanova Field House. This is the second annual affair held to raise money for the Augustinian missionaries from Villanova who are currently stationed in Japan.

This year it will not be a square dance but rather modern dancing to the music of Charlie Gresh and his ten piece orchestra .The square dance was eliminated because of lack of space required to accommodate the large number of people who would attend.

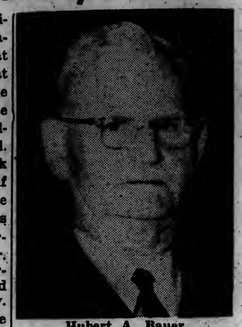
The boys on the committee have been working hard to make the affair a success. There will be refreshments and a door prize of a valuable china tea set, sent from Japan by the Missionaries.

The tickets are priced at $2 per couple and may be purchased at the Pie Shoppe.

The Overbrook Lecture Club, of the Convent of the Sacred Heart, City Line and Haverford road, Overbook, wishes to remind interested students of the last two lectures of the season, 1953-1954.

On Monday, March 8, 1954, Mr Bruce Marshall will speak on "Can Morality Be Divorced From the Novel?". On Monday, March 29, 1954, Mr. George Sokolsky, noted columnist, will present "These Days".

Dr. Bauer Takes D.P.M. Once Around Cape Horn



Dr. Hubert Bauer of the University Language and Geography departments disproved at least part of the old law that fishermen and sailors are the biggest liars as he addressed the Delta Pi Mu fraternity last Wednesday evening in 215 Mendel.

Illustrating his hour-long talk with slides which he himself had taken, Dr. Bauer took the group on one of the nine trips he made around Cape Horn during the period 1905-1909. Dr. Bauer spent 10 years in Germany's Merchant Marine and four more in the German Navy.

The slides shown to the some 60 members present dealt with the professor's days on a four-masted ship. He pointed out that sailing trips in that period took a year or more. Often a ship sailing around the Horn yould pass through four summers, falls, autumns, and springs, he said, on the course of the one journey. Each change in weather would necesaitate a change in the sails, so the sailors had little time to loaf.

Sails Lost

On one particular trip a sudden wind ripped most of the sails off the ship right after it had passed the Horn, and the captain had to direct the ship to Montevideo. Here seaman Bauer was given the opportunity to become mate on another ship, which he did. He stressed that without the training he had got in the German University he would not have received the chance for promotion.

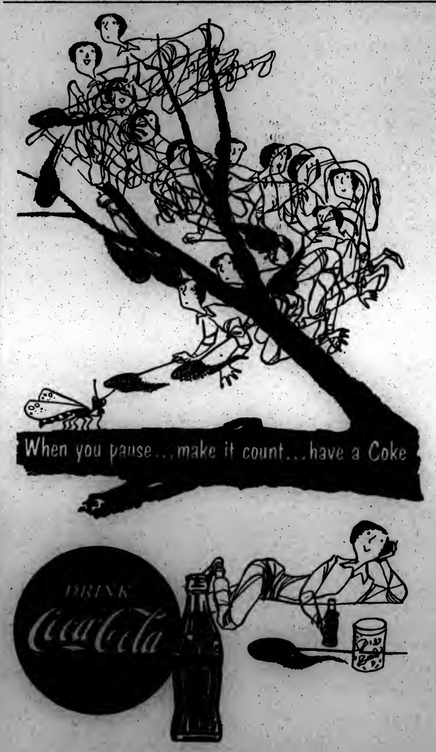
In addition to his trips around South America, Dr. Bauer has also sailed twice around the Cape of Good Hope on trips to Australia. On steamships he has been all over the Atlantic and has gone through the Suez Canal on Middle Eastern trips.

After coming to this country to get his doctorate he bought half interest in a launch and made many trips to Alaska and up the fjords of British Columbia.

A question-and-answer period followed his talk, which was applauded for four minutes. Refreshments were then served.

Engineers See Slides

AIEE-IRE Hears Authority



Mr. Walter B. Morton, national vice-president of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, and Mr. Robert Franklin, Engineering Section Head at Sperry Gyroscope Co., were the guest speakers at last Tuesdays's meet of the Villanova joint branch of the AIEE and the IRE.

Some sixty engineers heard Mr. Morton, now representing the Middle Eastern United States district of the AIEE, talk on "Light Begins at '80". He traced the development of electricity from 1880 to the present day, illustrating his talk with color slides. He also compared Edison's early plant with a modern power plant through the use of pictures.

Mr. Franklin explained "Gyrocompasses and Shipsteering Devices" to the engineers. The principles of the operation of a gyroscope were outlined before he went into a description of shipsteering systems. Mr. Franklin also used slides in his talk on the use of the shipsteering systems for navigating on the Mississippi.

Present in the audience were Capt. Martin Drury, USN, Rev. John A. Klekotka, O. S. A. IRE counselor, and Mr. John B. Clothier, AIEE counselor, all of the University faculty.

SPORTS CHATTER

By Harry Nash

LEFTY DON SOMMERS was sitting in his room listening to a couple of residents discussing the Senior Prom week-end and other such higher-echelon topics last Wednesday night. He was spicing his conversation with a few grimacing aches-and-pains complaints—sure signs (as far as this curve-balling Chicagoian is concerned) that baseball is just around the proverbial corner.

* * * *

Chuck McGuckin

AND with a comparatively fat opposition slate already put together, there's a good bit of optimism among the knots of shivering spiked-shoe boys who began working out lightly around Goodreau Stadium last week. For, much to the delight of ex-major-leaguer Art Mahan, who task-masters the VU baseball fortunes, April first's opener will find a lot of familiar faces around; in fact, only two regulars were lost via commencement — second - baseman Bob Maurer and catcher Ken Lowe. Dick Shannon, a part-time employee at third in '53, will be missed also—he's headed for Lynchburg (a Cardinal farm) in the Piedmont League, if that rather unstable circuit,once the fastest B loop in the country, survives long enough to greet him.

* * * *

PITCHING will be the big not-sure-of department. Sommers, troubled by that wildness bug in '53, is looking for a return to plate-finding as a complement to his admittedly fine curve and fast one. When this boy is right, he's one of the best — a fact not at all discouraging to the bush-beating talent lads who have already looked very covetously into his case.

* * * *

LAST YEAR'S SURPRISE, Dick Scott, who won six engagements without a loss, could be the bellweather. Scottie, decidedly a 'stuff' pitcher, had great success with soft curve variations and a highly effective sinker. He is plagued with occasional wildness, but with him this is not a major obstacle. Most of the past season, he was very effective in locating what is for many a very elusive platter. A lot is expected of Scott.

* * * *

A SOPH RIGHT-HANDER, Danny Severino, could chip in considerably. He's very fast, has poise and a good pace, and hits well. Bob Riccianni, who alternated last year between pitching and the infield, is the probable second-base replacement for Maurer.

JACK HELM will be back in an attempt to retain his first-base job, as will Ralph Cecere at Shortstop, Bill McGarry in left and Chuck McGuckin in center. Third base will be up for grabs between '53's part-timer, Don Mouchetti ,who was efficient in the field but only mediocre at the plate, and several promising sophomores. Jack Peters may nail down right field, but is rather slow although a good hitter. Dave Burns, Dave Hennegan and Tom Casey, all sophomore candidates, must be considered as possibilities either in starting roles or as top reserve choices.

* * * *

CATCHING will be handled most probably by junior Bill Pearson, who cracked out a single in his first time up in collegiate ranks last year, and Bill McCaffrey, a sophomore. Pearson was relegated to the bench in '53 by the steady craftsmanship of Lowe, who, though troubled with a sore arm occasionally, was a major factor, especially on defense.

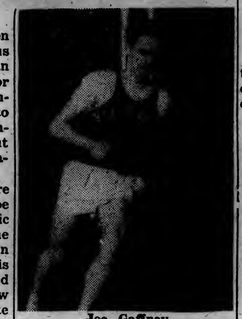
* * * *

SO, with basketball, indoor track, and swimming on the wane, old man baseball moves in once again. Never a financial boon at collegiate levels, baseball will probably always remain thus. But a very interesting, and perhaps a highly successful season is fast approaching here at Villanova, and, come the beginning of April, we'll have another means of neglecting the books to go along with those hops-consuming Spring picnics . . . ball games. . . . After all, Spring wouldn't be Spring without them.

"Mind raising that starting gun just a trifle?"

Gaffney Top Varsity Indoor Trackman in '54

By Norm Feldpush



Villanova's colors have been conveyed through numerous middle distance events by an effortlessly striding senior named Joseph Gaffney. Competing in contests from 100 to 880 yards, Joe has been a consistent front runner throughout his four year career a a Villanova thinclad contetant.

While at St. Thomas More High School in Philadelphia, Joe dominated the interscholastic track circles by holding the title of city sprint champion in his junior and senior years. His senior campaign was highlighted by the establishment of a new record for the Catholic State 440-yard run, in addition to running the anchor leg on the "Tommies' " championship mile relay team.

Astute Trainer

Excellent coaching has contributed to Gaffney's rise to stardom. Under the tutelage of "Jumbo" Elliot, Joe blossomed into an outstanding collegiate sprinter. His knowledge of training and running technique was also advanced by George Guida, 1948 Olympic team member and world record holder while competing for Villanova.

Joe established a Middle Atlantic A. A. U. indoor record in the 600-yard run in 1951, negotiating his specialty in 1:16.2. As a sophomore, Joe's efforts were largely confined to the 440 and 880-yard runs, with a berth on the two-mile relay squad.

Excels In Star Games

The Washington Star Games provided the setting for Joe's first major intercollegiate triumph in his junior year. Gaffney later posted his best time for 600 yards, 1:11, only to receive the third place medal for his exertion.

Schafer Aids 8th Straight In Overtime

By John Henry

An incensed Villanova basketball club picked up its 19th win of the year Saturday night against a tourney-tabbed Fordham outfit, and in so doing displayed the drive of earlier-season engagements, knocked off a club headed for the NCAA, and maintained a string of victories that goes back through eight games.

Bob Schafer, hiking his average to 27.4 a game, fired in 36 points, including 10 inexpendable markers in the post-game activity.

The game was tied at 50 all at the end of the regulation contest.

19th Win

The win for Al Severance's surprising club was its 19th, a mark compiled against some of the finest competition around; it was also the eighth consecutive win. They've lost 10 six in a row of which came during a travel-weary road junket.

Fordham, which received the tournament bid last week, led only once after overcoming an earlier 18-7 quarter deficit.

Schafer was unstoppable in overtime. He hit on four straight jump shots; the other two points were scored by Jack Devine, who, along with reserve Tom Foley, also found time to keep Conlin pretty well under wraps in the decisive later stages.

an opportunity to double their wins over losses with a triumph over Iona tomorrow night, once again at the Palestra.

Surprising Record

A split in the final two engagements would leave the sophomore and junior-studded Villanovans only two wins below the '52-'53 ball club's output—a club that had four starting seniors after Larry Hennessy's return from the NCAA's interpretive pillory. This year's team has done a extremely commendable job, and next year should see even better results, what with no losses from the starting club via graduation.

Club Closes Vs. Duquesne

By Bob Strayton

With the end of the season rapidly approaching, Villanova's basketball aggregation awaits its big finish-up game with one of the country's most powerful teams, the Iron Dukes of Duquesne, 23-2. This final meeting is this Saturday night at the Palestra.

The Dukes, paced by their three phenoms, Dick Ricketts, Si Green and Jim Tucker, are no strangers to the Main Liners. In a meeting at Pittsburgh earlier this season, the Wildcats were completely overpowered by the Dukes by a 70-41 count. Ricketts, Green and Tucker, as if this trio were not lethal enough, are backed up on the bench by Fletcher Johnson. Although no giant as modern players go, Johnson (6'2") is a superlative rebounder, and a consistent scorer.

Tucker Big Man

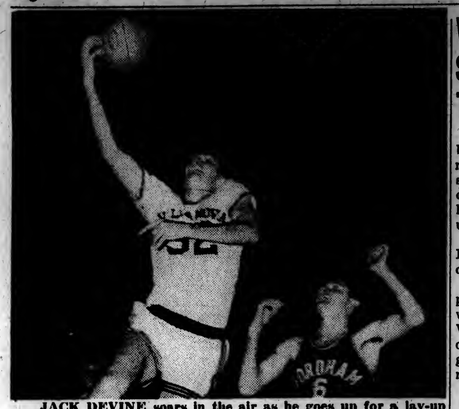
Tucker, on the other hand, is the big man and center of the club. At 6'8", Tucker has a relatively easy time controlling the boards, and besides his rebounding ability, he is an outstanding shot. He and Ricketts were All-American candidates last year. Ricketts, 6'6" forward, has been the steadying influence on the ball club so far this season, but has been playing lately in the shadow of sophomore Green. Sihugo has been of late the most consistent scorer on the club, and has impressed no end with his rebounding prowess, although only 6'2".

Swimmers Lose Finale Against Unbeaten LIU

By Jack Pettit

Villanova's swimming team ended its first season in 12 years last Saturday night on a losing note, bowing to a powerful visiting outfit from Long Island University.

The score was 62-22.



LIU's was its 16th straight this season and continued an unbeaten string of two years.

Relayers Win

The Main-Liners were able to manage only one first place all afternoon—in the 440-yard freestyle relay. In that event, the winning combination of Lieb, Quinn, Callahan, and Donahue splashed to victory in 4:24.7. The Wildcats gained two second places, one by Ben Addiego in the diving competition and the other by Captain Bill Quinn, in the 440-yard freestyle event.

Individual star for the victorious Blackbirds was Charley Ginenthal, who swam to wins in four events— the 50, 100, 200 and 440-yard freestyles.

This meet ended the year for Ed Geisz's group. The record it compiled, two wins and nine losses, is not impressive, but it must be realized that champions are not produced overnight. All year long this club showed a great deal of enthusiasm and potential, and it will be aided no end next year by a good frosh contingent. Prospects are good for the near future.

JACK DEVINE soars in the air as he goes up for a lay-up against Fordham Saturday night. He also chipped in 10 points in the 62-58 overtime Wildcat win.

Frosh Relayers, Gaffney Score In IC4-A Track Meet

Joe Gaffney and Villanova's undefeated frosh relay team accounted for the Main Liners' only scoring in the IC4-A indoor track and field championships in New York last Saturday. Yale ended Manhattan's four-year reign by scoring 19 points to edge Boston University and the Jaspers, who accounted for 18½ and 17 points respectively.

Gaffney in 600

Gaffney's showing came in the hotly contested 600-yard run. Columbia's Fred Schlereth, the early pace setter, was overtaken on the backstretch by Manhattan's Lou Jones, who breezed home in 1:11.3. Bill Persichetty, Fordham, and Gaffney also passed Schlereth, and each recorded the identical time of 1:11.8 withPersichetty finishing second and Gaffney third.

Villanova's victorious frosh led throughout the distance medley relay (880, 440, 220, and mile and defeated Brown and Manhattan in the excellent time of 7:31.8. Al Peterson ran the initial leg, followed by Charlie Jenkins, Gene Maliff, and Alex Breckenridge.

Bragg Again Excels

Donald Bragg, ever-improving freshman pole vaulter, occupied the limelight in the National A. A. U. championships last week-end. Don soared 14-6, the highest any college freshman has ever cleared, to tie the Rev. Bob Richards and Don Laz for second place. Bragg actually cleared the winning height of 14-9 only to displace the bar on the way down.

GAFFNEY TOP VARSITY

A return engagement in Washington netted Joe, elected captain by his teammates, his initial indoor triumph of his senior year. Victims of Gaffney's closing burst of speed included J. W. Mashburn, National A.A.U. titlist.

Biggest Thrill

Three weeks later at the New York A. C. Meet, Joe astounded the track critics and received his biggest thrill. In the Buermeyer 500, Captain Joe exploded off the last turn of the banked boards and outsprinted Reggie Pearman, always known for his final kick, to the tape. The results were a new meet record of :57.9, and the first win of Gaffney's career in New York.

Joe has vanquished such outstanding runners as George Rhoden, former N.C.A.A. champion from Morgan State, Herb McKenley, Jamaican Olympic star, Ollie Sax, Penn State speedster ,and the aforementioned Pearman. Gaffney's future plans include a stint in the U. S. Army and the realization of his first victory over marvelous Mal Whitfield. In both instances Joe will have plenty of company.

Wildcats Engage Strong Iona Five Tomorrow Night

A surging Villanova basketball team, currently in the midst of a eight-game winning skein, entertains a talented Iona club tomorrow night at the Palestra in the second half of the usual twin-event set-up.

Penn plays Harvard in an Ivy League contest in the opener.

A win for Al Severance's sophomore and junior-laden club would be the 20th win for the Wildcats, and a warm-up, by comparison, for the Duquesne game coming up next Saturday night.

Guerin Stars

The visitors from New Rochelle, N. Y., led all year by 6'4" Richie Guerin, will bring with them ten lettermen from last year's squad which compiled a 18-3 mark. Guerin recorded an 18.6 point per game average last season in 21 games. He's averaging around 24 a game as of now.

Coach Jimmy McDermott also has big men Wally McCarvill (6'7") and Ed Leibespach (6'8") to depend on off the boards.

The Gaels lost to VU last year by 70-67 in the only game of the season between the institutions.

Scoring Pace Slowed

The Main Liners, in spite of the fact that they have recovered very effectively from that earlier six-game losing string, have not been realizing their potential as o flate. The club was hardly impressive against LeMoyne, and has been slumping slightly from the early-season high scoring pace. Jimmy Smith, whose presence on the club coincides with its newly-discovered power, will start along with defense-specialist Larry Tierney, John Cirino, Jack Devine and Bob Schafer, who played an excellent game off the boards in the rather sluggish get-together with LeMoyne.

Intramural Basketball Play-Offs Begin Today

By Bob Strayton

With heated competition the keystone, intramural baskeball play-offs get underway this afternoon at Alumni gym. Under the direction of Ed Geisz, intramural director, and his committee, the playoffs will run for one week, with the championship game to be held at the Field House on March 10.

A large contingent of ballclubs will make up this year's finals, with the favorite at this point being Fedigan's Ramblers, who have a strong team, and present a real threat in the finals.

ART McCUNE of the Fedigan Ramblers comes down with a rebound in Intramural action last week in Alumni gym.

Strong Opposition

Some of the stronger teams to emerge from the ten league competition are the Shamrocks, of the "B" League, Section "B", who posted a 5-0 record for their efforts this season, and who look like they have a good chance to run away with top honors; and the Schnikelfritzers in the "C" League who have racked up a 6-0 mark to also loom as a big threat.

The Erfs and the Toppers, representing Austin Hall and Alumni Hall respectively, will meet in a playoff for laurels in the "A" League. The Erfs sport a 4-0 tab, while the Toppers also undefeated, have compiled a 3-0 mark in season play.

The Middies, representing the top team in the morning loops, are also unbeaten, and their impressive 5-0 record earns for them a great deal of respect in the forthcoming playoffs.

Trotters Undefeated

Section "B" of the "A" League has a top rate contender for the playoff honors in its outstanding ball club, the Hot Trotters. With League competition over, the Hot Trotters hold the only other undefeated mark in the entire loop—5-0.

Bearing all this in mind, the 1953-54 intramural play-offs seem to indicate the presence of keen competition among the great aggregation of ball clubs participating in this sports event.

Swim Championships

Villanova's ambitious Swimming Committee, already the sponsor of such successful events as "Swimerama", and the National Catholic Interscholastic Swmming and Diving Championships, presents another brainchild March 10—next Wednesday—when the first annual Metropolitan Philadelphia District Collegiate Individual and Team Swimming Championships will be held at the University natatorium.

Diving begins at 11 a. m., time trials are at 1:30, and finals at 8 p. m. Wednesday night. The teams that will compete are Villanova, Penn, P.M.C., Temple, LaSalle, West Chester, and Drexel.

What Is A Priest?

A Catholic priest is a unique person. There is no one else like him in the world. There are poor imitations but nothing more than that. Why is a Catholic priest so different? Briefly, this is what makes him what he is.

Our history professor at Villanova used to say in class, "Gentlemen, you can never understand anything thoroughly unless you go back to Adam and Eve." This is true especially for an understanding of the Catholic priesthood. For the dismal condition of mankind as an enemy of God can be understood only in the light of what God intended when He created man.

The gifts that man lost "when Eve ate and gave to her husband who ate" (Gen 3:6) were so great that they surpass our farthest dreams; and conversely, one of the sorriest losses man suffers as an enemy of God is that he never knows in this life how miserable his condition is. Like an earthworm that might have been able to appreciate Sheakespeare if only . . .

Jesus Christ was God as well as man. By His life and death He repaired all the losses Adam and Eve had caused and His merits were sufficient to satisfy for all the sins that ever were committed or will be committed until the end of time. However, it is not so simple as all that for the individual. Each man must play his part if he wants to gain back for himself what Adam and Eve lost. Each man must use the means Christ established for this purpose, namely, the Mass and the Sacraments.

Mass Is Vital

By the Sacrifice of the Cross Christ satisfied for all sin; by the Sacrifices of the Mass Christ applies His merits to each individual man. In each of the Sacraments supernatural life is poured into the soul. The Sacrifice of the Cross means nothing to John and Mary if John and Mary refuse to assist at the Sacrifice of the Mass.

And here is your Catholic priest, an intricate part of the eternal salvation of each man and woman on earth. For it is the priest alone who has the power to celebrate Mass and it is he alone hwo can forgive sin. The priest acts in the name of Christ when he pronounces the words, "This is my body" and "I absolve you from your sins." He becomes another Christ. He is consecrated to God, separated from the rest of men by an indelible mark on his soul which not even sin can destroy.

But Father is also a man with all the assets and liabilities of a man. He is not an angel nor something halfway between an angel and a man. God works no miracles to lift priests out of their human state. The priesthood confers on them no capacity by itself to do everything or excel in all things.

Some men shudder at the idea of becoming a priest while others feel attracted to the idea. But strangely, some of those who shuddered become priests one day, and some of those who first felt attracted in the end become something else. How Christ calls each individual He chooses and why He chooses this individual instead of that one is a mystery. But it is a fact—and something of a tragedy—that the number He calls is far greater than the number who answer His call.

This is the first in a series of articles written expressly for the Villanovan by the Vocation Club of Augustinian College, Washington, D. C. The second installment in this Lenten series on vocations will appear in a later issue.

Stalag Dates Draw Near, Actors Visit Philadelphia

Philadelphia's Locust theatre tonight will include in its audience several members of Villanova's Belle Masque cast.

The occasion is the second-night performance of "Stalag 17" at the theatre, with George Tobias in the lead role. Belle Masquers will present the play March 31, and April 1, 2, and 3, and will be present to pick up some professional hints.

THE (FLY) WHEELS OF PROGRESS are being turned by two sweating pledges of Phi Kappa Pi fraternity at recent initiation ceremonies in depths of Mendel Hall. They were accepted.

New "Lynx" To Appear

Featuring a fresh cover, a livelier style and a brand new staff, the LYNX, university literary quarterly, will make its first appearance of the year next week.

Editor Ward Welsh promises that reader appeal of the new issue will be high. "The illustrations by art editor Charlie Magee are really something," Welsh enthused. "In fact, the whole issue shows the many hours of work that the whole staff put into it.

"We're really grateful to the faculty advisors, Dr. (John) Phillipson and Mr. (James) Mitchell for the extra time they have put in to help us on this issue."

Among the features of the issue are a science fiction story by Frank Trainer, a short story by Hugh Humphreys, and a poem, the "Three Inquisitors", by Managing Editor Rees James.

The issue is the first since the summer issue last year.

Turf and Tinsel In Rehearsal

Take one French palace. Add Leonardo da Vinci and a 15th century background. Season liberally with French, German, and Italian dialoque. Shake well and garnish with a touch of satire, add a touch of mystery by refusing to name it, and you have this spring's Turf and Tinsel production.

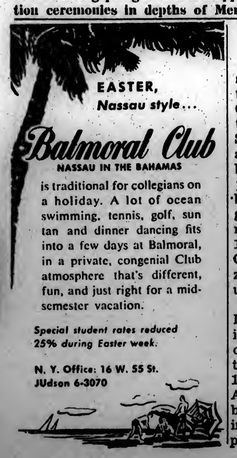
Villanova's musical crew has already begun rehearsals for the melodious play set with the above background. With book and lyrics by George Pequignot '51, and music by our own Bob Whelan, the show promises to be ranked with the best of past shows.

Jim Boyle, president of T&T, gave out some of the details on the musical satire on French royalty last week as initial tryouts produced a turnout of some 90 students. Only openings left are on the business staff, said Boyle.

This year's show will be the eighth since the revival of the Turf and Tinsel group in 1947 under Bob Whelan.

Rehearsals are well under way on the campus for the spring presentation on the Field House stage. The production staff has been constructing the necessary sets and props. Scenery will be moved on special casters.

Construction of the sets by the Villanova students is under the direction of Jacob Krupa, brother of the moderator of the society, Rev. William Krupa, O. S. A.



Lead roles in the Villanova production are played by Tom Kern as Sefton; Harry Anger, as Harry Shapiro; Bob Erskine as "Animal", Bernie Coyne as Hoffman, the barracks leader, Drew Higgins as Price, the security officer who has been planted in the prison camp by the Germans, Mike Clark as Herb, Sefton's stooge, and Jim Borden, as Duke.

Others in the all-male cast of 22 include: George Minser as Schultz, the comical German guard; Dick Winfield, as the strict German commandant; Jim Howe as McCarthy; Joe Blimm as Marko; Kevin Duff as Dunbar, the flyer; Dave Petersen as Horney; Bill Silhol as Reed; Murray Smith as Red - Dog; Hank Smith as Peterson; Charlie Magee as Witherspoon; Bill Cunningham as McKay; Walt Doyle as the Geneva Man; and Tom Curran, Conrad Urban and Tom Keeler as the German guards.

The play takes place entirely within the confines of a German prisoner-of-war camp, Stalag 17. Main action deals with the prisoners in barracks four of the camp. Plots are discovered mysteriously and one man is suspected. He turns out to have only a grudge against the world and exposes the real informer.

Belle Masque's production will be one of the first by an amateur group, since the play was only recently released for use by non-professional groups.

Tickets will cost $1.25. Students and their dates may purchase student tickets for $1.

UNFILLED SLATE

comes to Villanova from Jacksonville, Florida, where he was the first Augustinian pastor of Our Lady of Angels parish there. Born March 7, 1893, in South Bethlehem, Pa., he worked as a machinist for some years before entering Villanova. He played guard on the 1915 football team which startled the gridiron world by upsetting Army. After his profession in 1919, the new prior attended the Collegio Agostiniano Internazional of St. Monica, in Rome, until his ordination in 1923.

After his ordination, Father Dundon served St. Rita's parish in Philadelphia, and later was curate in Our Mother Consolation parish in Chestnut Hill. In 1941 he was assigned to St. Augustine's parish at Lansingburg, N. Y., whence he was sent in January, 1953, to the Florida parish.

New Debates Announced

With a record which includes participation in 55 debates already this season, Beta Gamma Debating Society has announced an extensive schedule for March.

Hamilton College, Catholic University and Yeshiva University will be entertained at home, and away trips will include the Brooklyn College Invitation Tourney and an engagement with Princeton during the coming month.

In addition several dual meets with local colleges are planned. All home debates are held in the seminar rooms of the Library.

At a reorganizational meeting last Tuesday, society president Bob Gerstung issued a call for new members and outlined a plan through which they will be admitted to the group this semester. This plan provides that new members be paired with experienced debaters to gain knowledge of the debating technique by means of observation and actual participation in intrasquad and inter-school competition.

At present, 12 debaters are active in the group. Five had never participated in a debate prior to this year. They have rapidly gained experience, said a spokeman for the group, to such an extent that it is expected that next year's debating society will be composed of a strong nucleus of veterans. Those interested in joining are invited to attend one of the meetings in seminar 1 of the library after NROTC drill today.

Seniors' Mardi Gras Weekend

Bernie Finan and date Noel Ricca survey "Holiday Inn' surroundings at Belle Air Ball in Field House Friday night.

And Tony Brady surveys surroundings from his Senior Dinner-Dance table in Camden's Walt Whitman Hotel Saturday night.

Joe Maggiore serves punch and cookies in Blue Room of Field House to Prom-goers.

Prom Chairman Ward Welsh and date Ann Duvall regard the crowd of dancers from stage. Claude Thornhill's orchestra is in background.

Ed McMahon plays the uniiveried coachman as he escorts this young lady from her date's car into the Field House vestibule.

Smiling octet of Dinner-Dance guests prove success of Seniors' last big social fling. Almost 100% of the class of 1954 attended.

"Stalag 17" Publicity, Sets Ready

Today, three weeks before curtain time for Belle Masque's hilarious prison camp melodrama "Stalag 17" the publicity and stage crews of the dramatic club are working full time.

Bill Cunningham, president of the society says that advertising trailers and posters are being placed in on the Main Line in Bryn Mawr and Wayne and campus publicity is getting under way.

The stage crew, with only one set to handle, has its job nearly completed under the direction of manager Jack Fieseler.

New Blood

Cunningham is enthusiastic about the "new blood" introduced into the Belle Masque by the new underclass members. "They've helped us out a great deal," he says.

The all male cast is rehearsing every Monday, Wednesday and Friday evening.

Tickets will go on sale two weeks from today in the Pie Shop at $1 for students and their dates and $1.25 for adults.

Tom Kern, Harry Anger and Bob Erskine are cast in the leading roles as Sefton, Harry Shapiro, and Animal respectively. Bernie Coyne plays Hoffman, the barracks leader, and Drew Higgins is Price, the German security officer planted in the barracks.

The entire play is set within the walls of Barracks Four of the German prison camp, "Stalag 17." The plot revolves around the attempt by the whole crew to expose an unknown informer among them.

CHALLENGE OF WEEK

Want to live dangerously?

The Villanovan has openings on all staffs for those interested in any phase of writing, business, circulation, cartoons, copy-reading, and photography. Anyone interested can sign up tomorrow at the Villanova office in the basement of C&F at 3:30.

Final Ring Fittings For Jrs. Next Week

Final ring fittings for the Commerce and Finance School will be held on Monday, March 15, and Tuesday March 16. Fittings will begin at 10 A. M., and will continue throughout the day

Partial and full payments will be accepted at this time and resident students are requested to be fitted at night if possible. Members' fittings will be in the Student Activities Office in Mendel Hall.

Shamokinaki, U. S. A.

Informal Dance Friday To Aid Japanese Mission

"Villanova's Shamokinaki Committee last year raised enough money to help build a new monastery in Japan," said Rev. Edwin Grimes, O. S. A., originator of the group, last week while discussing the annual Shamokinaki dance to be held this Friday evening in the Field House.

"I hope that this year's students will contribute at least as much by coming out in force this Friday," he continued.

Jack Quindlen is chairman of the dance, the proceeds of which aid the Augustinian mission band in Japan. The AmericanAugustinians in Japan now are Rev.Thomas Purcell, former Assistant Chaplain, Rev. George Krupa, brother of the moderator of the Belle Masque Society and Rev. Edward Robinson.

The dance will have an Oriental theme, with an unusual pagoda as the centerpiece. It will be strictly informal.

Charlie Gresh and his 10-piece orchestra, a fixture at local college informal dances, will play for the ffair, Chairman Quindlen stated. Before branching out with his own orchestra he was associated with Charley Barnet's group. He specializes now in the Philadelphia area.

Tickets On Sale

Tickets are priced at two dollars per couple, and may be purchased either in the Pie Shop, from Father Grimes, or from the representatives on each floor of the resident students dormitories, he said.

Door prizes will include "a valuable tea set, sent by missionaries in China, and tickets to "Stalag 17", "Wish You Were There", T&T's spring production, and a ticket to the Junior Prom."

He also pointed out that this is the only dance permitted at Villanova during Lent. "This is due to the special nature of the affair," he said.

Fall Dean's List Recognizes 370

Approximately 16% of the student body, 370 students, were listed on the fall Dean's List, (3.0 average or above) as released last week by Rev. Thomas A. Burke, O. S. A., University registrar.

Perfect averages (4.0) were achieved by three freshmen, four sophomores, two juniors, and four seniors.

Included on the list were 99 Freshmen, 65 Sophomores, 98 Juniors, 103 Seniors, and five members of the full-time nursing division.

Statements By Dr. Koob Stir Council

Strong words by Dr. Robert Koob, president of the Villanova chapter of the A. A. U. P., and a declaration by Very Rev. James A. Donnellon ,O. S. A., new President of Villanova, highlighted last Monday's three-hour long Student Council meeting.

Other incidents of the long session:

1. The group endorsed a proposal that Villanova become affiliated with the National Student Association. The issue was referred for final approval to the Student-Faculty committee.

2. The Council went on record favoring establishment of a course-evaluation program here. Student-Faculty committee will discuss plans for the institution of this system.

3. A proposed amendment admitting Nursing Division to a seat on the council failed, by five votes, to get majority approval.

4. Council President Joe Kenney reported that maintenance men will be accommodated in a new building adjacent to University greenhouse near the P&W tracks when their present quarters are removed for construction of the Student Union building.

Father Donnellon, in his address to the Council stated that the administration will strive to improve student-administration relations, and pointed out that the building program is intended to remove two major student complaints, especially when the new Student Union building is completed.

Dr. Koob Speaks

Dr. Koob, assistant professor of chemistry, speaking to the group, divided his talk to deal with students, faculty, and the Council. He began by classifying Villanovans as scholars, students, and pupils (those merely under a teacher). Most here fall into the latter category, he said.

If matriculants at Villanova followed the aims and rules of the school, he continued, student-administration and student-faculty relations would be improved. The rules as laid down in the handbook should be strictly and impartially enforced.

Stressing the need for development of school spirit, Dr. Koob, local head of the American Association of University Professors who was asked to speak before the Council, said that "the role of fraternities and other organizations plays an important contribution." There should be more opportunities for social activity on campus, he explained, pointing out that in

President Urges '54 Cooperation

Contributions to the Senior Statue Fund picked up slightly as the first full week of the extended period for donations to the Senior Statue Fund ended yesterday, President Ted Sheehan said last Friday. The Class of 1954 is seeking to collect $2,000 to donate a seven-foot marble statue of Our Lady of Good Counsel as its class gift.

"Up to this date about ninety seniors have contributed, a number far short of the total who said they were willing to donate. we feel that more money will be available to the average Senior now that the financial worries of Senior Weekend have passed.

"This is the time of year when government checks seems to be abundant. The arrival of Lent should bolster the drive," the president said.

He also emphasized that if the number of Seniors who pledged themselves willing to donate on the questionnaire a good part of the goal would be reached.

"We began this drive on the strength of their word", Sheehan said. "I would believe it only fair that those men keep their word."

Father Regan Opens Marriage Talks Sun.

Rev. Robert E. Regan, O.S.A., director of the Pre-Cana conferences will speak on "Marriage — A Genuine and Great Vocation" at Sunday's opening talk in the series, to be held in the C&F auditorium beginning at 3:15 P. M.

Father Regan stated that the talks are intended for those contemplating marriage, even though not in the near future. Students are invited to bring girl-friends to the series, which are conducted free of charge.

A question-and-answer period will follow the talk.

Father Regan Opens Marriage Talks Sun.

Rev. Robert E. Regan, O.S.A., director of the Pre-Cana conferences will speak on "Marriage — A Genuine and Great Vocation" at Sunday's opening talk in the series, to be held in the C&F auditorium beginning at 3:15 P. M.

Father Regan stated that the talks are intended for those contemplating marriage, even though not in the near future. Students are invited to bring girl-friends to the series, which are conducted free of charge.

A question-and-answer period will follow the talk.

The U.N.'s Future

Undeniably, the United Nations is striving for world peace. A peace that will endure, a peace that is fully regulated, soundly based, and a thing to inspire confidence in its longevity.

Is it accomplishing this now? Unfortunately, it is all too evident that the U.N. at present is far from attaining its end. Is this peace that exists in the world today? Not when half the world is in slavery; not when there is the monstrous menace of aggressive Communism staring at us over both horizons.

To answer the question of the future of this world-group of nations, we must look to the governing principles behind the foreign policies of the countries of the world. What drives nations to act as they do? What is behind their relations with both friendly and inimical countries?

Without going too far afield from our subject, we may consider the foreign policy of the Vatican to contrast the foreign policy of other organizations with this huge governing body of the faithful. The Vatican is dedicated to the people of the world, first of all, and her actions are governed according to what is deemed best for all those fashioned to "the image and likeness." She is not concerned with militant nationalism, because militant nationalism is not beneficial to man in the realization of his ultimate ends. She is not governed by selfish motives in her foreign policy since she is selfish only in the universal sense. The Vatican is dedicated to all people on the face of the earth, in other words.

Contrast this then with the motives of nations. They are governed by the distinct and vociferous demands of a select group of people. The governments foster this distinction of ethnic, religious, and other differences in order to gain for the populace just exactly what the small group governed desires. Unfortunately, the governments of nations seem much more human, more earthy, than the government of the Church. The voice of the people carries more weight in them than does the Voice of the people's Creator.

The question which is the determining factor of the future success or failures of the United Nations is that one which concerns the question of whether or not the people of the world can be "de-humanized" from their present state and taught to think of more ultimate goals.

With such awesome monstrosities as the A-bomb and H-bomb staring us in the face, we must learn to subjugate our own selfish desires, our own petty national prides, and our own ethnic distinctions which we feel pre-eminent. Should we persist in putting ourselves on a pedestal, and placing our noses in the air with such things as the McCarran-Walter Immigration Act, we are very liable to find that we have no country, and that we don't even have any pride in ourselves.

It would seem then, that the United Nations has a choice in futures. But the choice is left to us. It can be as dark or as bright as we strive for it to be.

The answer to the dilemma of the U. N. is to be found perhaps in world federation. But can this possibly be accomplished? How would the American people feel if the borders between this country and Canada and Mexico were thrown open? And if all the borders all over the world were broken down as well? Our economy would nosedive more seriously and abruptly than in 1929.

But with all great idealism (and it cannot be denied that a world federation is an idealistic plan) there is an unknown factor, a factor that possibly will not be known until we are on the verge of launching the idealistic idea. Perhaps there are steps which may be taken, organizations which may be instituted, and integral plans which may be formulated which will achieve what is to us today and idealistic phantasm. That is what the United Nations is betting on. We must search, we must strive to find that unknown factor, because idealistic phantasm or not, it does not seem that the world will long survive as we know it without the formation of some kind of world federation.

Union Of South Africa Called Danger to Allies

By Ed Daly

A perennial trouble spot in today's world and potentially one of the most dangerous "powder kegs" anywhere is the Union of South Africa. Under the Nationalist regime of Dr. Daniel Malan, there has developed an extremely explosive situation which seriously threatens the defense plans of the western powers.

To begin to understand the present political situation in South Africa, a person must first understand the racial problem that that nation faces. There are about 2,000,000 Europeans; 75,000 "colored" (mulattoes;) 250,000 Indians; and 6,000,000 natives,—about half of whom have become detribalized. The Europeans are further divided along linguistic lines between English-speaking and Afrikaans-speaking persons.

DALY

Strict Segregation

Obviously, relationships among all these groups constitute a perplexing problem for whatever government happens to be in office at the time. Since 1948, that government has consisted of members of the Nationalist Party—headed by Dr. Daniel Malan, a former minister of the Dutch Reformed Church—and of the affiliated Afrinkander Party. This government is committed to a policy of strict segregation and of so-called "apartheid" or geographical separation of the races as much as possible. The various parties of the Opposition for the most part also favor segregation, although not always to so great a degree as Dr. Malan advocates.

Constitution Ignored

To achieve their aims, the Nationalists have completely ignored such little formalities as the Constitution. One of their laws provided for the removal of the "coloreds" of the Cape Province from the voting lists, an act which the Supreme Court promptly declared unconstitutional. Nothing daunted, Dr. Malan and his followers promptly set up a rival "High Court of Parliament" to decide such matters, and simply ignored the previous Supreme Court ruling.

Another instance of Nationalist methods is Dr. Malan's handling of South-West Africa. This territory, a former German colony, became a South African mandate under the League of Nations. At the end of the Second World War, the United Nations rejected South Africa's request to have the territory made an integral part of the Union, and instructed her to prepare a trusteeship agreement. In 1949, however, Dr. Malan chose to defy the United Nations by passing a law virtually incorporating South-West Africa into the Union of South Africa. When, last year, certain natives of that territory tried to obtain permission to lay their complaints before the United Nations' Trusteeship Council, a right which is accorded them under the terms by which South Africa holds the territory, Malan refused to permit them to leave the country.

Anti-British

Britain, too, is an inconvenience to the Nationalists. During the war many of the leaders openly sympathized with Hitler against the British. The Nationalists tried unsuccessfully to prevent South African participation in the war. Since attaining power, Dr. Malan has been cutting the last ties between South Africa and Britain. He has several times advocated the establishment of a republic in South Africa outside of the British Commonwealth. At the moment there is a bill pending in the South Africa parliament to banish the Union Jack from South Africa.

All of these programs are significant of the character of the Nationalist leaders. They are ruthless, intolerant of opposition and quite determined not to be guided by any governmental body outside of South Africa, whether it be Britain or even the United Nations. If the constitution is in their way, they ignore it; if a body of voters can sternly oppose them, they disenfranchise these foes, as they did the "coloreds;" if some outside authority tries to check them, they defy it. Such are the men who rule South Africa today.

That this situation is fraught with danger to the Western Allies, most particularly to Britain and France, I shall try to show in a second article, in which I shall point out the possible consequences of the Malan program, both in South Africa itself and elsewhere in Africa.

Gettysburg Address Set for Word Lovers

Editor's Note: An M. I. T. professor pokes fun at some of his colleagues who HIDE their important messages in languagonly intelligible to other professors. He says he rewrote this address "so that professors can understand it."

Eight and seven-tenths decades ago the pioneer workers in this continental area implemented a new group based on an ideology of free boundaries and initial conditions of equality. We are now actively engaged in an over-all evaluation of conflicting factors in order to determine whether or not the life expectancy of this group or of any group operating under the stated conditions is significant.

We are met in an area of maximum activity among the conflicting factors. The purpose of the meeting is to assign permanent positions to the units which have been annihilated in the process of attaining a steady state. This procedure represents standard practice at the administrative level.

From a more comprehensive viewpoint we cannot assign—we cannot integrate— we cannot implement this area.

The courageous units, in being annihilated, who were active in this area have integrated it to the point where the application of simple arithmetical operations to include our efforts would produce only negligible effects.

The reaction of the general public to this colloquium will be nonessential and transitory but the reaction to the impingement of the combat group is invariant. It is for this group in being rather to be integrated with the incomplete activities for which the combat groups were active in this area have so comprehensively effected the initial implementation.

It is preferable for this group to be integrated with the incompleted implementation—that from standards set by these respected deceased units we take accelerated intensive effort—that we here resolve at a high ethical level that the deceased shall not have been annihilated without furthering the project—that this group under divine leadership shall implement a new source of unhampered activity—and that political supervision composed of the integrated units, for the integrated units, and by the integrated units shall not perish from the superficial area of this planet.

MOSCOW UNIVERSITY: A SKYSCRAPER SHOW PIECE . . .

(ACP)—Moscow University is the shiny new showpiece of the Soviet educational system.

The 32-story skyscraper, situated on Lenin hills just outside the city, was opened last fall. It was built at a time when apartments and other new buildings were needed badly.

Facilities at the university are generally good. Laboratories are streamlined and well-equipped.

Classrooms and lecture halls seemed adequate. The library had individual study desks—and a good supply of American technical journals.

Attached to the classroom section of the building are two 18-story wings, which provide dormitory space for 6,000 students. We visited some of the rooms and found them comparable to American college dormitory rooms.

Moscow University has the same enrollment as the University of Minnesota—about 18,000 students. At Moscow 52 per cent of the students are women, while at Minnesota about 30 per cent of the students are coeds.

There are 12 faculties or departments at Moscow University—mostly in the sciences. At Minnesota there are 31 departments in the liberal arts college alone.

All courses at Moscow run for five years, with an additional three years required for the first graduate degree. The Soviet student, though, begins college with only ten years of previous schooling, compared to 12 years in the United States.

Entrance to colleges and universities is based on standards similar to those at American schools—previous grades and competitive examinations. Once admitted to college, almost all students go on complete scholarships.

Students told us they get monthly stipends ranging from 300 to 700 ($75 to $175). This covers the cost of their tuition, which is about 400 rubles a year, plus room, board, books and gives them some spending money.

Looking for a Queen

Search Moves Forward

The search for the young lady who will reign over the activities of the Junior Class, come the third of May, is picking up steam.

College Sophomore

Pictured here is Miss Dorothy Feehan, a sophomore at Immaculata College who will attend the festivities with Carl Schieber, a C&F Junior. This picture of Miss Feehan, along with the other entries, will be submitted to the judges on April 10, less than a month away.

In its issues between now and the contest deadline, the Villanovan will publish pictures of as many contestants as possible. The first pictures submitted will be printed.

Judges Unknown

Contest Chairmen Frank Gunther and Bill Quinn have not yet divulged the names of the judges. They did admit to fruitless attempts to secure Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Arthur Godfrey. Mrs. Eisenhower declined due to the White House policy which does not permit the First Lady to take part in such activities, and Mr. Godfrey refused on grounds that he had too many such requests and it was impossible to accept all of them.

Judges for the event last year included Perry Como, popular recording star; Harry Conover, head of a New York model agency; and Robin Roberts, ace pitcher for the Philadelphia Phillies.

A Queen will not be the only one picked. Her Lady-In-Waiting have been equipped with suitable containers for the pictures. The deadline for the contest is April 9, but it is urged that all entries be submitted soon.

Complimentary tickets for the Dinner Dance and the Prom will be given to the Queen. (All those Juniors with a beautiful girl and small capital — please take note!)

Pictures should be 5"x7" and and her court will also be selected for the annual Junior Week. The court will consist of the four successive selections to the Lady-In-Waiting.

In considering the small number of entries that were submitted last year, it becomes evident that the odds are very much in favor of the contestants. Two years ago, one-fourth of the whole field was selected for honors.

Deadline Set

The office of the Villanovan and the Parlor of Simpson Hall all must be accompanied by the girl's name, address, age, height, weight, color of eyes, color of hair, present occupation, and schools attended. Along with this, the Junior should also submit his own name, his campus or home address, his telephone number and his school (Arts, C&F, etc.)

Lack Of Smoke Chokes Our Villanova Penitents

By Noel Spillane

Out of the dorms come the penitents to stagger around campus with haggard expressions, totally expended energy, frayed nerves and eyes like poached eggs. Don't fret, they're just the campus chain-smokers off the weed for Lent. They say the first two days are the toughest.

Everyone who is trying to stop has his own aid to beat the crave; some chew bubble gum, others chew tobacco, and still others suck their thumbs. One fellow found that he didn't care to smoke if he chewed his finger nails, but now he keeps losing his class ring. The only sure way of not feeling the need for a drag is by wearing a shirt collar four sizes too small.

Taste Louie's Coffee

Giving up cigarettes creates some new problems; fellows have been able to taste Louie's coffee for the first time—now they take tea and sec. One freshman is worried because when the nicotine wears off the fingers of his right hand he won't be able to tell his right from his left.

These suffering martyrs can hardly wait until Sunday when they can light up again. In fact, I heard one wish that Lent would last a month of Sundays.

Give Up Writing?

Cigarettes aren't the only Lenten sacrifices being made around campus. One fellow gave up girls (but it Isn't much of a sacrifice . . . they gave up him a long time ago.) Someone suggested that I give up writing this column but I figure that the penance for the reader would be greater than my sacrifice. Of course almost everyone has given up sandy spinach, studying, and going to the library. But it looks like everybody has given up sunshine—voluntarily or not . . . And the rains came . . .

"Mud-Soon"

Yep, March's lion came in with an umbrella and will go out like a lamb wearing swim fins. The Monsoon Season has arrived on campus with a new name—the "Mud-Soon Season." This change in names was made by the first fellow to try to cross "Old Okeefenokee Swamp" (alias Mendel Field.) His grave is marked "unknown" but he will live in the hearts of Villanova men until the great flood is over.

Perhaps these fellows who gave up smoking for Lent aren't so dumb; it's pretty tough to smoke in this solid precipitation anyway.

How the stars got started.....

Vaughn Monroe says: "In high school, I spent all my spare time playing with local bands. I had a lot to learn before I could lead my own band. I studied singing; eventually did the vocals — and found that the colleges kind of liked my recordings. Been performing for 'em ever since!"

Engineer Offers Career Guidance

If you're wondering how to approach the problem of military service after graduation, John VanStone, in a forthcoming review of "the future" in the Villanova Engineer, advises:

"Don't make like the proverbial ostrich . . . a positive approach to the situation will enable you to utilize military service as a step toward growth and development—mentally and professionally."

The special "career" issue of the Engineer, to appear Monday, March 15th is of particular interest to the graduating engineer but contains timely information for all students who are thinking careerwise these days.

VanStone, a mechanical engineering senior, has thoroughly investigated the problems of military service, job seeking, professional training, graduate work, and choosing a career.

Engineering Field Rich

His well-ordered survey, entitled, "It's Your Future," tells the graduate engineer what he can expect in the way of a job and a salary next year. "Jobs are abundant . . . there are about 40,000 of them for 17,000 graduates" says Vanstone. "Starting salaries average between $326 and $400 a month."

VanStone has exhaustively covered every angle of military service, the draft, enlistment, the reserve, O. C. S., and attempting to stay out by deferment. He concludes that few physically-fit gradduates will be able to avoid the grasp of Uncle Sam.

Deferments Inadvisable

"Deferments for essential work are plentiful" says VanStone," but by accepting deferments, you raise the age limit on your liability to draft from 26 to 35. You run the risk of being called at a later date when you may have much more at stake careerwise."

Although O. C. S. quotas are being cut drastically, VanStone sees opportunities for extensive training and practical experience in the service.

VanStone, who did 8 months of research for his outline, warns young engineers about the so-called "post-college slump", a reaction from leaving the book-learning of college and struggling on a modest income.

The engineer's place in today's world, and the right road toward success conclude VanStone's article.

The 7500-word effort is illustrated by Bill Bellville.

Changes

Tomorrow's Lynx First This Year

The Lynx, university literary quarterly goes on sale tomorrow.

The winter issue of the magazine, the first published since last summer, will be sold in the Pie Shop, and the book store, and will be distributed to all the dorms this week. Price of the magazine is 25c.

Short stories by juniors Joe Barrett and Hugh Humphreys, literary criticism by Dick Winfield and Joe Alvich and some good poetry by several underclassmen are among the features of the new Lynx.

"We have accomplished one end," comments Editor Ward Welsh, "in getting contributors from every school and every class." The staff did very little of the actual writing; it's the work of you students."

Managing editor Rees James and Art editor Charlie Magee have done much of the editorial work. Promotion and circulation are being handled by Ed Karkut and Paul Landau.

Yearbook Meets March 5 Deadline

Working until the early hours of the morning last week, the Belle Air staff met its final deadline, exhausted but happy in the knowledge that most of its work was done.

Copy for the yearbook will still have to be proof read when the publishing company finishes setting it, "but the had work, —the layout, the composing of the copy, and the typing and copyreading—has been completed," exulted Art Quinn, editor-in-chief.

"We really had to push this week, but I think the results are certainly worth the effort," added Layout editor Joe Zator.

Meeting the final deadline climaxed 10 months of activity on the part of the staff. Seniors' individual portraits were taken in May. Preliminary layout was discussed with the publishers back in June. Quinn made several trips to Philadelphia during the summer to confer with the photographers and Mr. Dan Solari of the Cooke Publishing Co., so that September found much of the primary ground-work done.

"I'd like to thank all those who put their time and effort into the annual," said Quinn. "Since it would be impossible to name them individually, I hope that all who contributed their efforts will accept the thanks of the editors and the senior class for the job they did."

List Interviewers For Next Week

Next week the following companies will conduct interviews on campus. Seniors interested must sign up a week gefore the interview.

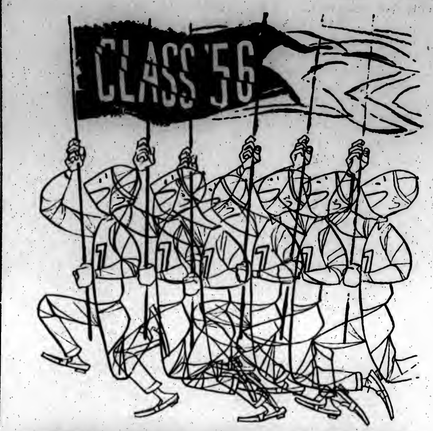
T&T Names Spring Show

"Wish You Were There", or "Veni, Vidi, daVinci", will be Turf and Tinsel's spring production, announced Bob Whelan, Business manager of Athletics and director of the show.



For the eighth straight year, since its revival by him in 1947, Whelan has composed the music for the production, pointed out T&T president Jim Boyle.

"Rehearsals of the chorus have already begun," he continued, "but the speaking roles have not yet been assigned. there are about 14 of these."

Book and lyrics are by a Villanova graduate, George Pequignot, class of 1951, said Boyle. Another Villanova graduate has consented to act as Graduate Business Manager for this year's show, as Dick Mellor agreed to fill the post.

The musical satire on French royal life in the 15th century is marked by the introduction of French, German, and Italian dialogue.

Rehearsals are conducted every Tuesday and Thursday evening in the Field House.

Cats Lose, Finish Season 20-11

Schafer, Only A Junior, Prolific Record-Holder

By Harry Nash

Probably no other player in the history of Villanova basketball has gained such an early stranglehold on collegiate and, in some cases, national court records as has Robert Thomas Schafer.

For Schafer, who has surpassed almost every scoring mark set by much past greats as Paul Arizin and Larry Hennessy, and has moved into several top country-wide brackets, still has another year to go.

Quick Run-down

Going by the theory that cold facts speak more effectively than do introductions, let us review a handful of the more important records that he has established.

Schafer now ranks among the top four scorers in basketball history—for one season's output. The only players who have ever topped his total of 836 in a single season (his 22 against Duquesne brought his '54 total to 836) are Frank Selvy, Furman's scoring machine, whose performance this year gives him No. 1 spot, Seattle's Johnny O'Brien, whose '54 output ranks him second, and Seton Hall's Walt Dukes, whose pointage last year puts him one notch above Schafer.

Second In Scoring

That's only the start of it.

Record No. 2 . . . Schafer is the second highest point-producer in the nation for 1954, behind Selvy. His total, as already mentioned, was 836. Selvy had over 1000.

Record No. 3 . . . Schafer is second in the nation for '54 in number of field goals (287) and in foul shot successes (262).

Record No. 4 . . . He's fifth in per-game average this season with 27.0, placing behind Selvy, Bob Pettit of LSU, Oklahoma City's Arnold Short, and Buzz Wilkinson of Virginia.

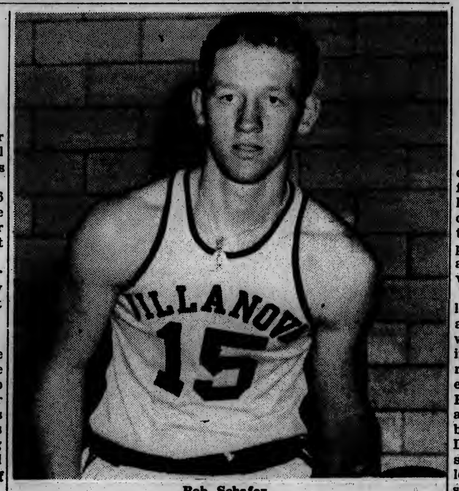
Record No. 5 . . . He holds the Palestra single game mark, having scored 46 against Baldwin-Wallace earlier this year. This feat broke a record set by Larry Hennessy last season—45.

Record No. 6 . . . Schafer holds the Villanova record for a year's highest scoring total with 836, outdoing Paul Arizin's old 714 standard.

Record No. 7 . . . His 46 points against Baldwin-Wallace was the highest production ever run up by a VU player against any college.

Record No. 8 . . . His career foul shot production is already the highest ever for a Wildcat . . . 505.

Sure To Top Hennessy



Barring grave injury at the hands of some irate fan of the opposition before next year, Bob is sure to top Hennessy's career record of 1745, because he has record of 1737, because he has 1502 points now, and nothing keep him from topping that total easily within the first third of the 1955 season.

Schafer was honorable mention on this years AP and UP All-American teams, and, in what is probably the most unfathomable pick of the year, made SEVENTH man on the All-Catholic selections. He made first team in '53—when he scored 300 fewer points.

Not all his accomplishments can be put down in hard, cold figures, either. For example, N. C. State coach Everett Case called him "the best set shot in the nation;" and Belmont Abbey's mentor tabbed him as the "finest shot in the country."

Great Vs. Fordham

Schafer's intangibles displayed themselves even more toward the end of the year, when his scoring began to fall off a bit. His rebounding was a marked improvement in the latter stages during the nine-game winning streak, and his defense became consistently better. Perhaps his greatest all-around effort was in the upset win over Fordham, in which he hit on 14 of 24 shots from the floor, scored 10 of his club's 12 points in overtime, got 36 altogether, and rebounded in a manner that moved Ram coach, Johnny Bach, to remark after the game that the 6'3" blond was "one of the greatest players I've ever seen."

SPORTS CHATTER

By Dick Confoy

The first indication that Villanova's 1953-54 basketball outfit might one day be great probably came on the third day of the season when Bevo Francis made his major college debut. Doing an excellent job of folding on the one-man team, our soph-dominated club suddenly found that some glory seeker was beating their brains in from the outside. The Wildcats rallied from 14 points down, took the lead, and then refused to fold when Bevo's last second field goal threw the game into overtime.

The second indication was the rebound, with the addition of Jimmy Smith, after a disastrous six-game losing streak; the final clue came during the last week of the season. Right after the LeMoyne game the team had almost a week to prepare for the final siege against Fordham, Iona, and Duquesne.

But others on the campus were preparing too; the fieldhouse was surrendered to the Senior Prom decorating committee. So that crucial week of practice was divided between Radnor High and bouncing off the walls of spacious Alumni gym. The Mainliners won their 19th and 20th just after(with Bob Schafer putting on the greatest show of his career in the Ram win.

But even disregarding these circumstances, proms, four games in five days and all, Villanova's season's performance, on paper, must still be considered highly successful.

Remember first that the club lost Hennessy, Mooney, Maguire, and Glassmire—plus an entire bench—yet lost only two more games than '53's experienced quintet.

And remember that Villanova is the only club in the nation brave enough, or perhaps blissfully ignorant enough, to play such teams as Duquesne and N. C. State not once but twice a year each. And that 20-11 mark was made against Villanova's schedule, the toughest anywhere, not against the watered slate of a Kentucky or Holy Cross.

And remember also that the sophomores who made up a majority of the team were completely inexperienced —their freshman season consisted of a four game schedule and a few scrimmages with the varsity.

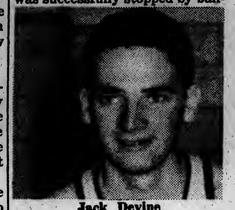
No doubt Villanova's 20 wins deserved a tournament bid, but it was the team, not the university, that deserved it. Surely no committee would have selected Manhattan over us under ordinary circumstances, with their fine 14-10 log showing wins over CCNY (one point) and NYU (overtime). And the final bid to Brigham Young was in pure desperation, what with the Mormons 16-12 record netting them a sensational third in the Skyline conference.

The Wildcats, on the other hand, were a hot ballclub, and featured a fine drawing card in the nation's no. 2 point-getter, Bob Schafer. They were a well-rounded club, and hard to beat, and the NIT committee knew it; Fordham's coach, Johnny Bach, practically screamed it to the world.

So the reason for the snub was obvious, and who can say the school didn't ask for it. We can only hope attitudes change and do as the Dodger fans do. Just wait 'til next year!

Dukes Win 77-54; Iona 20th Victim

By Bob Strayton



Villanova s court squad played host to the "Iron Dukes" from Duquesne at the Palestra last Saturday night, and succumbed to the huge Pittsburgh team by a 77-54 count, having posted its ninth straight victory against Iona three days previously, also at the Palestra.

In the Duquesne fray, Villanova jumped to an early lead, as Jim Smith notched six points within five minutes of the opening gun. The Dukes countered rapidly and led 14-13 at the end of the first period of play. From then on, it was no contest, as the terrific height and rebounding power of Jim Tucker, Dick Ricketts, and Fletch Johnson were too much for the smaller 'Cats. Bobby Schafer took scoring honors for Villanova as he tallied 22 points to increase his year's total to 836.

Ricketts took the honors for high scorer,with his 31 point effort. He was trailed by Tucker's 18, and Johnson's 17.

19 for Devine

The Iona game was a different story as Captain Jack Devine and Bob Schafer shared the spotlight and high scoring honors in the Wildcat's 65-53 triumph. Both Devine and Schafer got 19 points, Richie Guerin, who was successfully stopped by ball-hawking Larry Tierney, could manage to pick up only 13 points for the Gaels.

Jack Devine

With the Duquesne game marking the end of the 1953-54 basketball season, the 'Cats managed to post a 20-11 mark for their efforts in the grueling 31-game schedule.

Bevo, Rams Highlights

Impressive performances against Rio Grande and Fordham highlighted the season's competition. Additional victories over Seton Hall, Iona, and St. Peter's proved the caliber of this year's club.

Pacing the team during the past season was the steady Wildcat captain Jack Devine, while scoring honors went to Bobby Schafer, who was one of four players ever to surpass the 800 point mark in one season. Doing a commendable job under the boards was John Cirino, a sophomore, who also aided the scoring with an average of 9 points a game. Larry Tierney, also a sophomore, was impressive as a defensive ballplayer, while new-comer Jim Smith made a tremendous difference with his all-around play. Marty Milligan and Tom Foley were also bright spots in season play this year. The latter came off the bench to figure strongly in the Fordham and Rio Grande wins.

MARTY MILLIGAN sails through the air for two against Duquesne last Saturday night, as Mickey Winograd's lunge is too late. The Dukes won, 77-54, in the season's finale.

Seven Colleges Entered In Swim Competition Here

Penn State, VU, LaSalle Included

By Harry Nash

Featuring representatives from seven area institutions, the first annual Metropolitan Philadelphia District Collegiate Individual and Team Swimming Championships will be held at the Villanova University Natatorium tomorrow.

Villanova, Temple, LaSalle, West Chester, P. M. C., Penn and Drexel will compete in the all-day competition, beginning with diving trials at 11 a.m. Racing events and relays will get under way at 1:30 p.m.; the finals will be held at 8 p.m. tomorrow night.

Trophies Awarded

A championship trophy will be awarded to the school compiling the highest number of points and medals will be given to the first three placers in both relays—300 medley and 400 freestyle. The top three individuals in each event will receive medals, and medals will be awarded to freshman teams placing in the first three in both relays. The meet will proceed according to NCAA rules and regulations. The first place medals will be gold; second—silver, and third-bronze.

Ambitious Group

The affair, sponsored by the Philadelphia Area Swimming Committe, a group including Villanova's Ed Geisz, meet chairman, and Athletic Secretary Bill Ryan, who is serving as secretary and publicity director of the meet, is another step in a recent series of swimming exhibits held in the University pool. The Villanova Swimming Committee was responsible for "Swimorama55, which brought togther some of the top high school and professional stars in exhibitions of swimming and diving in the Fall and recently sponsoredd the National Catholic Interscholastic Swimming and Diving Championships, including high school talent from ten states in the eastern half of the country.

by 75 ft. and has a capacity of 400 spectators.

Twelve Events

No contestant will be allowed to enter more than two events, but will be permitted to swim on either relay team.

The events will include: 300-yard medley relay, 220-yard freestyle, 50-yard, freestyle, and 400 freestyle relay.

Intramural Action:

Lungers, Austin Erfs In Championships Tomorrow

The 1953-54 intramural basketball season closes tomorrow with the championship game being played at the Field House at 7:30.

The winner of yesterday's semi-final contests between Fedigan's Ramblers and Good Counsel and Delurey's Laddies and Rustin's Elfs oppose each other for this most sought-after intramural title.

The single-elimination tournament has featured good basketball and a few upsets thus far. Chief among the surprises was the manner in which the Austin Erfs defeated the tall Fedigan Ramblers. Employing a tight zone defense and a possession-type attack, the Erfs built up an eleven point half-time margin, which the Ramblers could not overcome. The final was 57-39. Pacing the winners' offensive were Joe McNicholas, Pete Loos and Bob Tassi. Fedigan's high scoring pair, Art McCune and Jack Soley, managed 10 counters apiece.

Hot Trotters Win

In a mild upset, the smooth-working Hot Trotters edged the scrappy Alumni Shamrocks 45-38. Wood and Acri, with 10 and 11 points, received good support from their mates to overcome the double figure-efforts of Dirk and O'Neill.

The high-flying Boilermakers swamped the Conshey Cats 90-64 in another tournament game. Bud Doyle's 33 points and Bob Brown's 29 offset the 30 points thrown in by McCall.

In the remaining contests, the Middies, led by McBryan's 17 tallies, defeated the Elbow Benders and Barlag 208, featuring Boruck's 27 point effort, thumped the Schnitzel-Fritzers.

Director Ed Geisz announced last week the inauguration of a water basketball league which will begin March 15. Five man teams will compete in four five-minute quarters, with baskets counting one point each.

All those interested in entering a team should contact Ed Geisz in his Alumni Hall office.

Freshmen, Gaffney, Relay Team Spark Track Season

By Bob Strayton

Highlighted by the fine performances of outstanding Frosh members, the impressive running of Joe Gaffney and his relay team counterparts, the 1953-'54 indoor track season came to a close last week in the final IC4A final meet held in New York.

Team Captain Gaffney carried the honors for the varsity this year by his efforts in the NYAC and IC4A outings. The New York Athletic Club's Buermeyer 500 fell before the talented senior, who notched a 57.9 sec. mark in overcoming the NCAA champ, Reggie Pearman, for the new record.

Gaffney Anchorman

With Gaffney as the anchor man, the Wildcat relay team also took a first place in the mile relay, with a 3:26 time. Ray Wheller, Red Meitman, and Al Ligoerelli worked with Gaffney in decisioning Boston College and Manhattan at the Athletic Club meet.

George Rhoden, Morgan State's champ, Ollie Sax, Penn State and Herb McKenley, the Jamaican Olympic star, have all tasted defeat at the hands of Gaffney. His four-year stint on the banked-boards has been a great asset to Villanova, and his commencement this June will be sorely felt by Coach Jim Elliot.

The frosh track aggregation has also been a bright spot in Wildcat sport endeavors thus far. Paced by Mike Agostini and and Charlie Jenkins, sprinting sensations, and Don Bragg, a record-breaking pole - vaulter, the freshmen nave been very impressive.

He recorded a 5.3 tme 50-yard dash in the Boston K. of C. tourney.

Agostini Excels

Agostini, who garnered fame in the Washington Star games with a record-breaking 9.6 century, has shown himself exceptionally well. Top flight competition, including Andy Stanfield and Lindy Remigino, both Olympic stars, have been decisioned by the talented Trinidad import.

Charley Jenkins

Pole-vaulting his way to top honors at the IC4A finale was Don Bragg, a 6'2" frosh from New Jersey, whose 14-foot, 6-inch effort broke a 32 year old record for freshman pole-vaulters. In clearing that height, Bragg tied the great Bob Richards for second place.

The IC4A was also the scene of victory for the Frosh relayers, as Charlie Jenkins, always a top sprinter, and his teammates Al Peterson, Gene Maliff, and Alex Breckinridge got together to set a new medley relay record in a fine 7:31.8 mark.

DEVINE HONORED

The Wildcats' Captain, Jack Devine, who finished among the top 15 in the nation this season in rebounding and aided Villanova's scoring machine considerably was named along with Penn's Bart Leach last week as the recipient of the annual Sportsmanship Award given by the University of Pennsylvania's Class of 1948.

The honor was awarded the past two years to Villanova's Jim Mooney and Penn's Ernie Beck. The award is based on displays of fair play, sportsmanship under the heat of competition and court leadership.

Devine, a junior, was a varsity starter last season, and was elected captain at the end of the year after a sterling performance with a Villanova club that ran up 22 victories. He has been a defensive and off-the-boards ace all year long, and maintained an average of nearly 15 points per game. He was

The Augustinian Priest

Study Illustrates His Distinctions

Did you know that many a young man chooses to be a religious priest in preference to a secular priest, and did you ever wonder upon hearing the terms "religious priest" and "secular priest", what the difference was between them? Did you realize that the Augustinian Fathers here at Villanova are religious priests, and as such, differ greatly from the regular secular priests of the archdiocese?

Perhaps you've even wondered why they are called "Augustinians" and what implications are behind those initials "O.S.A." —"Order of Saint Augustine." If these queries have ever been in your mind perhaps you would appreciate having them explained and clarified .The differences are really very simple and yet, are ever so profound when considered in the light of one's state in life and his relation to God.

Duties

As a priest the Augustinian is like all other priests of God —he celebrates Mass, hears confessions, gives missions and retreats etc.; but over and above his priesthood the Augustinian is a religious consecrated to God by the three vows of poverty, chastity and obedience and molds his way of life in the Order of St. Augustine whose rule and constitutions he observes and whose habit he wears.

By his vow of poverty the religious renounces all wordly goods and his right to possess them, especially money, and lives a common life with the other members of his community. His needs are provided by the community which looks after his temporal as well as his spiritual well being. Herein the religious priest differs greatly from the secular priest for he does not appropriate to himself any rewards or gifts that come from his labors, but turns them into a common fund which his superiors regulate and dispense as needed.

Permission Needed

He must obtain permission for everything he retains. Thus removed from temporal cares, he knows that, due to the gracious generosity of a devoted laity, funds are usually available for his needs in health and sickness, and hence he is able to put forth his best energies in the cause of Christ.

Community Life

From his vow of poverty there flows the necessary fact that the religious priest lives a community life. He lives and works with a group to attain a common end. Just as those of you who join a fraternity are primarily interested in what it can do for you, still while reaping many benefits for yourself, you also further the cause of the organization and enjoy the pleasure of working side by side with your companions and friends. So, too, the religious priest by means of his common life, endeavors to sanctify himself personally, while working amid the help and companionship of his brothers in Christ and Augustine.

Marriage Given Up

By his vow of chastity the Augustinian priest gives up the right to marriage and the legitimate pleasures of family life. It is true that all priests do not marry, but in a special way the religious priest consecrates the powers of his body to God.

He fully realizes the meaning of St. Paul's words: "He who is unmarried is concerned about the thing of the Lord, how he may please God. Whereas he who is married is concerned about the things of the world, how he may please his wife; and he is divided." By this special vow he promises to forego marriage even unto death.

Through obedience the religious renounces the independent use of his free will and places himself under the will of his superiors. He sees in their commands the will of God. In matters such as his place of residence, his preferred work, the length of time he will stay in any one place, he leaves to his superiors to decide.

Thus by his vows the Augustinian priest gives back to God all that He gave him—his material possessions, his body, and his will, all these good things, and immolates himself as a holocaust to God on the altar of love and service.

"O. S. A."

Just as there is a difference between the religious and secular priest so too, there are differences between the various religious orders. The Augustinian priest bears this name because he claims to use the means of sanctification which Augustine, the great Bishop of Hippo in the 5th century, taught and embraced. He looks to the great

St. Augustine for spirituality and apostolate.

In a word, the initials "O.S.A.," Order of St. Augustine, which every Augustinian priest writes after his name, indicate that he is Augustine's spiritual son, seeking, seeking to perpetuate his name by imitating his life and to continue his mission by contributing to the life of the Church in the same manner as he did—by preaching, teaching, and writing.

This is the Augustinian priest and the fundamental principles and ideals of his life—his vows, rule, and constitutions. There are some four hundred Augustinian priests in the United States giving living testimony to the fact that this life, this order of religious priests can and does make for wholesome happy living in God's love.

There are many many compensations received by each Augustinian priest in return for the little he actually gives up, for the great Lord of heaven and earth Whom he serves will not be outdone in generosity.

History Of Narcotics Topic at Chem Meeting

Dr. Roy S. Hanslick, research chemist with Wyeth, Inc., spoke on "Narcotics" at the March meeting of the Villanova Chemical Society, student affiliate chapter of the American Chemical Society, last Wednesday.

Dr. Hanslick, a graduate of Columbia and Cornell, is currently engaged in developing new synthetic narcotics.

A history of narcotics was the main point of the talk, telling of the use of "hashish" by the early Chinese and Egyptians. That drug is still being used, now under the name of marijuana. Around the 16th century opium and other alkaloids came into European use. Anesthetics, a form of narcotics, were used in surgical operations following 1847. Early anesthetics included ether in America, and chloroform in Europe. A well known drug, chloral hydrate, found use as the popular Mickey Finn. Barbituate drugs for use in medicine came into prominence in this century.

The next meeting of the Society will be held on Wednesday evening, March 24, at 7:30, in room 215 Mendel. The guest speaker will be Dr. Percy Cole, of the Barrett Chemical Co., who will give a talk and demonstration of glassblowing.

Spring Retreat To Run 3 Days

The annual spring retreat will be conducted this year by the Rev. Thomas Rogers, O.S.A., member of the Augustinian Mission Band, announced Rev. Joseph Kemme, O. S. A., chaplain.

The Retreat will begin on Sunday evening, April 11, and will continue through Wednesday morning, April 14. All Catholic undergraduates must attend the retreat and those who miss it will be severly dealt with, said Rev. Edward B. McKee, O. S. A., Vice-President of the University.

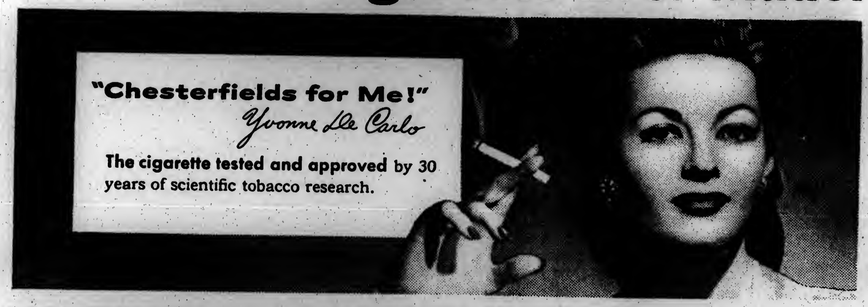
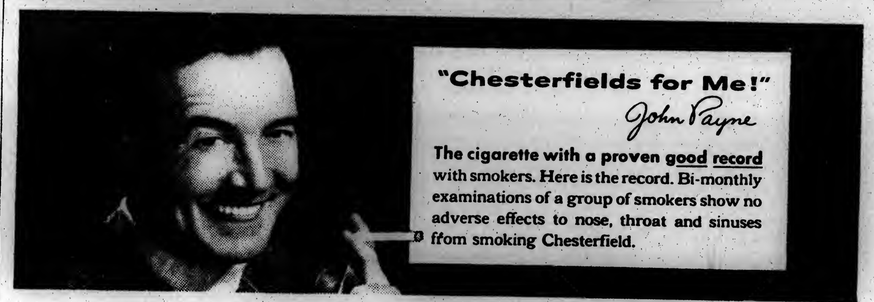
MARKSMEN WIN NO. 14



Villanova's NROTC showed their marksmanship last Saturday by defeating Penn's ROTC by 75 points on the Middies' home range.



The highest score of the year was turned out as the best team in the history of Villanova's NROTC took the range in a warm-up for the match this Saturday with the composite Penn varsity team.

Nack Gilligan was high man contributing 285 points to the total 1391 marking the fourteenth win out of 15 matches for the Midshipmen.

his undergraduate days here (Class of '43) each fraternity had its own informal dance.

He also criticized the Villanovan, suggestion that it deemphasize varsity athletic news of the varsity teams and devote more coverage to intramurals.

Koob Sets Standards

"The ideals of Villanova must be high," he continued, a Villanovan and a Christian gentleman should be synomous."

Dr. Koob suggested that the faculty and administration help in these ways:

1. Each student be treated as though he were important.
2. Laws placed on students should be reasonable, and enforced justly and impartially.
3. Needy students should be encouraged to seek the help of the teacher, and the teacher should make himself available.
4. Opportunities for extra-curricular activities should be available and carefully supervised.
5. The value of a Villanova education should be increased, and more publicity given to the educational aspects of Villanova.

On the role of the Student Council, Dr. Koob stated that students could be better prepared for the future "by giving the student council more authority over matter concerning the student body . . . increased self government."

THE VILLANOVAN WISHES ITS READERS A HAPPY ST. PATRICK'S DAY

JIM BORDEN, cast as "Duke A" one of the prison inmates in "Stalag 17", Belle Masque's spring production, chats behind the scenes with Rev. William J. Krupa, O. S. A., director of the show.

'Stalag Cops 2nd Place; Set Is Nearly Complete

With less than twenty-four hours notice, a group of 20 talented Villanovans traveled to Harcum Junior College last Thursday night to present a scene from Belle Masque's "Stalag 17" as a "fill-in" entry in an intercollegiate drama festival.

The last-minute entry gained second place in the competition.

According to Rev. William J Krupa, the performance indicated not only the caliber of the play, but also the excellent degree of preparation of the actors. The Beaver College entry finished first in a field of five.

"There's only one thing wrong with our set for this "Stalag 17" show . . . it's too realistic. I'm half afraid one of the "prisoners" will try to carve his initials in the wall."

Senior Jack Fiesler, stage manager for the Belle Masque spring production to be staged from March 31 through April 3, observed last week that work on the set is well ahead of schedule.

Fiesler and his stage crew, directed by Mr. Jacob Krupa, have nearly completed the interior of a German prisoner-of war barracks on the Field House stage.

WVIL Begins A.M. Show

"'Dorothy and Dick' have nothing on us," WVIL Station manager Pete Peterson enthused last week as he announced that "Pete and Jack's Breakfast Club" will be a regular early morning show on the "Voice of Villanova."

Begun yesterday morning, Peterson and Jack Kneafsey will bring you your favorite request music, with frequent time checks to facilitate arrival at those hard-to-get-to 8:30 classes, from 7:30 to 8:30 A. M. Monday through Friday, he said.

"The program is presented to add some life to those early hours", they said.

New Quiz Show

Another new feature, to be presented tonight at 8:30, is "I Doubt It", an original quiz program featuring a panel of three Villanova students and three experts from Rosemont, Peterson said. The quiz itself is general. The winning team will return the following week to face three new challengers.

Mr. Henry Rofinot, assistant professor of history, offers his views and commentaries on the news each Wednesday evening from 8:30 to 8:45.

Sports, Too

Representing the sporting side, Gene Filipski presents news and views on the sports world every Thursday. Featured here are interviews and opinions presented informally, from 8:15 to 8:30.

The station manager also urged that Villanovans make suggestions for other WVIL programming ideas. He requests that all ideas and suggestions either be left at the radio station or mailed to Box 81, Villanova, Pa.

Bar Association Grants Law School Approval

In an "encouraging and important" step forward, Villanova's Law School was granted official approval in the minimum time possible by the American Bar Association last Monday, Dean Harold Gill Reuschlein announced.

Ordinarily such approval would have been referred to committees for consideration at the American Bar Association's annual meeting, which will take place next August.

At the recommendation, however, of the Bar Association's Adviser on Legal Education, Mr. John C. Hervey, this section was bypassed and the Association's House of Delegates acted on the matter directly at its monthly meeting at Atlanta, Ga.

Standards Commended

In his recommendation that Villanova be given immediate approval, Mr. Hervey commended both the University and the Law School administration for its maintenance of standards well above the minimum Bar Association requirements.

The approval was described as "unusually quick" by one of the Law School professors.

The Bar Association bases its approval upon the school's admission policy, its grading system, the types of examinations given, and the professors.

Several factors at Villanova drew particular commendation from the reviewer.

Faculty Praised

The Faculty was praised for its balance between youth and experience and for its reflection of a variety of approaches to

Plans Announced

Father's Day, April 24th, Last Social For Seniors

The final social event of the year for the Senior Class—and an innovation, at that—will take place on Saturday, April 24 when the 400 members of the Class of 1954 will play host to their proud papas on Father's Day.

Although this activity was started again last year after an almost 20 year lapse, this marks the first time that the day has been observed in the spring at Villanova since the early thirties.

Jack Birle Is Chairman

Under the guidance of Jack Birle, Senior vice-president and Father's Day Chairman, an active day has been planned. Tentative arrangements call for a Mass in the college chapel beginning at 12:15, followed by a luncheon, swimming exhibition, Villanova-Seton Hall baseball game and winding up with a Father-Son Banquet in the Field House. An alternate schedule of activities has been planned in case of rain.

Birle announced that a nationally prominent figure has been invited as chief speaker for the banquet. He is also trying to arrange a track and field exhibition featuring the Wildcat's star performers but is running into difficulty, because the Penn Relays are being held in Philadelphia the same weekend, he said.

Letters will be sent by the committee to all fathers inviting them to the campus for the day. Birle stated that the expense for the entire day will be either the same or smaller than Mother's Day.

Fr. Regan Opens Pre-Cana Series

"Marriage is a genuine and great vocation."

Using that idea as the central theme of his talk, Rev. Robert E. Regan, O. S. A., opened the fifth annual Pre-Cana lecture series Sunday in the C&F auditorium.

Speaking to approximately 60 marriage-minded students from this area, Father Regan expanded on this main thought. A question-and-answer period followed the talk.

The series, intended for all who are contemplating marriage, is aimed to help prepare for married life. Sunday's talk was the first of four scheduled for the Lenten season. Next Sunday Fr. Regan will speak on the "Psychology of the Sexes."

Law Dean Harold Gill Reuschlein will take a break from his travels to eastern colleges on behalf of the Law School to address the Villanova Club of Philadelphia Thursday night at the Bellevue-Stratford.

Dormitory Housing 400 Called Sullivan Hall

Villanova's new 400-man dormitory will be named "Sullivan Hall", honoring Rev. Mortimer A. Sullivan, O. S. A., disclosed University vice-president Rev. Edward B. McKee, O. S. A., last week.

Father Sullivan was president of Villanova in 1925 and 1926. He later became Provincial of the eastern province of the Augustinian Order.

Present indications are that the dormitory will be completed for use in the fall semester of this year.

GAIETY was the word at the "Shamokinaki" dance Friday night in the field house. Almost 500 couples attended the benefit affair for the Augustinian missions in Japan.

Editorial

More Self-Government

Student government at Villanova, its leaders admit, is by no means as effective and as strong as it should be.

Aware of these and other deficiencies in the present system, the leaders of the Student Council have set out on a program which, when realized, will make student government much more meaningful than it is now.

They believe, as we do, that the ultimate answer is to be found in close affiliation with the United States National Student Association.

In pursuance of this program, they have secured the endorsement and the enthusiasm of the existing 36-man Student Council. This democratically elected group which represents the Villanova student body favors membership in the NSA. And to lend further strength to its approval, the Council has instructed its three - man delegation to the Student-Faculty Committee to communicate its approval of the affiliation measure to the whole committee.

Granted that the committee does not find serious objection to this measure, it will then be duty of the Council to ratify the Constitution of the NSA and to pay the annual membership fee, (approximately $50.00).

But what kind of organization will it be joining?

It will become a member of a confederation of student governments from over 300 American colleges and universities, more than one-fourth of which are Catholic. NSA was created to serve the long-existing need for a representative intercollegiate organization designed to serve the student community, and to promote students' interests and welfare.

The National Student Association accomplishes these ends by providing a program benefiting member institutions. It conducts national and regional meetings of outstanding student leaders to inform and equip student government personnel for campus jobs; the National Student Congress, held each summer, brings together over 500 student leaders from every part of the United States.

NSA publishes the only series of publications on student government, student activities, and general student problems; it distributes these publications to member colleges. It operates a clearing house for ideas on the topics it discusses in its publications and answers direct inquiries from its members. A Student Government Information Service lend materials on student court systems, honor systems, and sample constitutions.

It offers low cost European student tours, and federal and state promoted legislation beneficial to college students; currently it is publicizing and supporting H. R. 1274 which affords tax relief to parents of college students.

NSA will operate on the Villanova campus only insofar as the Student Council wishes to implement the policies and programs made available to it as a result of NSA affiliation.

This has been an incomplete summary of the nature of the National Student Association and a brief review of the progress already made in gaining affiliation. When the Student-Faculty Committee meets again on March 29, the student delegation will announce the wishes of the Student Council concerning NSA. The committee's immediate approval will do much to put teeth into Father President's explicit avowal to improve faculty-student-administrative relations. Moreover, it will be a significant step in granting increased student self-government .And finally, it will achieve a major objective of the institution as outlined in the University catalog:

"A considerable portion of the government devolves upon the students, who are expected to prepare for the future by assuming responsibility for their opinions and actions in college relations."

Defense System Of West Endangered Through Africa

By Ed Daly

The danger to the Western allies that is created by the attitude of the Union of South Africa towards its native majority is very much greater than may appear at first glance. There is not merely danger of an internal explosion in South Africa itself; there is grave peril of a catastrophe involving the entire continent of Africa south of Sahara, and ultimately perhaps the entire defense system of the western world.

This may appear to be an extremely strong statement. Let me explain what I mean. The fear of "Malanism" in other parts of Africa is very great. It was given as a reason for not joining a federation with Southern Rhodesia by those Northern Rhodesian and Nyasaland chiefs who opposed such a union.

It has often been cited as one of the chief concerns of the natives in such areas as Uganda, Kenya, and Tanganyika. In those areas where whites have settled in any numbers, their every move to increase their own security at the expense of the natives is put down as another example of "Malanism."

Modern Inroads

It must be remembered that Africa is no longer a land of completely isolated and primitive tribes. To be sure, the tribal system has survived in most areas, but increasing numbers of tribesmen have moved to the cities and towns and have lost their tribal status.

Of this group there is a small but growing class of native intellectuals, many of whom have attended school in the United States or in Europe. Because of the lack of available positions for men of their education in some parts of Africa, because of the persistent propaganda efforts of the Communists, a large number of these intellectuals have become dissatisfied with the existing order and anxious for a radical change.

The detribalized natives have largely come under their influence, and certain of the more advanced tribes have as well. What this situation can lead to is shown by the Mau-Mau outbreaks among the Kikuyu in Kenya and by the less publicized unrest in Nigeria and Madagascar.

If a major anti-white explosion were to occur in South Africa, therefore, there are ideal conditions for its spread to other sections of the continent, particularly among the British and French colonies. That such an outbreak might occur, no one in South Africa seems to doubt, for the security laws there have been tightened very greatly and the penalties for Communist activities, particularly those affecting the natives, have been made very severe.

Dr. Malan himself has been trying to allay Negro fears by emphasizing the new housing to be constructed for natives and the improved conditions that are to exist once his program has been put into effect. No one, however, who follows closely the statements of the South African leaders will doubt that they are extremely alarmed about the possibilities of a major outburst of anti-white violence.

Effects Of Violence

If a really serious wave of violence does sweep black Africa what will be its effect on western defense? To begin with, large numbers of British and French troops would have to be withdrawn from Europe to combat the rebellious natives. A heavy burden would be placed on the already overburdened economies of the Western European powers and ultimately upon that of the United States, since most aid to Europe would probably be found necessary.

The Communists would be given another fine example of "western imperialists" subduing "freedom-loving" peoples, a wonderful propaganda weapon to be used in the doubtful parts of Asia. Britain's plan to center the economy of her empire in Africa would be wiped out. Necessary materials from Africa would be cut off. The list of possibly serious effects of an African outburst is long, but these should be sufficient to give a good idea of their consequences. It is no exaggeration to say that the policy of the Union of South Africa is one of the greatest dangers to the free world now in existence.

'Why' Of Catholic Education Seen

By Mark McCormick

Perhaps it isn't such a bad idea, once in a while, to wonder about the purpose of the Catholic school, especially since we are members of such an institution.

Narrow Views?

Very often we hear complaints that the Catholic school graduate is likely to have an "ivory tower" complex, that his views are too narrow or unrealistic. It is carefully explained that the student will find himself living in so harmonious a group, after graduation, and that, in effect, he will find himself unable to understand, withstand, or tolerate the unfamiliar ideas advanced by those among whom he must live and work.

Some Catholic educators have even gone so far as to recommend that every Catholic student spend some time at a secular college. Their reasons, at times, involve an alleged superiority of secular education because of "more objectiviy", no mixing of faith and learning.

Perhaps these critics do not know the real nature of Catholic education.

A philosophy teacher at Notre Dame, Father Leo R. Ward, C. H. C., has written an enlightening discussion concerning the purpose of Catholic education; (his article appeared in a recent issue of Commonweal). He points out that there is at least an unconscious dispute among educators involving the definition of this purpose. In his estimation, the dispute boils down to the question whether Catholic schools exist to "make people good" or for the "sake of learning". He contends:

". . . the 'man is Catholic, learning is secular' view is implicity held by many Catholics who are scholars and by most who are teachers or administrators in what we call Catholic colleges and universities . . . it could be that many who fight secularism in education are engaged full time in propagating secularism in education."

In short, he holds that the Catholic scholar must be more than a "Catholic who is a scholar"; the Catholic student must be educated, not in secular learning, but Christian learning. That is, the Catholic student must be more than a defender of beliefs and a possessor of faith; he must understand all else, intellectually, in terms of that faith.

An implication of this is that even being a Catholic and a mathematican makes a difference in mathematics. Certainly it means that, in any study which includes man, any of the humanities, the learning must be Catholic.

An Edifying Sight:

Our Mass-Goers

By Bill Quinn

Throughout the year it has been heartening and edifying to see the number of daily communicants who attend mass at the college chapel. In many instances the priest on the altar later instructs some of these same attendants in classrooms on the campus. (During Lent the number at all the morning Masses has greatly increased.)

Bonds Of Unity

The bonds of unity on the campus find their origins in this little chapel. As students who have worked and played together approach the altar to receive Communion from the hands of their instructors, a chain is forged through the undergraduate body.

But the really astounding thing about all this is the matter-of-fact way in which it is taken. No exclamations of amazement are heard, and the Augustinian Fathers aren't patting themselves on the back for a job well done.

It seems that the college boys are truly men when it comes to the question of daily Mass. All the opportunities have been presented to them, and they may take advantage of these or neglect them as they so desire.

Excellent Sign Post

Actually it certainly affords an excellent sign post directed into the heart of the University. Some call this the Age of Indecision; and other appelations have also been applied which are much more derogatory than this. Yet when was it ever possible to predict the future? The past is irretrievable and so we find ourselves faced with the same thing that faced our great-grandfathers. We have exactly the same basic thing to work with as they did. And that "thing" is the present-today! What better way is there to start the day than with the holy sacrifice of the Mass?

The Collegiate Whirl

Interclass one-act play contests that invariably bring out superior dramatic performances have been scheduled in local colleges for next week. Rosemont College will stage its competition on Thursday, March 25 and Chestnut Hill's contest will be presented on the following night.

STILL A COLLEGE . . .

(ACP)—For a while anyway, Michigan State College will remain a college.

An attempt to change the college's name to Michigan State University (see ACP Feature Service, Feb. 1) was cancelled, at least temporarily, when MSC President John Hannah requested that the name-changing bills be withdrawn from the state legislature.

The move to make Michigan State a university was opposed vigorously by officials at the University of Michigan, who feared confusion if the state were to have two universities.

THE LID IS OFF . . .

(ACP)—For several years the Ohio State Lantern, Ohio State University, has complained because it was not allowed to cover closed meetings.

Now at least one door has been opened. The paper will be permitted to cover the university's board of trustees meeting from now on, because of a state law which just went into effect. The law requires all state boards and commissions but one to meet in the open.

ENROLL FOR PROFESSORS . . .

(From the Colorado Daily, University of Colorado)

How many times have you taken an elective course with a very interesting name only to have it "murdered" by the professor? Not often, perhaps, but often enough. Have you had courses go flat, dead, dull, uninspiring and, consequently, unfruitful . . . by comparison with courses in the same department?

The answer? Sign up for professors, not courses. You will have limitations, and you will have to get plenty of opinions from more advanced students in the department, but it's your own education you must consider first.

If you don't like the name of the course but have heard many favorable things about the professor, sign up anyhow. Chances are you will learn more by accident from a good professor than you would learn from a dull one on purpose.

A DEFINITION . . .

(ACP)—From H. Gordon Hayes, writing in the Tulane University Tulanian, comes this definition:

"A university is a place where the minds of men and women, teacher and student, are free. Free to explore—free to question—free to think. Without such freedom there cannot be a university.

Garry Moore and TV Cast Picked As Queen Judges

Bill Quinn and Frank Gunther, chairmen of the Junior Week Queen Contest, announced last week that this year's Queen will be selected by Garry Moore, television entertainer, and his entire cast.

New Feature

The chairmen feel that by having an entire group judge the pictures, the judging itself will be carried out on a higher level and the final results will be more just than if individual judges looked at the pictures at different times and were not able to compare notes and exchange opinions. Some of the highlights of Mr. Moore's career and some information on the members of his cast will appear in a later issue of the Villanovan.

Deadline April 10

All Juniors are again reminded that the last day for entering the contest is Sunday April 10. The winner of the contest will receive free tickets to the Junior Prom and Junior Dinner-Dance as well as numerous other prizes. The runner-ups will also be presented with several gifts.

All entries must be brought to the Villanovan office or to the Parlor of Simpson Hall. It is desired that all pictures be at least 5"x7" and the following information must be printed on the back of the picture or on a separate piece of paper; girl's name, address, age, height, weight, color of eyes, color of hair, present occupation, and schools attended. Along with this, the Junior should also submit his own name, his campus or home address, his telephone number, and his school (Arts, C&F, etc.).

CATHOLIC EDUCATION

Catholic Differs

From this line of argument it would seem that the Catholic school could be criticized justifiably if it does merely attempt to encourage good living, neglecting learning. And it would appear that there is a Catholic learning — which implies that education in a Catholic school must have a different flavor than secular education.

Thus any criticism which assumes that the Catholic graduate is too narrow because he has a set of ideas of his own, some of which contradict those of products of other educational systems, does not take into account the basis of Catholic learning.

Toleration Limited

Toleration, on the part of the Catholic student, necessarily must not extend further than "respect for the free workings of other minds". No man who possesses what he believes are superior ideas is willing to substitute mediocre ideas.

White is not black or even gray, and similarly, truth is not error or even half-truth.

SENIORS

The final and last deadline for contributions by the Seniors to the Statue Fund has been set for Wednesday, March 31st, Ted Sheehan, Class President, last Wednesday.

Law School

Law—the members can claim professional competence in fields other than law, as history, philosophy, engineering, accounting, economics, etc. Representation on the faculty of such men is bound to improve the teaching approach, it was said.

The law library, which has 22,000 volumes already, also drew praise.

Approval as given was provisional, with the understanding that a permanent home for the Law School will be forthcoming. The school cannot receive final approval until it has begun its third year of operation.

Villanovans Will Attend Foreign Policy Institute

Villanova students, who last year had the second largest representation, are again invited attend the 7th annual Foreign Policy Institute, today at 3:30.

Under the sponsorship of the University of Pennsylvania and the World Affairs Council of Philadelphia, the meeting will take place at the U. of P. Museum, 34th and Spruce Streets.

Topic of the meeting, "The Struggle for Free Asia", will be underlined by an evening address by the Hon. William F. Knowland (R. Cal.), Senate Majority Leader.

Villanova Professor

Mr. Henry L. Rofinot of Villanova's History department is to participate in an afternoon panel discussion with His Excellency Mr. Syed Amjad Ali, Ambassador of Pakistan to the U. S. Discussion groups will be held on the subjects, "Pakistan and the Struggle for Free Asia", and "United States Foreign Policy Toward Asia."

Several Speakers

Presiding over the meeting will be Dr. Norman D. Palmer, Professor of Political Science at the University of Pennsylvania. Other speakers include Dr. Raymond Moyer, Regional Director for the Far East of the Foreign Operations Administration, who recently returned from a three months tour of Asia.

Last Thursday night IRC members made a trip to Rosemont College's McShain Auditorium where they heard a lecture by Rev. Joseph Connell, S. J., Dean of Baghdad College, on the Middle East.

Father Connell's talk was sponsored by the IRC.

Fr. Rogers, O.S.A. To Give Retreat

This year's Easter Retreat, which will begin Sunday evening, April 11, and continue through Wednesday morning, April 14, is being conducted by Rev. Thomas E. Rogers, O. S. A. a graduate of St. Mary's Seminary, Villanova, Class of 1933.

Father Roger's work has been exclusively in the mission field, announced Rev. Joseph W. Kemme, University chaplain.

A highlight of the retreat will be the bestowing of the Papal Blessing on the final day by Fr. Rogers. All Catholic students are reminded that they must attend the retreat without fail.

LIST INTERVIEWS

Next week the following companies will conduct interviews for seniors. All those interested must sign up a week before the interview.

March 23, Bell Telephone, E. E.; M. E., C. E.

March 24, Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Math., Physics, Ch. E., E. E., M. E.

March 26, United States Gypsum Company, M. E., Ch. E.

Dow Chemical is interested in Senior Science Majors for sales positions. Any Senior desiring an interview on March 19 must sign the interview sheet in the Placement Office by March 17.

Apply Now for V.U. Law School; Law Test Given

Villanova seniors interested in attending the University Law School should submit their applications immediately, Professor John Macartney, Chairman of the Committee on Admissions urged last week.

Application blanks and the Law School bulletin may be procured at the Law offices in the Library, he said. Completed applications, accompanied by a transcript of academic records indicating grades and credits for all completed terms will be accepted now and acted upon. The applying senior may then be accepted for admission, providing he meets the other requirements.

Other information may be secured from the Law School offices.

Only three weeks remain for prospective Law School applicants who plan to take the Law School Admission test at Villanova on April 10 to file their completed applications with Educational Testing Service, P. O. Box 52, Princeton, N. J., Dean Harold Gill Reuschlein advised last week.

Completed applications must be in the Princeton office by April 1.

Invitation

The need of psychiatry, the logical justification of faith, the importance of prayer, and a comparison of the confessional with psychiatry and psychoanalysis will be discussed Thusrday night by Edward A. Strecker, M.D., at the Philopatrian Literary Institute.

The Institute is located at 1923 Walnut st., Philadelphia. The talk, part of a series of the Catholic Lecture Forum, will be free to all interested.

ST. MARY'S HALL, in the middle of the campus, is the center of seminarian activities at Villanova. It houses the chapel, classrooms, dining room and living quarters for the aspiring priests.

Augustinian Describes Rewarding Seminary Life

Visitor. Is that another dorm?

Sophomore. Oh, no. That's the Angel Factory.

Vis. "Angel Factory"? What in the world is that?

Soph. "Angel Factory" is a nickname we use for the seminary. The real name of the building is St. Mary's Hall, and the students living there are studying to be priests in the Augustinian Order.

Vis. What do they do in there all day? How do they prepare for the priesthood? what is seminary life like, anyway?

To rescue our sophomore from this barrage of questions, and to satisfy our inquisitive visitor and others who may be curious or interested (or both) the following is offered as a bird's-eye view of seminary life in the Order of St. Augustine.

Seminary Defined

First of all, what is a seminary? Many of us think of a seminary as a training school for priests, just like West Point and Annapolis are training schools for military officers. Actually a seminary is much more than this, as the words "priest" and "seminary" indicate.

A priest is an alter Christus, another Christ. The word seminary comes from the Latin seminarius which means plantation or nursery. Combine the two and you have a place where the seeds of Christ are planted. A seminary, then, is a place for growth in union with Christ.

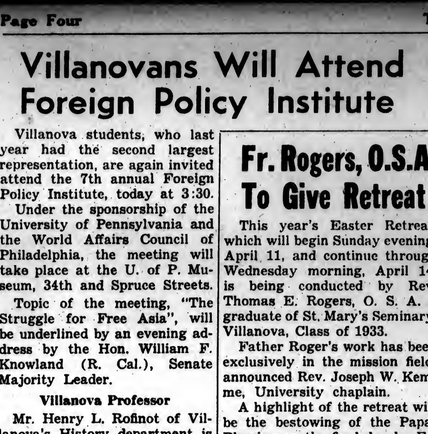
Suppose Christ were to say to you, "Come follow me", and acting under this divine grace, you decided to follow Christ as an Augustinian priest. This briefly and generally is what you would do:

Begin With Retreat

After all the preliminaries are taken care of, you will make a ten-day retreat, at the end of which you will be invested in the white habit of the Augustinian novice. For a year and a day you will live in our hidden and homelike novitiate on the banks of the Hudson River.

This happy year is something like an extended retreat, predominately a life of prayer. There will be a few classes instructing you in such matters as the spiritual life, the constitutions of the Order and the Liturgy of the Church. Farm work and sports will provide a guarantee for bodily health.

The joys of community life, the wealth that comes from poverty, and the charity that is wedded to chastity—all these you will experience for the first time. After the year has fled by—and fly it will—you will make a profession of the simple vows of poverty, chastity and obedience.



Then you will come to the "Angel Factory", St. Mary's Hall, Villanova. The prayer life of the novitiate will continue, but the farmer will become a philosopher. Under the guidance of learned and competent professors you will become acquainted with such great minds as our Holy Father St. Augustine and St. Thomas of Acquine. A solid foundation in Scholastic philosophy is the best preparation for theology.

Degree Conferred

On completion of your studies you will receive a B. A. degree in philosophy. Then you will transfer to Augustinian College in Washington, D. C., for a four year course in theology. This will be a crowning point in your studies and in your spiritual training, because you will concentrate on God Himself, and, God willing, you will be ordained to the holy priesthood.

As you look back you will realize that these are much more than three separate buildings, or training houses, more even than three homes. They are phases of growth in the likeness of Christ. The seedling planted in the nursery of the novitiate has blossomed into a flower of "spiritual beauty, giving forth the good odor of Christ" (Rule of St. Augustine).

This is the third in a series of articles on the Augustinian priesthood written exclusively for publication in the Villanovan by the Vocations Club of Augustinian College, Washington, D. C. The fourth and final installment in this Lenten series will appear in the next issue of the Villanovan.

SPORTS CHATTER
Policy Change—And Why

By Harry Nash

When Ambrose "Bud" Dudley took over the previously undermanned Athletic Director's position here on January 6, 1953, he began work on a plan to bring V. U. football back to Philadelphia, and to revive an apathetic local fan interest.

But, two weeks ago, in what appered to many to be a blatant paradox, an outline of the '54 football season was released, listing eight away games and ONE home game, with one date remaining to be filled.

Ambrose Dudley

Why The Turn-About

In search of an answer to this seemingly contradictory change of strategy, we contacted Mr. Dudley last week and obtained from him, in very cohesive terms, an explanation of this policy turnabout.

"Last year," Dudley began, "we were unfortunate in the fact that three out of our four home games were financial failures, and the only one that wasn't—the Georgia game—was monetarily successful because of its promotion."

"First of all, the fact that Connie Mack Stadium is a baseball park seems an obstacle to scheduling really top teams to come in and play us there. Secondly, people are becoming conscious of convenience, and this involves the parking problem. They just don't want to have to put up with the car headache in the Mack Stadium vicinity—and this, I believe, is a major factor influencing attendance. And downtown driving is also a factor."

"Of course, there is still Franklin Field, but even when we can get use of it, the attendance is poor; for example, the Syracuse game last year, when only about 9,000 came out."

"So I'm concluding from all these circumstances that there is only one solution—the building of our own stadium out on the Main Line."

Parking Problem

"After all, we can't expect good clubs to come to play us in the present stadium—for several reasons; it can hold barely 10,000, and since about a fourth of this capacity is going to be taken up with students in on matric cards, the net take is hardly going to be worth it. Besides, the open ends of the stadium make it difficult to keep out non-payers."

"I do feel that, with the good transportational facilities that exist to and from Villanova, a new stadium, seating between 36 and 38 thousand, would be ideal. Lancaster Pikes goes right out to the Turnpike and upstate, and there would be one draw, and then you've got the Pennsylvania and the P & W, and the Pike and Montgomery supplying access to downtown Philadelphia."

Probable Solution

"For these reasons, I'm convinced that the only way we'll ever get the necessary funds for the new stadium is to play out-of-state clubs where we usually draw well. Last year's attendance situation certainly wasn't conducive toward scheduling another flock of home games with the building of a new stadium in mind."

The question of how long this away-game policy would be pursued was raised.

"Well, there is some talk of a new stadium by 1955, and, if that should come about, we could schedule four or possibly five home games and, because of good location, and unlimited parking potential, draw extremely well and soon get good ball clubs to be more than willing to come in and play us on the campus."

Many Repercussions

"The effect won't be felt in a merely monetary way, either; I think a good home schedule would create more and better school spirit, and would revive the Alumni a great deal—they would come back to see the games, and at the same time be uncovering a lot of old memories . . . 'nostalgic moments,' you know . . . yes, I think there are all sort of good reasons for bringing Villanova football back to the campus. And I'm convinced that the only way to do just that is to play away long enough to make this financially possible."

And probably he's right. After all, some definite steps have to be taken.

Anyone who was numbered in the 2700 or so at that exclusive Xavier affair last season will attest to that.

Lungers Bow To Austin Club, 66-36

By Bob Strayton

Paced by the read-hot shooting of Joe McNicholas and Bob Tassi, a highly-regarded Austin Erf cage aggregation ran off with top honors in the intramural basketball playoffs held in Alumni gym on Tuesday.

At the losing end of the fray were the Lungers, who could only account for 36 points in the 66-36 rout. It was the Erf's 7th victory in as many outings, and clinched the 1953-'54 Intramural Championship.

McNicholas Gets 18

McNicholas, who starred consistently all season for the Erfs, tallied 18 points for high scoring honors. Tassi also was a big point-getter for Austin, as he notched 16. Jack Carella was right behind him with an 8 point contribution.

Joe Bealer was high-scorer for the losers with a 13 point effort, closely followed by Al Sansone who scored 12.

Water Basketball

Elsewhere on the intramural scene, the Intramural Director, Ed Geisz, has come up with a new form of intramural competition, which he terms "the cleanest sport in the world." This new sport is water basketball. To date, 22 teams have entered the competion, with all games to be held in the Field House natatorium.

Some of the rules governing water basketball are as follows: 1) the full length of the pool will be used for contests; 2) each game will be divided into four 5 minute quarters; 3) at the end of each half, teams will switch goals, so that each team will be defending the deep-water goal half the time; and 4) each basket counts 1 point, rather than the customary two.

MIDDIES' RIFLE VICTORY

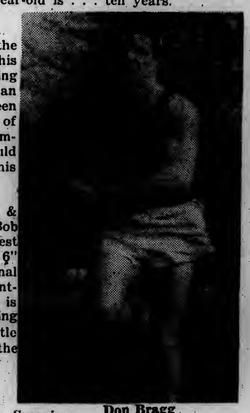
In what was recorded as the highest score ever turned in by a NROTC team in the history of Villanova, the Middies downed their rivals, the Penn varsity, for the third time this year with a score of 1398 to 1382 last Saturday.

The three-positioned match was paced by John Gilligan with a 285 score. The four remaining men who placed were; Miller-282, C. Trunzo-280, D. A. Smith (Capt.)-279, and W. Gould-272.

Highest Frosh:

Bragg Has Stellar Start In Vaulting Fame Quest

By Tom Smith



"If people will give me time, I think I can break the world's record."

The young man speaking was Don Bragg, Villanova's freshman pole-vaulting phenom who has soared higher over the red-and-white bar than any other college first-year man in history.

And "time" to this 18-year-old is . . . ten years.

Promising Future

Thus this new arrival on the VU sports scene expresses his view of the situation concerning his future in pole-vaulting, an endeavor in which he has been amazingly adroit, in spite of the fact that he is merely embarking on a career that could reach heights as great as his efforts so far.

Don Bragg

For already this modest C & F student has tied the Rev. Bob Richards, regarded as the finest in his field today, with a 14' 6" performance in the National AAU meet in New York recently, a feat the like of which is not expected of freshmen facing the heat of competitive battle against some of the finest in the business.

* * * *

Shows Surprise

To put it in Don's words, "Was I surprised to go over that bar, look back, and see it still up there at 14' 6". But perhaps his ascent to potential fame in pole-vaulting is not as unexpected as Bragg would like one to think.

After all, he grabbed a pole vault for the first time as an eighth grader and promptly soared eight feet on his first attempt. As a high school sophomore, Don recorded his first competitive victory with a 10' 9" climb.

Also Versatile

But Bragg was no track specialist in high school. Between his junior and senior years, he rounded into shape through his participation on football and basketball teams.

Don't get the idea he rode the benches. On the gridiron he snagged five touchdown passes and as a basketball pivotman he came through with an eight point average.

Two of Bragg's sports idols are naturally connected with track and field. They're Cornelius Warmerdam, who holds the world's record of 15-8 and was the first human to exceed 15 feet, and Bob Mathias, the two-time Olympic decathelon champion.

Elliott Optimistic

Don's coach, Jim Elliot, feels certain his prize package of vaulting material will eventually hit 16 feet. Elliott may be excused for seeming overly enthusiastic. After all, he will have three more seasons to develop Don.

Bragg knows he will have to work and work hard if he hopes to shatter that world record. But a world's mark is quite an incentive.

And Don knows it.

All-Opponent Team Named

By Dick Confoy

Maury Stokes and Dick Ricketts were top choices for Villanova's 1953-54 all-opponent basketball team, which included Fordham's Ed Conlin, the fabulous Bevo Francis, and Mel Thompson of North Carolina State. Ricketts, still only a junior, was the lone holdover from last year's squad which was headed by Walt Dukes of Seton Hall, now a Globetrotter.

Dukes Prominent

Duquesne's Iron Dukes led the selections by placing Fletcher Johnson and Jim Tucker, besides Ricketts, on the first two teams; Rio Grande, with Francis and Jim McKenzie, was next in line.

Guerin Absent

Conspicious in their absence were other widely heralded stars such as Richie Guerin of Iona, and Bill Uhl, 6'11" center from Dayton, who failed to get even an honorable mention. Guerin, fifth highest scorer in the nation, was held to 13 points by Jack Devine as the Wildcats notched their 20th win.

VU Frosh Swimmers Excel; Varsity 5th, LaSalle Wins

Penn Second In District Competition

By Bob Strayton

Keen competition was the keynote as seven nearby colleges met in the first Metropolitan Philadelphia College Swimming meet at Villanova's Natatorium last Wednesday night. LaSalle won the meet and the trophy by posting 70 points.

Frosh Philly Champs

The Wildcat freshman team was the bright spot in frosh competition, as it captured first places in both the 300 yd. medley relay, and the 400 medley relay. Led by Co-Captains Don Devlin and Don Couig, both of whom put on fine performances, the first-yearmen were able to win the frosh Championship in the initial Metropolitan meet.

Other schools in competition in varsity events were: Penn, whose mermen tallied 61 points to take a second; Temple, third with 32 points; followed by Pennsylvania Military College, 8; Villanova and Drexel, tied for fifth with 6, and West Chester last with 2 points.

LaSalle Breaks Record

Penn's swimmers were excellent, capturing five out of ten possible first places, as their relay team broke the pool record for the 300-yd. medley with a 3:10.3 mark. Another record was broken, and that by LaSalle's George Haggerty, who notched a 2:29.6 time in the 200-yd. breastroke for the new mark. The Explorers also annexed four first places, while Temple's club accounted for the remaining placement.

Joe Hockenbrock of LaSalle competed brilliantly in the 100, 220, and 440 freestyle for the Explorers, and took a first and two seconds respectively. Al Cantello also aided the Explorers' victory by taking a first place in the diving contests. LaSalle's other first place came when Chick McLaughlin won the 440 freestyle.

Penn Excels

Parlane Johnstone carried the honors for Penn by winning the

Don Devlin

150 individual medley (1:39.1), and leading the relay team to another first over LaSalle. The 400 freestyle relay and the 300 medley, which broke a pool record, also fell before the Penn swimmers, with Walter Herman pacing the Red and Blue.

Villanova's lone entry in the finals was Varsity Captain Bill Quinn, who qualified for the 440 freestyle, and took a fifth place in the finals.

At the conclusion of the meet, LaSalle's coach, Joe Kirk, received the winner's trophy from Villanova's Director of Athletics, Ambrose Dudley.

Freshman Season Best In Years, Gained Dual End

A well-balance freshman club which compiled 15 wins in 16 starts has Villanova basketball fans looking to the future.

This year's full schedule offered the frosh the experience that last year's squad lacked. One of the frosh starters, Jim Smith, made the jump to varsity status, and several others appear to be varsity material. Jack Weissman led the team's scoring, supported by Bob Powers, Sonny Di Carlo, Alex Griffith, and Smith.

Tough Schedule

The season was no easy test for the freshmen. Playing such teams as St. Peter's, Seton Hall and Penn, the club found pressing play to be the rule rather than the exception. The credit for molding this effefctive unit goes to Coach "Maje" McDonnell, whose undergraduate days were spent in a Villanova baseball uniform. McDonnell is also a batting practice pitcher with the Philadelphia Phillies.

The Intramural All-Stars, under the coaching of Ed Geisz, intramural director, found themselves easy prey for this club. The team's sole setback of the campaign was at the hands of a Seton Hall outfit, one of the tallest and finest frosh groups in the East.

Good Defense

The club's talent showed up well in its defensive game, led by Griffith and Smith, Power, Griffith, DiCarlo, and late-season starter Red Fahy.

The entire season was marked by a race-horse brand of ball sparked by a group of youngsters, who, unlike their '52-'53 predessessors, (with a four game schedule) will have a greater store of experience to rely upon when varsity practice begins next fall.

GOLF CANDIDATES

Qualifying practice rounds for aspirants to Villanova's golf team will be held this week, in order to fill seven vacancies on the club.

There will be thirteen men trying out for the seven places—with only one holdover from last year's outfit, Bill Albertus. There will be three seniors competing, six juniors, and four sophomores.

The golfers will use Aronimink Country Club for their home course this year, and will take on such opponents' as St. Joe's, St. Peter's, Haverford, LaSalle, Princeton, Fordham, Penn, and Muhlenberg.

Albertus is one of the top collegiate linksmen in the country; he led the nation in point scores in '53. All the candidates shoot in the low 80's and the high 70's.

Mahan's Coaching Talent Abetted By Background

By Joe Heaps

With the advent of the 1954 season rapidly nearing, Villanova baseball fans can again be assured a good season—partly because of the great wealth of returning talent, but mostly because of the presence of Art Mahan, Villanova's congenial baseball taskmaster.

This season at Villanova will be the fifth that Art has performed the numerous tasks assigned to a coach. During his tenure here, Mahan has compiled a very creditable record of 42 wins and only 23 losss, including a loss two years ago in the NCAA playoffs.

A well-rounded background of baseball knowledge and activity has supplied him with the essentials of experience required of a college coach.

Career at VU

His baseball career began at Villanova, where for three years he starred as the Wildcat first baseman. After graduation in 1936 he entered organized ball and spent four years in the Minors.

In 1938 with Little Rock he batted .319 and the next year sparked the Louisville Colonels with a .312 effort. The Phillies called him up, and Art was their regular first baseman during 1940 season.

Managed Providence

During the war, he served with the US Navy. Receiving his discharge in April of 1946, he immediately resumed his career, this time as a manager. He took over the reins of the Providence club in the New England League, and piloted them to a fourth place finish.

Mahan retired from organized ball the following year, but did not give up the game completely. From 1947 to 1950 he played semi-pro ball in the Philadelphia area.

Besides coaching here, Mahan is a salesman for the Eureka Casualty Company. He is married to the former Helen Malin and is the proud father of six children.

Optimistic About Season

Concerning the club this season, Coach Mahan admits that it is a pretty sound outfit. He says that the losses of Kenny Lowe and Bobby Maurer will be felt, but thinks that able replacements will come from last year's bench and newcomers to the squad.

When asked about the team's chances, the former Phil had this to say, "College teams play too short a schedule to accurately determine their ability. Over a twenty game season, a few minor factors could mean the difference between a winning and losing year. With this thought in mind, I find it difficult to predict Villanova's season. Over a longer period, though, I am sure the club would be somewhere near the top."

About the Author

Rev. Paul Francis Healy, O. S. A. is about as Irish as a Philadelphian can get. And the Gaelic temper of the 66-year old Augustinian priest, thoroughly arounsed by the venomous attacks upon the Church by professional anti-Catholics, strikes back with a deliberate and rational refutation of their absurd charges.

Father Healy, who now resides in the monastery, first came to Villanova in 1906. Joining the Order of St. Augustine in 1908 as a novice, he took his simple vows in 1909.

The "Good Counsel" magazine has published poetry and essays by Father Healy under the pseudonym of Austin Friar.

Blarney, Blanshard and Fr. Healy

The celebration of the feast of St. Patrick, the patron saint of Ireland, brings to mind some of the unfounded statements that Mr. Paul Blanshard made about St. Patrick and the Irish in his recent book, The Irish and Catholic Power.

In the very beginning, Mr. Blanshard seems to question the Catholicity of St. Patrick, and, on page 14, casts a doubt about his religious faith by stating, "St. Patrick, it seems was a Roman Catholic." His reason for making such a statement is, according to him, that there is little Irish history before St. Patrick's time.

But in the very next paragraph he proceeds to give us authentic history to the effect that St. Patrick was a pre-papal Christian, that his bones were found in a Protestant cemetery in County Down; and many other unfounded claims too numerous to mention. In this recent book we find Mr. Blanshard reverting to the same pattern of his former work, American Freedom and Catholic Power, wherein we see that the repetition of the last two words of the title manifest a certain fetish, so to speak, that has caused in him a fear of the Catholic Church bordering on a phobia.

The Same Old Story

This strange phenomenon is nothing new in the field of religious cotroversy concerning the Catholic Church in this country. We have only to look back upon the old days of The Menace, the cowardly antics of the K. K. K., to say nothing of the rantings in the United States Senate, and out of it, of the late Senator Heflin of Alabama, in order to see this same pattern of fear manifested in the works of Mr. Blanshard. To be more specific, however, I would like to cite an incident that occurred a few decades ago in Boston concerning the appointment of a Roman Catholic as a Fellow of Harvard: it will throw some light upon such fear of Catholic power in the biased sense in which Mr. Blanshard uses this phrase throughout this recent work.

Ralph Adams Cram, a noted American architect, who taught a Harvard University in the year 1924, was greatly disturbed by the attitude of his personal friend, Mr. Chapman, both of them non-Catholics, concerning this appointment of a Roman Catholic at Harvard.

Mr. Chapman had written an open letter to the Right Reverend Bishop Lawrence, the Episcopal Bishop of Massachusetts, condemning the speechlessness of the Protestants in such matters, and in particular the lethargy of Bishop Lawrence in not taking a stand against the appointment of this Roman Catholic to the Fellowship.

This letter was brought to the attention of Mr. Cram who was totally sympathetic with the policy of the Catholic Church with respect to her parochial school system, a subject that Mr. Chapman mentioned in his open letter to the Bishop relative to the possibility of the Catholic Church obtaining control of American education.

Chapman Is Challanged

A letter of challenge to Mr. Chapman was written by Mr. Cram and made its appearance in the pages of The Commonweal for December 3, 1924. It caused quite a stir in educational circles at that time, so much so that the discussion was carried on in subsequent issues of this periodical.

Mr. Cram was very much surpised that his friend should make such an unfounded statement against the Catholic Church and firmly stated in his letter of challenge: "You confuse me hopelessly . . . Will you, not only for my own information but for the information of others in a like position, state explicitly where and when the Roman Curia, or any other official body of the Roman Catholic Church has declared it to be its 'outspoken purpose . . . to control American education.' "

Mr. Chapman attempts in the succeeding issues of The Commonweal to make a dignified reply to this challenge, but needless to say, he could not substantiate his claims that the Catholic Church is officially set upon controlling American education.

Trail By Innuendo

This same fear that the Catholic Church not only will get control of education, but will influence legislation adversely to Protestants in the religious, political, and social life of the nation, and will extend this control to many other fields of endeavor, is manifested throughout the 375 pages of this book.

Both directly, by quoting Canon Law that deals only with the members of the Catholic Church, and indirectly, by innuendo and sophistry, Mr. Blanshard makes unfounded statements that are hopeslessly confusing — statements that he cannot substaniate, any more than Mr. Chapman could in the above citation from the pages of The Commonweal.

Both men manifest the blindess to objective truth which undue fear begets in religious controversy.

Mr. Blanshard, as I have stated above, quotes Canon Law and cites Canon 1374 in The Irish and Catholic Power which simply states the right of the bishop of the place to decide in what states, to decide in what circumstances, and with what precautions, Catholic children might attend non-Catholic, neutral, or mixed schools in order to give an official touch to his unfounded claims about the control of the Catholic Church in America education.

Furthermore, he makes the assertion that this Canon "imposes a boycott on all public schools." This, of course, is complete nonsense, since it may be readily seen that this quotation from Canon Law has nothing whatever to do with the general attendance of children at all public schools which such a boycott would have to imply.

Of course, the implication is that the Catholic wishes officially to control education in the Unted States. It really shows that any stick is good enough with which to beat the Catholic Church.

Sabotage and Subterfuse

If Mr. Blanshard cannot have it one way, he will have it another by turning to subterfuge in calling this control of education, "The Sabotage of Public Schools," as he does on page 307, making this phrase the heading of a section this phrase the heading of a section he resorts to sophistry and and attributes the 21 per cent incease in the attendance at Catholic schools and the eight per cent decrease in the attendance at public schools to this so-called sabotage.

Mr. Blanshard cannot have his cake and eat it too.

He establishes certain premises in the early pages of this book with respect to the attitude of the Catholic Church concerning "birth" control" both in Ireland and in the United States; but he cannot see that this so-called birth-control idea, which he seems to favor very much, is in reality a misnomer.

It is pure and simple birth prevention, so that when you prevent the birth of children, it necessarily follows that there is a decrease of children of a school age. The Irish and Catholic Power has nothing whatsoever to do with it in the perverted sense of the theme of Mr. Blanshard's book.

Scatters His Fire

The author does not stop at considering this control of American education as the sole reason for his book upon Catholic power, he extends his attack so as to cover a multitude of subjects on the religious, political, and social life of Ireland and the United States.

In the early pages of the book he does make concession about the rather rough treatment of the Irish by the English that are in a way disarming, but he makes up for this by marshalling forth many events concerning the apparent meddling of the Catholic bishops in public affairs that need a more scholarly and careful examination than that given to them in this book.

There is to be found in the library at the Villanova University the McGarrity Collection of books on the history of Irish literature and culture, the perusal of which would correct Mr. Blanchard's mistaken ideas on the Irish and Catholic Power. He would see by such a study that the real power, which he seems to fear and despise, is manifested in authentic history by the conquests of its saints and scholars rather than by its political and warlike strength in order to gain control of the processes and machinery of government.

The Fictional Gael

We are aware, however, that public opinion, by some strange quirk, has it that the Irish are garrulous and warlike.

But there is that certain irony of history which gives such nonsense a paradoxical turn, especially when we examine the current events of this Atomic Age and see how Ireland has kept herself aloof from wars and the rumors of wars that have held Europe and the United States in their grasp for more than a generation.

Of course, pseudo-history, the type that Mr. Blanshard has given us in this book, the same brand of history that Cardinal Newman called, "The Conspiracy against Truth," has it that the "Fighting Irish" have gone down infamously through the centuries, calling tricky times out at crucial moments, and, somehow or another, always hitting on the bias.

We must be on our guard and give the lie to such caricaturing of the Irish race. We must realize that we are living in an age not too unlike that of Cardinal Newman. History often repeats itself. We are not too far removed in this respect from the fourteenth century of William Langland who wrote Piers Plowman.

Langland saw his beloved England out of joint pretty much the same as Newman did in the last century. In citing a few lines from his poem you will readily see that it strikes a familiar chord in your own mind when you consider the out of jointness in the religious, political and diplomatic life of our time:-

"And armed him in haste—with words of harlotry
And held Holiness for a jest—
Courtesy for a waster,
And Loyalty a churl—and Liar a gentleman,
Counsel and conscience—he counted folly."

Enter McCarthy, Snarling

The ultimate in Blanshard's long chain of sophisms, innuendoes, and downright nonsense is reached when the name of Senator McCarthy is dragged in to show, as stated on page 310, the bias of Catholics which was supposedly behind the undercover opposition to the confirmation of James B. Conant as the United States High Commissioner to Germany.

"When Senator McCarthy," he writes, "later assailed Conant before a Senate committee investigating the 'Voice of America', there was no doubt that Catholic animosity on the school question was behind the smear." Only undue fear could prompt such statements.

The fear of Catholic Power, with which Mr. Blanshard seems to be so much concerned in his book, he would learn from the perusal of the McGarrity Collection is in reality a fear of learning that begets truth.

No one should fear the truth. He would become acquainted with one of those strange paradoxes of history in which the path of Christian civilization was blazed eastward, as in the case of St. Columbanus, who in the seventh century established monastic schools in Italy at the celebrated monastery of Bobbio. Robert Lynd, in his Ireland a Nation, described, on page 18, the intellectual activities of the Irish at this early date: "Irish intercourse with Europe in early times seems to have been direct rather than by England.

Christian Propagandists

During the sixth and succeeding centuries there was scarcely a corner of the known world to which Irishmen did not penetrate ,taking with them religion and learning and the arts. Ireland became a land of schools, lay and monastic. Her schools and scholars were celebrated throughout Europe."

Christopher Dawson ,the celebrated European historian adds to this tribute to Irish sancity and learning the following words:- "Irish history follows a reverse direction to that of the rest of Europe. When continental culture was at its lowest ebb, Ireland was a great center of Christian culture, and even of classical studies."

Even before the so-called revival of learning of the fifteenth century and many years before the rise of the universities of the eleventh century, Charles the Bald had called the remarkable Irish philosopher and scholar, John Scouts Erigena to his court school. This is the true Catholic Power of the Irish: that her missionaries and numerous emigrants still continue to spread learning throughout the world for the betterment of society and the

Noake Is Choreographer, For T&T Spring Production

George Noake will handle the choreography for the Turf and Tinsel musical production, "Wish You Were There," announced T&T president Jim Boyle last week.

A veteran of T&T shows, Mr. Noake has composed the dancing routines for almost all the group's presentations. He joins the team of Whelan and Pequignot in what they hope will be another "smash hit", the president said.

The satirical comedy will be the spring presentation of the musical organization, rejuvenated under Bob Whelan in 1947.

Is Satire

The play itself is a takeoff on the life of Leonardo daVinci, one of the greatest figures in the Renaissance movement, and is subtitled "Veni, Vidi, deVinci."

A large part of the action of the play takes place in the hectic life at the Court of King Francis I of France. He has invited Leonardo to the Court in order that he may instruct the nobility in the new-founded culture, which they apparently lack. The eccentric incidents which take place at the Court cannot be described, but must be seen to be enjoyed, Boyle said.

Cast Optimistic

Written by George Pequignot, this year's comedy is among the finest ever to put on by a T&T assemblage, says the cast. Choregraphy and Direction are again under the supervision of Noake, while Villanova's Bob Whelan, has the task of composing the musical score.

Claim "Enjoyable"

From an intellectual standpoint, "Wish You Were There" holds nothing, they claim. It is not supposed to be educational production, but merely a play which will be thoroughly enjoyed by anyone who appreciates a lot of laughs and a good time, the group promises.

Speech Tourney To Award $2000

Through the auspices of the New York Journal American, the Beta Gamma Debating Society of Villanova invites all undergraduate students to enter the forthcoming Tournament of Orators. Two thousand dollars in scholarships will be awarded to winners.

The contest involves a 5-minute memorized speech dealing with some phase of the life of Abraham Lincoln. All entrants must submit their names Professor Joseph T. Jonas at the English Department office in Austin Hall, as soon as possible.

The speeches will be given Wednesday, March 24, at 8 P. M. in Room 215 Mendel Hall. Judges will be impartial men in the field of education not associated with the university. The winner will go to New York May 19th to compete in the finals.

Entrants must not reach their 26th birthday before May 19, 1954.

Applications to take the test on April 10, and a bulletin of information which describes the procedure for making application and shows sample test questions should be obtained from the Law School offices in the Library

The Schola Cantorum, rejuvenated under the leadership of Dean of the Law School Harold Gil Reuschlein, held its elections last week.

President of the group will be Conrad Urban, a sophomore from Chicago. Secretary's duties will fall upon Bob Brown. Joe Blimm, Arts junior, was elected treasurer.

The choir is practicing for its appearance at the spring retreat, where it will sing the solemn mass which closes the religious function.

The combined French Clubs of Villanova and Immaculata College presented "Ondine", a modern fantasy by Jean Giradoux, on Wednesday, March 10 at the Barclay Hotel. The show was presented for the members of the Alliance Francaise, well-known local organization devoted to fostering the culture and civilization of France in the United States.

After June, What?

JOB SEEKER Pete Liptrot, consults assistant placement director Dr. George E. Matlin in his temporary C&F office. Dr. Matlin is sitting-in for Placement Director George W. Harris, who is devoting his time to the Alumni Program.

Placement Office Hums Finding Seniors' Jobs

"Approximately 75 seniors have already lined up permanent jobs through the Villanova Placement office," Dr. George E. Matlin, assistant placement director, stated last week. "Most of the jobs have been in the field of engineering and accounting."

Well over 100 companies have interviewed seniors on the campus during the past month. Dr. Matlin finds that "Jobs are tighter now than they have been in recent years and because of that the companies are looking for men in the top half of their class."

The job situation is still good, however, said the doctor, and Villanova men are respected and in demand. "No doubt, the new University status has added some prestige to Villanova."

Dr. Matlin, a faculty member, is temporarily assisting George A. Harris, Villanova's Placement Director. His professional field is labor and at the present he is teaching Mathematics of Finance to Commerce and Finance students. He intends to devote his full time to teaching next June.

"In my experience with seniors in various colleges I have found Villanova seniors a good group with whom to work," said Dr. Matlin. "Perhaps seniors don't realize how much the impression they make here on the campus and even in this office counts when they need a job reference."

Office, In Mendel

The placement office, which has temporarily been located in the basement of the Commerce and Finance building, is again situated in Mendel Hall.

Although most activity there has been directed toward senior interviews since the first of the year, Dr. Matlin points out that the office keeps an alumni file for the service of graduates. Many alumni, on getting out of the service, take advantage of the placement service.

The office is also a medium for placing undergraduates in part-time jobs. It is always open to students seeking jobs, job counsel, or vocational advice.

Student Council Offers Who's Who Requirements

Seeks Nod Of Faculty Committee

Maintenance of a 2.5 grade point average should be necessary for admission to the National Collegiate Who's Who, decided the Student Council at its meeting last Monday night.

The group's proposal was one of four which will be submitted to the Council's student-faculty committee for approval. President Joe Kenney said that the faculty had agreed to accept three of the proposals.

The other suggestions:

1. The student must have participated actively in extra-curricular activities.

2. The Senior class president will meet with the other members of the faculty committee and propose the men that have been agreed upon by what was designated as a committee of seven. These seven who will make the preliminary selection, are: The editors of the Villanovan, Belle Air, and Villanova Engineer, the president of the student council, and those who have served as class president for the graduating class in its second, third, and fourth years.

The names of the men decided upon by this group will then be submitted to the faculty-administration board by the Senior class president.

3. Only students in their

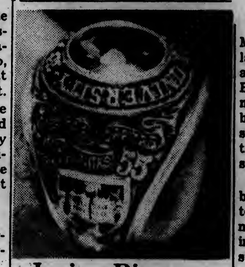
'Stalag' Tickets Ready As Curtain Time Nears

With the opening of Belle Masque's spring comedy, "Stalag 17", less than two weeks away, Ticket Chairman Joe Blimm reports that tickets are now being sold in the Pie Shoppe by members of the cast and stage crew. General admission tickets will cost $1.25, with student tickets priced at $1.00.



Although the stage crew has been plagued by numerous interruptions, the job of last minute adjustments and finishing touches is almost concluded stated manager Jack Fieseler.

The grim setting of Barracks 4 in the German prison camp is taking shape, with such objects as double and triple-decker beds, a table, a stove, benches and other numerous props creating the proper atmosphere. An essential escape hatch and hanging lamp over the table will also be present, he said.

Lights

The oddity of having a roof over the stage will necessitate lighting directed from the ceiling of the gymnasium, with only one important effect done from the stage. Jack Lavery will handle all special sound and lighting effects. German uniforms, essential for the one scene play, have been rented from the Van Horn Co., of Philadelphia.

There will be four performances, running from March 31 to April 3. The comedy will continue for approximately two hours. Curtain time has been set for 8 p.m.

Junior Rings Ready Soon

Junior Ring Chairman Bill Kohler announced that final fittings for all schools except Commerce and Finance will be held today from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., and 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. and tomorrow from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. in room 223 Mendel Hall.

Kohler also stated that all rings will be delivered "about three weeks after the fitting date."

This year's ring is one of the finest ever for a Villanova Junior class, he said. As can be seen from the picture, the ring is a different design from last year's, and the first to bear the name Villanova University. Dieges and Clust designed and cast the ring.

Primer On NSA . . . An Editorial

What is NSA?

NSA is a nation-wide confederation of student governments from 300 colleges and universities, over one-fourth of which are Catholic.

Is it necessary that Villanova join?

Student Council leaders, realizing that student self-government is vital to any educational community, admit that it is now weak and ineffective. Close affiliation with NSA will aid in strengthening and improving student government.

How will NSA aid Villanova?

It will train student leaders, preparing them for campus positions; it will offer tested programs for more effective student government; it will represent student views before Congress, UNESCO, the American Council on Education, and many other national groups. It will afford Villanova further national recognition.

What will it cost?

It will cost the University about $50 annually.

Three steps remain to complete the process of Villanova's joining the United States National Student Association (NSA): approval by the Student - Faculty Committee, ratification of the NSA Constitution by the Student Council, and payment of the membership fee. Since it is expected that the Council-approved NSA measure will be introduced by the student delegation to the joint committee at its meeting Monday, March 29, the Villanovan presents this brief question-and-answer guide to the NSA.

Is NSA accredited?

NSA has been commended by President Eisenhower, Former President Truman, Adlai Stevenson, and Gen. Omar N. Bradley. It is associated with American Association of University Professors, National Education Association, and others.

How will NSA work at Villanova?

Best authorities suggest that a committee of elected students serve as liaison between NSA and the Student Council to implement NSA policies and programs.

Is NSA the same as NFCCS? Will it conflict with NFCCS?

No, the two are separate and distinct. The purposes, organization, programs, and policies of each, while not contradictory, are not the same.

Ripping Rescue

What price the role of a hero?

That's the question Jim Judge, social studies freshman, may be asking himself after what happened to his trousers the other night when he helped rescue a woman from a burning apartment in Bryn Mawr.

The stocky blond from Lockport, N. Y. was headed for his off-campus room when he noticed flames leaping from a building on Lancaster Pike. Racing to the scene, Jim, aided by a spectator, dragged the woman from the dwelling—and ripped the seat of a pair of dress-up trousers.

Ironically, the fire occurred in an apartment over a tailor shop.

Evaluation Process

Now that the Student Council has gone on record in favor of the establishment of a system of course evaluation at Villanova, and the student-faculty committee will act upon the idea at its next meeting, we think a look at how the system would work at Villanova is in order.

In an outline suggested by the National Student Association, the following would take place.

The Student Council would designate some of its members to meet with Fr. Dwyer, Fr. Sullivan, Fr. Bartley, and Mr. Morehouse (the dean of the university and the deans of the different schools), forming a committee to work out the basic policy as to the type of evaluation that would be aimed at.

Villanova's nature demands a subdivision of labor. To deal with the problems peculiar to specific departments, the committee would refer to faculty members and students in that department.

In the actual drawing of the final documents, the committee would doubtless consult with the experts on such matters in the University's education, psychology, and marketing departments. Proposals for the system from faculty and students would be received by the committee. These would then be evaluated by it and the final form decided upon.

The question now remains: What is done with the returns?

The results would be compiled by those best qualified, the committee which designed the original instrument. The department head and the faculty members directly involved should be the recipients of the results of the survey. Through regular channels, students should be informed of the GENERAL outcome of the surveys. We do not advocate the release of information which would hurt any individual. If there are persistent grievances about a certain instructor, the committee would have private conferences with the instructer, or, if necessary, with the chairman of his department.

The burden in the carrying out of this program rests upon the faculty and the students. The faculty should realize that the effectiveness of the educational program, and not a personal motive, is being judged. The students must be aware of their direct responsibilities in active participation in their own education. Responsible student participation and full faculty cooperation are indispensable to the program.

J. N.

S C Summary

In advocating the institution of a system of course evaluation, the Student Council continues encouraging work this year to become a stronger student government.

Under Joe Kenney's active leadership, the Council has also backed a proposal to join the National Student Association, offered several suggestions for the future selection of Villanovans for the National Collegiate Who's Who, and, also at its last meeting, set up a committee to revise the orientation rules.

Very heartening signs from the student leaders, we think.

Communism Threatens Economically Weak Italy

By Ed Daly

Communist political gains in Italy have been the cause of increasing concern recently, both in Western Europe and in the United States. This growth of Red strength is very real, and, coupled with the power of Pietro Nenni's Left Wing Socialists, who are little more than Communist puppets, makes some observers believe that the Communists may take over Italy after the next election.

DALY

Fertile Red Soil

There are many conditions in Italy which make that country fertile soil for Communist propaganda. There is widespread unemployment in the cities, an unemployment which will continue to grow, since Italian emigration has been cut off by such laws as the McCarran law and Italy, therefore, cannot dispose of her surplus population, which continues to grow faster than job opportunities. There is dire poverty in many regions, particularly in the agricultural south. A government survey last July resulted in the following figures; one Italian family in eleven never eats meat or sugar, or drinks wine; one Italian family in fifteen is homeless. While conditions such as these exist, the Communists have their chance to recruit new followers.

Normally Americans seem to expect the Catholic Church to prevent the Reds from expanding in Italy. They argue that Italy is a Catholic country; Catholics may not be Communists; therefore, the Italians, being Catholics, will not be Communists. Unfortunately the situation is not that simple. In spite of repeated warnings from the Church, many Italian Catholics continue to vote Communist and to feel that they are not doing wrong by so voting. The Reds themselves have gone very far towards bringing about this state of mind by refraining from attacks on the Church and in some cases even by pretending to be friends of the Church. There are actually instances of Communists' giving out holy cards at their meetings.

In many ways the situation in Italy is reminiscent of that in Spain in the 1930's. The vote of both extremes is growing, reducing the centrist parliamentary government to great weakness and numerous cabinet crises. The Church is unsuccessfully trying to prevent her members from supporting the extreme Left, but failing, largely because of bad economic conditions. The outside world, now, as in 1936, is awaiting developments with concern.

I do not mean to carry the comparison so far as to make the situations appear parallel. They very definitely are not, for the Italian political situation, unstable as it is, is far more stable than the Spanish in the 1930's. Both are instances of serious peril to parliamentary government, however, with a number of interesting similarities.

Not To Go Communist

Despite the cries of alarmists, the best informed writers feel that Italy is not going to go Communist. They feel that she will drift along with various ineffective governments hampered in their functions by the extremists, that she will probably be unreliable as an ally, and, politically, more and more unstable. This in itself is a serious threat to the West, which has need of Italy in the event of a serious crisis with Soviet Russia.

An unstable Italian government, faced with the danger of a civil war any time that Moscow gives the signal, cannot be given a major role in the defense plans of Western Europe. Yet Italy is the key to the defense of the Mediterranean. Therefore the Western powers are faced with the problem of either readjusting their entire strategy or restoring stability to Italy. The first probably cannot be done. That leaves only the second alternative. How that might be done I shall discuss next week.

Suggestion Given For Our Retreat

By Bill Quinn

Once again the unequivocal term of "all Catholic students must attend" has been solidly placed before us. Whether or not you agree with the phraseology of this invitation, you can still ponder the question of just what topic should take precedence in the forthcoming retreat.

Sleep-Producing

Naturally, any one of the ten commandments would offer a good keystone to a retreat given to some 2,000 young men. It is true however, that with some few of the ten laws, the retreat master would be liable to feel that he is conducting an organized siesta rather than a spiritual re-awakening. So perhaps we can find some suggestions to make this year's retreat especially profitable.

Recently, this author wrote an article for the winter edition of the Lynx in which a plea was presented for a damper of some sort to be placed on the current emphasis on sex in modern writing. Now, if I may, I'd like to suggest that the topic of morals—the Sixth Commandment—be emphasized where it should be.

Euphemisms

The euphemistic terms applied to matters relating to a break-down in morals were also stressed in this article in the Lynx. It is suggested that the largest "bogey" to the average college student of today is the subject of sex. Accordingly, it is suggested that our retreat this year deal with this subject emphatically and in no vague or uncertain terms.

We are at a time in our lives when this subject has its most profound effects on us. It is thrown at us through a veritable horde of cheap advertising methods for motion pictures, books, and even after-shave lotions.

As a result, a sense of morals is something that is constantly subjected to different types of subversionary attacks. And these attacks do much to increase our awareness of a subject which could do well without such stress.

Counter-Attack

Since the problem has been emphasized, we must therefore emphasize a counter-attack, a positive attitude to pure thinking and acting, which can be launched through our retreat this year.

Skeptic Is Found

By Mark McCormick

The portly young physics major from the outstanding secular university smiled when he learned that the other young man was a Villanovan. He pleasantly intoned: "And what kind of thing do you learn in your school?"

"Oh," replied the bright Villanovan, "we are taught, for example, that truth is one . . ."

Immediately the other man interrupted—"But truth is not one, there are no absolutes. Truth is relative to the individual."

"Isn't that an absolute statement; aren't you contradicting yourself? . . . " The Villanova student was becoming distressed.

He was answered with a tone of mixed boredom and impatience: "Such things can't be expressed in words . . . I don't believe that I know anything for sure . . . I'm not sure that I exist . . . It can't be proved to my satisfaction."

"Then," offered the confused Vilanovan, "you believe that a thing can be true and false at the same time . . ."

"Of course," the confident Physics student responded, "and what would you say if I were to call that green chair red?"

"I would say that you are color blind."

Leaving a trail of mumblings about the meaninglessness of words, the man of questionable existence wandered away.

The next evening, at the conclusion of the Brooklyn College Debate Tournament, in which a lot of words were used and many schools were represented, the winner was announced, and the speaker who wasn't sure of the validity of words seemed very sure of himself as he stepped forward to receive the trophy when his name was called.

This must be what our professors mean when they teach of a "war of ideas"; this must be what is called pseudo-intellectualism, that we are warned against.

And this must be what our mentors mean when they warn us to appreciate our faith, to enrich it, or at least to acknowledge it.

Garry Moore Story:

Contest Gains Momentum

Tickets for the Prom and Dinner Dance, engraved personal gifts, free hotel accommodations for out-of-towners, and a "Royal" Junior Week . . . all these things are in store for the Prom Queen to be picked by television star Garry Moore and his cast.

Contest chairman Frank Gunther reminds all Juniors that the deadline for pictures is midnight, April 10.

Moore and his cast will select this year's Queen, Her Lady-in-Waiting, and Her Court.

Born and raised in Baltimore, Maryland, Garry Moore has had an active, interesting career in show business. He teamed with Jimmy Durante on a weekly radio before striking out on his own.

He said at the time that he felt that the only way he could reach the top in the entertainment world was to break away from the shadow of the fabulous Durante. At first the breaks were slow in coming the way of the personable young man, but after awhile he became known as a personality in his own right.

Now he has a daily CBS network television program and is a frequent guest on such shows as the Arthur Godfrey Show and Jackie Gleason's opus.

Vocalist Denise Lorr has been with Moore for some time now. Frequently joining Miss Lorr is male vocalist Ken Carson. Straight man for Garry and announcer for the show is tall Derwood Kirby.

In last week's issue of the Villanovan, a picture of Miss Olive Catherine Mercer appeared. We failed to mention that Miss Mercer is the entry of Paul Ake, a student in the Commerce and Finance school.

Other entries should be submitted as soon as possible, said the chairman. All entries must be brought to the Villanovan office or to the parlor of Simpson Hall. All pictures should be at least 5" x 7". The frames should be removed before pictures are submitted. Remember to give all the statistics as listed in the previous issues of the Villanovan, said Gunther.

Student Calls For Stress On Scholastic Activity

To the editor of the Villanovan—

"Are you a member of the Villanova Debate Club from the University of Pennsylvania? Where is Villanova?" These are typical questions that I have been asked in the past four years as a member of the BETA GAMMA Society.

In tournaments where many schools from the Far West to the deepest part of Dixie are represented, this seems to be the common reaction to the mention of Villanova. It has caused me to wonder about the success of Villanova's propaganda program.

Our School Unkown

It is somewhat of a paradox that so few people among student debaters and faculty moderators have heard of Villanova which has entertained so many people at other-area athletic contests. Sports publicity seems to reach only the Saturday fan and the schools we play.

Must Be Known

It is questionable, both whether advertising through sports is paying off and whether general personal contact is enough to make Villanova known. But as an expanding Catholic University which has much to offer academically and spiritually, Villanova must develop the prestige and notoriety befitting such an institution. And the positive expression of our personality should not be one-sided.

From personal experience I can offer one logical remedy.

Debate One Answer

Beta Gamma has debated more colleges in one year than our football team can play in six. A tournament offers us an opportunity to converse with students from Utah to Genesee, and the trips give our men the chance to live with students in their own school—to get to know the type of men we are going to encounter after graduation. And the other students can get to know Villanova.

A debater has the burden of intellectual and religious duties to consider when he leaves this campus, and this expresses the Villanova which needs representation. There is a need for much more emphasis on this type of activity by Villanova.

Other Schools Try

Notre Dame has a debating team in nearly every large tourney in the country. Tiny Saint Joseph's of Philadelphia even sponsored a trip to England and Ireland. These schools realize the advantages gained by displaying their intellectual wares to brother schools and to the public. They know that it pays to advertise the whole school: they do not believe in hiding academics behind a halftime score. It is doubtful that Villanova will attract students and scholars in desirable number so long as the sports page news is not supplemented.

What is, after all, the IDEA OF A UNIVERSITY?

Dr. Nova, Political Exile, Finds Freedom In America

By Joe Meehan

America has benefitted greatly by the influx of political refugees to its shores, and this year Villanova received its share of the intellectual wealth in the person of Dr. Fritz Nova.

Dr. Nova, who was expelled from both Nazi Germany and Fascist Italy for political reasons, joined the University history department in September, 1953. He brings with him a background rich in experience.

Twice he was forced to interrupt his studies. Dr. Nova attended the University of Berlin's Graduate School of Political Science. In 1936, with increasingly strong pressure exerted upon leaders of Catholic Action group by the Nazis, he was forced to seek refuge in Italy.

Resuming his studies, the doctor attended the University of Milan for three years, and was within three months of receiving his doctorate of law degree when Mussolini's Fascists caused his expulsion from the school.

Invited To Vatican

Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, now Pope Pius XII, was then Secretary of State to Pope Pius XI. Hearing of the student's situation, he invited Professor Nova to study at the Gregorian University, one of the Pontifical schools in Vatican City. However, once more political pressure intervened and he was forced to flee the country.

Dr. Nova came to the United States and took out citizenship papers. He studied at Haverford College and at the University of Pennsylvania, receiving his Bachelor's and Master's degrees in history. Asked how he felt about his new citizenship, the doctor replied, "I never had reason to regret my loss of home country; I find myself fully in agreement with the form and philosophy of government in the United States; I had supported these ideas in Germany, too."

Attends Nuremberg Trails

In 1944, the professor joined the United States Army and immediately became an NCO in Counter-Intelligence. With his fluent knowledge of German, Italian and English, he was appointed to the interviewing team whose work preceded the historic Nurenberg war crimes trials.

Included among those whom Staff Sergeant Nova interviewed were many of the men responsible for the gas-chamber execution of his father, a former teacher at the University of Berlin. After the conclusion of the trials, he was part of a team which interviewed all of the higher ecclesiastical officials in the American Zone of Germany, sounding out their opinion on the occupation and the conduct of American soldiers in Germany.

2 Years In Pentagon

After his honorable discharge in 1945, Dr. Nova worked in the Pentagon in the Research Intelligence Department. For two years he was engaged in the major project of comparing and analyzing facts found in German documents.

Since leaving government service, the professor has been teaching first as an instructor of Modern European History and German Area Studies at Haverford College, later as Chairman of the History Department at Pennsylvania Military College, where he was a full professor.

The influence of Father Saelmann, one of the four Dutch priests studying at Villanova last year, led him here. He presently resides in suburban Morton, with Mrs. Nova and their two children.

NFCCS Readies Clothing Drive

Villanova students, who led all local schools last year in the collection of old clothes for foreign countries, are again urged to begin gathering garments for the NFCCS drive, Bob Ervin, chairman of the program, stated.

The annual drive will begin next week, with containers placed in all the resident halls and in the pie shop.

"Help another less fortunate than yourself," Ervin requests of Villanovans. "Contributing to the welfare of the overseas poor is certainly in the spirit of the Lenten season," he said. "I'm sure the students will again come through as they did last year, when our collections were the largest of those of any school in this area."

The National Federation of Catholic College Students sponsors this clothing drive for the foreign countries each year.

ICG Session At Drexel

Three of the nine Villanova students attending a model session of the State House of Representatives at Drexel Institute of Technology on March 6 received appointed positions. Robert Gerstung as chairman of the committee on Business and Industry during the morning session and Don Seaton and John Reira as parliamentarian and Sergeant-of-Arms, respectively, during the afternoon session won elected posts.

Villanova was one of nine schools which sent representatives. Others were Penn, Rosemont, Bryn Mawr, Temple, Haverford, Swarthmore, West Chester, and Drexel, the host school.

The one-day session, which included committee meetings in the morning and a general assembly in the afternoon, was conducted in preparation for the state-wide model House which will be held in Harrisburg on April 8, 9, and 10.

Thomas Knestout, chairman of the Villanovan Delegation, stated that plans are being made to take the group to the state session in April.

Spirituals Up 1%

Evening chapel attendance underwent a sharp rise this week as a result of a campus-wide campaign launched by the Vice President's office.

General directives were posted in all dormitorics recently and personal warnings of severe consequences were given to those with spotty chapel records. Two-day suspensions were meted out to flagrant violators.

Recent figures show chapel participation approaching an all-time high. Threats of further disciplinary action have led speculators to predict a marked upward trend, levelling off toward the end of the fiscal year.

Law Test Deadline Near

Only two weeks remain for prospective Law School applicants who plan to take the Law School Admission test at Villanova on April 10 to file their completed applications with the Educational Testing Service, P. O. Box 52, Princeton, N. J.

Completed applications must be in the Princeton office by April 1.

A.A.A. Expands Services To Meet Church Needs

A.A.A. does not signify the American Automobile Association. These initials stand for a group which is nearly as widespread, and renders far more valuable services—the American Augustinian Apostolate. The scope of this apostolate extends from east to west—Long Island to San Diego; and from north to south—Wisconsin to Oklahoma, Massachusetts to Florida.

The Order of Saint Augustine was founded "that all who enter it may not only direct their attention to the attainment of evangelical perfection by the earnest and faithful observance of the three vows, but they may also labor with untiring zeal to promote the salvation of their fellow men." The opening chapter of the Constitution continues; "While keeping this object ever in view, and persevering therein to the end of our lives, we may, whenever Mother Church requires our co-operation in any way, extend (our apostolate), as our Holy Father Augustine says, . . . to the needs of the Church."

400 Strong

The above paragraph epitomizes the history of the Augustinians in the United States from the foundation of Old Saint Augustine's parish at Philadelphia in 1796 to the most recent establishment in the same city.

At the present date, Augustinians number more than four hundred priests in two American provinces. More than two hundred American men are preparing themselves for this same priesthood in two novitiates and as many major seminarics.

Here, in outline form, is the list of institutions which are staffed by American Augustinians.

Parishes	38
Universities	2
College	1
High Schools	11
Novitiates	2
Seminaries	3

Mission Work Renewed

The efforts of the majority of members are expended in the field of education. Nonetheless, approximately one-hundred and fifty priests are engaged in parish work. Still others devote themselves entirely to an indefatigable preaching apostolate. For several years men have been active as chaplains in the armed forces of our country. One of the most welcome additions to the agenda, was the renewal of foreign missionary activity on the island of Japan.

It is, indeed, true, that the Order of Saint Augustine is fulfilling the raison d'etre of its existence in the United States of America. The gamut of sacerdotal activity is broad; Augustinians have genrously expanded their resources, and sincerely responded to "the needs of the Church." In this, they are "of one mind and one heart" with Augustine — in God and His Church.

Four Debaters In Eastern Meet

Villanova's debaters, Bob Tomonto, Mark McCormick, Joe Roddy, and Bob Gerstung, were among the speakers from nearly seventy colleges who competed in the Seventh Annual Brooklyn College Invitational Tournament, March 12 and 13. They compiled a record of five wins and five losscs amid some of the stiffest competition in Eastern debating.

Science - minded men from Massachusetts Institute of Technology won the tournament, held on the national topic, "Free Trade"; Temple was second and Notre Dame, third.

A cross-examination style debate with Yeshiva University will be held in Seminar 3 of the library this afternoon at 4:30.

Seniors To Sell Prom Souvenirs

In answer to the response by many people at Villanova, the Class of 1954 will sell souvenir plates, the same type which were given as favors at its prom last month, said Ted Sheehan, chairman of the affair. The sale will begin late this week and will work through the Book Store in Mendel Hall.

Mr. Sheehan stated further that the total price for the plate plus the black gift box is two dollars and that the full price must be paid when the orders are placed. Delivery date is at present uncertain but will definitely be before the current semester ends.

"The plate carries a beautiful picture of the University Chapel on its front and a brief history of the Chapel and Villanova University on the rear," said Sheehan.

Heavy Baseball Slate Released

Bill McGarry Will Supplement Power Potential

By Tom Smith

When Villanova's varsity baseball club dresses for the April 1 opener with Vermont, its broad-shouldered left fielder may still be a bit amazed—that he is pulling a flannel shirt over his head rather than issue of Uncle Sam's khaki.

Bill McGarry shook his head in wonder as he recalled his recent experience with the armed forces of our country. One of the most welcome additions to the agenda, was the renewal of foreign missionary activity on the island of Japan.

The sighs of relief by Villanova's "Arts"—football coach Art Raimo and baseball tutor Art Mahan—on hearing of Bill's return possibly added to the velocity of this month's winds.

Bill McGarry

Still, the six-foot flysnatcher must wince when he recalls all the trouble he went to in packing, and leaving for home.

Two-Sport Man

After a summer of hard work, the C&F junior will report to Raimo's football squad. Bill said he's looking forward to starting at one of the half-back spots next season, even though he didn't see much action in 1953.

However, that knee which the Army medics frowned on may be an obstacle to extended duty by the 195-pounder this season. Bill said doctors have advised him that if the knee is hit again, a permanent injury may result. But this doesn't bother the chunky all-round athlete, as he visualizes the end sweeping, pass defense, blocking and tackling which the fall breezes will blow his way.

High School Standout

And mentioning blocking, Bill's face glowed as he recalled a big moment on the scholastic gridiron at Chaminade High School. The citizen of East Rockaway, L. I., admitted he was never much of a blocker, and described one of the first blocks he threw. It sprang the ball carrier loose, flashed a beam

Blue and White Day returns to Villanova May 8, the day after the Junior Prom, with a lacrosse game between Baltimore's world champions and the Philly All-Stars as an added feature. Other innovations include varsity-oldtimer get-together in golf and basketball, and Ed Geisz's second Swim-o-rama. Seton Hall and Ithaca are the opponents in track and baseball, while the oldtimers provide the initial test for Art Raimo's split-T in the windup of spring practice.

Villanova's old grads were fairly prominent in the All-Service basketball team recently announced. Paul Arizin was top choice for a first team which included Johnny O'Brien, Ernie Beck and Dick Groat. Larry Hennessy, with a 33 point season's average, was sixth man. By the way, Larry engaged in an early season encounter with Arizin in which he was outscored 39-38. The tote this time: Hennessy, 51-49. The two will be playing together for the first time on Blue and White Day, against Schafer and Co. on the outdoor courts.

Speaking of prominent Mainliners, Bob Cooke of the New York Herald Tribune devoted his column last week to Bill Hegarty, currently in his senior year after completing his first season of pro football. Seems that Bill has decided to throw his hat into the ring as a heavyweight boxer. According to the column, Bill's manager, one Harry Stickevers, is quite high on his latest acquisition. "Hegarty has strength, courage, and a good punch," says Stick, "but what I like most is his disposition. He's mean, real mean. Doesn't like people." Sounds encouraging, Careful, Marciano.

The "All" teams are out again with their usual conglomeration of weird picks. The All-Pennsylvania team, as in football, seems to be the prize of them all, with Sihugo Green, unanimous All-Opponent Nothing, on the first team along with Tucker, Ricketts, Gola, and Jesse Arnelie. Bob Schafer's 836 points netted him a spot on the second team, a much better fate than Jack Devine's, who drew a blank even on the honorable mentions, which included about 300 jokers from upstate. John was second in the area behind Gola in rebounds, third in scoring, and the Wildcat's MVP—and seventh man on Philly's All-city. First team included Penn's Dick Helyum and LaSalle's Wacky O'Hara. Seems like McCarthy is investigating the wrong things.

Madison Garden fans will get a chance to see a Villanova five in action for the first time in many, many a moon, with the announcement that the Wildcats are in the field of the Holiday Festival to be played December 27, 28, and 31. The lineup sounds more like the NIT, with La Salle, Dayton, Niagara, Duquesne, St. Johns, Syracuse, and UCLA on the card besides the Mainliners.

Club Faces Schedule of 25-Games

By Harry Nash

A 25-game baseball schedule for 1954—one of the heaviest diamond listings in Villanova history — was released last Thursday by the Athletic Front Office.

The schedule includes such Eastern stand-outs as Penn, Army, Penn State, Navy and Fordham.

Open Vs. Vermont

The opening engagement, against Vermont on April 1, kicks off a string of 12 home games and 13 away contests. The first four get-togethers will be played here at Villanova—against Vermont, Colby, Princeton and Dartmouth.

Art Mahan's boys will play through until May 29, closing against Fordham in New York. The club will play only four opponents twice—Seton Hall, St. Joseph's, LaSalle and West Chester.

Army, Navy Away

The Army and Navy games will both be played away; Penn will be engaged at River Field, the customary site of the sole rivalry presently existing between these two institutions, except for golf.

The VU-Ithaca game will be played May 8 behind the stadium as part of the mammoth Blue and White Day program.

Mahan Approves

The new schedule is a slight contrast when considering the '53 slate, which included only 20 games. Mahan expects the heavier line of competition to benefit his team a great deal; he is of the opinion that "college teams play too short a schedule to accurately determine their abilities and develop their potential."

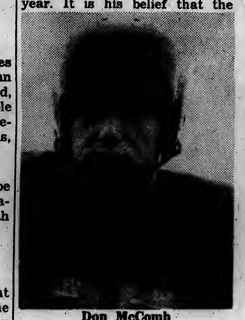
Game times on weekdays is 2:30 in the afternoon, and on Saturdays, 2:00 p.m.

The '54 schedule includes eight new teams that were not present among last season's foes. These are: Vermont, Colby, Dartmouth, Navy, LaSalle, St. Joe's, Graterford and Catholic University.

Art Raimo Plans Split-T Switch; Frosh Prominent

By Joe Heaps

Busy days are ahead for the coaching staff and members of the Villanova football team.



Spring practice starts today, and, in the twenty days allowed by the NCAA for such drills, Coach Art Raimo and his associates plan to lay the groundwork in the institution of the increasingly-popular split-T formation here at Villanova. The fundamentals of blocking, spacing, and running of plays will be stressed during this practice, which will permit the coaches to concentrate on adjustments and details when the squad returns in the fall.

Blue-White Day Climax

The climax of the practice will be on Blue and White Day—May 8—when the varsity will again meet the challenge of the Old-timers—a team composed of past Villanova ball-players.

Emphasis On Split-T

Raimo states several reasons for the change in offense this year. It is his belief that the split-T is the finest formation and that the material he has to work with is suited to the new offense. Another factor is the large number of players from this year's Freshman club who will be eligible next season. Most of these men are aggressive and quick—attributes which are essential to the fast-moving attack. Since these players will be around for three major years, Coach Raimo will have a nucleus for future split-T teams.

Don McComb

Albertus-Paced Linksmen To Engage 10 Opponents

By Bob Strayton

Paced by the only veteran on the club—and one of the leading collegiate golfers in the nation last year—Bill Albertus, Villanova's linksmen open their 1954 schedule on April 6 against the Hawks of St. Joseph's.

Albertus, a senior, is the captain of this year's club, which shows much promise. Other potential standouts for the Wildcat golfers are Lou Blanchet and Jack Kelly.

Qualifying rounds for the seven positions on the team were held last week at the Main Line Golf Courses, with 13 men vying for places. The team will use Aronimink Country Club for their home course, however.

This year's aggregation faces a grueling 10 meet slate, which will be highlighted by a triangular meet against Fordham and Princeton, and the Blue-White day contest between ex-Villanova golfers and this year's club.

Devine Is MVP; Schafer Recieves Palumbo Award

Main Liners Honored By Jersey Club

By Bob Strayton

Jack Devine, the captain of Villanova's 1953-54 basketball team, was voted the Most Valuable Player by his fellow teammates last Wednesday night at the Villanova Club of New Jersey annual sports banquet at the Camden Sports Center.

Devine, who was the steadying influence on the team this past season, was lauded by both the players and coach Al Severance for his all-around performance. A 12.5 rebounding average proved Devine's off-the-boards prowess, while his 14.5 points per game was second only to Bobby Schafer, who had a 27.0 effort.

Seven Get Trophies

Seven lettermen of this year's squad received gold basketballs

Jack Devine

in appreciation for their fine performances. Among these were: Bob Schafer, Devine, Marty Milligan, Larry Tierney, John Cirino, Tom Foley, and Jim Smith. This year's team, without one senior on the club, compiled an admirable 20-11 record.

Palumbo Award

The Palumbo Award, a trophy which is given annually by the Philadelphia Sports Writers Association, will be awarded to Villanova's Bobby Schafer at the Writers' eighth annual banquet to be held at the 'Warwick Hotel tonight.

Schafer, who led the Wildcats and most of the country this season in total points, will be the third Villanova basketball player to receive the trophy. Villanova's Paul Arizin and Jim Lord both received the coveted award for their fine ball-playing a few years ago.

4th Highest Scorer

His phenominal total of 836 points this past season makes Schafer the fourth highest scorer in major basketball history. Only Frank Selvy of Furman, Johnny O'Brien of Seattle, and Walter Dukes of Seton Hall have ever surpassed this one-year mark.

In 31 games, Schafer tallied 287 field goals and 262 free throws to rank as fifth-highest scorer in the country, with a 27.0 average.

Varsity In Intra-Squad Games As Opener Nears

With milder weather as a backdrop, Villanova's varsity baseballers ran through an inter-squad game last week in preparation for the April 1 engagement with Vermont, the opener of a 25-game schedule.

Before the intra-club contest, Coach Art Mahan had his charges concentrating on hitting, fielding and running. On the more windy afternoons, the varsity baseballers rounded into shape by running.

Opener Apr. 1

Observers close to the squad report that the diamond crew seems to have rounded into playing condtion for the opener, coming up in nine days in Goodreau Stadium.

Three pitchers — Don Sommers, Dan Severino and Dick Scott, worked in the practice game and insiders labeled their efforts "very good." Scott, unbeaten in six appearances on the mound last year, and Sommers are southpaws and Severino, a sophomore prospect, tosses righthanded.

Sommers, Scott Promising

If Sommers and Scott conquer their weaknesses for missing the plate, the Wildcat baseballers may be ready to roll. Mahan welcomed back more than a few familiar operatives from last year's club, but because of the brisk March winds blasting across Goodreau Stadium, Mahan had to let his men run until warmer days drifted onto the Main Line.

Then the baseball hopefuls were able to start throwing to unlimber winter-stiff arms and to begin swinging from the heels to sharpen study-weary batting eyes for the campaign ahead.

Joe Deerskoski, who grabbed top spot in the Intramural foul-shooting contest last week in Alumni Gym. A sophomore, Deerskoski won over 200 contestants with 47 out of 50 fouls sunk.

meris, Art Rohach, and John Feruolo will be vying with holdover Dick Scott for the position.

Scott incidentally, is one of the gridmen who is also a mainstay with Art Mahan's baseball nine. Others are Jack Helm and Bill McGarry. Coach Raimo hopes these three—all backs—will get an opportunity sometime between ball games to run through the new plays.

McComb, Floyd Out

A notable absentee from spring practice will be the fine sophomore end Don McComb. A shoulder injury will prevent him from playing. Reserve center Tom Floyd is recovering from an operation and will also be unable to practice for several weeks.

across his coach's face, and surprised his teammates. Bill laughingly remarked that since he was never especially adept in blocking, his teammates handed him the ball frequently on offense rather than count on his blocking.

One afternoon they allowed him to run so often that indirectly set up his biggest moments in athletics. That day Bill chalked up 39 points, by smashing to six touchdowns and booting three extra points.

The best way $1 from you can help end World War III before it starts.

Take a look at one of the dollars in your pocket. Believe it or not, that dollar might buy you the thing you want most in all the world—peace.

That single dollar can help send Truth through the Iron Curtain—Truth to 70 million restless, freedom-loving captives of Communism who can do more than anyone else to stop Soviet Aggression dead in its tracks!

Radio Free Europe (an independent American enterprise supported by private citizens like yourself) is getting the Truth through to them now . . . Truth to counteract Soviet lies about you . . . Truth about their own countries and their Soviet masters.

RFE is sending Truth day and night, from 21 powerful radio transmitters.

Your dollar can help do even more. It can send at least 100 words of Truth and hope where they are needed most. It can help build new transmitters, send more programs. It can help stop World War III before it starts.

You should send that dollar to Radio Free Europe today. There's nothing more important you can do with it. Mail it to "Crusade for Freedom," c/o your local Postmaster.

Mc CARTHY'S METHODS: LIKE HUNTING RATS . . .

(From the Beacon, University of Portland, Oregon)

The situation could be likened to the difficulties of a farmer in ridding his barn of rats. Now a farmer knows it is one thing to detect the presence of rat infestation and point out individuals, but quite another to exterminate the pests. Poisoning and trapping them seem the only alternatives to the absurd extremes of waiting for them to die or burning down the barn, but unfortunately both methods are liable to injure innocent animals as well as guilty rats.

In spite of the difficulty, a wise farmer won't throw up his hands in despair, but will place his bait carefully enough to avoid evil effects.

We believe the senator from Wisconsin has the best rat exterminator yet in sight, but we feel he might be more careful how he uses it.

CANADA: BEER AND RUGBY DON'T MIX—

Constables were assigned to the University of Toronto's annual rugby train to make sure no one brought beer aboard. They were instructed to stop all students carrying suspicious parcels.

Last year the train suffered $500 damage at the hands of the rugby fans. The cost was paid through a general levy of students.

WVIL A.M. Show Draws Comment

"Pete and Jack's Breakfast Club," Villanova's first morning show, made it debute last week on station WVIL.

"Pete and Jack", Pete Peterson and Jack Kneafsey, offer an hour of requested recordings, time checks and assorted wittiicisms from 7:30 to 8:30 each weekday morning.

Inaugurating the morning program to "pep up the morning hours at Villanova," the two seniors work with "records, sound effects, and a watch."

Kneafsey was quite pleased with audience response after the first week of broadcasting. "I've had favorable comments from some," he said, "and a lot of kidding from others. We don't mind being kidded about the show," he laughed, "any criticism, favorable or not, means people are listening."

"Mother Of The Year" To Give Pre-Cana Talk

Mrs. E. Bradley Bailey, honored last year as Catholic Mother of the Year, will speak at the third Pre-Cana lecture Sunday at 3 P. M. in the Commerce and Finance auditorium.

Mrs. Bailey's topic will be "A Catholic Wife and Mother Looks at Marriage."

The mother of eleven children, Mrs. Bradley has lectured in several dioceses on family life and is the author of several articles on marriage and the home. She has written a book, "You First, My Dear."

Appointed Chairman of the Archbishop's Committee for Christian Homes and Families in 1952, Mrs. Bailey was chosen to speak because of her extensive background as a marriage consultant.

Young couples contemplating marriage are invited to attend the series. Each lecture is followed by a "question and answer" session.

Last Sunday Rev. Robert E. Regan O. S. A. discussed "Psychology of the Sexes." Fr. Regan is directing the Pre-Cana series for the fourth consecutive year.

Next week's speaker will be Dr. Joseph L. Finn.

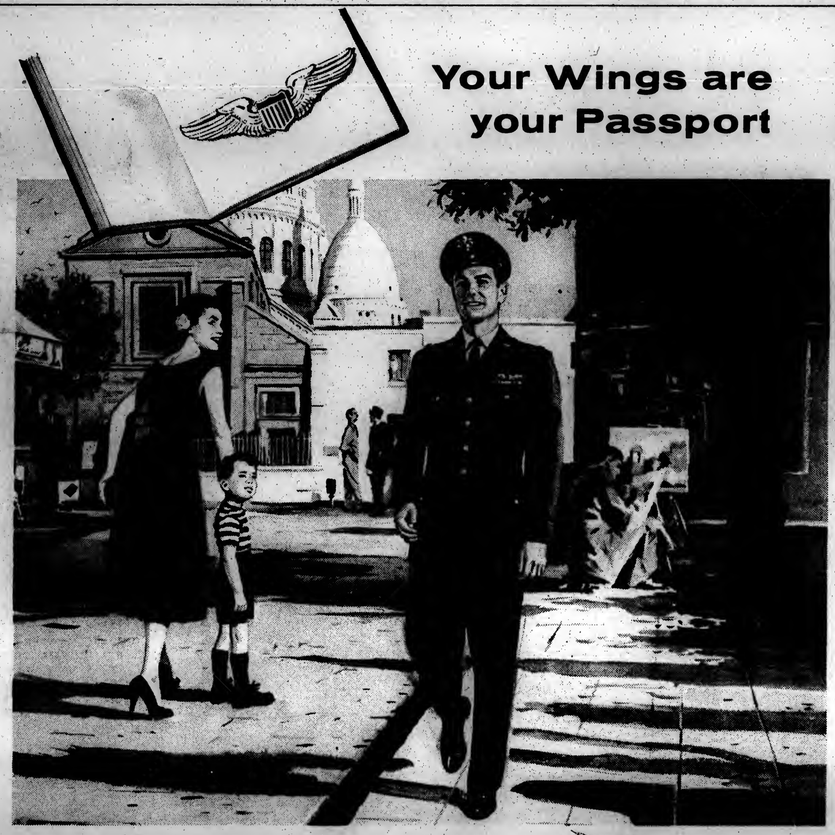
fourth year are eligible. This was introduced by Senior class president Ted Sheehan, who stated that all students should have an equal chance to gain the coveted honor, and that five-year students held an unfair advantage. The council passed this motion by an 11 to 9½ margin in the closest vote of the evening.

Faculty members of the selection committee include the Registrar, the Dean of Student Activities and the Deans of the Arts, Engineering, and C&F schools.

Other Motions

Other activities of the meeting by the student leaders included the passage of a resolution, to be brought before the student-faculty committee, that Villanova hire a full-time trained guidance counsellor to advise students upon their studies and to handle any problems brought to him by them.

Another motion passed by the group was that campus organizations be allowed to have three off-campus social events a year.



A committee was set up to look into the campus organizations and evaluate their activities, membership rules, finances, and organization. No time limit was set for a final report.

Frosh's Story In Magazine

William Davies, freshman engineer, wrote the lead article in the April issue of the national magazine, Flying Models.

The magazine asked Davies to write the story after an airplane model which he designed and built was the combat winner in the New York Daily Mirror Flying Fair last August.

A veteran of many model plane contests, the Maplewood, N. J. youth included a drawing of his plane, Chopper IV, with the story.

Concert Band Draws 500 At Philadelphia Concert

With approximately half of the season remaining, the Villanova Concert Band has already distinguished itself as the best Concert group to represent Villanova in many years. Under the direction of Frank Licopoli, the band set an all time attendance record on March 9, when it performed before an audience of over 500 at Saint Elizabeth's parish in Philadelphia.

The engagement at Saint Elizabeth's was also one of the longest concerts on record for the band, lasting for two and a half hours. Highlights of the evening were musical solos by Joe Valenti, and Rudy Jones, a graduate of the University, and a trumpet rendition of Old Man River by Bobby Schiller.

Visit Nurses

On March 16 the band visited the nurses home of Saint Agne's Hospital. Tonight they are entertaining the nurses at Fitzgerald Mercy Hospital in Lansdowne. Later on in the season the group will make a trip to Wilmington Delaware. Sometime during April the band will give its annual concert at St. Mary's Hospital.

The Concert season will conclude its tour with two concerts here at Villanova, one for Mother's Day and the other for the students and faculty members. In the past the student concert has not been too well attended. However, since this is the best and the largest group in years, Rev. Joseph Burns, O. S. A., moderator of the band, has expressed the hope that as many students and faculty members as possible will attend the Student Concert this year.

Among the selections being presented by the band this year are three popular overtures: the Orpheus Overture, the Overture To The Chocolate Soldier, and the Light Cavalry Overture. As is the usual case, there are quite a few very good marches contained in this year's program. Included in this group are such tunes as The Band of America March, Stars and Stripes Forever, the Thunderer, "V" for Villanova, and Glory of the trumpets.

News In Brief

PRESIDENTS MEET

Villanova Could Benefit From NSA, Officer Says

"Villanova could both contribute and derive a great deal of good from membership in the National Student Association," Gene Keating, NSA vice-president, told the Villanovan last week.

Keating, a graduate of the College of St. Thomas, St. Paul, Minn., asserted the different functions of the NFCCS and the NSA. "The NFCCS highlights the fact that it is a 'broad student apostolate' for Catholic college students."

Members of the Student-Faculty committee resolved at a meeting yesterday evening to postpone Villanova's joining the National Student Association until a "later date".

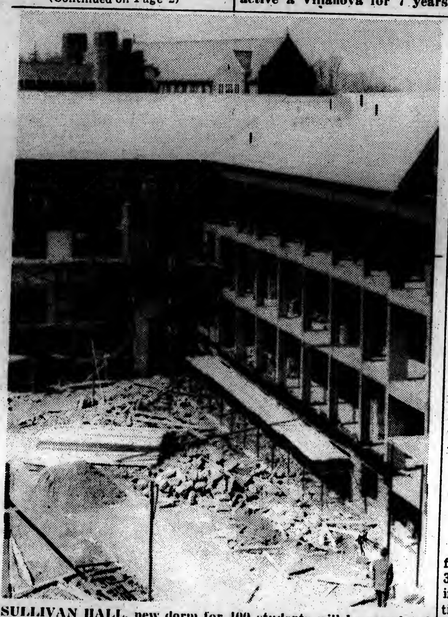
Rev. George McLoughlin, OSA, Dean of Studen Activities and Moderator of the Student Council stated that the NFCCS will be given a longer trial to determine whether this organization can fulfill as well the aims of the N.S.A. The NFCCS has been active a Villanova for 7 years.

Dr. Finn, Med Prof, To Speak

Dr. Joseph L. Finn, assistant professor of obstetrics and gynecology (science of the functions and diseases of women), at Jefferson Medical College will speak at Sunday's Pre-Cana conference in the Commerce and Finance auditorium.

At this, the third lecture of the pre-marriage series, Dr. Finn will discuss the medical aspects of marriage, childbearing and rythm.

Dr. Finn is a graduate of Holy Cross College and Jefferson Medical School, where he specialized in his present field.



Of his five years in the Armed Forces, Dr. Finn spent two years with General "Vinegar Joe" Stillwell's Expeditoinary Forces in China. He is married and has three children.

"Mother Of Year" Speaks

"A Catholic Mother Looks at Marriage" was the title of last Sunday's talk by Mrs. E. Bradley Bailey. Mrs. Bailey, the mother of 11 children, was elected as the Catholic Mother of the Year in 1953.

Mrs. Bailey urged young couples not to practice any forms of birth control in marriage and supported her convictions with the adage, "God will provide." A question and answer period followed her talk.

Rev. Robert E. Regan, O.S.A., director of the pre-cana serics, welcomed the speaker.

Been shopping for a dormitory lately? If not, you'll be surprised at the prices. Everything is going up—including Sullivan Hall, a bargain at only one million dollars.

Figures released by Thomas Leary, foreman for the Farrell Construction Company and boss of the Sullivan Hall construction, show that Villanova now has a "Million Dollar Dormitory."

Leary, who has been with the building concern for the last fourteen years, is responsible for everything concerned with the construction of the hall. He was responsible for the shovel with which Father Donnellon broke ground and he will be there to hand over the silver trowel for the laying of the cornerstone.

To keep occupied in the meantime, he daily supervises one hundred and fifteen workers and keeps track of thirty-five contractors and their sub-contrac-

Fr. Krupa, Cast Of 22 Ready For Four-Day Run

The relieved director and the spirited cast of "Stalag 17", Belle Masque's spring production are anxiously awaiting their opening night. The three act comedy-melodrama begins a four night run in the Field House tomorrow at 8p. m.

Rev. William J. Krupa, the director, related that the willingness to work which the cast has shown is responsible for his feelings. Father added that the cast is "completely sold on the play."

The three leads in the play showed this when they fairly beamed with enthusiasm. Tom Kern (Sefton) thinks the cast will do a job comparable to the professional cast which staged "Stalag" in Philadelphia last month.

Bob Erskine, the only one of the leads with previous Belle Masque experience — remarked that "Stalag" would be "one of the best" productions the drama group has presented.

Harry Anger, the third lead as Harry Shapiro, said Father Krupa was mainly responsible for the success of the show. "He makes us look more polished and professional," Anger said.

Contest Helped

Cast members believe that working in front of an audience at the Harcum Drama Festival helped iron out many of the kinks. The cast took second place in the competition with less than 24 hours notice to prepare.

The overflowing spirit of the cast showed itself at a practice session last week. Bernie Coyne,

Voice of Villanova On Station WIP

A group of 12 WVIL members represented Villanova Sunday night at 10:30 on station WIP's radio workshop program, "Ear to the Future," a series of competitive broadcasts by colleges in the Philadelphia area.

Representing Villanova were: Bernie Coyne, Frank Gehring, Al Nowak, Bob Gerstung, Ed Daly, George Minser, Dave Peterson, Bill Kelly, Dick Fitzpatrick, Jack Fink, Stan Rodkin, and Jack Padova.

The program, written and produced by Bernie Coyne, introduced the audience to a group of men in a "bull-session" in the student lounge. An informal discussion of juvenile delinquency filled the half hour program.

Traditional Mother's Day Inaugurates Junior Week

Tickets for Mother's Day, the first event of Junior Week, May 3-8, will go on sale next week in the Pie Shoppe according to ticket co-chairmen Erich Baumgardner and Ed Klinges.

Ted Clarkson, director of the day's affairs, has announced the following schedule for juniors and their mothers:

11 a.m.—Mass in the university chapel with a sermon by the president, Very Reverend James A. Donnellan, O. S. A.

12 noon—planting of the class tree.

12:15 and 1:15—luncheon in the students' and priests' dining rooms.

Afternoon activities will include a band concert in the field house, and a display of the Diaper Dan baby contest pictures in the library.

Benediction in the Chapel and a catered dinner in the field house will complete the day.

Contest Deadline

Clarkson urges mothers of juniors to get their sons' baby pictures entered before the contest deadline, April 20. The junior voted the "prettiest baby" will wear the traditional Diaper Dan crown. Last year's winner was Bob Gold.

Know Your Product . . .

In a "letter to the editor" last week a member of the debating society at Villanova pointed out the need for more scholastic emphasis in the University's public relations program to supplement our sports notoriety—a justified plea.

We would like to reconsider, however, one note of this letter: "A debater has the burden of intellectual and religious duties to consider when he leaves this campus . . ." This, to us, suggests a note of self importance.

Every student of Villanova has "the burden of intellectual and religious duty" to consider at all times, whether he stays here on campus, goes home for the weekend ,or represents our school formally at another institution.

Just what is this religious duty of which we speak? Does it mean to be proud to be a Catholic? To show your friends that you attend Mass every Sunday or every morning? Is it a responsibility we have to non-Catholic college students to try to get them to understand Catholism or to set an example for them?

We believe that religious (and at the same time intellectual) duty for most of us is of a much more basic and vital nature than any of these notions.

In this modern world of science, experimentation, hypothesizing and proofs, religion, and especially Catholicism is looked upon by many as a sort of intellectual suicide. In the lab we are told not to accept anything as fact without PROOF. Hypotheses are not fact; theories hold no water as truth;—faith doesn't count.

How then, can Catholics base their whole lives upon a religion, for many dogmas of which, they have no proof? Is this faith intellectually justified?*

We wonder just how many Catholics, when faced with this question would have an intelligent answer. Most non-Catholics who inquire about Catholicism, its dogma, its practices, do so to try to understand Catholicism better. They are inquisitive; they may be searching for a true faith themselves.

Catholics, in many instances, mock their own religion by not knowing what they believe in or why they believe in it—a sad situation.

Our duty, as Catholics, is not then, in the field of publicity; it lies in our own intellectual realm. We must demonstrate and prove Catholicism to ourselves; only then we will be able to show others that we possess a worthwhile, justifiable faith.

It is said that to be a salesman one must present his product as the best on the market; to be an outstanding salesman, one must know and feel that his product is, without a doubt, the only such product worth selling.

* Go to the library and read "The Will to Believe," an essay by William James.

service and representative organization for all colleges throughout the nation. The cooperation between the two groups has always been most cordial."

Applying his message to Villanova, which is considering joining NSA, Keating said that whenever the question of NFCCS and NSA arises, the National Director of the latter, Msgr. Joseph Schieder, insistes that the two groups complement each other and that Catholic schools should be encouraged to join both.

Giving Aid To Italians Calls For Delicate Hand

By Ed Daly

In trying to help stabilize the Italian government, the United States is confronted with an extremely delicate situation. On the one hand, it is absolutely vital to our defense plans that Italy have a strong, stable government, which it does not have now. On the other hand, interference on our part in Italy's domestic affairs would be the best way immaginable to prevent

DALY

Italy from attaining a sound government friendly to us. Therefore we must do whatever, we can to improve the positions of our friends in Italy, but the same time we must avoid injuring Italian national pride by being too obvious about it.

What We Can Do

Actually, what can we do? For one thing, we can take action right here in the United States by ammending the McCarran Act so as to relax some of the restrictions on Italian immigration. Italy is desperately crowded and faced with a severe unemployment problem. Yet with the restrictive immigration laws in force in this country only between five and six thousand Italians may enter the United States in a given year. Other countries, such as Canada, have severe restrictions on Italian immigrants.

Two Ideas

The solution to the problem is clear. There are two alternatives: first, to support Italy's surplus population indirectly by bolstering the Italian economy which is weakened by Italy's excess population, or, second, to admit part of that surplus population to the United States, where they can find employment and become self-supporting.

Obviously we cannot do this alone. At most, the United States might be prevailed upon to admit thirty to thirty-five thousand Italians a year, unless Congress completely reverses its stand. We must therefore encourage other nations which have ample room, such as Canada, Brazil, and Australia, to permit free Italian immigration. To be effective, Italian immigration cannot be much under two hundred and fifty thousand a year, and that a very conservative figure.

Trieste Trouble

The United States must also stand by its decision to give Zone A of Trieste to Italy. In the past we promised several times to aid Italy in recovering Trieste only to change our policy when Yugoslavia objected. Consequently many Italians have become suspicious of American promises on this matter and want to see results.

Next we must continue our economic aid to Italy. Because of its overcrowded population, of the exhausted farmlands in many regions, of the unprogressive farming methods employed by both landlords and peasants in southern Italy, and of the dire poverty of so many of her inhabitants, Italy is still faced with a more serious economic problem than some other western European nations. If Italy's surplus population problem can be solved, it is probable that this aid can be reduced sharply without serious effects. Otherwise it may have to go on at a high level for an extremely long time if we wish to save Italy from complete collapse.

We must also redouble our efforts at propaganda in Italy. In the past we have sometimes failed lamentably in this field, either because of a lack of experience on the part of the persons directing the propaganda, or because of a lack of tact on the part of American officials, particularly military officers. A particularly flagrant example of this is the case of one admiral who gave an interview to the Saturday Evening Post, in which he stated the only places in his command in Naples which were being placed under Italian control were the washrooms. The officer in question was disciplined of course, but the harm was already done. We must be careful to prevent repetition of this sort of thing.

Beyond these steps we cannot go. For us to intervene directly in Italian politics would have disasterous results. Therefore we must be all the more careful to do what we can and to do it well. If we succeed, Italy will be a great deal safer from communism; if we fail, we may ultimately have to fight the Italian communists ourselves to keep them from controlling Italy.

Working For Today Only Sure Future

By Bill Quinn

Has that long, lean man with the white whiskers been bothering you of late? Perhaps you, like so many others of your age, are pondering the question of just what the future holds in store . . .

Undeniably, it is an intriguing question and one that is insistently demanding attention. And if Uncle Sam seems to be of no immediate concern to your future, then perhaps you have been conjuring up all manner of horrible ends as the victim of a bomb one hundred times greater than the one that destroyed Hiroshima.

What is all this leading us to? Strange as it may seem, the train of thought proceeds directly to such things as the fourthcoming edition of the Lynx. But the Lynx is only an example, a selection of one single opportunity from the many that confront you today.

The President of the Coca-Cola Bottling company was once quoted in words to this effect: "The past is for failures. The future is for dreamers. And the present-day is for the man who is going places." They seem like good, solid, common-sense sentences.

But we are not getting away from the Lynx and from the other extra-curricular opportunities that are facing you at present. Primarily you are a student. Your job today is to get a good grade on that exam and to make those lecture periods truly periods for absorption. Granted, it is not as romantic as dreaming of fighting the "big, wide world," but nevertheless it is the only thing that you can do right now.

The deadline for the Lynx is one week from today. Your deadline is now. Nunc Age! The best plan tomorrow is a solid and beneficial today.

"Old Grad" Erupts

Dear Editor,

I am an old, old grad, but I ask you not to dismiss what I have to say as the senile pratter of an old man about the "good old days." What I have to say is this: Villanova is dead, the spirit of by-gone years has passed. If the current lackadaisacal attitude of the student body persists, Villanova will become another Temple.

I refer specifically to attendance and enthusiasm (or rather the lack of both) at athletic contests. I will not deal in generalities but cite specific instances like a handful of St. Peter's fans out-shouting us at a recent basketball game despite the fact that there must have been close to two thousand supposedly pro-Villanova students and spectators in the stands.

It was enough to make anyone boil when the cheerleader had to plead over the public address system for the students to sing the school songs! I turned to my companion and asked, "Is this Villanova? It is not as I remember it."

He's Stunned

For the past few years I have been stunned by the apathy and lack of interest displayed. Only for two brief weeks during the past football campaign against Fordham and Syracuse, only then did the living, throbbing, pulsating spirit that was and should be Villanova live.

Villanovans wake up; your athletic teams are always good, but with a little support they could be great!

The baseball season opens soon. This year Villanova has a team that could conceivably win the NCAA title. But they won't. Why? Because on beautiful spring afternoons students will lounge around the camus and will not take the trouble to make the long and arduous trek to the stadium to watch the games.

Great Team

Come on, you Wildcats, let's roll back the years and make up for lost time by supporting that good baseball team of yours, that team that needs so little to be great.

Sincerely yours,

A Spectre of the Past

In Human Relations:

Take Another's View—

By Rees James

The only claim to fame of the being called man is his power to reason. It is this faculty that places him second only to the angels in the order of creation. If man was a completely rational being he would never express opinions, because opinions are nothing but expressions of ignorance, and man's rationality cannot direct him towards ignorance and error. In such a situation, the only factor needed to control our expressions would be the rigid rules of logic.

Not Only Rational

Man, however, is not only a rational being. He is also a very physical being. The physical aspects of man's nature do a great deal to determine what a man says and does. It is love, fear, and prejudies that cause a man to express his opinions when he does not know what he is talking about. Unfortunately, man spends his earthly life in this condition, and must be accepted on these terms.

The thing that brought all this to mind was a bit of literary criticism we were reading the other day. The idea proposed in the material was that in order to appreciate aspects of the poetry of John Milton the reader must project himself into seventeenth century England and try to conform his mind as closely as possible to that of Milton. To capture fully the beauty of Pope's poetry the reader must adopt the ultra-classical, rational attitude with which Pope wrote.

Understanding Byron requires an understanding of the rebellious spirit of his times. This projecting of the mind does not require the changing of the reader's views. One may not care for Miltonic poetry, but the reason for the dislike will be more valid if they are based on an understanding of the position of the poet rather than upon any blind perusal of his work or, worst of all, hearsay.

The poetry was not created for the reader to pound and shape into a form compatible to his own viewpoint. It was written to express the ideas of the poet and must be regarded in that light.

Only Rational Approach

This idea is the only rational approach to literary criticism and has been recognized as such for quite a while. However, this is a purely academic consideration and as such, has little pertinency. The idea's importance, and the aspect of it that initially appealed to us, is its relevance and applicability to contemporary situations. By projecting himself into the viewpoints of fellow men a person is less prone to error due to his greater understanding.

The situation in Italy and France is poor as far as the influence of Communism is concerned. A great many Americans cannot understand how the peoples of those two nations can embrace Communism, so they express disgust over any affiliations with these countries and classify their peoples as opportunists and ingrates. If these Americans would place themselves in the position of the Italian laborers they would soon realize that they too would make any political affiliation to prevent their children from starving. This understanding might not change the observers attitude, but it certainly would place his opinions on a more intelligent foundation.

The same idea of tolerance can be applied to the questions of Fascism in Spain and the consorting of Red China by Great Britain and Canada. All these situations are wrong per se, but the condemnation of these countries by Americans should be tempered by a consideration of the viewpoints held by the peoples of these nations.

This tolerance of viewpoint can and must be carried over to the daily contacts of individuals. Before expressing ideas upon certain rules of the University, the student should realize the objective of the Administration and how this objective affects their attitude in formulating and enforcing the rules.

The student still might not like the rules but at least he will understand their purpose better. This understanding is needed right down the line of social living, even as to why you bring all the crackers and candy home and your room mate never brings any. It is only through the broadness and understanding gained by toleration that man can come close to realizing the potentialities of his rationality and be successful in his inate drive for truth.

Ex-Attorney General To Speak Father's Day

The Honorable James P. McGranery, former Attorney General of the United States, will be the main speaker at the Father-Son Banquet to be held Saturday, April 24th for the Senior Class, Chairman John M. Birle announced.

"The class was indeed fortunate in obtaining Judge McGranery", Birle said, "I feel positive that he will add the finishing touches to what appears will be a perfect day", he continued.

Jack Birle

Full Day Planned

The last social affair of the Senior Class, Father's Day will be held on the university campus on the first Saturday after Easter. The day will begin with Mass at 12:15 in the university chapel. Following this will be a luncheon, Seton Hall-Villanova baseball game, a swimming exhibition and the banquet in the Field House at six P.M.

The committee has sent letters to the fathers of all the Seniors inviting them to attend. All reservations may be made on campus through the Senior.

Judge McGranery has long been associated with Villanova. Although not an alumnus, he is a member of the Advisory Board of both the University and Law School. Judge McGranery is a former member of the United States House of Representatives and a former Federal Judge in addition to his post as Attorney-General.

Schola Will Sing At Retreat Mass

The Schola Cantorum will make its first public appearance on Wednesday of Holy Week, singing the Solemn Mass closing the Annual Retreat. Several months of rehearsal will be climaxed when the choir performs at this exercise, garbed in newly-acquired cassocks and surplices.

Under the direction of Dr. Harold Gill Reuschlein, its Choirmaster and Organist, the Schola has also been preparing for the inauguration of weekly Solemn Mass in the Chapel. These services have been tentatively scheduled for Wednesday evenings, beginning April 28.

For its first Solemn Mass in the Chapel the Schola has prepared Pietro Yon's "Missa Reginae Pacis". In the performance of the Yon Mass, Fr. Robert Sullivan, O. S. A., Dean of Arts and Sciences, will be the tenor soloist.

Mentzer Enters Regional Contest

Junior Arts student Thomas Mentzer won the campus oratorical contest and the opportunity to represent Villanova in the New York Journal-American's annual contest as he beat four other finalists last Wednesday evening in the C&F auditorium.

Mentzer will now compete in a regional test at St. John's University (Brooklyn, N. Y.) on April 28.

The contestants were required to prepare and deliver a five-minute talk on some phase of Abraham Lincoln's life.

Other Villanova finalists were Carmine M. Mancuso, Joseph T. McNulty, James R. Tomonto, and Joseph Tulli. The contest was conducted under the direction of Mr. Joseph T. Jonas, assistant professor of English.

The judges, all Villanova alumni, were: Richard J. Murray, '30, Frances J. Palacio, '29, and Murray P. Zealor, 41.

Colleges throughout the country enter candidates in the Hearst Contest. Finals are held in the Metropolitan Opera House in New York City.

Villanova students are invited to attend the regional test at St. John's in Brooklyn on Wednesday, April 28.

Ervin Opens Drive For Old Clothes

Villanova's Chapter of the National Federation of Catholic College Students started its annual clothing drive yesterday for needy students in Asia and Africa. Chairman Bob Ervin said that boxes have been placed in all dormitories and also the Pie Shop, and that any type of clothing is acceptable. Students were reminded that Villanova led the Philadelphia region in last year's drive.

Archbishop Celebrant

At its last meeting the Chapter discussed the success of the Marian Congress, held recently at Rosemont College. Over three hundred students attended the solemn high mass which began the proceedings. The Most Reverend John F. O'Hara, C. S. C., Archbishop of Philadelphia celebrated the mass, assisted by Rev. James Donnellon O. S. A., president of Villanova University, who acted as deacon. Rev. George McLaughlin, O. S. A., dean of Student Activities here, was the sub-deacon. After the mass, a communion breakfast was served to those attending.

Then, the delegates attended a forum in McShain Auditorium on the aspects of the Marian Year. Frank McDonough was the Villanova delegate to this affair.

$250 For Missions

Other news concerns the recent Shamokinaki Dance, held last February 14, at which $250 was collected for the benefit of the Augustinians missions in Japan, which are now under the direction of Rev. Thomas Purcell, O. S. A., former assistant chaplain at Villanova.

Last Sunday, Villanova University's delegates Bob Gold and Jim Rath attended the fourth Phiiadelphia Federation Meeting at Chestnut Hill College to discuss student government projects, legislation, and the low cost European tours to be held this summer.

MRS. E. BRADLEY BAILEY, elected "Catholic Mother of the Year" in 1953, answers questions of Frank Alfano and his guest after pre-can lecture Sunday. Rev. Robert E. Regan, OSA, is director of the conference series.

Law Test Next Week

Students are advised that only three days remain for prospective law school students to file their completed applications for the Law School Administration Test to be taken here on April 10.

Applications should be sent to the Educational Test Service, P. O. Box 592, Princeton, N. J., and they must be in the Princeton office by April 1.

A Bulletin of Information describing the admission test may be obtained from the Villanova law school.

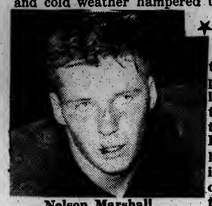
SPORTS CHATTER

By Harry Nash



FORMER VILLANOVA basketball great, Larry Hennessy, now stationed at Fort Eustis, Va., has lost none of the magnificent scoring touch he displayed so well under the tutelage of Al Severance. Hennessy play recently in a charity tournament in New Rochelle, N. Y.—the same tourney in which Larry played and incurred an NBAA 15-game suspension in his senior year at VU—and scored 47 points against spring-legged Johnny O'Brien, a youngster who recorded a few marks on his own while placing Seattle U. on the national basketball map. O'Brien, incidentally, found time for 45 points himself. He has a major league baseball career with the Pirates waiting for him—in a second base role—collaborating with brother Eddie at short, who is supposed to hold the diamond edge after playing in John's shadow at Seattle. Hennessy, of course, has the Philadelphia Warriors looking feverishly forward toward his return to civilian life, when he'll team with the likes of returnees Ernie Beck and Paul Arizin and present Warrior star Neil Johnston (NBA scoring champion) to form a array of scoring power that should have Eddie Gottlieb in a seventh heaven.

Jack Peters

JACK PETERS, a junior who alternated with Bob Haner in right field for Art Mahan last season, will have left field all to himself this year. Jack, a left-handed hitter, has been very impressive in pre-season work-outs, especially in his hitting, which has shown a steady rise of consistency over last year; his outfield work is heady and aided by a good arm—he'll combine with Bill McGarry in right and Chuck McGuckin in center to give Mahan an outfield whose offensive performances could be the key to the '54 club's success. The Wildcats lost to Drexel in the pre-regional NCAA play-offs last season, and this year, what with new pitching and infield help from a crop of impressive sophomores, could go much further. The game with Vermont behind the Stadium two days hence will be the first of four consecutive home engagements to open the campaign. If the good weather of late holds up, the team will get off to a better start, conditionwise, than that of last year, when a long stretch of very damp and cold weather hampered the pitchers especially

THE SPRING FOOTBALL drills that have been going on for the past week or so have provided Villanova student fans with an opportunity to grab a quick look-see at the new Split-T formation that Art Raimo is inaugurating this year. A lot of new ideas have been inserted into the offense especially by the coaching staff—most of which are the result of a visit by assistant coaches Joe Rogers and Alex Bell to the University of Maryland's practice sessions and strategy meetings. The practice routines have also been altered—there is only a five-minute conditioning period before the scrimmages, (three in first four days of drills last week) and no laps taken. A 'reaction' drill after the scrimmages in which coordination and change of direction with a split second notice are stressed is another innovation that has been installed.

A BIT OF IRONY is included in the fact that this is the first time that sophomore lineman Nelson Marshall has ever played for a split-T college club—and it was against Kentucky's split-T last season that the 205-pound New Yorker came into his own, as he established himself as a defensive workhorse, a role he assumed so capably for the remainder of the year. He'll be counted on heavily, especially on defense, in the club's attempt to right itself in '54 after the 4-6 '53 mark.

Relay Carnival April 17 Initiates Outdoor Track

By Jerry Dwyer

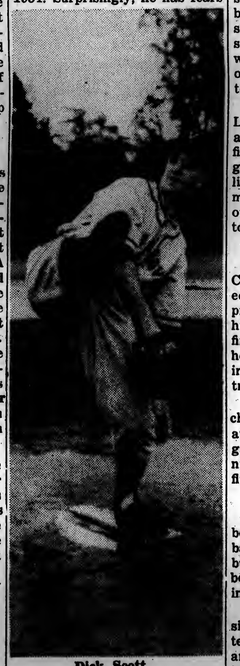
The first Collegiate Track Relay Carnival, to be held on April 17th at Randall's Island Stadium in New York, opens the 1954 outdoor track season for "Jumbo" Elliott's talented cindermen.

Spells Georgetown Meet

This new meet, the first of its kind, takes the place of the Georgetown dual meet which was originally scheduled for that date. The Collegiate Track Relay Carnival is also a continuation of the Seton Hall Relays, which were discontinued last year.

Penn Relays Included

Other meets in which the Villanova track aggregation will compete are: the Penn Relays at Franklin Field, on Apr. 23-24; duals meets against Fordham (May 1), Seton Hall (May 8), which will be Blue-White Day; West Chester (May 15), and La Salle (May 18); the IC4A finale will be the last meet of the year, and will be held at Randall's Stadium on May 28-29.



"Call It!"

Surprise In '53, Scott Figures Prominently Now

By Tom Smith

A pitcher who tossed two shutouts and failed to taste defeat in six games last year might be accused of cockiness and complacency in looking ahead to the soon-to-start baseball campaign.

Not so Richard Scott, a strapping left hander on Art Mahan's Wildcat nine. Dick won't even put himself out on a limb in forecasting his season record in 1954. Surprisingly, he has fears of the so-called "sophomore jinx"—a term tossed around in major league baseball circles to explain the startling demise of flashy first-year ball players.

Only A Junior

Although he's a junior, Scott fears his revised version of the "jinx." Dick says he's afraid the opponents may be laying in ambush for his orthodox pitching repertoire.

The curly - haired football quarterback grinned at the suggestion he threw "junk." He admitted that he lacked a fast one, but he quietly explained that even most big leaguers don't try to overpower the batters.

Bears Down Early

Leaning slightly against his bunk, Scott patiently lectured on his mound strategy: a strategy which would probably be approved by the most demanding professional manager. Dick says when he starts a game he bears down on those first three stickmen. He feels that the sooner he disposes of those men, who are usually fairly dangerous, the fewer times he'll have to face them later in the contest.

The 6-1 hurler of the Eddie Lopat mold recalled that he felt a little 'shook' last year in his first collegiate starts. But he gained confidence by the twilight of the campaign, he remarked. He called his 2-0 shutout of Rutgers last year his top performance.

Baseball First Love

Scott, a teammate of Don McComb at Camden Catholic, stated he had no ambitions to turn professional in either baseball—his first love—or football—the first sport he played. He says he's thought about pro careers in both, but doesn't think he'll try either sport for pay.

Has he added any new pitches? The well - constructed athlete again replied in the negative. His catchers won't have nightmares about knucklers fluttering to the backstop.

Football QB

Next fall the 190-pounder will be trying out for the quarterback post on the football team, but in the next two months, he'll be staring down at that man in the batter's box.

Dick will be pondering the simplest way to make that hitter roll one across the infield, and he may be just a little shaky inside. Can't discount that sophomore jinx, you know . . .

Club Engages Vermont In First Of 25

By Joe Heaps

Mainline fans will have a good opportunity to get a look at Villanova's 1954 baseball team when Art Mahan's club begins its 25-game schedule with two home contests this week. Villanova plays the University of Vermont Thursday in the season's opener. Colby visits Goodreau Stadium Saturday to test the home outfit.

Princeton Next

An important game is slated for next Monday when Princeton is due at the Main Line. It was the Tigers' late season 3-2 victory last year that deprived Villanova of an NCAA district playoff bid.

Because of close contests at several positions for starting roles on the club, Mahan could not list a complete lineup. Third base is a particular problem as Don Mouchetti, Doc Doherty, and Dave Hinnegan are all potential starters. There is also the chance that Jack Helm, last year's first baseman, will get the call at third. This move would leave first base open to lefty Tom Casey, a hard-hitting sophomore, who has been impressive of late.

Catching Unsettled

Catching is another position that is undecided. There is a good chance that Bill McCaffrey and Bill Pearson will split the backstop chores.

The remainder of the team appears set. The returning veterans—Chuck McGuckin, Jack Peters, and Bill McGarry will hold down the outfield slots. Dependable Ralph Cecere will again be found at his familiar shortstop post. Bob Ricciani, who alternated between the mound and third base last year, will be the other half of the double-play combination.

Scott, Sommers Back

Lefties Dick Scott and Don Sommers will handle most of the mound assignments. Because of the long schedule, Mahan will carry a larger staff than in previous seasons and states that hurlers Dan Severino, John Naggi, and Bill Martini will see action. Sommers will probably start opening day.

Water Basketball Ends; New Spring Sports Outlined

By Bob Strayton

With the inauguration of water basketball competition on March 15th, a complete schedule of spring intramural events got underway. Ed Geisz, Director, and Rev. John Dunne, Moderator, then outlined a series of nine intramural activities for interested students.

Water basketball, which has 22 teams in competition, will come to a close on March 31st, with a big championship contest to be held at the Field House natatorium. An individual swimming meet will also be held on April 7 for all those interested.

Softball Soon

One of the "big three" activities, intramural softball, will begin on April 20, and will last until May 13. Competition will be heavy and keen, as usual, in this popular intramural.

On April 26, a volleyball league will get started, and will last until May 13, when the championship game will be held in Alumni gym.

With Junior Week on May 7th, also comes the intramural track program, which consists of track and field competition among all four classes. The winner for the last two years, the Junior class, is again favored in this year's competition.

Medals Awarded

Rounding out the year's intramural program will be a tennis tournament and a horseshoe-pitching contest, both of which are scheduled to get underway on May 3. Intramural Awards Day at the conclusion of the intramural program will be held on Tuesday, May 18th, when the winners of each intramural activity this past year will receive pins for their achievements.

Middie Riflers, Beaten Once, Close-Out April 10

"We don't expect to lose another match this season," said captain Dave Smith, after the NROTC rifle team had captured recent important victories. The Middies have accounted for fourteen wins in fifteen shoulder matches thus far, the single defeat being administered by Georgetown University. All local collegiate opposition as well as several service opponents have bowed to the VU marksmen.

Pictured above is the standard Intramural Athletic key, which will be awarded at a special student assembly this Spring, and has been received from the designers, Baily, Banks, and Biddle Co. of Philadelphia. It is of copyrighted design and will be used only for intramural awards.

The key is of sterling sliver with the University seal and a Wildcat design. Across it is the word Villanova in white letters, on a blue background.

Members of the winning teams in the various leagues, including football, basketball, and softball, will receive the award. Individual victors in various events will also be honored, according to the decision made by Father Dunne, faculty director of Intramural Athletics, and Mr. Ed Geisz, Secretary. There will also be a trophy presented to the outstanding Intramural athlete.

Smith Outstanding

Outstanding performers throughout the season have been Dave Smith, who has compiled the highest score of 288, Jack Gilligan, and Caesar Trunzo. The sharpshooters are under the guidance of Master Sergeant J. E. Waryha. Ten teams will be represented at the Philadelphia area championships to be held at Villanova on April 10. This match will mark the end of the season.

Indians of Western Panama form teams which engage in hurling six-foot logs of balsa wood at each other. A direct hit always delights the spectators. Good sportsmanship prohibits the contestants from showing any signs of pain.

In polo as played in the Himalayan Mountains, participants may whack an opponent's pony if they want to. It also is permissible to pull a rival off his horse.

On the island of Jamaica, fire fighting is a favorite sport. While standing 10 paces apart, the fighters blast one another with searing flames caused by flammable liquids which they spurt from their mouths onto flaming wicks. The first man to drop loses the contest.

While standing within small circles marked on the sand a few yards apart, natives of the Egyptian Sudan rapidly fling rocks the size of baseballs at each other to test their stamina and endurance. The men may dodge or catch the flying stones, but the first one to retreat out of his circle is declared the loser.

Donald M. Collins, former editor of the Villanovan, president of the student council, and valedictorian for the class of '48, will be the first Villanova graduate to join the Law School faculty, Very Rev. James A. Donnellon, O. S. A., disclosed last week.

Mr. Collins, who also played varsity football here before entering the Marine Corps, is at present associated with the law firm of Donovan, Leisure, Newton, and Irvine in New York City.

He will become a member of the faculty as an Associate Professor of Law beginning with the fall semester.

The Collegiate Whirl

WANT TO STAY ON? HERE'S HOW . . .

(ACP)—Following are 10 suggestions from Robert Tyson, of the Hunter College (New York) department of psychology and philosophy, on how to stay in college:

1. Bring the professor newspaper clippings dealing with his subject. Demonstrates feeling interest and gives him timely items to mention in class. If you can't find clippings dealing with his subject, bring in any clippings at random. He thinks everything deals with his subject.

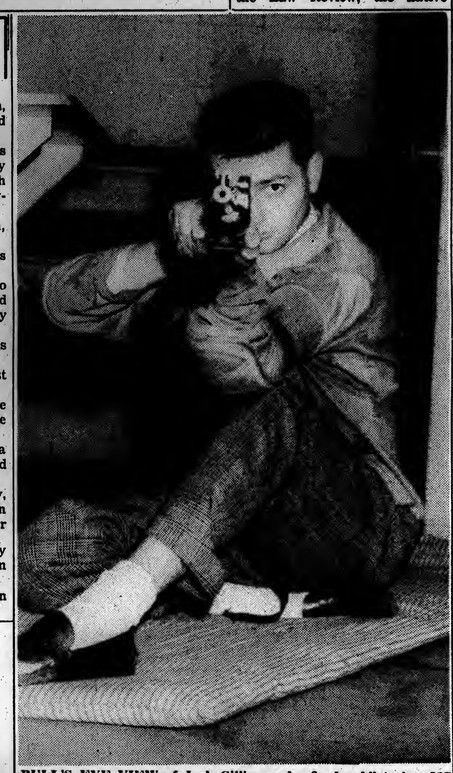
2. Look alert. Take notes eagerly. If you look at your watch, don't stare at it unbelieving and shake it.

3. Nod frequently and murmer, "How true!" To you this seems exaggerated, to him, it's quite objective.

4. Sit in front, near him. (Applies only if you intend to stay awake.) If you're going to all the trouble of making a good impression, you might as well let him know who you are, especially in a large class.

5. Laugh at his jokes. You can tell. If he looks up from his notes and smiles expectantly, he has told a joke.

6. Ask for outside reading. You don't have to read it. Just ask.



7. If you must sleep, arrange to be called at the end of the hour. It creates an unfavorable impression if the rest of the class has left and you sit there alone, dozing.

8. Be sure the book you read during the lecture looks like a book from the course. If you do math in psychology class and psychology in math class, match books for size and color.

9. Ask any questions you think he can answer. Conversely, avoid announcing that you have found the answer to a question he couldn't answer, and in your brother's second grade reader at that.

10. Call attention to his writing. Produces an exquisitely pleasant experience connected with you. If you know he's written a book or an article, ask in class if he wrote it.

As to whether or not you want to do some work in addition to all this, well it's controversial and up to the individual.

BULL'S EYE VIEW of Jack Gilligan who fired a blistering 287 (Of possible 300) against Penn last week. The highest individual scorer on Villanova's Rifle squad, Gilligan, a Junior engineer, ranks among the top NROTC riflemen in the nation. The team has chalked up 15 wins this season against one defeat.

Council's Spring Check-up:

'Student Activities Need Unity'— Committee Finds

"Student organizations are not properly co-ordinated and there is conflict in many fields," was the preliminary report of the commission appointed by the Student Council to study student activities.

This statement was part of the report released by Robert Gerstung, chairman of the Commission Investigating Student Activities, which was established at the last meeting of Student Council.

Gerstung said the purpose of the commission was "to abstract from the many student groups all data that would enable the University to adopt a sound policy in accordance with what exists rather than what should be."

Presidents Co-operate

The chairman added that the co-operation of the presidents of the student organizations was a "good sign" that they wanted something done.

Many campus presidents, Gerstung commented, are not aware of the existence of other groups and often do not know the presidents of other groups.

Gerstung said that a Council of Student Presidents, which would combine overlapping aims into one efficient policy, may develop from the Commission's investigations.

IRC Plans Trip To Washington

The International Relations Club of Villanova will meet this Thursday at 10:30 A. M. in 204 C&F, to discuss plans for its forthcoming trip to Washington. A maximum of 20 members will be allowed to attend.

The trip, sponsored by the World Affairs Council of Philadelphia, will take place April 28.

Dr. Robert Gordon of the State Department will survey the nation's foreign policy for the group from 11 to 12:15 A.M.

After lunch in the State Department cafeteria, the group will hear a discussion on the problems of Western Europe by William Meenley of the State Department.

Later, at 3:30 P.M., the group will proceed to the Yugoslav Embassy to hear a talk on relations between the United States and Yugoslavia.

T&T Leads Set

Senior Romolo Leomporra will play the lead in this year's Turf and Tinsel production, "Wish You Were Here," Director Bob Whelan announced last week. He will take the Leonardo daVinci role.

T&T President Jim Boyle said the 50-man chorus is the largest of any T&T production. Whelan also announced that sophomore Walt Doyle will portray "Mona Lisa," the masterpiece created by daVinci.

A newcomer to T&T, Leomporra—a tenor—has had considerable theatrical experience, Whelan noted.

Doyle, a veteran of Belle Masque productions, performed in last year's T&T show.

Gift To Be Blest On April 26th

The Class of 1954 has succeeded in its long-sought objective of donating to the University a tribute fitting its affection for its Alma Mater.

Senior Class President Ted Sheehan announced that a sufficient amount of money had been collected directly by the members for the class to make their donation.

The statue will be officially presented to the university and the bronze plaque will be unveiled on Father's Day, April 24. Very Reverend James A. Donnellon, president, will receive the gift for the university.

On Monday, at 10:30 a Field Mass will be celebrated by the Very Reverend Joseph Dougherty, O.R. A. Provincial. Prior to this, Father Donnellon will bless the statue and shrine; no classes will be held during the 10:30 period that day. The Mass will be held in conjunction with the Marian year of 1954.

Sheehan Thanks Curran

Sheehan wished to express the thanks of the Senior Class to Fr. John J. Curran, O. S. A., procurator. "Without Fr. Curran's aid and kind assistance throughout the drive our class would never have been able to make this donation. To him, we are all indeed grateful," Sheehan said.

The bronze plaque which will be placed on the grotto reads, "A gift of the Class of 1954 as a token of affection for their Alma Mater."

The new grotto takes the place of the original shrine built by Fr. John Fedigan in the later part of the last century. This was removed from the campus two years ago in the expansion program. Since that time a committee has been active in obtain-

Rev. Louis A. Rongione, O. S. A., former Dean of the Evening Division and presently assistant professor of philosphy, has been named to succeed Rev. John A. Klekotka, O. S. A., as moderator of the Villanova.

Father Rongione will also become moderator of WVIL, revealed Rev. George McLaughlin, O. S. A., Dean of Student Activities.

NFCCS President Speaks to Council

by Jim Nolin

An address by the national president of the NFCCS and a request by the Senior class president that Villanova send a delegation each year to New York's St. Patrick's Day parade featured last week's Student Council meeting.

Dave McWhirter, NFCCS head, spoke on the purposes of the NFCCS, its possibilities at Villanova, and its relationship with the National Student Association.

"The NFCCS and the NSA can be coordinated on your campus," he told the student leaders. "The main aim of the NFCCS is to make us continually aware of our apostolic responsibilities. The NSA deals extensively with assisting student government on campus, and it does a fine job," he asserted.

Exert Catholic Influence

Catholic schools should do much to exert a Catholic influence in the NSA, he declared. "In fact," he added, "it is our apostolic responsibility to our country, church, and God to keep NSA on the ground." He pointed out that 40% of the schools belonging to NSA are Catholic, and are exerting a powerful influence in that group.

The NFCCS head was invited to speak to the council by Joe Kenney, council president.

St. Pat's — Catholic Action

Ted Sheehan's proposal that St. Patrick's day be celebrated by the University and that a delegation be sent to the annual New York St. Patrick's day parade touched off a brisk discussion. The Senior class President pointed out that ROTC units from Fordham, St. John's, and Seton Hall were among the marchers down Fifth Ave. in this year's parade.

"Participation by Villanova would add to the school's prestige and would serve to gain greater recognition for us among the high school students in the New York metropolitan area," he contended.

"Such a move by Villanova would definitely be a contribution to Catholic Action. We

Retreat Ends At Mass Tomorrow

The entire student body will receive Holy Communion at the Annual Solemn High Retreat Mass tomorrow morning in the Field House. Rev. Joseph W. Kemme, O. S. A. Chaplain urges all Catholic students to take advantage of this opportunity provided for their spiritual welfare.

Approximately 2000 students received the sacraments last year at the solemn closing exercise of the retreat and an even greater turnout is expected tomorrow.

Schola To Sing

The Schola Cantorum, after many months of practice, will sing the Mass. This is their first appearance this year.

Rev. Thomas Rogers, O. S. A., recently returned from a mission in Boston, is conducting the three day retreat and will end it with the Papal blessing after Mass tomorrow. The retreat began with benediction in the Field House Sunday evening. Over 2000 students are attending.

Bids Opened Today

Work Commencing Soon On Student Union Bldg.

Ground will be broken for Villanova's $1,500,000 Student Union building "within a few weeks", Very Rev. James A. Donnellon, O. S .A., University president, disclosed last week.

The architect will be chosen at a meeting this afternoon when all the bids are opened. Contruction will begin as soon as possible, he said.

Stating that he realized the difficulties that Villanovans now face, with long lines into the dining hall and crowded conditions, Father Donnellon asked that students realize that by the construction of this new building, the administration is trying to alleviate the situation.

Father Donnellon also revealed that the administration is considering a plan to grant student proctorships in exchange for a reduction in room and board.

Perhaps they could cut down on the many minor infractions of rules, he suggested. Their presence would act to cut down noise during study time, and handle other small problems, leaving the Father prefect time to take care of the major cases. (Notre Dame is among the other universities which have found success with this type of government—Ed. note.).

Discussing the proposed system of course evaluation, the president declared that the basic idea was sound but that perhaps only Juniors and Seniors should take part in the actual evaluation, since they are in general more mature.

Of the possibility of joining the National Student Association, Father Donnellon said that he agreed with the decision of the Student-Faculty committee (that we join the organization, but not right away.)

Council's Spring Check-up:

'Student Activities Need Unity'— Committee Finds

"Student organizations are not properly co-ordinated and there is conflict in many fields," was the preliminary report of the commission appointed by the Student Council to study student activities.

This statement was part of the report released by Robert Gerstung, chairman of the Commission Investigating Student Activities, which was established at the last meeting of Student Council.

Gerstung said the purpose of the commission was "to abstract from the many student groups all data that would enable the University to adopt a sound policy in accordance with what exists rather than what should be."

Presidents Co-operate

The chairman added that the co-operation of the presidents of the student organizations was a "good sign" that they wanted something done.

Many campus presidents, Gerstung commented, are not aware of the existence of other groups and often do not know the presidents of other groups.

Gerstung said that a Council of Student Presidents, which would combine overlapping aims into one efficient policy, may develop from the Commission's investigations.

IRC Plans Trip To Washington

The International Relations Club of Villanova will meet this Thursday at 10:30 A. M. in 204 C&F, to discuss plans for its forthcoming trip to Washington. A maximum of 20 members will be allowed to attend.

The trip, sponsored by the World Affairs Council of Philadelphia, will take place April 28.

Dr. Robert Gordon of the State Department will survey the nation's foreign policy for the group from 11 to 12:15 A.M.

After lunch in the State Department cafeteria, the group will hear a discussion on the problems of Western Europe by William Meenley of the State Department.

Later, at 3:30 P.M., the group will proceed to the Yugoslav Embassy to hear a talk on relations between the United States and Yugoslavia.

T&T Leads Set

Senior Romolo Leomporra will play the lead in this year's Turf and Tinsel production, "Wish You Were Here," Director Bob Whelan announced last week. He will take the Leonardo daVinci role.

T&T President Jim Boyle said the 50-man chorus is the largest of any T&T production. Whelan also announced that sophomore Walt Doyle will portray "Mona Lisa," the masterpiece created by daVinci.

A newcomer to T&T, Leomporra—a tenor—has had considerable theatrical experience, Whelan noted.

Doyle, a veteran of Belle Masque productions, performed in last year's T&T show.

Two Big Threes

Tomorrow morning we will bring to a close the 111th Annual Three-Day Retreat at Villanova. This will be the culmination of three solid days of THINKING; days in which we put aside our regular earthly pursuits to think about the three most fundamental yet essential questions in the life of every man:

1. Where did I come from?
3. Where am I going?
3. How am I going to get there?

What THINKING man can take these questions lightly? Everyone must consider them and everyone who approaches them with an open mind arrives at the same answers. Each has only one answer.

We are not going to attempt to answer these questions. Every man must do that for himself. A straight-thinking man who approaches them open-mindedly cannot go astray. Our only appeal is that you do them. Do not leave them unanswered . . . for here, in this state of doubt breeds much of the tragedy which ruins so many modern lives.

It is so easy to "let these questions go for another time when you feel more like thinking about them:" a temptation which finds its way into so many phases of life. We have been given the time NOW to think of these things. Let's not pass up the opportunity.

Any science major can tell us the best way to seek the truth under any circumstances; by investigating and evaluating what others have discovered concerning the problem; and by speculating and experimenting to try to prove our rational theories. Above all, however, we must keep open minds; We must not state our goal as fact and then manipulate our investigation so that we arrive at the foregone conclusion. This is the error of so many of the pragmatic philosophies which stunt our society today.

Fortunately, we at this retreat have been given a helping hand with these problems. We have been set on the right path, aimed in the right direction. Let's not take this assistance lightly, the time may come when we'll wish we hadn't.

Wise Choice

The decision of the Joint Student-Faculty committee to delay affiliation with the United States National Student Association (NSA) is a wise one.

The purpose behind this planned postponement is to afford the National Federation of Catholic College Students ((NFCCS) a "fair trial" to prove its worth.

We would submit that a specific length of time be allotted to the Villanova NFCCS chapter to show the joint committee how it can benefit Villanova, to show how it can provide more services to student government, student-faculty-administration relations, and other local problems.

Not only should this trial period be limited in time, but its field of application (for the NFCCS) should also be limited to these problems peculiar to Villanova.

Confident that the NFCCS can meet this challenge, we can foresee great possiblilities with the university a member of two such worthwhile organizations. This is not too far off; reports reaching the Villanovan indicate that the committee favors our membership in NSA sometime after completion of the trial period.

American Policy Toward Israel Labeled Unwise

By Ed Daly

Recent border fighting in the Jordan Valley again focuses public attention on one of the world's greatest potential trouble spots—Israel. Once again thinking people are asking themselves whether America has acted wisely in its handing of this problem.

The answer I give to that question is an emphatic "No." In our decision to favor Israel against the Arabs at the time of that state's birth, I feel we committed one of the gravest blunders of our recent history, an error so serious that it may prove one of the decisive factors against us in our cold war against Russia.

Hitler Persecution

Let us look carefully at the record. Hitler's terrible persecution of Europe's Jews outraged the entire world, and particularly the people of the United States. When the war ended, those Jews who had survived the horrors of the concentration camps were largely homeless and destitute, unable in many hundreds of thousands of cases to return to their homes in eastern Europe. Assuredly, they had a decent chance to live again. The only queston was, "Where?"

Two Choices

There were two major possibilities—Palestine and the New World. For reasons of religious sentiment many Jews wished to go to Palestine, the historic homeland of their race. Britain had promised the Jews a "national home" in Palestine after the First World War and many Jewish settlers had gone there to live.

The only problem was that Palestine, a very small country, already had a population of 1,500,000 Arabs, and Britain was pledged, by the terms of the mandate by which she held Palestine, to protect the vital interests of all the inhabitants of Palestine, most of them Arabs. That being the case, Britain regretfully decided to restrict sharply Jewish immigration to Palestine.

Another alternative was given, however. Although heavily populated herself, Britain declared her willingness to take in 50,000 of the estimated 600,000 Jewish refugees in Europe and requested the United States, Canada, Australia, Brazil, and Argentina to take in the remainder. The United States refused to enact special legislation to permit the entry of these refugees and began to put pressure on Great Britain to permit the large scale entry of Jewish refugees into Palestine.

Jewish Terrorism

Thus, Britain found herself in an increasingly difficult position. Outbreaks of Jewish terrorism began in Palestine and soon reached peaks of unspeakable barbarity. When the British tried to check illegal immigration, they found the American press and government aligned against them. Honest Americans, swayed by sympathy for the unfortunate refugees, began to speak of the British in the most hostile of terms, although at the same time they forgot it was our country that had refused to admit these same Jewish refugees here. Completely overlooking this obvious fact, and with it the old maxim that "charity begins at home," the American press continued its anti-British campaign.

At length Britain gave in and withdrew from Palestine. Within a matter of hours a state of Israel was set up and almost immediately recognized by the United States and Russia. Please take note of Russia's action; it is very significant. An Arab invasion was valiantly repulsed and the new state of Israel became a member of the community of nations.

Three Developments

The Arab world was set in turmoil by this series of events. Soon three significant developments took place; the effects of which profoundly altered the outlook in this important portion of the world; anti-Jewish feeling, anti-American feeling, and the ouster of Palestine's 1,500,000 Arabs from Israel as homeless refugees.

Arabs Flee

The first of these happenings insured hostility of the Arab people to Israel. The Arabs are themselves a Semitic people, and their religion, Islam, recognizes Jews as "people of the book," and guarantees their toleration. For these reasons Jewish communities had lived peacefully among the Arabs for centuries. Now, in the face of mounting hatred, they found themselves forced to flee the homes their ancestors had occupied for thousands of years and add themselves to the horde of refugees in overcrowded Israel.

The second and third occurrences mentioned above are closely related in that they are both serious problems for the United States to face. What their significance may be and how they might be met I shall discuss in a succeeding article.

"Old Grad" Returns . . Thoroughly Confused

By Goldie Spillane

OUR NOTE: This is the first of several brief articles on Villanova Alumni and their outlooks and comparisons of V. C. (or the good old days) and V. U. Oscar Twomp, class of '52, returned from duty with the Foreign Legion. The once outstanding Casanova of the Mainline campus was frequently compared with Kirk Douglas in his undergraduate days even though he stood only four feet, one-inch tall and weighed 206 pounds. In a surprise visit to the campus, while investigating the sudden boom of sales of white shirts and ties in the Bryn Mawr haberdasheries, he was interviewed by this reporter and ventured the following laments.

As Oscar strolled up through the main gate in his old campus dress of a faded Marine "T" shirt and open toed white bucks he was immediately reprimanded by a passing priest for not being in the proper attire of a Villanova gentleman. He was relieved of his "matric" card (vintage of 1949 Spring Semester) and told to report to the Office of Vice-President.

Mother!

After running home to mother, he returned attired in a little Lord Fauntleroy suit and Buster Brown shoes. In the mass confusion while trying to pick up his matriculation card, he was issued one of Joe Farrel's union buttons and was mixing mortar for three days before he realized he wasn't in an engineering lab.

Oscar drew his pay of $942 (less $897 federal tax) and staggered to the Austin Lounge to rest his weary bones. While delving in his old campus activity of flaking out he was mistaken for a victim of a hit and run driver by the undergraduate nurses, and was bound head to foot in white gauze. After receiving the Last Rites, he was awakened by the applied pressure of a neck tourniquet.

Specimen

Rushing out of the lounge chased by the frustrated Villanova Ladies in White, he was waylaid by the Library Curator and placed in the museum as a living descendent of King Tut. And in being shipped to the Smithsonian Institute by the Villanova Administration, Oscar Twomp's last remark to this reporter was "The Mainline Campus is as confused as in the past but in a more gentelmanly way."

TEACHERS DRAWS AN "F" . . .

(ACP)—A Yale University economics instructor who tried to teach investment procedures by example has flunked his own course on the stock market.

It began when instructor Robert E. Will decided to give his freshman class a practical demonstration on the workings of stock. Will passed on a tip that New Bristol Oils, Ltd., was on the way up and "a good investment."

Within no time the freshmen had given Will money to invest in Canadian oil, and Prof. Lloyd G. Reynolds, head of the economics department, was censuring the action as "rather imprudent."

The Yale News, student paper, reported the size of the transaction to be 16,000 shares, but Prof. Reynolds said only 1,600 shares were bought.

Reynolds said Will has been ordered to reimburse his students for the venture. Since the stock has fallen slightly instead of rising, Will stands to lose five cents a share—plus brokerage fees—if he sells it immediately.

'Stalag' Rates Plaudits

By Rees James

In terms of this review, the Belle Masque production of "Stalag 17" had two strikes against it when we went to see it a few weeks ago. We had seen the Hollywood version twice, and thought it to be one of the most entertaining pictures to come from that bastion of culture in years.

We are pleased to report, however, that the show presented in the University Theatre (also dance hall, gymnasium, cathedral, and general store room) did not suffer by the comparison.

Acting Professional

We managed to lose ourself completely in the play, forgetting that we were there to review it. This fact alone made the play a success in our estimation. There were, however, very good reasons for the success of this play. It is a very well-written drama.

That fact has been proven by its long run on Broadway, and the success of the movie version. The acting of the Belle Masquers was enthusiastic and intelligent.

Although some parts were more important and offered more material for the actors than others, it is difficult and unnecessary to commend any particular performer. All the gentleman concerned carried out their jobs in a highly professional manner.

Directing Superb

Father Krupa, moderator of the Belle Masque, did an unusually fine job of directing, which for him is the usual thing. The sets, done by Jacob Krupa, were cleverly executed, the night scenes being especially effective.

Acoustic Troubles

All in all, it was an enjoyable evening. We did, however, find fault with the acoustics. For certain late-comers, sitting in the back was a misfortune. This we feel was a problem whose solution was out of the scope of the producers.

Drama Next

We decided to talk to Father Krupa about the financial success of the play and the future plans of his organization. We received the following answers. Although Father would not disclose any figures, the play was a financial success. He did say that the attendance for the four nights was 2109, which broke the record for any previous venture. Father also added that the attendance at the Friday or Saturday evening performances exceeded any previous single night.

Movie Helped

Father attributed a certain amount of this success to the current advertising the movie is receiving due to the Academy Award, but he assured us that the greater part of the credit belongs to the members of the Belle Masque. As for future plans, Father told us that the organization was always open for suggestions from students. He did state, however, that the next production, to be held in the fall, would be a modern drama due to the short time allotted for preparation.

Letters

Editor,
Villanovan,
Villanova University

Dear Sir:

The NFCCS, the federation which the hierarchy of our country has called for so many times, is the organization which has within its potential the fullness of the student apostolate for which we hope all our students are striving.

True Grasp

The National Federation of Catholic College Students exists wherever the Catholic students of our nation have a true grasp of the fundamental reasons for their pursuit of a Catholic education. It has existed since its foundation in 1936 in the principal centers of Catholic education in direct proportion to the interest displayed in it by the students.

The Federation cannot work with the campus unless it works with the student governing unit. Yet the need for close cooperation is not just a constitutional command; it is a valuable and important reality.

Sincerely yours,
James J. Rath ,
Villanova University
Junior Delegate, NFCCS

Applicants for next year's position as campus representative, apply to Bob Sur, Simpson Hall, before April 24. Only Freshman and Sophomore applicants will be accepted.

Debbie Reynolds Accepts... As Queen Contest Ends

Debbie Reynolds

Noooo, this is not another candidate for the Junior Queen honors. Pictured here is Miss Debbie Reynolds of Metro-Goldwyn Mayer Pictures, who recently accepted an invitation to act as one of the judges of the contest which is being held to find a young lady to rule over the activities of the Class of '55. The winner of this event will reign from the third of May until the eighth.

Many Requests

In response to many requests for a greater number of judges, co-Chairmen Frank Gunther and Bill Quinn informed the Villanovan that lovely Miss Reynolds will also help select Villanova's Junior Week Queen. Morgan Hudgins of the publicity department of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Pictures informed the Junior Class of Miss Reynold's acceptance.

Contest Successful

"The number of contestants," stated Gunther, "is a positive indication of the success of this year's contest. Some sixty pictures were mailed to Garry Moore and his staff for the judging. These pictures will then be forwarded to Debbie Reynolds in Hollywood for her selections and then sent back to us."

The names of the Queen, her Lady-In-Waiting and the four successive winning candidates will be revealed in the special "Junior Week" edition of the Villanovan. Gifts will be awarded to the Queen's Court, her Lady-In-Waiting, and to the Queen herself.

The deadline for the contest was last Saturday night. At that time the pictures were placed in the mails and the contest was officially declared to be closed.

Return of Pictures

"All pictures will be returned immediately after Junior Week has been completed," stated Quinn. "You may retrieve your pictures from us by stopping by the Parlor of Simpson Hall and claiming them." We personally guarantee the safety of each individual print."

The co-Chairmen also stated, "This contest has been conducted solely under the auspices of the Junior Class. The Villanovan helped in publicizing our campaign."

Junior Week Takes Shape As Chairmen Speed Work

EXAMINING PLANS in the Field House that they will transform to a Riviera resort, Bud Ford (center), Prom chairman; Hugh Humphreys (left); and Rees James, decoration co-chairmen prepare for the May 7 formal dance.

Ford Announces Jr. Prom Theme: "On The Riveria"

Theme for this year's Junior Prom will be "On the Riviera," Chairman Bud Ford announced last week. The Field House will resemble a street scene in this world-famed tourist spot.

Villanovans and their dates will be projected into a quaint and romantic street setting, complete with sidewalk cafes and dim gas lights, the chairman said.

Ford promised that a special centerpiece—which has been designed by Decoration Chairmen Rees James and Hugh Humphrey—will be "something new and different."

Ford also said that this year's decorations are sure to make the theme one of the most realistic in Junior Prom history.

New price of bids is $7.00.

Chairman Named

Five committee heads who have been appointed include Joe Crowley and Bill Cunningham, programs; Jim Campbell and Tom Keller, arrangements; Red Thornton, advertising; Jack Petit and Ed Karkut, refreshments.

Students who wish to help with decorations or any other committees are asked to contact committee heads.

Ford also announced that the drive for Prom patrons has started. He noted that one or two names could be placed on the program for one dollar.

Sign Gresh For Blazer Ball; Dinner-Dance Plans Final

New developments concerning the Blazer Ball and the Dinner-Dance were announced last week by Junior Week chairmen.

Bob Meyer, Blazer Ball chairman, said that Charlie Gresh and his band—specialists in slow fox trots—will play for the informal dance in the Field House May 5 from 9 to 1. Meyer emphasized that the affair is open to all students and a blazer need not be worn.

Gresh and his band played at the recent Shamokanaki Dance and Meyer predicted that the ball—the first dance of Junior Week—would be well attended since tickets are priced at $1.75. A special door prize, a ticket to the Junior Prom, will be awarded.

Tickets will go on sale shortly in the Pie Shoppe, said Ticket Chairman Pete Loos.

Dinner Dance Seating

To clear up any misunderstanding about admission to the dinner-dance, Chairman Frank Gunther reminded Juniors that the invitations they received on paying their $8 are for their dates. Gunther said no tickets are needed to get in.

The chairman continued that dinner checks will be on the tables along with the name cards and waiters will collect them when they serve dinner.

A table list will be posted at the ball room entrance, but Gunther reminded that reservations are for the dinner only. Tables will be removed after dinner to make room for dancing.

Gunther urged all juniors who plan to attend the dinner dance to turn in the names of their dates immediately if they have not done so.

The dinner-dance is scheduled for 7 to 12, and the dinner will be served at 7:15. Music for dancing will be furnished by Tony Desmond.

Sales of dinner-dance tickets will end Wednesday, April 28. Gunther remarked that only a few are left at the present time.

All junior class rings will have been delivered by tomorrow.

O'Dwyer Hall Housed Law School Students

O'Dwyer Hall will be used by Law School students next year as a residence hall, announced Very Rev. James A. Donnellon, O. S. A., president, and Dr. Harold Gill Reuschlein, Dean of the Law School.

Students who had signed for rooms in O'Dwyer have already been informed of the decision and have been re-assigned to other dormitories.

DPM Hears Mr. Rofinot On Far Eastern Issues

"We must either keep the Reds from advancing any further in the Far East, or abandon that area altogether. The decision is up to the American people."

Thus did Mr. Henry Rofinot, assistant professor of history, sum up our present situation in the Far East before some 80 D. P. M. fraternity members last Tuesday evening.

Speaking on "Foreign Policy in the Far East", Mr. Rofinot traced our relations with those countries from its inception with the missionaries and traders at the end of the 18th century up to its present-day state of affairs.

Teddy Roosevelt, playing his "cops and robbers among nations", sent Admiral Dewey to Manila even before the Spanish-American war broke out. When we retained the Philippines after the peace, we began the U. S. entanglement in the Far East which has led to our present situation, he claimed.

Now that the Reds have grown so strong in China and are threatening southeastern Asia, we must take a stand, he asserted. Whether the government wants to risk another Korea or the possibility of an all-out war is up to the American people. If Indo-China falls, all southeastern Asia will probably fall, and American prestige will suffer strongly.

UNION'S VIEWS

Al Nowak, president of the Industrial Relations Club, has announced that the speaker for the next special meeting will be Paul McNellis, Secretary of the Anthracite Worker's Health and Welfare Committee.

Mr. McNellis, an alumnus of Villanova, will speak on "Unions and the Coal Fields" at the meeting, which is to be held on April 29 in the C&F auditorium at 7:30.

Busy Dean — Mature Students

Evening Division Keeps Standards At High Levels

Compared to many extension schools, Villanova's evening division might be labeled "radical". And rightly so, because the University believes that evening school students should have to fulfill the same requirements as regular students.

Many extension schools in other universities have approved such unsubstantial courses as basketweaving and canasta. These educators believe that evening school should offer adults opportunity to acquire minor skills and/or to pass their leisure.

John T. Queenan, assistant professor of English, describes the evening division and its "revolutionary" policy in the March issue of the Alumni magazine.

Praises Dean Powers

Mr. Queenan calls Dean Eugene Powers of the fastgrowing extension one of the main reasons for the healthy future facing Villanova's night school.

A professional educator with experience from the grade school school through university level, Dean Powers follows the University policy in contending that evening school courses should be equal to and resemble regular undergraduate courses.

This similarity between the extension and the university is clear. The same professors teach in both divisions from the same texts. Occasionally, an instructor revises the presentation of his material to fit the greater intellectual maturity of his students, but the material is unchanged in the two divisions of Villanova.

Also the same classrooms are used, and students in both divisions are entitled to and urged to use the one, modern library.

453 Enrollment

Of the 453 students enrolled in the evening division, Mr. Queenan describes 27 as special students, persons who have no desire to get a formal degree, but take an occasional cultural or technical course. All other students are seeking either a degree or a certificate.

Students are working for degrees in nursing, education, and mechanical and chemical engineering. Other students in the evening division are working for certificates in engineering, accounting, and marketing.

Mr. Queenan calls the group—which has students ranging in age 18 to 46—an intellectually mature, ambitious, and interested group, as a whole.

The "ambitious" aspect of the division, which has an average age of 27, is undeniable. Most of the enrollees attend evening division classes after a full day's work. And some of the students commute from as far away as Reading, Wilmington, Del., and Woodbury, N. J. More than fifty home towns are represented in the division.

All evening school students are not starting college work from scratch. Some have bachelor's and master's degrees from other institutions. Two men even have Ph.D.'s They are taking courses outside their field.

From Over 60 Colleges

Villanova evening school enrollees formerly attended such colleges as the University of Munich (Germany), Royal Navy Academy (England), Harvard, Princeton, Michigan, Duke, Notre Dame, Dartmouth, Haverford, Syracuse, Penn State, Penn, Illinois, and some fifty others. Almost all Philadelphia area high schools have alumni the evening division. The evening division is definitely not "provincial."

Good Name Spreads

Dean Powers and his evening school must be doing a satisfactory job, because a recent survey, indicated that 40 students came on the advice of former evening school students.

The evening division is a vital and significant part of Villanova University, but Dean Powers realizes that much work remains.

Clothes Drive Extended

Deadline for the clothing drive sponsored by the NFCCS has been postponed until after the Easter recess, drive chairman Bob Ervin announced last week.

"We hope that the students will find some old clothes around home that they will bring back for the drive," he said. "We'd like to better last year's record."

This clothing, as in previous years, will be sent to the poor and needy overseas. An award will be made to the hall chairman whose hall leads the donations.

Crouch Effective:

Peters' Plate Prowess, Arm Aid Club Potential

By Frank McDonough

Under the arc lights of Pittsburgh's Forbes Field four years ago, the annual Junior American Legion East-West All-Star game was being played. Major league scouts were concealed on every strategically located rafter in the stands, feverishly taking notes on the young ball players. Their eyes fell in admiration upon a left-handed hitter with an unorthodox stance who is known by all followers of Villanova's baseball club as Jack Peters.

Jack Peters

High School Star

Such athletic honors and recognition as the above were not new to Jack. In little Spangler High School, located near the coal mining town of Nicktown, Pa., he had been a three-sport man, starring in football, baseball and track. Jack modestly mentioned that he had even won a few races.

Pre-Med Student

After high school Jack shopped around for a college where he could fulfill his ambition to become a doctor and still continue to play baseball. For the past three years he has been splitting his time between peering through microscopes in Mendel Hall and patrolling the windswept outfield behind Villanova Stadium. In his freshman and sophomore years he played with his back against the stadium wall, but this year Coach Art Mahan switched him to left field, where his strong throwing arm would be used to better advantage.

Asked where he had acquired his distinctive batting style, Jack replied that it had naturally developed that way. "Perhaps imitation of Stan Musial had started the crouching stance," he added, "but since it felt comfortable and I had good luck with it, I decided not to change."

Future Hopes

Jack was very optomistic about the future of this year's team. He mentioned that the morale of the squad was very high despite the shoddy play against Princeton.

"Why shouldn't our morale be high," he continued, "we have a better all around club this year than we did last season; our pitching staff has been bolstered by the addition of Dan Severino, and we have plenty of experience at every other position. Also our hitting potential is high," he concluded.

May the team progress as well as Jack Peters believes it will. If so, we'll see you at the NCAA baseball finals.

Swim Week Ends; Softball Begins After Holidays

By Bob Strayton

Intramural water basketball came to a close last week, when the championship game was held at the Field House pool. Vying for top honors in the final round were the Austin Erfs and the Shamrocks. The Erfs, who won the intramural basketball crown, also placed first in the water version of the same game.

Swim Week Success

The opener of the spring intramural schedule, Learn to Swim Week, got underway last Monday, as students from all classes gathered at pool to learn the fundamentals of swimming. Under the direction of Ed Geisz and the swimming team, many were afforded a chance to learn how to swim. The instructions were concluded last Friday.

With a great many teams already in competition, the biggest of the spring intramurals, softball, is scheduled to get underway after Easter vacation. Intramural keys will be awarded to the winning team at an awards day to be held late in May.

Varied Program

Also planned for this spring are a horseshoe pitching, intramural track, in which the four classes complete for top honors, to be held during Junior Week; and a tennis tournament, which opens the latter part of April.

UU-BC MIXUP

Boston College, perennial Villanova football rival, is not included on the 1954 VU schedule due to what is termed by Athletic Director Ambrose 'Bud' Dudley as a "misunderstanding" on the part of BC Athletic Director John Curley concerning contracts and verbal commitments. The date originally scheduled for the BC game, October 9, will be filled with an engagement with Florida States, there.

Main Liners Win Behind Sommers, 4-1

By Harry Nash

Villanova's baseball club, having disposed of Seton Hall rather handily over the week-end, totes its 3-1 record to Annapolis Thursday afternoon to come to grips with a Middie aggregation in an Easter Holiday engagement—the first of two away games this week. Art Mahan's pupils play Rutgers there Saturday afternoon and then return home to meet West Chester a week from today.

The Wildcats upped their winning ledger to three with a 4-1 success against Setonia's Pirates Saturday, thanks to a steady 7 1/3 inning by lefty Don Sommers, and impressive relief pitching by sophomore Dan Severino, who protected a lead built up by the visitors in the early innings.

Encouraging Triumph

The victory was important in several departments. It was a return to form by Sommers, a senior who had control trouble last season, and who is counted upon to carry a good deal of the pitching burden in '54. Sommers, a Chicagoan, gave up the only Seton Hall run in the first inning on a triple and an infield hit, but settled down thereafter, until two walks in the eighth got him in a bit of difficulty and gave the call to Severino, who shut the door from that point on.

It was the second consecutive sound performance by Severino, who victimized Dartmouth last week with a three-hit effort. His work so far has vindicated Mahan's hopes that Dan could be depended upon as a full-time member of the big three of the pitching staff—the third cog being left-hander Dick Scott.

Defense Steady

The defensive factor, which was hardly to be admired in the loss to Princeton, was put to the test Saturday. Shortstop Ralph Cecere, second baseman Bob Ricciani and third-baseman Don Mouchetti all came up with good plays. Bill Pearson, spelling previous starter Bill McCaffrey behind the plate, played a heady defensive game and handled both pitchers' breaking stuff with ease.

Two power-hitting outfielders—Chuck McGuckin and Bill McGarry—both inexpendable offensive forces if this team is to go far—came through with timely base hit. McGarry got two single, McGuckin, a triple, all three hits figuring in the scoring. The club got two in the opening inning, and another pair in the fifth.

Navy Next

Navy, a newcomer to VU's baseball schedule, knocked off Columbia last week, and usually produces good ball clubs, as far as East Coast competition goes.

Dick Scott, who was a victim of shoddy support in absorbing the Princeton loss, will go for Villanova. Severino, barring entry in relief against the Middies, will oppose Rutgers next Saturday on the New Jersey club's home grounds.

Golfers Split In Openers; Face Haverford, La Salle

Stars Of Past, Present Feature Varied B-W Day

By Joe Heaps

Athletic Secretary Bill Ryan has announced that the finishing touches are being put on the preparations for the second annual Blue-White Day, which will be presented May 8. The gala seven-sport array, which will run for nine hours, features some of the top performers in the field of sports.

Former Stars Return

Paul Arizin and Larry Hennessy will lead the Oldtimers' basketball squad in its game with the varsity. Both servicemen have notified the Athletic Office that they will be available for Blue-White Day. Other Alumni who helped make Villanova court history, including Tom Brennan, Sam Glassmire, Dick Gray, Bob Kelty, Nick Maguire, Joe Maguire, Jim Mooney, Leo Wolf, and John Weglicki, will be on hand to demonstrate the ability that made them stars in years past. Coaches for the club will be John Blong and Reds Klotz.

Special stands will be constructed on the courts adjacent to the Field House to provide for seating accommodations at the basketball game.

Football Game

The fourteen Seniors from this year's club, headed by Gene Filipski, plus such outstanding men as Steve Romanik, John Sandusky, Ralph Pasquariello, Lou Ferry, and Bob Haner will form the nucleas of the Oldtimers' 35 to 40 man football squad, who plays next year's varsity footballers. It will mark the culmination of Spring practice for Coach Art Raimo's men.

Other Events

Four other varsity teams will perform on Blue-White Day. The baseball club plays Ithaca College and the trackmen entertain Seton Hall in a dual meet. A group of prominent Alumni, under the leadership of Mr. J. J. Duffy, will test the school linksmen at Aronimink Golf Course. As part of Ed Geisz's Swim-O-Rama Carnival the varsity swimmers will play a game of water basketball with the Freshhmen tankmen. Also included in the Swim-O-Rama will be a demonstration by Major Dave Rowan of his specialty—swimming 50 yards under water with both his hands and feet tied. Denny Rinkis, Jim Judge, Dick Harris, George Curran, and Bill Quinn have developed a clown diving and swimming act for the amusement of the spectators.

John Sandusky

Villanova's NROTC Drill Team will perform between halves of the Villanova-Old Timers football game Blue-and White Day—from 4:15 to 4:30 Saturday afternoon. The entire complement of the NROTC marching unit will perform for one full hour Saturday morning—from 10 to 11 o'clock. This event will precede the announcement of the All-Star basketball team for the VU-All-Star game on the outdoor courts.

Bow To SJ; Victimize St. Peter's

By Tom Smith

After breaking even in their first two matches, Villanova's golfers are pointing their club toward upcoming meetings with Haverford and LaSalle. The linksmen outpointed St. Peter's 6-3 Friday after dropping a tight 5½-3½ match to St. Joseph's last Tuesday.

In the St. Peter's battle, Captain Bill Albertus, Fred Morris, Charlie Stone and Ed Holland turned in Villanova victories and the Wildcats took two of the three best ball matches.

Lou Blanchet and Jack Gallagher lost their matches and their best ball contests, in the 'Cats' first home meet at Aronimink Country Club.

St. Joe's Tougher

St. Joseph's furnished stiffer competition in the Villanova opener on the Llanerch Course in Philadelphia. Only Gallagher and Stone could eke out wins, although Villanova took one of the best ball matches. Another was deadlocked.

Albertus—the Main Liners' number one man—fired a respectable 76 but still dropped his match to Jimmy Deber, the Hawks' main threat. Blanchet, Morris and Jack McGrath also went down to defeat for the Main Liners.

Valuable Experience

Feeling that they have picked up valuable experience in their first competition, the linksmen say they have a "very good" chance of adding Haverford and LaSalle to their victory roster.

Albertus is the lone returnee from last year's squad. His teammates are evenly matched as far as experience is concerned.

Haverford Away

Both the Haverford contest Thursday and theh LaSalle match April 22 are scheduled away from the friendly confines of Aronimink.

Villanova's linksmen meet their Main Line rivals from Haverford on Merion's West Course.

Outdoor Track:

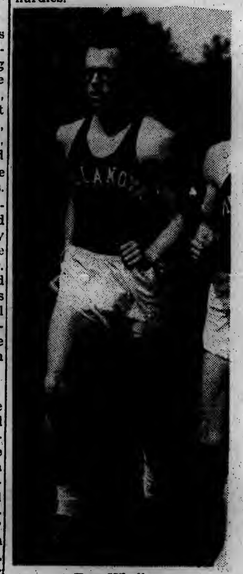
Cindermen Open Saturday In Randall's Island Meet

By Norm Feldpush

Villanova's track team will open an eight-meet outdoor season with the Relay Carnival at Randall's Island in New York on April 17th. This meet, held in place of the Seton Hall Relays, will be sponsored by the colleges of New York. Villanova will be entered for the eastern coast mile relay championship.

Penn Relays Second

One week later the Wildcats will participate in the Penn Relays at Franklin Field, seeking to regain the class "B" one-mile relay championship of America, last won in 1942. This quartet will be chosen from Joe Gaffney, Warren Heitman, Al Ligorelli, Ray Wheiler, Jim Moran, and Bill Reilly, all showing promise in the early practice sessions.



Villanova's hopes for a successful season will be centered in the spring events. Joe Gaffney appears to be headed for the best season of his career. Joe will compete in the 100 and 220 yard dashes as well as anchoring the mile relay. He will be supported by Ligorelli, Heitman, and Moran, giving the Wildcats strength and depth in the short races.

Wheiler Impressive

Ray Wheiler will carry the Mainline colors in the 880 and 440 yard runs. Displaying excellent form and condition in the daily workouts, Ray will furnish valuable points in the middle-distance events. Junior Bill Rock, the lone distance cinderman, will pursue the "iron-man" role. Rock will compete in both the mile and the two mile runs, a feat which is seldom accomplished.

Quinn On Javelin

Returning lettermen Mike Quinn, senior, and Jim Brady, junior, will see action in the field events. Mike will concentrate on the weights in throwing the javelin and the shotput, with Jim performing in the high jump. Brady will also compete in the hurdles.

Wildcats Club Vermont, Dartmouth; Bow To Tigers

By Bob Strayton

A strong Villanova baseball aggregation met the diamondmen from Dartmouth last Thursday afternoon at Villanova's stadium, and defeated the Big Green by 4-1.

Severino Impressive

With Danny Severino handling the Main Liners' pitching chore masterfully, the Indians were shut out until the top of the ninth inning, when an error by catcher Bill McCaffrey put a man on first with no outs. A long double by the Indians' catcher, Tom Gerrick, brought across the lone Dartmouth tally. Severino then retired the side to record his first collegiate victory in highly impressive style.

The big inning for the Wildcats was the fourth, when Don Mouchetti rapped a long double after a sharp double to right by Tom Casey, Villanova's first sacker, which brought across the first of three runs in that frame. A walk and two back to back singles accounted for the other two runs.

Villanova's other score came in the second inning, when left fielder Jack Peters cashed in with a smart single to left, following a walk and an error.

Second Win

It was the club's second victory in three outings thus far in season play. The other victory came against Vermont, while the only loss for the 'Cats was a close 7-6 affair against the Ivy leaguers from Princeton.

Defensive outfielding brilliance by Peters, Bill McGarry in right and Chuck McGuckin in center bolstered the club in the first three games. Second basemen Bob Ricciani was also impressive with his consistent hitting in the opening trio.

Mr. Schaefer, Here 32 Yrs., Was A Principal At 19

Prof. Leo H. Schaefer of the Commerce and Finance division—a faculty member since 1922—served as principal of a grade school when he was only nineteen.

The professor, who marks his thirty-second year here next fall, belongs to the group which has contributed much to the remarkable growth of this institution, a growth only recently culminating in the birth of Villanova University.

In tenure of service, Mr. Schaefer has the distinction of ranking third on the lay faculty. This distinction is enhanced further by the striking fact that of six members on his staff at present, five were formerly his students.

The professor hails from Madison, Wis., where he received his elementary and secondary education. "I had always been interested in teaching, and I was a freshman in high school when I firmly decided to be a teacher," he exclaimed.

Upon graduation he took an examination and obtained his first Life Teacher's certificate. Soon after, Mr. Schaefer took on his duties as the 19-year-old principal. He subsequently entered the University of Wisconsin where he studied courses necessary to attain his B. A. degree along with the courses in the school of education required to receive his second Life Teacher's Certificate.

The world had been drawn into its first universal conflict by this time, and consequently Mr. Schaefer upon graduation entered military service, serving a term of two years, nine months of which were spent in overseas duty.

Back in civilian life once more, he joined the faculty of the University of Montana where he was an instructor for two years. It was at this point in his career that he withdrew from the Teaching field and entered Public Accounting on the West Coast. He continued in the work for one and one-half years when he decided to return to the Teaching profession, whereupon he entered Northwestern University to undertake graduate work. During this period he successfully completed a thesis entitled, "The Concept of Income", a research project which took six months to complete and earned his M. B. A. degree.

It was with this impressive educational background that Mr. Schaefer, now a trained teacher, joined the teaching faculty of Villanova College in the Fall of 1922. During his early years of service he taught all business courses except Insurance at one time or another. On a part-time basis he also taught at the Wharton School of Business (University of Pennsylvania) for seven years and five years at Rosemont College. Mr. Schaefer has taught in the evening Extension School for many years and holds the distinction of having taught in the first extension school in the United States in Madison, Wisconsin.

During the late war, he taught in addition to his regular business courses, History and English. After the war he became the head of the Accounting Department. At present he heads a staff of six assistants.

Probably no other professor renders greater aid and personal guidance to his students in search of positions after graduation than does the Professor. Connected closely with the Philadelphia Chapter of the Accounting Forum and a member of the American Accounting Association for thirty years, Mr. Schaefer has unquestionably been responsible for many students obtaining positions, a fact to which doubtless, many former students will give testimony. Through his contacts with the business world, Alumni of Villanova and his public relations work in the city, Professor Schaefer has at his disposal the means to aid his students in quest of intelligent guidance and advice in obtaining employment, a means which he has utilized wholeheartedly and generously in the past and will undoubtedly continue to use in the future.

At present, Professor Shaefer resides in Ardmore, Pennsylvania with his wife, the former Vivant Mary Stewart, a graduate nurse who served in both Army and Navy oversea duty in World War I and whom he married in 1926. They have one son.

Mr. Charles Vogan, of the business school, will assume charge of the D.P.E. fraternity, replacing Rev. Richard McNally, O. S. A.

Father Klekotka asked to be relieved of his newspaper duties because of his added work as head of the Electrical Engineering department, said Father McLaughlin. He has been the paper's moderator since 1944.

Informed of the change, editor Dick Winfield said, "The staff and editors of the Villanovan are grateful for the help that Father Klekotka has given us, and we assure his successor, Father Rongione, of our fullest cooperation."

Although Father Rongione will be moderator of both campus means of communication, they will continue to function as distinct organizations, Father McLaughlin pointed out.

Father Rongione has recently returned from a 14 months assignment in Rome, where he catalogued the library of the International Augustinian College.

The statue is seven feet high and weighs about one ton. It is of pure carrara marble and has been specially treated for outdoor use. It was executed by the Daprato Studios and imported from Italy.

Our Lady of Good Counsel has had special devotion from Augustinian fathers since the fifteenth century. The seat of this devotion is in the town of Genazzano, Italy, where in 1467 a picture of Our Lady of Good Counsel miraculously appeared on the wall of the Augustinian church there. It is painted on a plaster about as thick as a calling card and is in size about 18 by 20 inches.

Navy Riflemen Victors In City Championships

Villanova's Middle rifle team was declared winner of the first annual Greater Philadelphia ROTC rifle championship held at Drexel Institute last Saturday, edging the hosts by one point with a score of 1360.

Lewis Fleischmann, Drexel, was the individual high scorer of the nine participating teams with a score of 286 while Villanova's John Gilligan came in second, pacing the winners with 279.

While not coming up to its usual score in the 1380's, the riflemen went on to win, and again defeated its rivals, Univ. of Penn. NROTC, who came in third with 1346.

The match, sponsored by the Marine Corps Reserve Officers Association of the Philadelphia area, was the last official shoulder-to-shoulder match of the season for the Middies. The team will close the year with the Secretary of the Navy championships later this month.

Top five individual scorers for the Middie team were John Gilligan 279, Dave Smith 275, Vic Joliat 270, Ceasar Truzo 269, and Joe Flynn 267.

The winners received gold metals and the cup will remain in possession of the unit until next year.

Keep the HOPE fires Burning

70,000,000 people—freedom-loving people—are being bombarded day and night by Communist lies about you and your way of life! They are the people in the captive countries trapped behind the Iron Curtain.

They risk their lives to listen to Radio Free Europe, because RFE brings them hope, strengthens their courage, their will-to-freedom.

RFE is supported by individual Americans like you. Saving the very souls of these people who stand between the free world and the Soviet Union depends on the dollar contributions of people like you.

Help Radio Free Europe stop Communist aggression by stamping out the very root of Red control—the "Big Lie."

RFE is keeping the HOPE fires burning in those 70 million captive souls by feeding them Truth—every day, every hour.

Crusade for Freedom, c/o local Postmaster, needs your "Truth-Dollars" to support Radio Free Europe's expanding activities—to give TRUTH a louder voice!

"Wish You Were There" Runs May 12 Through 15

Villanova University's Field House will once again be the scene of another Turf and Tinsel Musical Comedy, "Wish You Were There," a take-off on the life of Leonardo da Vinci, to be presented May 12, 13, 14 and 15. Many familiar faces and many more newcomers will be on hand to give you approximately two hours of fun and laughter, says its directors.

Among the newcomers is the star of the show, Romulo Leompora. Rom, as he is known on campus, will play the role of Leonardo da Vinci. He is actually no newcomer to the stage. At present he is engaged in the study of music and is well capable of presenting his talent in a manner long to be remembered by Turf and Tinsel followers, said Jim Boyle, T&T president.

Ray Rigney, end on the Villanova football team of 1953, is another new member to the cast. Ray will make his musical debut in the Tand T show this year and along with all theh other members of the cast promises to help bring the show up to the great expectations looked for this year.

Another leading role will be played by one of Turf and Tinsels standbys, Walter Doyle. Doyle comes to Turf and Tinsel after just completing a very successful show with the Belle Masque" Stalag 17". He is no stranger to thhe T and T enthusiasts, having appeared in the past productions of the club.

The other half of the show, the dancing chorus, is under the capable hands of George Noake. Noake has the dancers working each week and dance numbers are progressing rapidly.

"Once again just a reminder to make a date for May 12, 13, 14, or 15 and be sure to see the greatest success of T and T, "Wish You Were There" and then after the show you won't be able to say you wish you had," enthused its backers after rehearsal last week.

Twelve Attend IRS Symposium

On Wednesday, April 8, moderator Henry Rofinot and twelve members of the Villanova International Relations Society attended an international relations symposium at St. Joseph's College.

The symposium had as its main speakers Professor G. Tansell of Georgetown University and Professor Robert Strauss-Haupe of the University of Pennsylvania.

Professor Tansell gave a most controversial discourse on the historical approach to U. S. diplomacy and Professor Strauss-Haupe spoke on the "new look" in American Foreign policy.

No Phone Listing

In other Council business:

1. Joe Kenney reported that the council's request that dormitory phone numbers be listed in the telephone directory was turned down by the Bell Telephone company because "pay phones are not given private listings."

2. The Council President also reported that the faculty had agreed to accept all the council's recommendations for the selection of Who's Who members.

I.R.S. Seated

3. The International Relations Society was accepted unanimously into the Council and its delegate, Ed Daly, was welcomed as a member.

4. Don McGahan, council vice-president, and Bob Gerstung gave preliminary reports on their respective committees, revising the orientation rules and looking into the policies of campus organizations.

Elections Nearing

Classes To Nominate Thursday After Easter

Juniors, Sophomores, and Freshmen will meet Thursday, April 22, during the 10:30 activities period to nominate men for class office for next year, Rev. George McLaughlin, O.S.A., Dean of Student Activities, announced last week.

No other organizations will meet at that time.

Members of the class of '55 will meet in 201 C&F. Members of the class of '56 are to gather at 215 Mendel, and the class of '57 will nominate in the Field House.

Father McLaughlin stressed that no public campaigning may begin before Friday, May 7, and that "no one is supposed to post bulletins of any kind except on regular bulletin boards or in the Villanovan." Elections are May 13, from 10 to 3 in Alumni Gym.

Following the nominations the names will be passed upon by the administration, which checks marks and chapel attendance (for residents) of the candidates.

For the purposes of nomination and election, off-campus residents will be considered as day hops.

Candidates are reminded that only one office in any campus organization may be held at one time. Eligibility for officers is defined on pages 55-56 of the student handbook.

The nominations are under the general direction of Jack Kneafsey. In charge of the Junior class selections are George Eberle and Don Miller. Controlling the Sophomore meeting are Ted Sheehan and Bob Gold, while Joe Kenney, Art Knowlton and John Gillman will run the Freshman nominations. All are members of the Student Council.

Banquet Tickets

Field House at which the Hon. James P. McGranery, former U. S. Attorney-General will be the chief speaker.

The $6.50 tickets which are on sale in the Pie Shop from 9:30 to 1:30 every day entitles the Senior and his father to the banquet. All the other activities during the day are free.

The day will begin with Mass in the Chapel at 12:15, followed by the formal presentation of the Statue to the University and the unveiling of the bronze plaque commemorating their gift at the new Grotto. A luncheon in the priest and student cafeterias and a baseball game with an old rival—Seton Hall—are next. A trick swimming exhibition, which Father's Day chairman Jack Birle guarantees will amuse all is slated for 4:45.

The eventful day will close with the Father-Son banquet—an innovation—at which will be the Father Judge McGranery and the university officials with the seniors acting as hosts.

T&T MEETS

There will be a meeting of the entire Turf and Tinsel business staff on Wednesday, April 21, at 7:30 in the T&T business office in the basement of the C&F building. All committee members are expected to attend.

News In Brief

CERVANTES FIESTA

Spanish club members and their dates will dance to the music of the Collegians at their annual Cervantes Night Dinner Dance May 8 at the Elks Club in Norristown.

Rev. Lorenzo Lozano, O. S. A., moderator, also announced that Dr. Oscar Araiza, attached to the Philadelphhia Mexican consulate, had agreed to be the main speaker.

Other guests scheduled to attend are the Spanish consul and diplomatic representatives from Spanish speaking countries, said Father Lozano.

Attendance is usually limited only to members of the Spanish Club. Any students who were members at one time while they were at Villanova and who wish to attend, are asked to see the moderator.

Tickets are priced at $2.50 per person.

CONVOCATION OFF

There will be no convocation next Tuesday, announced Very Rev. James A. Donnellon, O .S. A. It has been indefinitely postponed, said the Father President.

PLATE SALE ENDS

Sale of souvenir Senior Prom plates will end today. They will be available in the Bookstore for interested purchasers until 4:00 this afternoon. The full purchase price of $2.00 must be paid when ordering, said Ted Sheehan, class president.

STAFF AFFAIR

The annual Villanovan Dinner Dance will be held on May 22 from 7 to 12 p.m. in the North Garden of the Bellvue Stratford Roof. Attendance is limited to the editors and staff members of the paper.

NATION-WIDE DEMAND FOR L&M DROPS PRICE!

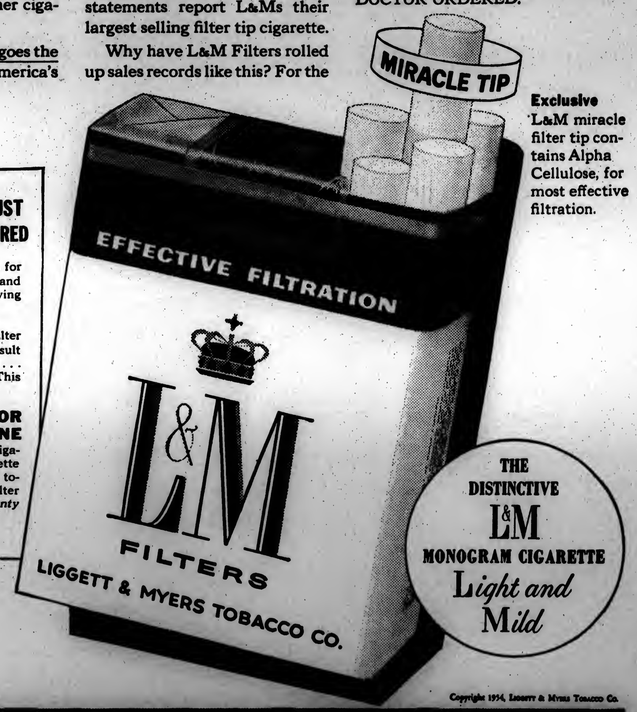
You Save Up to 4¢ a pack—40¢ a Carton...

Now Every Smoker can afford L&M—America's highest quality and best Filter Tip Cigarette—

In less than 4 months since L&M Filters were put on sale across the country they have gained a nation-wide demand never before equalled by any other cigarette in so short a time.

So naturally... down goes the price to you of L&Ms—America's highest quality and best filter tip cigarette.

Thousands of dealers in America's leading cities — in signed statements report L&Ms their largest selling filter tip cigarette.



Why have L&M Filters rolled up sales records like this? For the first time filter tip smokers are getting what they want... much more flavor and aroma... with much less nicotine. After the first few puffs from an L&M, most smokers sum it up this way, "THIS IS IT—JUST WHAT THE DOCTOR ORDERED."

FROM L&M TO YOU—JUST WHAT THE DOCTOR ORDERED

1. THE MIRACLE TIP... for most effective filtration. Selects and removes the heavy particles, leaving you a Light and Mild smoke.

2. PURESTAND BEST filter made. Exclusive with L&M. Result of 3 years of scientific research... 3 years rejecting other filters. This is it!

3. MUCH MORE FLAVOR ...MUCH LESS NICOTINE L&M Filters are the first filter cigarette to taste the way a cigarette should. The premium quality tobaccos... and the miracle filter work together... to give you plenty of good taste.

Seek Faculty Approval

Nominations Submitted As Class Elections Loom

Approximately 100 names of candidates nominated last week have been submitted to a faculty board for approval, according to Rev. George McLaughlin, O. S. A., Dean of Student Activities.

Father McLaughlin said that the names would be approved "as soon as possible" by the selection committee, which consists of the Dean of Men, the Chaplain's Office and the Dean of the University.

Rouzhly 36 men were nominated from each class at the nominations meeting Thursday. Elections will be held May 13 in Alumni Gym.

Eligibility for class offices is defined in the student handbook, Father McLaughlin emphasized. He added that requirements vary according to the individual members of the faculty approving committee.

Campaign Date May 7

No public campaigning is to begin until May 7. Signs must be placed on regular bulletin boards and neat billboards may be set around the Pie Shop.

Club elections will highlight extra-curricular activities during May. The Villanovan will print names of newly-elected officers.

Secretaries are requested to leave a list of incoming officers on the Villanova bulletin board, along with the names of the outgoing officers.

Nominations must be submitted to Rev. George McLaughlin, O. S. A., Dean of Student Activities, for approval.

S-C Committee Determines Who's Who Requirements

Student Council recommendations for Who's Who requirements were accepted at the last meeting of the Student Faculty Committee, March 29. A release from Fr. George McLaughlin, O. S. A., Secretary of the committee, also stated that the group discussed Villanova's proposed affiliation with the National Student Association.

Fr. McLaughlin said that the final rules on eligibility for the Who's Who award would include the establishment of a committee for the selection of students. The lowest possible grade point average allowed for nomination will be a 2.5 cumulative average.

Only Seniors

There must also be evidence of extra-curricular activity, the amount and importance to be judged by the committee. A student will be eligible for the award only in his fourth academic year.

Concerning the N.S.A. affiliation, the following statement was released by the Committee: "The Student Faculty Committee recommends that the Student Council and student body take action to revitalize the National Federation of Catholic College Students on campus first with a view perhaps toward later affiliation with the National Student Association."

Blue-White Day... And Mids See Red

It wasn't the sweltering 83° on the NROTC drill field which made Villanova's midshipmen hot under the collar last Tuesday afternoon.

It was the notice that the 350-man unit would march at 10:00 a.m. on May 8, Blue-White Day, at Goodreau Stadium.

The moved-up Armed Forces Day celebration, the morning after the Junior Prom, will include a battalion review, an address by the Professor of Naval Science, Captain Martin J. Drury, U. S. N., presentation of midshipman achievement medals and decoration of the company winning the annual efficiency and drill competition.

Piasecki, Aircraft Pioneer, To Receive Mendel Award

Frank N. Piasecki, chairman of the board of directors of Piasecki Helicopter Corporation and a pioneer in helicopter designing, will receive the University's 1954 Mendel Medal award on May 4, at a dinner in the Field House.

Mr. Piasecki is the first recipient of the medal (founded in 1928 by the school in honor of Gregor Mendel, 19th century Augustinian Abbot) since its presentation in 1946 to Dr. John C. Hubbard, ultrasonics authority and professor of Physics at Johns Hopkins University.

The medal is awarded to outstanding Catholic scientists who by their work have advanced the cause of science and who have demonstrated by their actions that there is no conflict between true science and religion. It is notnecessarily awarded annually.

Very Rev. James A. Donnellon, O. S. A., president of Villanova, made the announcement of the award.

Mr. Piasecki, a native Philadelphian, in 1954 flew the first successful tandem helicopter in the world. It was the prototype of the modern tandem helicopter capable of carrying as many passengers as comparable fixed-wing air liners.

In 1951 he received the Lawrence Sperry Award of the Institute of Aeronautical Sciences and for 1952 was chosen one of the nation's outstanding Young Men of the Year by U. S. Junior Chamber of Commerce. He is 35.

Gregor Mendel, for whom the award is named, discovered the laws of heredity research which bear his name.

Mother's Day, Monday, Opens 15th Junior Week

Cram Six Days With Concert, Three Dances

All preparations for the Juniors' "Week of Weeks have been completed and only the mop-up details remain for next week's festivities, which will begin Monday with the traditional Mother's Day.

Chairman Ted Clarkson has announced that the day's events will get underway with Mass being celebrated in the University Chapel by Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O. S. A., the class moderator, assisted by the Schola Cantorum. The program after Mass will consist of luncheon, tree planting, the "Diaper Dan" contest, a show featuring the Concert Band and a skit by Turf and Tinsel, and finally Benediction followed by dinner in the Field House at six P.M.

Outdoor Concert

Tuesday will find the Villanova Concert Band under the direction of Frank Licopoli, making history by performing in an outdoor concert. Solos will be rendered by Bobby Schiller and Joe Valenti, while the "Wildcats Plus Five" will offer several jazz selections. The Concert, which is open to all students, faculty members, and their friends, will be held in front of the library starting at 7:30 P. M.

Junior Week activities will be resumed on Wednesday night at 9:00 P. M. when couples begin dancing to the music of Charles Gresh and his orchestra at the Blazer Ball. The dance is to be held in the Field House and chairman Bob Myers promises a good time for all.

From Friday

Friday night will find the students of Villanova participating in the largest dance of the year, the Junior Prom. Music for the Prom will be supplied by Johnny Long and his orchestra. The theme will be "On the Riviera" with Rees James and Hugh Humphreys doing the decorating chores assisted by Babs Butera, Paula Sanfacon, and "Pooh" Wright, all art majors at Rosemont College. The feature event of the evening will be the crowning of the Junior Week Queen by Johnny Long and the presentation of her lady in Waiting and Court by prom chairman Bud Ford.

DOWN TO WORK on prom decorations Bud Ford, Bernie Finan, and Rosemontites, Barbara Butera and Paula Sanfacon. Decorations are already completed.

Seal Is Changed

Villanova's official seal has been changed by the Board of Trustees, it was announced last week, to conform to University status. The new seal, pictured here, has a cross in the top center, as the crest of the school. The oak leaves to the left are a symbol of strength, while the right hand laurel leaves are a symbol of fame. The book and the flaming heart symbolize St. Augustine as a writer and his love of God. The cincture represents the monastic life and the veritas, unitas, and caritas are the motto of the school.

Seniors Welcome Dads

Nearly 150 proud fathers converged upon the Villanova campus last Saturday to take part with their sons—members of the Class of 1954—in the annual Fathers Day activities. Under threatening skies which finally cleared late in the afternoon, they enjoyed a full 8-hour program arranged by chairman Jack Birle and his committee.

The day began with Mass at 12:15 in the Chapel and ended with a Father-Son Banquet in the Field House. James P. McGranery, former Attorney-General of the United States, was guest speaker at the banquet.

The Senior Class' gift of a statue of Our Lady of Good Cousel was presented to the school by class president Ted Sheehan and accepted by Rev. Edward M. Dwyer, O. S. A., dean of the university. Rev. John R. Dunne, O. S. A., class moderator, unveiled the bronze plaque commemorating the gift.

A baseball game with Seton Hall and a swimming show at the Field House pool completed the afternoon's activities.

Very Rev. James A. Donnellon, O. S. A., University President, Very Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty O. S. A., prior provincial and Father Dunne spoke briefly at the dinner.

Look at the Record

Beware! It's time once again for the annual appearance of the campus polician. He's out of hibernation for a new assault on prospective voters. With nominees still being passed upon by the administration, campaign managers have already begun embryonic plans for their candidates. Propaganda will be passed out extolling the virtues of the hopeful job-seeker, who will go around a glad hand for all and sundry, passing out suitably inscribed blotters, pencils, and assorted knick-knacks.

Now, of course, there is nothing new about this procedure. It's been going on for years. Caesar spread goodies among the Romans before he crossed the Rubicon.

It occurs to us, though, that, as in any election, we shoud distinguish between the man who will do a job for us and he who is strictly a politician. The men we elect May 13 will influence the success of four classes immeasurably. As the late Al Smith was so fond of saying, "Let's look at the record."

If a man is up for re-election, say to the student council, let's see how many absences he had. What did he do? If he's running for class office, has he shown by his actions that he can assume responsibility? Or has he been a criticizer, talking but not doing? Club voters should follow the same code. Was the man an active member? Or was he strictly a "social member", coming when refreshments were served? Did he serve on committees, or was he "too busy?" Maybe he'll be too busy next year, too.

Remember, the matter of importance is not the place the man fills, but how he fills it.

Let's get rid of the politicians, and bring in more workers.

J. N.

and this one, too

A rather short and pointed talk at the Father-Son banquet Saturday night received more listeners than the eloquent discourse read by the honorable guest speaker.

The suggestion that high marks may not be necessary to make their sons successful in life caused many Dads to sit up and listen.

Citing the many successful alumni of Villanova who have visited him in past years, our speaker pointed out that most of these were not "dean's list" students and some of them managed to flunk a subject or two while at college.

Villanova does not stress scholarship foremost.

The aim of the university is not promulgated: "to educate scholars;" it reads: "to educate Christian gentlemen." A small percentage of Villanova graduates are scholars, a great majority of them however, are Christian gentlemen.

Thhere are plenty of High I. Q.'d scientists in this world who can build H-bombs; geniuses every day are inventing new methods of warfare and destruction. We don't need any more of these intellegensia. What our world is starving for are men with strong moral convictions to stop these going on.

We must admit, humbly, that some of the courses offered here are not up to par, that the curriculum offered Villanova is not as extensive as at some schools, that some of clergy teaching here should have retired years ago. These things we are accepting in hope that matters may someday be improved.

Despite these circumstances, we can boast that no man has ever graduated from Villanova without having had the fullest opportunity to develop spiritually as a Christian and physically and mentally as a gentleman.

May we pin this flower in those black buttonholes.

Our Support Of Israel Stirs Hatred In Near East

By Ed Daly

Anti-American feeling in the Near East is of comparatively recent growth. Prior to the emergence of Israel upon the international scene, the Arabs and their fellow Moslems had been generally well-disposed to this country and had looked upon the United States as their friend.

When America decided to back Israel against the Arab claimants to Palestine, this situation changed abruptly. The Arabs felt that they had been betrayed by a nation they had trusted, that far from being the Arabs' friend, the United States was their enemy.

Refugee Problem

As a reminder of their loss, the neighboring Arab countries of Jordan, Syria, Egypt were forced to take in close to one and a half million Palestinian Arabs who fled or were expelled from their homes in the Israeli territory. Few of these people carried any of their possessions with them, and they consequently became dependent upon public assistance for their very survival. The sufferings of these Arabs have greatly intensified anti-American feeling in the Islamic world.

Soviets At Work

Needless to say, the Soviet Union has not stood idly by while these events were taking place. To the contrary, skilled Russian propagandists have been working among the Arabs, particularly among the refugees, telling them that America and Britain have caused all their troubles, that Israel is merely the representative of American imperialism, and that the Arab nations must avoid any link to the American defense system. At the moment there seems to be good reason to believe that this subtle propaganda has met with great success, partially because of the skill of its advocate and partially because of poor American policy.

How can the United States obtain this much-needed Arab support? Obviously, on the negative side, we must avoid any unnecessary antagonizing of the Arab bloc. Yet, we must not go as far in this as to permit a resumption of hostilities against Israel, since although the present territorial status quo in the Near East is not a safe one, a change of it by military force might become even more dangerous. Furthermore, the United States, having had a hand in the creation of Israel, cannot very well allow the Arabs to attack it as part of a bargain for Arab aid.

Israel At Fault

By the same token we must be careful to abandon any aspect of being anti-Arab in Palestinian affairs and must try to adopt as impartial an attitude as possible in Arab-Israeli disputes. As Israel has been at fault in most of the more recent border incidents, this would align us with the Arabs on a good many minor issues.

Similarly we should attempt to keep out of French-Arab disputes in North Africa and British-Egypt disputes over the Sudan. Basically our interests are not so deeply involved in either case that our active siding against the Arabs is necessary. Therefore we shall withdraw from these quarrels in order to avoid bad feeling in the Near East.

Three Methods

On the positive side we can render immediate service to the Arabian in three ways: by aiding in the rehabilitation of the refugees, by putting diplomatic pressure on Israel to stop provoking border incidents, and by certain corrections in our immigration laws.

The first two possibilities need little explanation. The first would consist of sending money and social workers to the Arab countries in order to aid the refugees. The second would consist of using our influence with Israel to halt raids on Arab villages and irrigation projects in Arab territories. The third possibility may require a little elaboration.

Israel Overcrowded

To begin with, Israel is already overcrowded. However, many homeless Jews still remain in Europe. Obviously, they must go somewhere. If they go to Israel, they increase the overcrowding and the need for more land. Therefore Israel might itself be forced to attack neighboring territory in order to care for its excess population. If they do not go to Israel, the United States is the most likely place they might find a home. With our present immigration laws it is impossible to admit enough of these Jews to relieve the situation. Therefore we should amend our immigration laws to admit these refugees. We might also change the laws to permit the entry of those of the Arabs who meet our literary provisions, which in my opinion should not be repealed.

Love, Fear Contrasted As World Seeks Peace

By Tom Mentzer

"H (Hell) Bomb Results Unbelievable!" This was the headline that greeted millions of Americans as they leisurely unfolded their morning newspapers some weeks back. The story which followed beneath this headline was one that struck fear in the minds of its readers. Revealing the awesome features of the bomb's enormous destructive power in a clear, simple manner, the sobering factual account brought the American face-to-face with the horrible aspect of just what a third world conflict would entail. His life, his family, and his property, as well as those of every other man in the world faced total annihilation. The thought was not a pleasant one. Yet, there was, and is now, still a hope that such a universal disaster will be averted, that peace will be preserved. This hope is founded on the assumption that the Soviet too will recognize the terrible price of an atomic war, and thereby shy away from it. It was with this express purpose in mind that the United States made public the awful results of her secret Hydrogen Bomb tests. Brandishing the might of her military force, the United States hoped that the resulting fear would keep peace.

Love, Not Fear

To the American, especially the American Catholic, and to the whole world, there is available another means of preserving peace. Like the means ordained by the United States government, it, too, has a force and a motivating emotion in an attempt to achieve its goal of peace. The only difference is that the latter force is a spiritual might and the emotion is love, not fear. We speak of the promise of the Lady of Fatima.

Sun Trembles

Some thirty-seven years have transpired since the small country of Portugal and the world were startled by a headline much akin to the one carried by American newspapers some weeks ago. "Sun Trembles In Sky Before One Million" was the headline carried by the quasi-atheistic newspaper, O'Dia. Beneath this startling headline was an eyewitness account of the sun's abnormal movements for a period of 12 minutes. Subesquent accounts by other Portuguese newspapers gave voice to the promise made to the three children by the Vision of Fatima; "If Russia Be Conscrated To My Immaculate Heart And There Are Communions of Reparation On The First Saturdays, Russia Will Be Converted And An Era Of Peace Will Be Conceded To Humanity."

Simple Enough

There, gentlemen, is the other means to world peace! Enunciated not by a world government but by the Holy Mother of God, motivated not by fear but by love, its force is just as real, just as potent as the mightiest of destructive bombs, whether they be Atomic, Hydrogen, or Cobalt. To achieve peace you have but to fulfill the Lady's request and to pray. Simple enough indeed, yet it can be effective!

And lest you quickly dismiss this means as impractical and unrealistic, we ask you to remember two things: The Christian Portugal of 1954 presents a sharp contrast to the Atheistic Portugal of 1917; and prayer before wartime is just as practical as prayer during wartime.

Turf And Tinsel Readies 'Wish You Were There'

Intensive rehearsals during the Easter vacation and over weekends have been preparing the Turf and Tinsel cast for its forthcoming production, "Wish You Were There", to be presented for a four-night run May 12 through 15.

The musical, written by George Noake with music by Bob Whelan, satirizes the period of French life during which Leonardo daVinci lived. It is subtitled "Veni, Vidi, daVinci."

At present an extensive campaign for sponsors is under way. For $1 a student may have his name listed in the program as a sponsor. In the halls a door-to-door campaign began yesterday, and a booth in the pie shop has been opened for the convenience of day hops.

Letters have also been sent to parents asking for their contributions. The group hopes to defray all its expenses in this manner.

Leomporra In Lead

The musical, to be held in the Field House, features Rom Leomporra in the role of Leonardo daVinci. It is his first appearance with the group.

Jim Boyle, president of T&T, also announced that the stage crew is hard at work, along with the actors. The eight scene set is already under construction. One of the more elaborate scenes is the imperial ball room.

Tickets, priced at $1 for students and $1.25 general admission, are on sale in the Athletic office in the Field House and in the Pie Shop.

Junior Wk. Queen Announced May 3

"The winners of the Junior Week Queen Contest will be published in the special Junior Week edition of the Villanovan," stated Frank Gunther, co-chairman of the contest. The Villanovan which is dedicated to the activities of the Class of '55 will arrive on campus on May 3, Mother's Day.

"Unfortunately," said Bill Quinn, the other co-chairman, "the pictures were returned from Garry Moore and his cast at too late a date for their forwarding to Miss Debbie Reynolds in California, and we were forced to forego her services."

As a result, the selection of the Queen and her court has been based upon the results as submitted by four judges. Garry Moore, Denise Lor, Derwood Kirby and Ken Carson selected the winners.

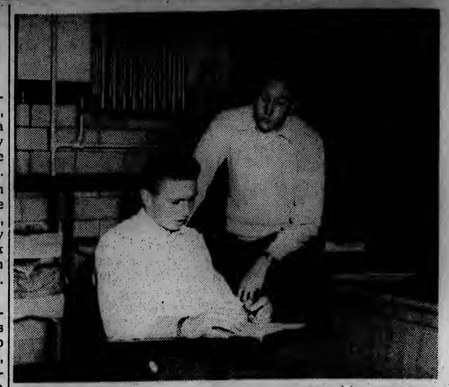
DPE Dance Set May 14

Frank Scarpa and his Collegians, an all-Villanova group, are slated to play for the Delta Pi Epsilon dinner dance on May 14, announced president Mike Quinn at last week's meeting.

Tickets for the dance, which is to be held at the Anchorage Inn on the East River Drive, will cost $5.00 a couple and may be purchased from Quinn, Nick Mazzoni, Bob Shallow, Jim Campbell, and Roger Moriarity.

New Moderator



Mr. Charles Vogan, new moderator of the fraternity, was introduced to the membership at the same meeting. Mr. Vogan, first lay instructor to be moderator of the fraternity, is a graduate of this University and a former Delta Pi Epsilon member.

Plans were also made for the fraternity Communion breakfast, which will be held on Sunday, May 23.

Date for the arrival of fraternity pins for new members is set tentatively for two weeks from now.

GRADUATION ANNOUNCEMENT

Seniors must order graduation announcements in the bookstore by this Friday, April 30. The price of announcements is 10c each.

Severino Hurls Club to Triumph Over Seton Hall

By Tom Smith

Steady Dan Severino took up where he left off April 10, as he set down Seton Hall 6-1 before a near capacity crowd of 500, including a Senior Day gathering of fathers, on the Villanova field Saturday.

When Villanova turned back the Hall earlier this month, Severino relieved in the eighth inning and pulled his mates out of a tight spot in the ninth.

Second Win

Saturday, the 19-year-old sophomore from Sommerville, Mass., went all the way on the mound to record his second win of the season. He has 1 loss.

Villanova shattered a tight pitching duel between Severino and Phil Walker in the seventh inning, as the Wildcats batted around and unloaded five runs on three hits. But there was some lax fielding on Seton Hall's part.

Scoring in the big seventh were Severino, Bill McGarry, Bob Ricciani, Charlie McGuckin and Jack Helm. McGarry had reached first safely when—with two men covering the bag—neither stepped on the base for the force out.

However, the Wildcats didn't lack for scoring opportunities. In the first inning McGarry was out at the plate and Helm, after tripling, met the same fate in the second. Both huskies rolled into the plate and laid low Catcher Jim Reardon, who held the ball tightly.

Severino surrendered six hits but kept out of trouble by walking only one Pirate. The right-hander hit another.

Why The BC Mixup?

By Harry Nash

On Thursday, April 8, Philadelphia papers came out with a story concerning what was termed a "mutual misunderstanding" involving a football scheduling mix-up between Villanova and Boston College.

At first glance, it might appear that the aforementioned "misunderstanding" involves little more than whether or not Villanova plays BC in football in 1954. But perhaps quite a few more implications and repercussions may be noted from a closer scrutiny of what is a very involved situation.

First, however, let us review the multiplicity of events that led up to the announcement that Villanova would play Florida State and not BC next October 9.

In March of '53, VU Athletic Director Ambrose "Bud" Dudley and BC sports boss John P. Curley exchanged letters in which both parties agreed to an October 9 meeting between their respective institution's ball clubs. Two months later, in May of '53, Dudley wrote a letter to Curley, asking him to send along the contracts for the October 9 get-together. As it turned out, the said documents did not make their appearance in Dudley's office until March of '54, after several other events had come about that made their arrival a confusing factor, as further chronological explanation will demonstrate.

FS Stands By

In October of '53, Florida State's Athletic Director Dr. Howard G. Danford personally contacted Dudley and asked if a game could be arranged for October 9, since that was the only opening on State's 1954 slate. Dudley, realizing that VU's schedule included several open dates—September 18, October 23 and November 20—told Danford of the situation—that the BC game was listed for October 9—but that he (Dudley) would contact BC's Curley and discuss possibilities of switching the VU-BC encounter to another date agreeable to all concerned. Danford agreed to "hang on" while Dudley negotiated with Curley, which he did—resulting in a verbal phone agreement to have Villanova meet the Eagles October 23 in Boston. Curley said in this telephone conversation that he would send along the October 23 contracts as soon as possible.

Dudley, therefore, re-contacted Danford, explained the switch of dates and agreed to an October 9 commitment with the Seminoles, all of which seemed perfectly feasible at that time. The FS official, on hearing this, mailed out the contacts immediately, which VU signed in October '53.

Then, however, during early March of '54, just last month, Dudley received the BC contracts, which much to his surprise, had the VU-BC game scheduled for the original date—October 9. In the belief that Curley was the victim of a misunderstanding, Dudley called John P. and reminded him of their phone conversation in which he (Curley) agreed verbally to the October 9 to 23 switch. Curley said he remembered the telephone discussion, but claimed that remembrance of a definite settlement of the date change eluded him. Anyway, Dudley, working on the premise (and indeed a justifiable one) that an old rival such as BC is more valuable to Villanova than far-removed Florida State, contacted that institution once more and asked for a contract cancellation of the October 9 game. The State officials, however, maintained that the contracts had already been drawn up and signed and that they could see no reason for putting themselves out, financially and otherwise, by liquidating the written agreements, since they had already made quite a few publicity plans for the game, which is to be played there.

BC Holds Stand

Finding himself in a very ticklish position, Dudley, having little choice, phoned back Curley and attempted to schedule BC on either September 18 or November 20; Curley, however, said that the former date was too early in the season, and nixed the other possibility because it was the week end prior to the BC-Holy Cross game. Curley said BC had traditionally left this date open, in preparation, no doubt, for the Eagles long and arduous trek

Club Hoists Mark To 5-4; Faces Penn

Villanova brushed aside a Rutgers of South Jersey foe yesterday afternoon behind Goodreau Stadium, 9-2, behind the pitching of lefty Dick Scott, who allowed but seven hits and was in only negligible trouble throughout. Don Muchetti, and Ralph Cecere the winners' leading stickmen, as the club notched its fifth win against four losses.

A struggling Villanova baseball club, finally having reached an above—.500% status, sets its still-ambitious sights on two important inter-city rivals this week—LaSalle and Penn—with hopes of post-season NCAA invitations still flickering.

Art Mahan's outfit, now sporting a 5-4 seasonal record, comes to grips with a run-of-the-mill LaSalle aggregation Thursday with the Exporers as hosts. Saturday afternoon at Franklin Field the Wildcats engage a fair University of Penn club, one that dropped a 5-1 verdict to Army last week-end and possesses a 1-1-1 Ivy League tag. The loss to the Cadets, incidentally, was the result of five unearned runs that the Quakers handed out rather generously through five errors.

Penn Next Links Foe; VU Golfers Smother LaSalle

Villanova's golf team carries its 2-2 season record against one of the strongest teams in the East Thursday when it tangles with Penn.

The linksmen swept an 8½-½ match from LaSalle Thursday after absorbing 6½-2½ beating from Haverford April 15.

Missed Sweep

Only an all-even performance by Charlie Stone in his match kept Villanova from sweeping the LaSalle contest. Captain Bill Albertus, Lou Blanchet, Fred Morris, Jack Gallagher and Ed Holland took their matches. The Wildcats grabbed all three best ball matches.

2nd Catholic Win

By victimizing LaSalle, Villanova ran up its second win in three starts against Catholic opposition.

In the Haverford battle on Merion's West Course, Villanova was not so successful. Stone—unbeaten in four 19954 matches—and Blanchet were the only Villanovans to register victories. One of the best ball matches ended in a deadlock.

Albertus, the Wildcats' number one man, described Penn as "pretty good" and added that they were one of the strongest links squads in the East.

Five Meets Left

After the Penn Meeting at Valley Forge, Albertus and his mates have five other matches scheduled. The list includes a triangular meet with Princeton and Fordham, and a match with the Oldtimers on Blue-White Day.

The linksmen also have return battles with LaSalle and St. Joseph's, to whom they lost in the season opener. A match with Muhlenburg closes out the campaign.

Record 54 Teams Open Bigball Play

A record field of 54 teams has entered the chase for the intramural softball pennant. The playoff tournament opened last Wednesday on three fields and will continue through May.

As the competition is set up by Intramural Director Ed Geisz, one loss will eliminate a team from the running for the championship. Survivors of the opening rounds will move into the advanced stages of the tourney.

Action On 3 Fields

Because of the number of competing teams, no favorites were listed in the pennant race. Games are contested on Simpson, Mendal and Austin Fields.

The playoff tournament is a different set-up from the softball leagues of last year.

Medals To Winners

Players on the winning team will receive medals and the club will receive a trophy.

Softball is not the only intramural sport listed for spring. Geisz revealed plans for a horseshoe tournament and volleyball competition. Team applications are now being accepted in the Intramural Office.

B-W Plans Near Completion

Acceptances from various "Old-Timers" and prominent sports figures from the Philadelphia area kept pouring in to the Athletic front office last week as final plans concerning participants in the Blue-and-White Day activities were formulated.

The "Old - Timers" golfing group, which will engage the varsity duffers at 9 a.m. Saturday morning, May 8, was announced. Its captain, Joseph Duffy, Class of '37, has organized five other former Villanovans for the event: William A. Kelly, Jr., '35, Anthony T. Anderson, '42, Dr. A. A. Hobson, '38, J. Bradley McManus, '40, and Dr. Edward J. Burke, '23. That event will be held at the Aronimink golf course.

Ferry To Play

Quite a few former Villanova football stand-outs have returned their acceptances, including Tom Clavin, '50, George Claffey, '52, Lou Ferry, '49 (now with the Pittsburgh Steelers), Don Frinzi, '51, Ed Lanigan, '50, Joe Rilo, '52, Don Scott, '52, and John Siano, '48. These former Main Liners will combine with the graduating seniors of the 1953 Wildcats—Gene Filipski, Joe Faragalli, Ben Addiego, Ray Rigney, Pete Carrieri, Joe McNicholas, Art Knowlton, Tom Fitzpatrick, and Bob Burg.

So far, 35 prominent high school football coaches have agreed to attend the day's activities, and returns are still coming in. Athletic Sec'y Bill Ryan expects over 100 in all to make an appearance. These coaches will all be guests of the Blue-White Day Committee at a stag cocktail party and dinner at the end of the day's festivities. The basketball and football "Old-Timers" will also be feted at these affairs.

Glassmire Returns

Among the returnees for the basketball game with the varsity will be Paul Arixin, Larry Hennessy, Nick MaGuire, Steve Gepp, Bob Kelty, Dick Gray, Sam Glassmire, Leo Wolf and Fred Price, and at least a dozen

In Penn Relays:

Breaks Mar Performances Of Varsity, Frosh Relayers

Jenkins Runs 48.2 Anchor Leg

By Tom Smith

Without a few rough breaks, Villanova's varsity and freshman relay teams might have written happier endings to the story of their participation in the 60th annual Penn Relay Carnival. But as things turned out, both squads finished out of the running.

The freshmen suffered from a baton - dropping incident early in their race for the freshman one mile relay championship of America. The damage became obvious as Charlie Jenkins flashed home with a 0:48.2 anchor leg, which would probably have at least placed the Wildcats.

Gene Maliff, Al Petersen and Mike Agostini ran the other three quarters.

Collision or Cut-off?

A collision early in the race disqualified the varsity relayers in their chase for the Class B relay title. This incident hurt, too, as Jim Moran impressed with his performance in the second leg. Warren Heitman, Al Ligorelli and Joe Gaffney also carried batons for the Wildcat club.

Villanovans competing in individual events did not fare so well in the densely populated meet ,which attracted more than 3100 athletes. On Friday Bill Rock ran a steady race but finished out of contention in the two mile run. A junior, Rock will be back for more long distance duty with Coach Jumbo Elliott's squad next season.

In snapping the tape first in their initial heat, the freshmen showed promise of bolstering next year's squad. They paced the cinders in 3:24.6, before facing powerful Morgan State in the final heat.

Rams Next Foe

Elliott sends his men against Fordham Saturday in a dual meet on the Villanova track. Using the Rams' performances in the relays as a criteria, it appears that Villanova may be in for a rough afternoon. The New Yorkers smashed the only record broken during the rugged Penn Relays as they copped the two mile championship of America with a blazing 7:38.6. The Rams sliced two and a half seconds off the old mark.

Two Fordham stars, Tom Courtney and Bill Bersichetty—Metropolitan 600-yard champion—helped the Rams take the two mile relay. Both will be on hand for Saturday's engagement with Villanova.

VU Letter Requirements To Be Stiffened — Dudley

A plan intended to attach more prestige to the earning and wearing of the Villanova varsity letter was outlined last week by the University's Athletic Director, Ambrose "Bud" Dudley.

Stating his purpose to be the increase of the rightful dignity of the "V", Dudley described a plan that would set up strict requirements for earning a letter and a system by which each varsity and minor sport participant would have to be passed by both Dudley and the institution's Athletic Board before being awarded the letter.

To Regain Prestige

"I would like to see the wearing of Villanova's "V" regain the dignity and importance that it once held and certainly should hold," said Dudley. "It has gotten to the point in recent years that letters have been given out to anyone who manages to make the club and because of this laxity on the part of officials involved, the VU letter does not convey the significance that it rightfully should.

"So, in order to restore the 'V' to its deserving place of prestige, we are going to inaugurate a plan as of this time whereby each athlete will have to fullfill certain requirements as to playing time in order to gain his letter," explained Dudley. "Not only that, but he must be recommended by his coach as to attitude and other intangibles, and then passed by both myself and the school's Athletic Board, which will check him in disciplinary and chapel attendance channels. It is only natural for the letter to lose its intended significance after being given out at random, instead of being awarded to truly deserving performers and withheld from participants whose work does not yet merit a 'V'."

All Sports Affected

Dudley outlined a system which includes these requirements for earning a Villanova letter: first, the varsity sports—football, baseball, basketball and and track—a football player must participate in at least one-half of the total number of quarters played by his club during the season; baseball performers must get in at least 27 innings, or, in the case of pitchers, at least 9 innings; basketball players must play in at least 20 quarters, or the equivalent of five games; and trackmen compile a total of points that equals the team's number of season meets. In the minor sports — swimming, 150 pound football, golf and rifle team — a swimmer must compile at least 10 points over the course of the season; 150 grid players must participate in at least one-half of the team's total number of seasonal quarters; golfers must take part in at least one-half of the club's meets; and a rifle team member has three qualifications to fulfill—1. he must participate in at least 75% of all the team's scheduled shoulder matches; 2. he must place in the high five scorers in at least one-half of the year's matches; and, 3. he must have the recommendation of the coach.

All coaches, according to Dudley, will hand in lists of the men they believe to be deserving of letters, judging by the requirements and the mentors' personal discretion.

Seniors Get Blankets

Dudley went on to say that sophomore and junior letter winners would be awarded blue letter sweaters, and seniors would have a three-way choice between a blue sweater, a white one, or a "V" letter blanket. The captains of various clubs will wear gold stripes. Each stripe on a letter-bearer's sweater denotes one year of letter-winning participation.

Dudley also added that he is in hopes of the new system leading up to an improvement of the caliber of the Varsity Club. He noted that Notre Dame, Texas, Georgia, and all Big Ten schools, among many other large institutions, have Varsity Clubs that accept only letter-winners who go through a period of application and consideration, and who are admitted in varied and colorful rituals that lend tradition and significance to the club and its functions. Dudley believes that Villanova's Varsity Club, with more prestige added to the wearing of the letter, is capable of becoming, as it should, one of the top campus societies, which sponsors affairs and worthwhile functions throughout the school year, and which becomes selective and worthy of men who really deserve to wear the Villanova "V".

other post-war era Villanova court performers. John Blonz will be the honorary captain of the "Old-Timers". Maje MacDonnell, the freshman basketball coach and also a coach and batting practice pitcher with the Phillies, will also be on hand. Referee will be Pete D'Ambrosio.

McNally Coach

The football officials will be Steve Romanowski, Bill Grimburg, John Highfield and Bill Christopher. Honorary coaches of the returning gridders will be Vince McNally, president and general manager of the Philadelphia Eagles, Jim Leonard, former Villanova football coach, and Jordan Olivar, also a former VU mentor, now at Yale.

In Trio of Losses:

Offensive Slump, Mound Let-Down Hurt Wildcats

A prolonged hitting slump and a general ineffectiveness of the pitching staff in the clutch tells the story of of Villanova's three straight losses in the past two weeks—to Navy, West Chester, and Delaware.

Art Mahan's crew went unto the bottom of the ninth leading Navy, 6-3, but wildness on the part of soph Dan Severino proved to be his undoing, as the Middies struck back for four runs and a 7-6 victory.

Lose To West Chester

Then, a week later, after a scheduled contest with Rutgers had been rained out, the Wildcats took on a good West Chester club on the Villanova field and proceeded to drop another one-run decision—this time by 2-1. The hitting inefficiency was the sore spot here, as the Main Liners failed to score in the ninth with the tying and winning runs on base.

Four Pitchers

The loss to Delaware, 6-3, found four VU pitchers taking turns attempting to put down the winners. Except for Dan Severino, Mahan's pitchers were generally inept and could not back up a Wildcat hitting attack that did perk up quite a bit, led by Bill McGarry, Ralph Cecere, and Bill McCaffrey.

ing 9-5 to a visiting Georgetown crew Saturday. The Explorers' record was evened off at 3-3 by the loss to the Hoyas.

Since Dan Severino pitched (and did such a fine job) against Seton Hall last weekend, and left-hander Dick Scott toiled against Rutgers yesterday, Mahan will probably go with another lefty, Don Sommers, against LaSalle. Sommers, who has not been overly impressive so far this year, will be looking for his second win.

across the wastelands of the Common from BC to Fenway Park, where the game is to be played. Dudley, failing to see any logic in this statement, noted that the Cross was playing the weekend before the BC tilt, and in effect asked Curley why the Eagles could not follow suit. Curley, however, stood his ground, so Villanova finds itself minus an opponent that has been and would promise to be an advantageous one, from a traditional if not a financial point of view. Curley, meanwhile, obviously not too upset over the whole shebang, has since talked VMI into filling the October 9 void caused by the mix-up.

As far as Dudley is concerned, the affair will have no adverse effect on future Villanova-BC athletic relationships. He does feel, however, that the release of the April 8 story to the Associated Press by Curley placed Villanova in a bad light, when actually it was a misunderstanding on the part of Curley, who could not recall having made definite commitments concerning the change of the game date to October 23.

"Won't Suffer"—Dudley

"I don't believe we are going to suffer from the misunderstanding, mainly because State's Danford offered us one of the most lucrative financial guarantees we have ever received," explained Dudley. "But I don't believe that this is any time for Catholic schools to be wrangling over in-the-family differences, since there are only seven Catholic football powers still in existence out of an original 50. In the first place, I don't think the whole situation was even important enough for Curley to give it to the press, because even to this moment a mere phone call or letter from BC agreeing to a November 20 meeting will put the Eagles right back on our schedule. It's certainly not an irreparable situation."

"Concerning the future," he went on, "we have a tentative October 8 of '55 engagement with BC, and just the other day I wrote Curley and asked for a definite confirmation of that date. We hope to maintain the BC rivalry; we wouldn't schedule anyone—especially newcomers, in preference to BC. But I did want to clear up a mixup that, according to Curley's release to the AP, made us look responsible for the whole affair."

"It was an unfortunate misunderstanding. But even now it could be cleared up easily."

"It's up to BC," Dudley concluded.

Library In The Marian Year

1954 Jubilee Exhibits Honor Blessed Mother

By Rev. Michael J. O'Donnell, O.S.A.

SINCE THE BEGINNING of the Marian Year, December 8, 1953, constant reminders of this Jubilee Year honoring the Blessed Virgin Mary, Mother of God and Mediatrix of Grace, have been on exhibition in the display cases of the University Library.

These exhibits are planned to supplement both the continuing display demonstrating the significance of the Immaculate Conception to us as Americans and the permanent display of paintings of the Madonna donated to the Library by one of its most generous benefactors, Princess Eugenia Ruspoli.

Immaculate Conception

The exhibit honoring the Immaculate Conception of the Blessed Mother of God is centered by a copy of Murillo's painting of the Immaculate Conception. On each side of this reproduction is a trellis supporting lilies.

The lilies are used for the obvious significance of purity and for a reminder of the plea recited in the Prayer for the Marian Year composed by Pope Plus XII: "O fragant lily of all holiness, captivate our hearts with your heavenly perfume!" In keeping with this phase of the theme, on a glass shelf and directly below the painting may be read some selections from a book entitled "Lilja (The Lily)", an Icelandic religious poem of the early fourteenth century by Egstein Asgrimsson, an Augustinian Friar.

On the same shelf, but to the right as one looks at the display, is a copy of the complete Prayer for the Marian Year as personally composed by His Holiness the Pope. Still on the same shelf, but to the left of the viewer, is the printed information that the First Plenary Council of Baltimore, 1846, chose Blessed Virgin Mary under the title of the Immaculate Conception as the Patron of the United States.

The fact that this decree was confirmed by the Holy See on February 7, 1847, is next stated. Finally the present Holy Father's pronouncement of the spirit of the Marian Year as quoted by the Most Reverend Archbishop of Philadelphia, John F. O'Hara, C. S. C., in his letter of November 11, 1953, is printed on this paper.

National Patron

Flanking the book "Lilja (The Lily)" and between each of these papers is an American Flag and stand to remind the viewer of our National Patron. This exhibit is bordered along the sides with lilies and across the top with a blue felt cloth bearing the legend "Ave Maria Gratia Plena" in red and gold lettering and edged with a fringe of the same red and gold combined colored braid.

The display cases in the basement corridor of the Library are filled with many Madonna reproductions loaned to the Library for the Marian Year by Mrs. Frederick White of Norristown, Pa., grandmother of Arthur Quinn, editor-in-chief of the 1954 Belle Air (Yearbook). Some of these are copies of works honoring the Blessed Virgin that are seldom seen by the public.

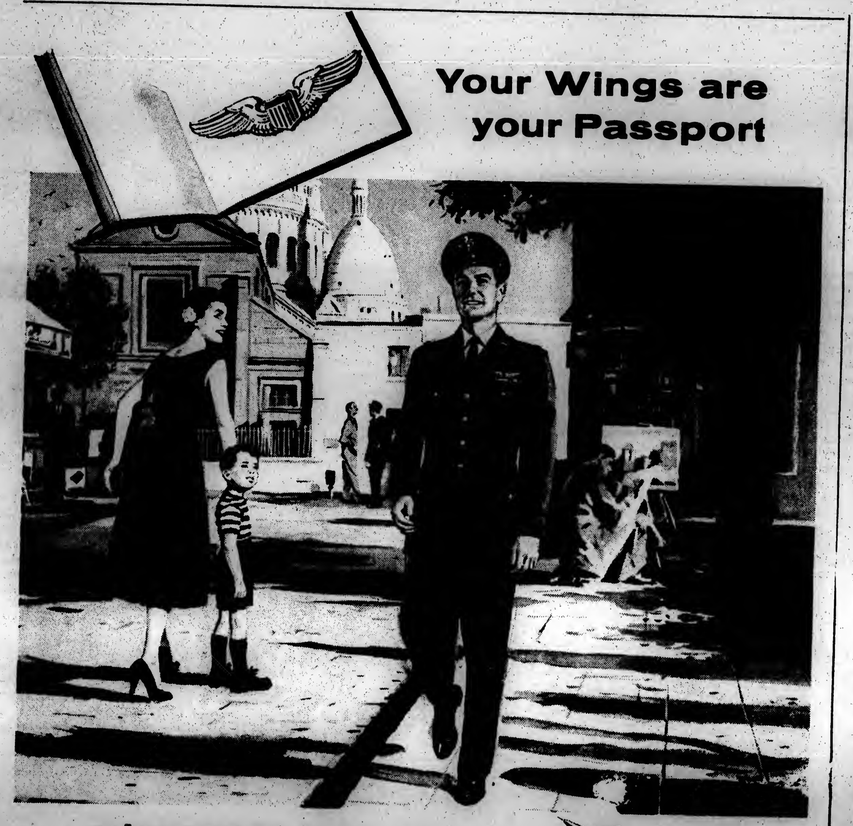
Temporary Displays

The other display cases in the main lobby of the Library are used for more temporary exhibits in honor of Mary, our Mother. For example a short time ago, the remaining three cases were used for displays honoring the Annunciation.

In these were found reproductions of the world's greatest artists in etchings, black and white drawings, and paintings in honor of the Annunciation. During April there are seen displays on the titles of Our Sorrowful Mother (Passiontide and Holy Week) and Our Mother of Good Counsel (April 26).

"New Idea"

The "Mary Garden", a beautiful and memorable display begun last year merits more than passing mention. This was inspired by an article in the Catholic Digest for March, 1953.



In this article, the writer, James C. G. Conniff, relates how two Philadelphians, John S. Stokes, Jr., and Edward A. McTague, "hit on a new idea" inspired in the former by "a unique garden" he had run across "on the grounds of St. Joseph's church at Woods Hole, Mass."

Every flower in this garden, established by "a Chicago woman named Mrs. Frank R. Lillie" bore its pre-Reformation English title honoring Mary. The "new idea" of Stokes and McTague was to "restore the spirit of prayer to gardening". Guided by the results of their research as listed in the article, the display cases in the University Library displayed our own Villanova Mary Garden.

May Day

Morning Glories were listed as Our Lady's Mantle, Lilies of the Valley as Our Lady's Tears, Pansus were Our Lady's Delight, Fuschia as Our Lady's Eardrops, etc. One case was reserved to stress the fact that May Day was known in earlier days as "the day of Mary, the Mystical Rose". In order to offset as far as possible the unfortunate present-day connotation of "May Day."

Senior To Represent V. U. In A.I.E.E. Paper Contest

Ralph Sinnot, E. E. '54, was selected to represent Villanova in the Annual Prize Paper Contest sponsored by the American Institute of Electrical Engineers. The senior presented his paper in competition with two other V.U. students at the monthly A. I. E. E. meeting held last Tuesday evening.

At the conclusion of the meeting, presided over by vice-chairman Dick Cuff, the members voted on the three entries.

Last year three Villanova students, all seniors, went on to win the Institute's District Contest held at Bucknell.

Sinnott will present his paper, "A Resistance Bulb Temperature Switch", at the district contest in Cincinnati, Ohio, this spring. There, representatives from 22 Eastern colleges and universities will compete for top honors.

The winner at Cincinnati will receive a trip to the summer meeting of the Institute at Los Angeles, and a tour through the R. C. A. Research Laboratories at Princeton, N. J., among other awards.

Two other papers enthusiastically received by the audience were presented by Daniel Louney, "The Formation of Corona", and Richard Cuff, "Power System Interconnection with Respect to Stability and Economy." Both are senior E. E. majors also.

"Engineer" Staff Has Annual Dinner

More than 30 members of the "Villanova Engineer" staff will attend the publication's annual dinner held at the Clover Leaf Inn tonight.

After the dinner, Fr. Vrana, O. S. A., moderator of the magazine since its inception in 1934, will address the group, and next year's editorial staff will be announced.

Ed McMahon, this year's editor, announced a special "Engineer" subcription offer to increase the publication's circulation among the alumni. A subscription to the magazine, normally two dollars, can now be purchased for one dollar.

The offer is aimed at present seniors who will have an opportunity to keep in touch with the Engineering school, McMahon said. The subscription may be obtained from staff members, or by mailing one dollar to Box 275, Villanova, Pa.

CLOTHING DRIVE A SUCCESS

The second annual N.F.C.C.S. clothing drive which ended on campus Friday was " a huge success" according to chairman Bob Ervin.

Several boxes of old clothing were collected for unfortunate students in foreign lands. Other schools in the area also participated in the drive.

This is Ervin's second year as director of the drive. Villanova led the Philadelphia area in donations last year.

Inside Junior Week

EDITORIAL

The Muse Gets Prompted, Quasi-Seriously

IT is often said that youth is the period of idealism and that experience is the great teacher that will open our eyes to reality. We do not have to wait long to determine the truth of this. Our idealism can face no greater test that the practical economic demands of Junior Week.

While suspended in a lethargic state, far from Pennsylvania, but somewhere between thinking and daydreaming, it occured to us that if all the sizable lump sums of money that we must dole out during this beatific week were placed in one pile, the redoubtable mountaineers Herzog and Hilary would be provided with a new challenge.

Certainly it is true that our eagerness to participate fully in this week's festivities must be modified by stern reality, and this provides an opportunity for some quasi-serious musing.

On Mother's Day, the science-minded, dreaming of large bombs and thinking machines, would be the first to admit that no substitute for motherhood is possible. No-short formula can produce the qualities and abilities that Mother has.

Mother has a great influence on her children. Those among us who don't play football had to depend a great deal on Mother for character building. (In justice, however, we must conclude that some of the football characters are well-built even without mothers.)

The first great task of Mother was to get us housebroken, and her second big job was to keep us from breaking up the house. But now, of course, we are civilized, and only Dad has to worry about being broke.

Republicans, democrats, and sometimes communists favor motherhood. Rarely it is opposed in word, but often it is opposed in action. As evidence we have the continual attempt to replace old-style family life by the institution of the subversive television machine, the playground, and the automatic dishwasher. To show how motherhood has suffered in some instances, we have the paradox of a Hollywood actress who has been a wife four times and yet, charged with neglecting her children, doesn't seem to have been half a mother.

Sometimes, the greatest charitable compliment that we can pay to a Tito or a Molotov is that he too is the son of a mother. No matter how good or bad, fat or thin, rich or poor, happy or sad, bright or dull a man may be, he has one, and only one, natural mother. All men are mother's sons, and this fortunate situation is one of the most important in the life of any man.

But Mother's Day is only part of Junior Week. The great number of activities are the social high-water mark in our collegiate career, and they come during the most meaningful year in college. Freshman adjustment and sophomore scholastic trails have been in large measure left behind; senior year with its concern for the future is yet to come.

In other words, the Junior has been in the frying pan but wasn't burned, and he hasn't yet been put into the fire. He can breathe freely and enjoy collegiate life. Perhaps such institutions as Junior Week are coldly calculated to so saturate the reeling third year man with extra-curricular entertainment that he will be encouraged to return to his books with a fresh vigor.

Whatever the motives, it is undeniable that, justifiably, there is no week other than that of graduation which is more eagerly anticipated and popularly enjoyed.

ENTER BLAZER BOYS

The Week Revisited

THIS week is Junior Week—important to all Villanova Students.

Seniors look back with a pleasantly warm feeling frequently diagnosed as old-age nostalgia.

Freshman gaze upon these ceremonies with the blissful ignorance of youth.

Sophomores carefully observe and mentally note the necessary etiquette to be employed in the entertainment of Mothers and dates.

For the Junior a long awaited series of events has come upon them sooner than expected, with an eruption of confusion never before experienced. Many fellows are having difficulty in obtaining suitable dates; some are even considering keeping their Mothers down all week.

Other Juniors are experiencing difficulty finding suitable funds—they too are considering keeping their Mothers down. With time closing in fast the Blazer Boys are really starting to panic. After receiving no vote of confidence from the home town talent, the rebound has carried them to the local campus queens and there isn't much confidence expressed there either.

Most of the fellows will be able to get their dates squared away, but then there is the old money difficulty. Suitable schemes have been contrived to make the fast buck, such as standing on a street corner with a three-day beard and a tin cup, or selling T.V. sets to wealthy Sophomores.

Of course the soft soap letter home has the usual good results. But the most unusual deal so far is the fellow who is auctioning off one of the two dates he has for the Prom.

The Junior class has things well in hand as far as preparations are concerned. Mother's Day is arranged for today, but to assure clear skies they should have scheduled it on Tuesday—ask any NROTC man, he'll tell you—it never rains on a drill day. Speaking of the Navy, the unit is going to put on a show for Blue and White Day—the Saturday of Junior Week.

After the Prom it will be easy to spot the Juniors bobbing and weaving while the rest of the Middies march. For the first time in Villanova history the Prom decorations are ready a week in advance. The boys played it smart; for the theme of the affair they chose "Field House Frolics", swept the floor and are ready for the first couples. The refreshment committee has promised to set a new precedent by not running out of punch (another first in Villanova history if they can do it). They plan to use the swimming pool as a punch bowl—that should roughly be about 22,500 gallons, which is quite a bit even with typical Villanova capacity.

Seriously though, hats off to a wonderful job done by the Junior class—with such magnificent preparation this Junior Week promises to be the best yet.

Corsages replace scarlet coats for Mother's Day

BY BILL QUINN

RUMOR has it that one of the Mothers of the Junior Class, when confronted with the above plan of the campus, was heard to exclaim, "Oh, my goodness, what is Junior running—a Mother's Day or a fox hunt?"

Assurances have been made that this is not an obstacle course, but rather a day dedicated to the Mothers of the class.

Preparations for today started about one month ago in the Browsing Room of the library. The Committee had roughly $2100.00 dollars at its disposal, and they made short work of allocating the entire sum.

Actually, the class funds were jealously guarded and carefully expended through the hands of Chairman Ted Clarkson.

Today marks the sixteenth time that Juniors of Villanova have honored their Mothers through a day on the campus. This is the first one under the school's new title of "University." And as in the past years, Mother's Day marks the opening of the major social function of a class of the institution—Junior Week.

THE Holy Sacrifice of the Mass officially opens Mother's Day at 11:00. The Reverend Edwin T. Grimes, O. S. A., moderator of the class, will be the celebrant. Father Grimes acquired the duties of class moderator last year when the former advisor, Rev. Henry Eagan, O. S. A., was forced to relinquish his position due to a change in assignments.

Mothers of the Juniors will hear a sermon at the Mass by the Very Reverend James A. Donnellon, O. S. A., President of Villanova University. Father Donnellon succeeded Rev. Francis X. N. Maguire, O. S. A., when Father Maguire was asked to head the Development Fund Program. Before taking his present position, Father Donnellon was Prior of the St. Thomas Monastery here.

The Schola Cantorum will sing the Mass, and Aiden Hatten and James Brady will serve as acolytes.

Corsages will be presented to the mothers at the beginning of the day.

FOLLOWING Mass, the planting of the class tree will take place. This event entails the planting of a magnolia tree behind the College Chapel by the Chairman of the Mother's Day Committee, the Junior Class officers, and their mothers. The tree will be supplied by the University Maintenance Department.

A photographer from the Zamsky Studios will be on campus from noon until 5 P. M. to take pictures for all those Juniors who wish to have a pictorial memento of the day.

Luncheon, courtesy of the University will be served in the Mendel Cafeteria at 12:30. In order to facilitate the service, it will be handled in two shifts.

The University Concert Band will offer a program for the mothers in the Field House at 2:30. During the Band intermission, the Turf and Tinsel dramatic organization will present selections from their forthcoming show "Wish You Were There."

The makings of a good fight between mother and son have been carefully presented at 2:30, since at this time there will be a baseball game between Villanova and St. Joseph's at the same time that the Band and Turf and Tinsel are offering their selections. The ball game will take place on the diamond behind Goodreau stadium.

THE committee again decided to run the "Diaper Dan" contest and letters were sent out to all the Juniors' Mothers in early March, asking them to submit baby pictures of their sons. The returns have been gratifying, the judges have been sworn to an oath that they would not attempt blackmail, and all pictures will be displayed along with the contest winner in Austin Lounge at 4 P. M.

Our Mother of Good Counsel Shrine, a new structure on the campus, will be the scene of Benediction at 5 P. M. Reverend Edward T. Grimes, O. S. A., will preside. The Seminarians from St. Mary's Hall will sing Benediction.

CONCLUDING Mother's Day, 1954, will be the fourth annual Banquet in the Field House at 6 P.M. The Reverend Thomas A. Burke, University Registrar, will say the Invocation.

This years' Juniors' personal contribution to Mother's Day will be presented to the Mothers at the banquet. It is in the form of small silver spoons with "Mother's Day" engraved in the base of them. These favors, by Dieges & Clust, are an entirely new innovation to Mother's Day.

The Principal speaker at the banquet will be Rev. Francis X. N. McQuire, O. S. A. Other speakers at the dinner will include Ted Clarkson, a pre-law student from Havertown, Pa., Chairman of the Mother's Day committee, and Bernard Finan, an Arts student from Maplewood, N. J., president of the Class of '55.

Benediction by Reverend George McLaughlin, O. S. A., Dean of Student Activities, will be the final official act of Mother's Day.

MRS. EDWARD M. CLARKSON receives a corsage from her son, Ted, Junior Class vice-president and chairman of all Mother's Day activities.

One of the silver-plated spoons bearing inscription "Class of '55—Mother's Day—Villanova" given to Juniors' moms today.

- The average handsomely-dressed women wearing the white corsage with blue ribbon will tour about two miles of the Villanova campus today . . . at least that's what one of the more statistical Mother's Day Committeemen predicts.
- Mother's Day committee, headed by Ted Clarkson, includes: Ed Klinges, Duke Micone, Fred Biegler, Aiden Hatten, Bill Quinn, Frank Gunther, Eric Baumgartner, Joe Sadowsky, Dick Winfield, and Bill Byrne.
- Fact that over 300 mothers are participating marks a new record for Mother's Day turnout . . . it's the fourth annual banquet . . . first time that benediction will have been offered at an outdoor shrine at Villanova.
- The thirty-odd student waiters serving luncheon in the University cafeteria are all officers and leaders in the Senior Class.

Let There Be Merrie-ment

With dancing in the streets and joy unconfined for today there is a new Junior Week Queen

BY FRANK GUNTHER

Happy Guy

Escorting the newly - chosen Queen to all the Junior Week activities will be her fiance, Hank Smith, a Marketing major. Smith is a graduate of Malvern Prep.

MAMIE EISENHOWER was prohibited by White House protocol, Arthur Godfrey was too busy, and Debbie Reynolds was too far, but Garry Moore and his TV cast did the honors for the class of '55 by choosing its Junior Week Queen, Miss Mary Inez Connell.

Mary, better known as "Mickey", was the unanimous choice of Denise Lor, Derwood Kirby, and Ken Carson, all of whom aided Garry in his selection. As a guest of the Junior Class, "Mickey" will be escorted to all Junior Week activities by Hank Smith. Hank, who is a student in the Commerce and Finance school, happens to be her fiance.

This business of winning Queen Contests is not a new one to Mickey. A resident of Riverton, New Jersey she was chosen "Miss Olympia Lakes" in 1951 and also reigned as "Apple Festival Queen" in 1950. She attended Palmyra High School and Cedar Crest College, where she majored in home economics. After two years of college, she left Cedar Crest and enrolled at the Charles Morris Price School of Advertising.

Included within her five-foot, four-inch frame is an abundance of talent as well as beauty. The green-eyed blond, who weighs 115 pounds and is 22 years old, likes to spend her spare time doing sketches. Also, included among her hobbies are sewing, tennis, and ballet. With the exception of sewing, it is very doubtful that she will have much time to devote to these hobbies after July 10.

Mickey and Hank have announced that on that day they will become Mr. and Mrs. Smith.

THE second choice of Mr. Moore and Company was a nineteen-year-old blond from Garden City, New York. The date of C & F student Bob Burns, Miss Jacqueline A. Rennie will reign as the Queen's Lady-in-Waiting. Also five-foot-four, Jacqueline has blue eyes and blond hair. She weighs 119 pounds and is a student at Smith College in Northampton, Mass.

The Queen's Court consists of the dates of three more C & F students and that of an engineer. (The Arts and Science students must be spending too much time studying history instead of making it). The Queen's Court includes the Misses Dorothy Feehan, Joan H. Guyer and Carole Bellino, who will arrive at the Prom on the arms of C & F'ers Carl Schreiber, Joseph Sacher and Nick Chiarella, respectively. The final member of the court, Miss Esther Moriarty will arrive with engineer Thomas McCarthy.

Her Royal Highness will be formally coronated "Queen" by band leader Johnny Long at the Prom on Friday night. She will be accompanied by her Lady-in-Waiting and Court. All of them will be presented with gifts and flowers through the compliments of the class of 1955.

Just in case any of the Juniors would like to compare their personal "Queen" with the prom Queen, her Lady-in-Waiting, and her Court, here is a brief run-down on the statistics. The magic number was three. Mr. Moore and his three helpers selected three blonds, three girls with blue eyes, three nineteen-year-olds, three college students, and three who weighed 115 pounds. And just to prove that they were excellent representatives, three of them equalled the average American female's height of five-feet, four-inches.

The Coronation carpet is being spread for lovely Miss "Mickey" Connell, Queen of Junior Week. Accompanying the Queen as she receives her Royal Crown will be her Laidy - in - Waiting, Miss Jacqueline Rennie.

The Queen's Court (l. to r.) consists of the Misses Dorothy Feehan, the lone redhead chosen; Joan Guyer, a graduate of Notre Dame High School; Carole Bellino, the youngest of the group at 17; and Esther Moriarty, a sophomore at Chestnut Hill College.

No Mere Weekend But A Full Week!

BY BERNIE COYNE

THE Junior Week spotlight is focused on the Blazer Ball and the music festival, two feature events presented by the Junior Class to guarantee an entire week of entertainment rather than just a weekend.

The Blazer Ball is the bonus offer of Junior week for the entire student body. It is an informal dance that is inexpensive, yet one which has music that Villanovans know from experience to be perfect for dancing.

RED THORNTON models the handsome sports coat after which the Blazer Ball is named.

Charlie Gresh and his orchestra will play the same type of music so many enjoyed at the Shamokinaki. Slow foxtrots will predominate, but there will be more than enough "bop" to satisfy all the cats.

The price is right too, only $1.75 per couple from 9 to 1 Wednesday night in the Field House. And don't forget, a corsage is not necessary at an informal dance, so the overhead is almost nonexistent.

Bob Meyers, Chairman of the ball, makes a special invitation for all those who can't make the Prom to come to the Blazer Ball and enjoy themselves by sharing in some of the fun of Junior Week. He also reminds that a Blazer is not necessary at all. In fact, quite a few upper classmen will be there without them.

The theme of the dance is the new official seal of the University; a replica of the seal will be displayed prominently. Pete Loos, Don McGahan and Aiden Hatten have combined their talents to make the decorations attractive.

Tickets are available either in the Pie Shop or at the door the night of the Ball. They may also be purchased from one of the many class representatives.

A bid to the Junior Prom is to be given away as a special door prize.

THE keynote of a musical week will be set by the Concert Band on Tuesday evening at 7:30 when it presents its music festival in front of the Library.

Under the direction of Frank Licopoli, '55, a well-integrated program consisting of "The Light Cavalry Overture," as a classical selection, a medley of old Irish favorites, "The Chocolate Soldier Overture," representing the popular modern group and Sousa's best marches will be presented. Also, Bob Schiller will offer his trumpet solos with Joseph Valente doing the vocal.

The Villanova "Wildcats plus Five" will feature, as the highlight of the musical evenings, a Jazz Concert.

Frank Gunther, '55, band manager, invites everyone to come and bring his date or family.

The entire program will be coordinated by Reverend Joseph Burns, O. S. A., moderator of the Concert Band.

How To Defy A Depression

Enterprising prom-goers boost the local economy

BY REES JAMES

EVERY year, along about the time our Easter parole is over, the members of the Junior Class develop some sort of mass economic hysteria. From the Field House to Fedigan Hall (fifty thousand colleges in this country and I have to go to one that is three miles long and thirty yards wide) the strained cry of "want money" echoes through the campus.

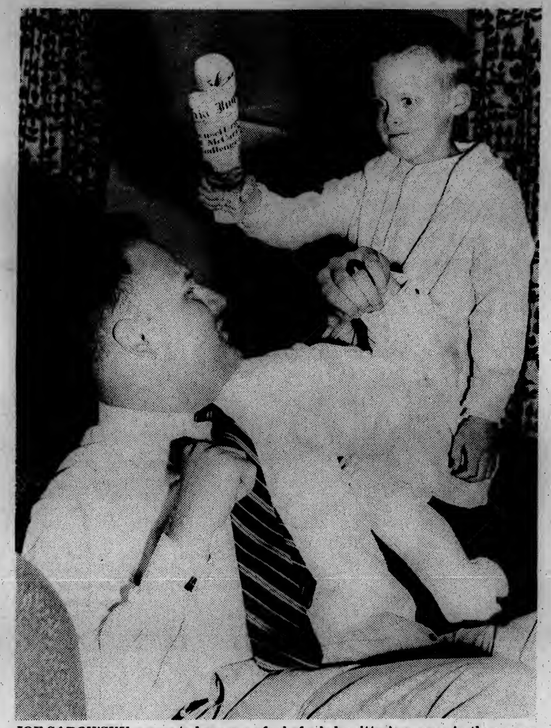
Villanovans seek employment everywhere, trying to appropriate a little gelt. The Main Line labor market is swamped. There is no recession here.

We decided to question a few people to find out how this situation has affected the local social system. Presidents of country clubs report that they have been combing the lanscape for new members in order to accommodate the influx of caddies. Caddy-masters are setting up placement services. Finance students to caddy for bankers, pre-meds to caddy for doctors, Arts men caddying for everybody—that sort of thing.

Local census bureaus report that the Main Line birth rate is up; young wives are taking advantage of the overflow of available baby-sitters. This specific situation has had repercussions elsewhere; high school girls, having no work, are trying to get married. The Army states that enlistments of high school boys has taken a sharp upswing. Three-year olds are becoming adept at typing term papares and drawing graphs, and Rosemont girls have told us that Villanovans, due to their baby-sitting experience, are much more domestic than Princetonians, who were described as "peachy keen."

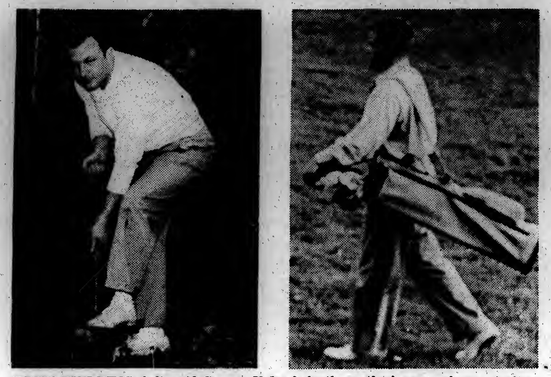
A businessmen's association has offered its fears that this section of the county may quite possibly return to an agrarian economy. They base their fears on the increase of yard help, another activity of penny-wise Villanovans). The country side is resplendent with neat lawns opulent foliage, and colorful blossoms. All this is under the mothering care of students of Villanova A. and M. Plutocratic landlords of the area are planning to sell flowers for mad money. The wise land holders are putting in cotton. This will be an infinite source of labor for students, if the wetbacks can be kept out.

Everywhere we went for information we were asked the same question. What happens to these boys in the spring? What is it that causes this great desire for honest labor, an occupation that is usually anathema to Villanovans? We have made it a manner of policy to answer this question by asking the individual to be a Junior Prom patron. This answers the question and prevents any further inquiries.



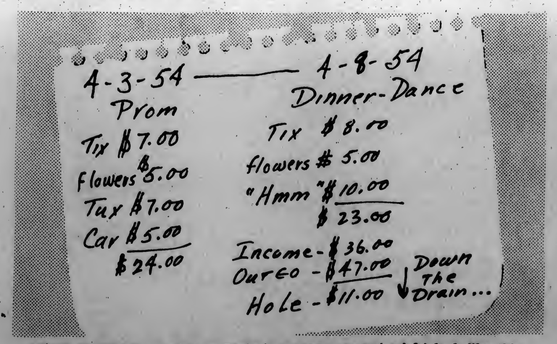
As subtle as our answer may be, it contains the truth. The reason for the entire situation is Junior Week in general, and the Prom and Dinner Dance in particular. The Prom, which will be held on Friday night, May 7th, and the Dinner Dance, to be held the following evening, will mark the climax of a week of various social activities commencing with Mother's Day on May 3rd and ending with double bromos on May 9th.

The chairman of the Prom Committee, who happened to be weeding a yard when we interviewed him, is Bud Ford. Amid flying dirt and grass, we received the following information. The dance is to be held at the University Field House and the bids are seven dollars. (At this point we grasped a trowel and began weeding also.)



The music is going to be supplied by the orchestra of Johnny Long. Mr. Long's group played at the Junior Prom last year and has been received very well. The band, which originated at Duke University back in 1931, has been one of the nation's top bands since that time and has kept its material suited to the tastes of the collegians. Mr. Long's theme song, "Sweetheart of Sigma Nu" is an example of the collegiate tone which permeates his taste in music.

Other hits the band features are their famous versions of "Old Shanty Town", "New Shanty Town" and a tune Mr. Long wrote himself, "Just Like That." Included in the entourage are the lovely vocalist Barbara Hammond, Dick Perry and the Long Shots, Rod Kinder, and the Glee Club.



Bud also gave us the information that Hugh Humphreys, co-chairman of the Decoration Committee, has planned an exotic setting for the affair. (Ed. Note: Author James is the "other" co-chairman.) The theme of the Prom is to be an "Evening on the Riviera". The dance will take place on a large boulevard in one of the resort towns with the moonlit Mediterranean behind the band, and a romantic Riviera street scene on either side of the dance floor. Subtle lighting will add the final touch to the illusion. Mr. Humphreys plans to serve punch from the Blue Room. (We could not ascertain whether Mr. Humphreys would serve the punch personally). The high spot of the evening will be the crowning of the "Queen of Junior Week." This event is planned for about ten-thirty. The "Queen" will ascend the stage, followed by her court, the ceremonies will take place, and the entire group will then dance the royal waltz. England has nothing on Villanova. After the dance the participants will take part in various activities such as quilting parties, group singing, and scrabble tournaments.

JOE SADOWSKY seems to have run afoul of a baby sitter's menace in the person of little Eric McKechnie. Prom-goers have been known to undergo hours of this.

NEXT SUNDAY morning, a Junior's expense account might look like this.

THE Dinner Dance, to be held the following evening at the Penn-Sherwood Hotel, is a comparatively quiet affair and is open to Juniors only. (This fact has nothing to do with the comparative quietness). The roast turkey dinner will be served at 7:15 P .M. and a trio will provide dinner music. After the dinner the floor will be cleared and the band of Tony Desmond will provide music for dancing. Mr. Desmond's band has performed at the Junior Dinner Dance for the past three years and his music is set to a tempo pleasing to all. Frank also told us that the number of reservations made for the affair has exceeded all previous years, and that he expects the last event of Junior Week to be a fine success.

These two events are the reason for the great work hunt that has been going on around school for the last few weeks. So if your roommate asks to shine your shoes for a dollar, don't let him do it, but don't belt him either. He's probably baby sitting that night and will get all the lumps he can handle.

An Era of Formation

BY BOB ROCK

THE day was an unforgettable one on the Villanova campus when as Frosh, they went forth to accept the challenge of college life. Here were 513 young men, arriving from all points of the globe to add their names to the Villanova student roster.

After registering in their respective schools, and being adorned with "dinks", they were addressed by Very Rev. Francis X. McGuire, O. S. A., then president of the school, who formally welcomed them as "men of Villanova." Although the enrollment was not as large as those in past years, great things were to come of this class because of the "quality," not the "quantity".

Headlines in the surrounding montage trace the activities of those Villanova men of the Class of '55 from that unforgettable day up to the culmination of Junior Week. If you look closely enough, you'll see the development from high school seniors to Villanova Juniors, all in three "big" years. Three big years that, to steal a phrase, were "the best years of our lives."

But the headlines do not tell the whole story. There were incidents and memories behind them. Only the Junior has the fond remembrance of Orientation and "Killer Koenig" and his White Hats. Vengeance was sweet as Muff day went to the frosh as did the intramural track meet. The social season was lacking nothing as the local female colleges opened their welcoming arms to them and invited them to tea, dances and other such events. Also as Frosh, they quickly entered the political arena by electing Jim Ennis and Bill Kohler as Student Council representatives. Part of the class' school spirit was passed on to the incoming Frosh through the efforts of the orientation committee composed mostly of sophomores.

You see the work that was done by Bud Ford's various committees for the Soph Cotillion in the headlines. With the theme of the "Gay Nineties" and music by the "Villanovans", the Class of '55 presented its first social event of its college life with great success. It would be impossible to give credit to all whose combined efforts made the dance also a financial success, but Bob Kaiser, Jim Campbell, Fred Beigler, Duke Micone, Don McGahan, Joe Wynne, and Bill Kohler were but a few who deserve credit for the Cotillion. On the sports side, few will ever forget the thrilling encounter with Parris Island at our Goodreau stadium. Once again the Class was victorious in Muff Day and in the Intramural meet.

Under the direction of President Frank Licopoli, along with Vice President Tom Ulrich., Secretary Tom McCarthy, and Treasurer Don McGahan, the class flourished and the bonds of unity were tightened for the coming years. When Dick Winfield took over the editorship of the Villanovan, it indicated a trend of the leadership of the Class of 1955. The Juniors, then Sophomores, began to fill various important and responsible extra-curricular positions thus indicating their ability.

Then with the class ready for the big year ahead, Bernie Finan was elected President, Ted Clarkson, Vice President, Bud Ford, Secretary and Frank Baker, Treasurer. Thus equipped with their officers and respected moderator, Rev. E. T. Grimes, O. S. A., they entered into their third year with a vigor evidenced by Bill Kohler's work as ring chairman and Tom Ulrich's as blazer chairman. The ring, incidentally, was the first ever to bear the title, "Villanova University."

The appearance of both Vaughn Monroe and "Miss America" were other events that the '55er's remember during the fall.

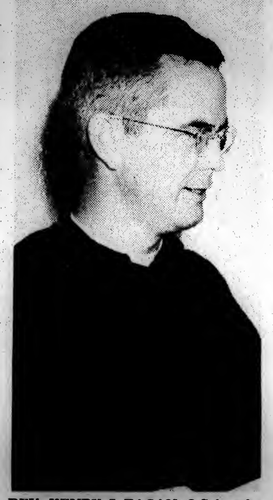
One would only need mention "Operation Yule" under Lou Fournier and Don McGahan and Fran Leonard's "Charity Ball" to recall the gratitude of the St. John's orphans last Christmas and that would be the first reason for terming this year the "best yet".

The next reason and the best reason would be Junior Week. This is the outstanding and most anxiously awaited event (aside from graduation) that a Villanovan experiences. The various committee chairmen were chosen in view of their past work. Ted Clarkson as the chairman of Mother's Day promised a day not to be forgotten by the mothers for a long time.

The Junior Prom, preceded by the Blazer Ball and band concert, was the big event that Bud Ford's committee men had been working toward. The decorations, "On The Riviera," are completed and awaiting the Promgoers' approval. The Junior Queen has been selected along with her court. The Dinner-Dance with Frank Gunther at its helm is a sell-out; this is the Class of 1955's big week and they'll enjoy it to the fullest.

The full benefits of the Junior Class work have not yet been enjoyed but after the end of this week, one should appraise the Juniors on their accomplishments.



Scholastically, Ed Daly, Mark McCormick, Joe Distel, and others are above the 3.80 overall average mark, with a majority of the class above 2.5. That is a high standard to keep up but the Junior Class has always been a pace-setter.

The achievements of Bernie Coyne, Jim Borden, Drew Higgins, and others in the Belle Masque are well-known; the Turf and Tinsel claims Tony Ciesko, Joe Sadowsky, Rees James, Joe Blimm and Larry Palmisano; the newspaper has Dick Winfield, Frank Gunther, Bill Quinn, Dick Confoy, and others; sports are sprinkled with a star assortment of Juniors; Schola Cantorum, WVIL, the fraternities, the clubs, no matter what you name, have a backbone which doubtlessly numbers many of the Junior Class.

Villanova, in the three year stay of the present Juniors, has also grown with the class. It's seen the addition of a law school, coeds, the building of a new dorm, a change of presidents, a shrine erected to Our Lady, the growth into a University, the inaugaration of a stepped-up athletic program under Bud Dudley, and many more steps of advancement. For as Villanova University goes forward, the Junior class is keeping right along.

There are many reasons, too many to enumerate, that this class of 1955 can compare with the best. The merits and members of the class will speak for themselves.

The Class of 1955 is going on, forward all the time, striving to otch its mark in the honor roll of Villanova.

The Gang's All Here

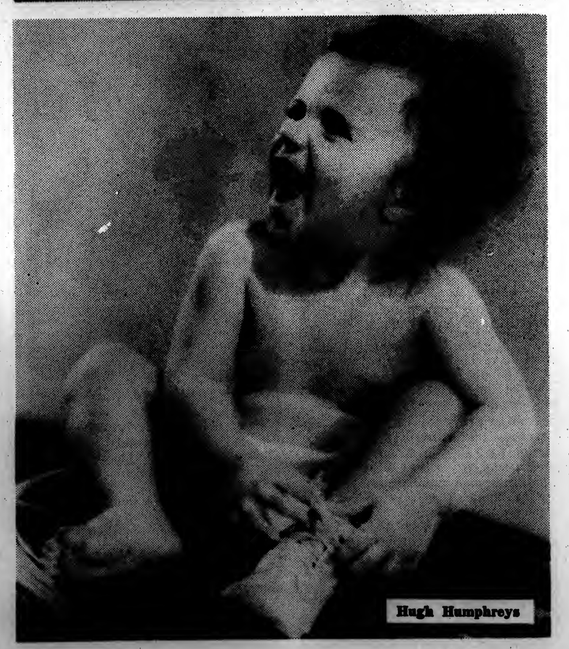
BY WARD WELSH

THIS may look like kids' stuff but Diaper Dan, 1954, really means business and he's brought his gang with him to prove it!

Chosen from a field of 280 baby pictures, sent in by juniors' mothers, Harry Rees James, an English major from Pittsburgh has bagged the title of top baby for this year's junior week. But Rees doesn't go anywhere without his buddies so they all came for the celebration.

That's Bob Rienzi, fighting out of Rutherford, N. J., working out on his front lawn; Little Joe Leichtweis is a big man on the railroad in Harrison, N. Y.; Bill Bell of Detroit takes time out for a short snort and Hugh Humphreys, gentleman of leisure gives us a smile from his Ramsey, N. J., studio.

These boys can rest assured that they're "the ladies' choice" too, because contest judges were 7 nurses studying graduate courses at Villanova. Each nurse picked her five favorites from the stack of photographs, cutting the field to a handful, and from there, the five finalists were chosen. James was the unanimous choice for the crown.



Well known at Villanova as a popular columnist or The Villanovan and the "Engineer," Rees has put his creative ability to work elsewhere on the campus.

His Connelly Award decoration of Delurey Hall took second prize last Fall. As managing editor of "The Lynx", Villanova's literary publication, Rees has given the magazine a boost this year with his poetry, art, and layout work.

Rees and his buddy Hugh Humphreys, decoration co-chairmen of the prom, have put their heads together during the past month to change the Field House into the French Riviera for the prom, Friday night.

Junior Delegates To Muscledom

Some of '55's sinewy set who'll display their wares at Blue-White Day events

By HARRY NASH

IF you're a member of the Class of 1955 (and there's a 21% chance you are), and if you're still able to produce the necessary bill for admission (this percentage we won't attempt to determine) to the Blue and White festivities May 8, you'll not want for opportunities to point out to that as-far-as-you're-concerned Junior Queen on your arm the men who'll represent your Junior Class in the colorful string of events to be staged Saturday.

You can be sure there'll be plenty of them.

For, when the second annual B-W Day rolls around bright and early the morning after the Junior Prom (much too bright and early if you happen to be in NROTC), a plenteous and talented crop of Class of '55 athletes will be strutting its wares in this seven-sport array designed by "Bud" Dudley and compatriots.

Nor will the talent be spread thin, either, for, throughout the affair, beginning at 9 A. M. and ending around 6 P. M., approximately 30 Juniors will compete. The day's fifth event, a lacrosse match between Philadelphia and Baltimore All-Stars, will include no Villanovans whatsoever, of course.

Let's grab a quick look-see at the program, chronologically, and glance hastily at the Juniors taking part.

GOLF: Varsity vs. Alumni . . . Five members of the Class of '55 will take to the tees against the "Old-Timers" —Lou Blanchet, Fred Morris, Ed Holland, Jack Gallagher and Jack McGrath. These men were among those picked from an original candidate field of 13; all have been valuable in the club's early play.

BASKETBALL: Varsity vs. Alumni . . . Anything said about the basketball Juniors must of necessity become a treatise on Jack Devine and Bob Schafer. Along with reserve Bill Sigalove, these two former Philly schoolboy stars are the only '55 representatives who will face the Alumni. Devine did an inexpendable job for Al Severance in 1953-'54; he averaged 15 points a game and snared rebounds with an alarming (to the opposition) regularity. The youngster who looked as though he were going to saunter off with the national scoring title until one Franklin Delano Selvy began his headlong spree toward that end, was, of course, 6'3" Schafer, who did more than anyone else hereabouts to promote the revived "raise the baskets!" cry. He scored 846 to finish second in national scoring and concluded with a 27 point average—good for fifth country-wise. Sigalove, a 6'5" Brooklynite, could be a valuable rebounder, but still lacks the poise essential to a starter.

TRACK: Varsity vs. Seton Hall . . . VU's track team will display the aptitudes of three third-year men—Bill Rock, Jim Moran and Jim Brady. Rock has been competing in the mile and two-mile events, and is Jim Elliott's only distance man. He is a self-tutored high school trackman. Moran, who did a good job in the Penn Relays two weeks ago, has been plagued by injuries; he did an 0:09.9 100 in '53's B-W Day. He was New York high school 220 champ in 1951. Brady, from the Canal Zone, high jumped 6'2½" in the schoolboy competition of the Balboa Relays in 1951. He grabbed a third place finish in the '53 Seton Hall Relays.

BASEBALL: Varsity vs. Ithaca . . . Three Junior glovemen are football veterans who also manage to play pretty fair country baseball for Art Mahan. In this category are Dick Scott, a left-hander who was 6-0 last year, Jack Helm, a long-ball hitter who alternates between third and first, and Bill McGarry, a right-fielder who is '54's probable starting fullback for Art Raimo. Don Muchetti, a good gloveman and an improved hitter at third, Jack Peters, playing left and swinging with consistency, and catcher Bill Pearson, a hustler and good defensive man, are the other Juniors attempting to lead their club to a post-season NCAA bid.

FOOTBALL: Varsity vs. "Old-Timers" . . . Seven Juniors will bump heads with Haner, Pasquariello and contemporaries—all VU gridmen of the past. John Sullivan, Joe Viverito, Joe Leichtweis, Dan Hurley, Stan Brzenk, John Giordano and Mike Mayock are Raimo's Juniors. Sullivan, a high school star, may get the chance he deserves next year at fullback. Viverito, displaced in mid-season by Johnny-come-lately Nelson Marshall, did a yeoman job at center for the first half of '53; another lineman, 230-pound Joe Leichtweis, was a two-way bulwark for the Wildcats, and will be the top returning tackle. Hurley, Brzenk and Mayock figure prominently in the line plans; Mayock was one of the best receivers on the '53 club. Giordano, formerly a lineman, has been very impressive in spring drills at halfback, and big things are predicted for him in the new Split-T dynasty.

SWIMMING: "Swim-o-Rama" . . . The Varsity swimmers play the Freshman in water basketball, and six Juniors will have a stake in this unique event—Paul Callahan, Matt Lieb, Bill Quinn, Paul Donahue, Dick Harris and George Curran. These men pioneered in VU's return to competition; Quinn and Donahue were outstanding throughout the campaign—first for this institution since 1942.

CHOMMED, I'M SURE wheezes Turf and Tinsel haute-mondite Bill Kelly, seated right, to Remo Leomporra. Rougish grin and swirling feather belong to Art Odabash. Jack Padova and Tom Pitt look on.

"Wish You Were There" Opens Tomorrow Night

After the completion of seven weeks of arduous practice, Villanova's musical comedy group, the Turf and Tinsel Club, is ready to put on their ninth production, "Wish You Were There."

The play, written by George Pequignot, is a take-off on the the life of Leonardo da Vinci, and is strictly a comedy. Complete with an orchestra and dancing chorus, "Wish You Were There" is expected by the cast to be one of Turf and Tinsel's best shows.

Leomporra Has Lead

Romulo Leomporra, who has the lead, is cast in the role of Leonardo, while Joe Sadowski and Remo Leomporra also have major parts, playing Cookie and Salai respectively. Others in the male cast include Ray Rigney, Art Odabash, Gene Filipski, and a 50 man chorus.

Lending their talents to the play, Rigney, regarded by Turf and Tinsel as a "sensational singing 'find' ", and Filipski play the part of the not overly-bright aides of King Francis, who himself is a senile man, portrayed by Art Odabash.

Leading Ladies

The leading female roles, Isabella and Marietta, are humorously characterized by Walt Doyle and Tom Pitt, both of whom are seasoned footlight performers. Other female roles include such characters as Marguerite, Lili, and Marlyn.

George Heger Noake, director and choreographer of the production, has developed some novel dance routines for his aspiring chorines, while Bob Whelan, a familiar name around Villanova's campus, has written both the music and the lyrics for the numerous songs in the show.

The opening curtain of "Wish You Were There" will be raised tomorrow night at 8:00 p.m. in the Field House. The show will run each subsequent night until the final performance on Saturday, May 15. Admission will be one dollar for students, and $1.50 for adults. Tickets may be purchased at the Pie Shop, or from any member of the cast.

MERIT AWARDS—

Merit awards will be given for active participation in extra-curricular activities at the annual award assembly Tuesday, May 18, at 1:30 in the Field House.

These certificates, acknowledging membership in clubs, fraternities, and societies and work on publications or in class activities are distributed annually.

Classes Ponder Nominees For Elections Thursday

See list of candidates, page 4.

This week last feverish preparations will be made for those big elections Thursday in the Alumni gym. Final blotters will be distributed, the last hands will be shaken, and Villanovans will enter into the recesses of the gym to cast their votes.

Campaign voters have replaced the "need rides to . . ." signs on bulletin boards, and the "hello" habit has returned to the campus. In the next two days 87 candidates will greet 1726 prospective voters. Only 26 will be elected.

The juniors will elect an alumni representative in addition to the usual officers: president, vice - president, secretary and treasurer, and the six student council positions.

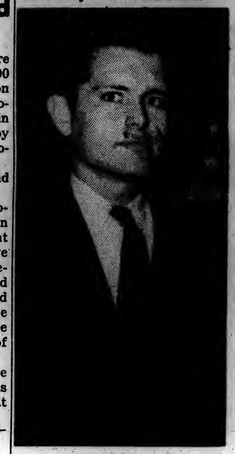
The class of 1956 will pick the men who will be in charge of what is perhaps their most important year, the year in which Junior Week is the predominant social function. They, too, will elect six council representatives besides the usual four officers.

The 823-man Freshman class will be thinking about the Soph Cotillion and its successful handling when it casts its ballots on Thursday. They will be represented by but two Student Council representatives next year.

There are 383 eligible to vote for class of 1955 and 515 eligible to vote for the class of 1956. A record vote is expected.

Daly Wins Award For Prize Essay

Ed Daly, Villanovan feature writer, won first prize of $100 for his historical essay on "President Grant and the Domonican Republic," presented in a statewide contest sponsored by the Pennsylvania Society of Colonial Dames of America.



Last year he came in second place in the same contest.

The paper dealt with a proposed treaty with the Dominican Republicin 1869. The president of the republic was to receive a substanial gratuity if the Republic accepted the suggested treaty. The U. S. senate rejected the treaty and Daly used the case as a basis for an outline of the treaty-making power of the President and Senate.

It is believed that this is the first time that the topic has been approached from that angle.

Francis Gehring, a mechanical engineering major, will deliver the commencement address at the Class of 1954 graduation exercises Monday, June 7.

Gehring, a graduate of Regis High School, Jamaica, Long Island, was chosen from a field of 12 candidates, outstanding students whose names were submitted by the deans of their respective schools. In this selection, academic standing, extra-curricula activities and general presentability were considered.

GEHRING

Gerstung Close Second

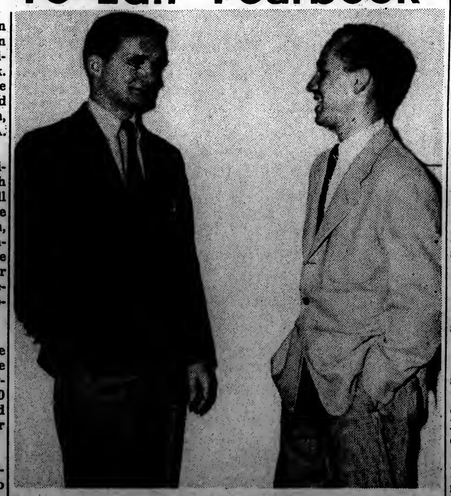
The top 6 candidiates competed in an oratorical contest to determine their speaking ability. Judges in this contest were Rev. Robert Regan O. S. A., Captain Martin J. Gillan and Mr. Anthony Frayne. They announced that Gehring won by a close margin over Robert Gerstung, a Commerce & Finance major.

Other candidates selected by the deans were: from the Commerce and Finance school, Eugene DiOrio, John Hayes, and John Quindlen; from the Arts and Science school, Charles Noel, Donald Schmidt, James Nolin, and Bart Moynahan; and from the Engineering division, Edward McMahon, James Schaefer and Donald Miller.

Navy Commission

Gehring will be commissioned an Ensign, U. S. N. at graduation, and begin a three year tour of duty. He is engaged to Miss Patricia Pickle, a '55 graduate of Rosemont College.

Gehring is social chairman of Phi Kappa Pi, activities chairman of the A. S. M. E. and a member of the "Engineer" staff.



Gunther To Edit Yearbook

Frank Gunther, a junior in the Arts school, has been chosen to succeed Arthur Quinn as editor of the Belle Air, yearbook. Gunther was nominated by the outgoing editor and approved by moderator of the publication, Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O. S. A.

Gunther, a resident of Baltimore, attended Loyola High School where he played football and basketball. At present he is copy editor of the Villanovan, manager of the band and a member of the DPM fraternity. He was chairman of the Junior Dinner-Dance held Saturday evening at the Penn-Sherwood Hotel, Philadelphia.

Work began last week on the 1954 yearbook as Gunther made arrangements for senior portraits to be taken from May 10 to May 21. Juniors are urged to sign up in the Pie Shop for appointments.

Gunther has selected his editorial staff and submitted it to Father Falvey for approval.

New Belle Air Editor

New Infamy

We have just finished reading the book by Admiral Theobald (USN, ret.) entitled. "The Big Secret of Pearl Harbor." A recent column in the Evening Bulletin first drew our attention to the work, and our inferences upon reading the actual text were damning, to say the least.

The editorial column, to which we are referring above, stated that the writer had also read the work and that as a result, it appeared to him as though the title "Day of Infamy" was taking on new meaning.

Admiral Theobald carefully presents in his book what he believes to be the outlines for one of the worst examples of pragmatic philosophy that this country has ever seen. Through the use of telegrams selected from the files in Washington, the Admiral presents his belief that the 4,500 men who were wounded or killed on December 7, 1941, spilled their blood at the evidently coldly-calculated wish of the then President of the United States, the late Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

It seems evident from the telegrams presented that the President had sufficient information at his disposal to know conclusively, even to the hour, the time and place that the Japanese planes were to appear over the ship-jammed Pearl Harbor Port.

Defenders of the President rely mainly on the fact that a "war warning telegram" was dispatched to all bases, and they also suggest that the Japanese may have sent thousands of such telegrams to about thousands of different bases.

The "war-warning" telegram is included in Admiral Theobald's book, and it is shown to be an insipid, colorless scrap of paper which could be sent to every one of our bases at this present time and carry just as much weight as it obviously carried then.

And in reply to the second objection, it seems clear to us that regardless of the number of such telegrams sent by the Japanese war-lords, it is impossible to conceive the reasons for Pearl Harbor not to have received some warning when Washington knew (to the hour) when and where the Japanese had telegrammed that their attack was to come.

May we suggest that in President Eisenhower we have, as has been shown in these recent McCarthy-Army fiascos, a man of very high integrity and decency. Would such a man permit a president of the United States of the stature of President Roosevelt to be so vilely castigated and besmirched in such a way without just cause? No, of course not.

If there were a way to show that the President had not deliberately wished a Pearl Harbor in order to unite the country, or for any other reason, we feel certain that the Truman administration or the present one would have long since cleared him.

The Long View

It is no accident that among the cartoonist's favorite stereotypes is the Baby-Smooching, Favor-Dispensing Champion of Mankind, The Politician. His counterpart on the college level is even more susceptible to lampooning; the sight of a white-bucked glad-hander doubles us up.

MORAL: In the midst of risings and fallings of political fortunes on Thursday, enjoy the spectacle, take the long view, and, of course, vote.

'Mau-Mau's' Condemned As Intruders Themselves

By Ed Daly

To the average American of today, the name "Mau Mau" signifies a horrible native movement somewhere in the African jungles, an organization employing weird voodoo methods to drive the whites from Africa. Unfortunately, many fail to realize that the "Mau Mau" campaign is of far greater significance than appears on the surface.

To begin with, it is necessary to understand the background of the problem. When the British first came to Kenya in 1888, they found a land the interior of which was still under the rule of savage tribes. The Kikuyu, the people among whom "Mau Mau" flourishes today, was a tribe of some 50,000 souls living in terror of the depredations of their fierce neighbors, the Masai and the Wakamba, who raided the tribal villages of the Kikuyu almost yearly. The British, of course, put an end to the tribal warfare of the old days and established order in the interior.

As a result of this peace, since their population was no longer being kept down by the annual raids of their neighbors and since British medicine reduced the death rate from disease, the Kikuyu tribe grew enormously in numbers until by 1950, their population was estimated at 1,200,000 persons. Since most of the tribesmen steadfastly refused to adopt modern farming methods, the old tribal farmlands soon became inadequate.

Kenya Coveted

Obviously, some way had to be found to take care of the excess Kikuyu population. It was then that the Kikuyu began to cast longing eyes upon the fertile Kenya uplands, which, vacant at the time of the British occupation, had been largely occupied by European farmers. However, when Kikuyu leaders advanced their claim to the uplands, the British administration pointed out that, since the land in question had not been the possession of any native people prior to its occupation by the British farmers, the claims of those farmers were valid and those of the Kikuyu were not.

Had the situation in Nairobi, Kenya's chief city, been different from what it was, a peaceful outlet for the Kikuyu's surplus population might have been available. Unfortunately, a virtual monopoly of good business positions in that city was gained by East Indian immigrants. The results of this condition were twofold. First, the number of possible job openings in Nairobi was drastically reduced. Secondly, and perhaps more significantly, many well-educated Kikuyus were unable to obtain jobs commensurable with their education and consequently became dissatisfied with the existing order.

Intellectuals Lead

Thereby, there developed in Kenya a situation of grave potential danger. At length, when dissatisfaction became serious enough, the "Mau Mau" movement began, largely under the inspiration of the native intellectuals who had gained control of the Kikuyu Independent Schools and of various other organizations. The real leadership of the organization had apparently come from this group, led by such men as Jomo Kenyatta, a Kikuyu intellectual who had come under communist influence first in London and then later in Moscow, and by others like him. The horrors of the "Mau Mau's" campaign to drive the Europeans and Indians from Kenya everyone knows from reading the newspapers.

What many forget however, is that there are many Jomo Kenyattas in almost all parts of Africa. Enormous numbers of Africans have been educated at British, French, and American universities. There is evidence that at these universities, the communists made great efforts at winning them over. Apparently many of them have been considerably influenced by them, and some at least have returned to Africa convinced communists. Many others, who had not been converted to communism in Europe, became disillusioned in European rule in Africa when they were unable to obtain adequate employment upon their return to Arica.

Other "Mau-Mau"

At the same time the population of Africa as a whole is increasing very rapidly and conditions in the overcrowded Kikuyu reserve are being duplicated in many other sections of Africa. If some adequate solution is not found to allay the resulting unrest, many other local "Mau Mau" may develop in various sections of the "Dark Continent". Already signs of trouble have developed in Nigeria, and Madagascar.

If such conditions as these become general, there is grave danger that the vital uranium supply from the Belgian Congo

May Day Parades: Russian vs. American

By Tom Mentzer

On May 1st of this year, most of the world turned its eyes toward Moscow to witness the annual parade of Soviet might. The impressive spectacle of thousands of marching soldiers, roaring jet planes, and a cheering populace could not fail to impress upon the rest of the curious world the glory and power that is Russia's.

Yet there was a part of the world that was oblivious to the momentous mass movements that took place in Red Square on May Day of this year. For in this particular region another parade was passing in review, a parade that was a complete contrast to the Malenkov presentation.

Philadelphia Children

The place to which we refer was Philadelphia and the marchers were not rifle-bearing soldiers but rosary-bearing children. There were neither whistling jets nor vociferous throngs, but rather only a few chirping birds and a silent, prayerful group of onlookers.

And what is more, the children marched not to impress upon the world the military glory that was a nation's, but to honor the Mother of all nations, the Holy Mother of God. For this first day of May was the beginning of Mary's month in Mary's year.

Special Month

Since our grammar-school days when we walked in our particular parishes' May Processions, we have all realized that the month of May is a special month set aside by Holy Mother Church to pay honor to God's Mother. It is a time of Grace; vivifying, exhilarating Grace; that gives one the courage to live as a child of God in a man-made, materialistic environment.

And the fact that the Holy Father has seen fit to designate 1954 as the Marian Year gives this particular May an additional spiritual attractiveness. What better time to take your cares, and the cares of the world, to the feet of the Queen of Heaven? Will her Immaculate Heart not be eager to comfort you with solacing love? Will her ear not be tuned to grasp the faintest of whispered prayers at this special time? Indeed, they will and they are!

Suggestions

So let us avail ourselves of these benefits and, like the marching children, let us honor Mary in this month and in this her year. Daily Mass and the reception of Holy Communion coupled with recitation of the rosary are the best means to the attainment of these ends. A firm determination to fulfill the request made by her at Fatima by offering Communions of reparation on the Five First Saturdays and by making personal sacrifices is another means.

These suggestions for the obtaining of Mary's love and aid are but a few of the many ways that exist within the Catholic Faith for that purpose. The important thing for each one of us is to choose at least one way and then to supplement our choice by subsequent action. In this manner, special honor and glory is brought to Mary, the Immaculate Mother of God, in May of the Marian Year!

SPORTS CHATTER

CAUGHT WITH THE SHORTS . . . Ralph Cecere, who was injured against Pennsylvania a week or so back, is back on the go after a few days hospital stop-over. Ralph tangled with a concrete railing in Franklin Field while chasing down a pop foul and suffered a minor concussion. Good things for Cecere and for the club that some serious repercussion didn't come about. He's been one of Art Mahan's most adroit lads all year long, especially defensively and particularly in the past few weeks, during which time he's been hitting the ball with his old-time gusto. Big-time bush beaters are after this young man, who graduates in June, and they'll be getting quite a bit of athletic protoplasm if they land him. Ralph's been one of Villanova's most versatile athletes in many a moon; he's steady, consistent, and a good man in the clutch. So with Cecere's headache gone, the opposition's begins.

THE INTRAMURAL TRACK meet, held last Tuesday, kept things status quo as far as Junior Class superiority is concerned. The Class of '55 boys grabbed the day's top spots once more, just as has been the case ever since said clan arrived hereabouts three years ago. The Juniors won the meet with a total of 38 points; the Sophomores were second with 34. The winners were: 100-yard dash—freshman James Cunjak, 24.8; 440-yard dash—Junior George Bedmar, 57.0; 440-yard relay—Junior Class 50.0; 880-yard run—Senior Bart Moynahan, 2.10:2. The broad jump was won by Junior Dan Murphy with a 19' getaway; Bill Murphy, also a Junior, won the shot put event with a distance of 40 feet; Dan repeated in the high jump with a 5'6" effort; and Senior Bill Belleville took the javelin toss with a throw of 150 feet.

SOFTBALL SCHEDULE is moving along nicely, despite the rain of late and the distracting activities of the past week. The mortality rate is a bit high, of course, what with one loss constituting elimination from the season-long tournament style program. Several clubs have won two and some three games already, and the original list of 54 teams has been depleted somewhat—a rather natural consequence. The finals will be rolling around in about two weeks. Somebody said there's a team from Good Counsel that hasn't played yet. Rumor has it that this team is having trouble testing the youngsters it must farm out to Simpson Field in order to get below the 48-man limit. Wait till Commissioner Geisz hears of this.

Boardwalk Mile:

Race Controversy Leaves Breckenridge Unmoved

By Joe Heaps

Freshman distance man Alex Breckenridge was the central figure in an unusual situation in the Boardwalk Mile in Atlantic City on May 2. The Scotsman beat the field of Mal Whitfield, Fred Wilt, John Joe Barry, and Horace Ashenfelter, but was not declared the winner. The officials stated Alex was entered as a pacer and was not competing with the other milers.

"Running To Win"

Commenting on the strange turn of events, Breckenridge said, "It was my understanding that I was a regular entrant in the race, with the stipulation that I was to set a fast pace for the half mile. I was running the race to win and it was a shock to learn that I was not a bonafide contestant."

No Protest

A. A. U. Secretary Dan Ferris said that Alex could file a protest which could possibly establish him as the official winner. Alex, however, declined this offer, stating that the sooner such controversies are forgotten, the better. It is also modest Alex's opinion that Mal Whitfield (the official winner in 4:06.8, as compared to Breckenridge's 4:06.3) could have staged a stronger finish had he known Alex was a regular entrant.

The amiable Scot was pleased by his performance in the Boardwalk feature despite the confusion, and hopes it is an indication of fine races to come.

This incident brings to mind another bad break that befell Alex last November. In the IC4A Freshman Cross-country Championships Breckenridge was ahead of the field when he took a wrong turn because he was unfamiliar with the Van Courtland course. He finished second.

Loyola, CU, WC Upcoming, Ithaca Out

By Joe Heaps

The baseball team left early today for Baltimore to play Loyola College in the first of three away games in six days. After the Greyhound get-together, the Wildcats travel to Washington to test Catholic University and then next Monday the team goes to West Chester for a return battle with the Teachers.

Coach Art Mahan plans to send Don Sommers to the hill today and to use Dick Scott against Catholic U. Both Sommers and Soph fireballer Dan Severino will be ready for the important meeting with West Chester. Ralph Cecere, the hard-hitting shortstop, is hopeful that he will be able to return to action in this game. He suffered a concussion in the Penn game when he tripped on the cinder track while chasing a foul ball. Cecere was released from the hospital Sunday and plans to participate in some light workouts this week.

Because their Blue-White Day game with Ithaca was postponed, the squad ran through a two and a half hour practice session last Sunday. Batting practice and infield drill were stressed by Coach Mahan.

With the season a little more than half finished, and the team holding a very creditable 8-4 mark thus far, its members are confident of improving their record during the remainder of their schedule. Reasons for this optimism are the steady pitching of the Big Three of the staff —Sommers, Severino, and Scott, and the improved hitting of the entire club. Bill McGarry, Bob Ricciani, Chuck McGuckin, Don Mucchetti ,and Jack Helm are all either over or very close to .300.

Another asset to the Villanova nine has been the fine throwing displayed by the outfield. Numerous opposing base-runners have been cut down by the strong arms of Jack Peters, McGuckin, and, particularly, McGarry.

The aggressive base-running of Chuck McGuckin is another factor in the team's early season successes. His ability to steal and to take the extra base have made a big difference in the "runs" column for the Wildcats.

Cindermen In Dual Meet

By Tom Smith

A soggy track failed to hinder Villanova's frisky track team as it rolled to a 91-40 Blue-White Day triumph over Seton Hall. The Wildcats, now undefeated in two dual meets, face Drexel and St. Joseph's today in a triangular meet on the latter's track.

Just as they had done against Fordham the week before, Coach Jim Elliott's harriers monopolized the field events. Seton Hall was able to capture only a first in the broad jump.

Four Villanova trackmen who turned in "iron man" performances with double victories were Bill Rock, mile and two mile runs; Charley Spencer, 120 and 160 yard hurdles; Mike Quinn, shot put and javelin; and Joe Gaffney, 220 and 440 yard runs.

Spencer wasn't satisfied with his double wins. He copped a second place in the high jump and a third in the pole vault.

Villanova's relay team(Warren Heitmann, Jim Moran, Ray Wheiler and Gaffney) outran the Hall as it had Fordham, but the time was slower on the wet track.

In turning back Fordham last week, 76-64, the Wildcats swept all places in the high jump and broad jump, but could take only two firsts in the running events.

Jim Brady, Mark Connor and Spencer controlled the high jump and Heitmann, Giordano and Spencer captured all the places in the broad jump. Gaffney chalked up both running event wins, in the 100 and 220-yard dashes.

Giordano made sure that he kept occupied during the rain-dampened Blue-White carnival. Before he donned equipment to play halback for the varsity, G. I. grabbed seconds in the shot put, discus, and javelin and a third in the broad jump.

Charlie Jenkins

Breckenridge And Jenkins In LA Relays

Two of Villanova's freshmen track stars, Alec Breckenridge and Charlie Jenkins, have accepted invitations to participate in the 14th annual Los Angeles Relays to be held Friday, May 21.

The relays will be part of a huge cinder affair to be held at the Los Angeles Coliseum.

Both Outstanding

Both Jenkins and Breckenridge have done themselves proud for Jim Elliot this year. Jenkins has shone consistently in various freshman relay events throughout the season as well as in independent meets such as the Boston A. C. Games, and the Washington Star Games; Breckenridge, of course, has been a center of controversy for the past week following his contested (by Mal Whitfield) Atlantic City Boardwalk Mile triumph.

Sophomore Reliable:

Pitcher Severino Has Hopes Of Infield Play

By Tom Smith

For a guy who feels at home around third base, Daniel Patrick Severino has done an extremely commendable job for Villanova's baseball outfit by etching his name in the "DS" club of Art Mahan's starting pitchers.

Not bad for a 19-year-old who fondles hopes of playing professional ball around third base or in the outfield. Major league scouts, feeling that Dan's bat is as potent as his good right arm, believe that he may have greater potential as one of the seven men backing up the pitcher than in the chucking role he now fills so capably.

But Coach Mahan wants him to pitch and Severino has done nothing to make his mentor's judgment look bad, by any means.

High School Outfielder

After three years of duty at third and in the outfield, Dan turned to the hill in the senior year of his Somerville, Mass. high school career. The poise and calmness he displays in the box is not a deceptive front . . . he's that way all the time. But he's anything but an "I'm the one" man. Without hestitation, he credits his sophomore performance to the fielding of his mates and to some friendly tutoring by a couple of seasoned ball-players.

And Dan lets his listeners know that he realizes he's part of a team—a member of a unit. He predicts that "we'll ramble right into the NCAA play-offs after we get even with West Chester May 17." The State Teachers leveled the Wildcats in a squeaker earlier, 2-1.

Pitched In CYO

Before high school, Dan did some pitching as a 13-year-old, when he first took to baseball. He remembers fondly the no-hitter he tossed in a CYO League after accomplishing a similar effort in a community loop earlier. Dan's grown into a passionate affection for baseball, after venting most of his younger teen-age energy on ice-hockey during those Massachusetts winters.

The ruddy right-hander thoroughly agrees that the days of rookie-hazing are over. Major leaguers have felt that way for a long time: even the old warhorse Ty Cobb comments that today's fresh try-outs have a picnic compared to the days when one George Herman Ruth used to lock newcomers up in their respective lockers.

Sommers Has Helped

Severino says he has gotten plenty of help from Don Sommers—"He's always ready to help young players"—and Dick Shannon, a third-basemen in 1953 who's headed for Lynchburg Va., in the Class B Piedmont League, a St. Louis farm organization. He'll head there after graduation next month.

Severino adds that Shannon was one of the principal influences in bringing him to Villanova. Appropriately, Dan is a Shannon fan, and feels that Dick will make his mark in a pro ball world that is hardly saturated with really good young talent.

Pitching college ball is quite a jump from high school hill service, but it hasn't fazed this earnest C&F student who is preparing for an accounting career to keep him occupied after pro ball.

Does he feel nervous on the mound?

He answers in the negative, then adds, in a sharp Massachusetts accent, "I feel at home in the infield."

Dan, Don and Dick:

'Big Three' Surge Sparks Wins Over Intercity Foes

A resurgence on the part of the club's big three—pitchers Don Sommers, Dick Scott and Dan Severino—and an uplifting of offensive spirits resulting in a 30-run binge gave Villanova its sixth, seventh and eighth wins in post-Easter play.

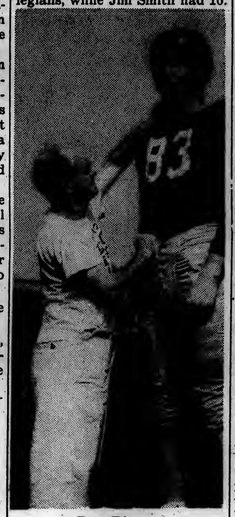
Don Downs LaSalle

Sommers, filing his third win against only one loss, brushed aside a mediocre LaSalle club, 11-0, Thursday before last, allowing only five hits. His control, previously a problem, was sound in that outing—he walked only three men. He was backed up nicely on the offensive side by Ralph Cecere, Bill McGarry, Chuck McGuckin and Bill McCaffrey, who, along with Bob Ricciani, Jack Helm, Don Mouchetti, and Bill Pearson, have all been instrumental in the current batting upswing. Jack Peters, although having fallen off a bit from a very hot spring batting start, has also had a hand in this stretch of victories, mainly from a defensive standpoint.

Severino, fast becoming one of Art Mahan's most reliable performers, grabbed off the 4-3 win over Penn, allowing only four hits and striking out seven. Dan picked up his third triumph against the Quakers—a game witnessed by a number of major league scouts. He was in serious trouble only in the eighth inning, as a result of an infield dribbler that scored two runs with one out.

Scott Impressive

Steadily regaining the form that he displayed so aptly last year, Scott, a junior left-hander, shut out St. Joe's for the benefit of the Junior Class Mothers May 3, 15-0. The win was Scottie's second against a pair of losses.



Football Team Defeated In Rain-Marred B-W Day

Cagers Win; All But One Event Run

By Bill Brown

Blue and White Day didn't know when to come in out of the rain. A good thing, too, because although the events were dampened, not so with the interest of the hardy souls who ignored the elements to watch sports a la Villanova.

The day started with a basketball game between the varsity and the Old Timers. The alumni gave a good account of themselves. The Old Timers, coached by John Blong '47, couldn't compete with the better coordinated varsity; finally losing 70-41. Nick McGuire topped the elders with 11 points. Larry Hennessy and Brooks Rieca were next with 9 each. Sonny Di Carlo netted 13 points for the collegians, while Jim Smith had 10.

Ray Rigney
Scores for Alumni

Slow Track—Fast Race

Running on a slow track, the Villanova "mudders" beat Seton Hall's track squad 91-40. The Wildcats took first place in 12 out of 15 events. Among the outstanding performances turned in were a mile relay victory for the Villanova (3:22.5) by Heitmann, Wheila, Moran and Gaffney, and Seton Hall's Keegan running a 9:8 second 100 yard dash.

Immediately after the track meet, the stadium was the scene of a lacrosse match between the Philadelphia Lacrosse Club and the Mount Washington Lacrosse Club. This was the first time the sport was held on Villanova's campus. Judging from spectator interest, it was a welcome sight. Compared with the original style, the modern game is civilized. Probably, a box score of an early Indian match would include the number killed. The Philadelphia Lacrosse Club won 16-7; a fairly high score in lacrosse.

Varsity Upset

Although the Villanova-Ithaca baseball bame was cancelled, the football game was played as scheduled. The first quarter saw good defensive play on both sides. Ben Addiego, early in the second quarter, took a handoff 77 yards for a score. Tom Clavin '50, converted. Late in the third quarter, Neil O'Boyle '51, passed eight yards to Ray Rigney for 6 points. The conversion was blocked by Ron Woods. The varsity didn't move until the fourth quarter, when Joe Ryan carried the ball over. The Old Timers, however, won 13-7.

In the field house, the pool was the scene of the Swim-O-Rama featuring the varsity and several other stars. Basketball, comic ballet and diving were on the program.

Early in the morning, the Varsity Golf team took on the Old Timers at Aronimink and won 6½-2½.

Barry Wins

In a special mile run between the halves of the game, John Joe Barry defeated Alex Breckinridge, Browning Ross, Bill Ashenfetter and George Browne. Barry's time in winning was 4:23.3.

Golfers Lose To Quakers, Tigers; Win 3rd Vs. Rams

Villanova's hot-and-cold golfers played with two of the hottest teams in the Ivy League during the past week when the Wildcats were in their latter category.

The linksmen were shut out for the first time this season when Penn swept all nine matches. Captain Bill Albertus admitted that the Philadelphians played like of the East's best teams, as they are billed.

Rams Third

In a triangular meet with Princeton and Fordham at Princeton, the golfers came in second to the Tigers, as the Rams took third. The Wildcats were unable to win any of the seven matches with Princeton, but they came back to smother Fordham 6-1.

Only Joe Gallagher failed to win as Albertus, Tom Thornton, Charlie Stone, Lou Blanchet, Fred Morris and Jack Kelly chalked up victories for Villanova.

Final Matches

The week's competition left the Wildcat golfers with a 3-4 season mark as they turn toward their final three matches of the campaign. After matching strokes with LaSalle—a team they have defeated—and St. Joseph's—one of their conquerors—Aubertus leads his men against Muhlenberg in the season finale.

Varsity Club Dance

President Chuck McGuckin released plans last week for the first annual Villanova Varsity Club sport dance, to be held in the Field House Sunday, May 16, between 2 and 5 p.m.

The affair is informal. The admission is one dollar per couple and $.75 for stags. McGuckin added that "all are invited and welcome to come."

A MODERN GIFT FOR THE MAGI . . .

(ACP)—If you're like James Stillwell—who had a girlfriend and no money to buy her a birthday present—here's an idea for you.

Stillwell, a student at New York State Teachers' College, charged fellow students 25 cents apiece to watch while he had all his hair cut off. Twenty-six students paid the admission price, and Stillwell got plenty of money for his gift.

Now all he has to do is convince his girl that it was worth it. She is none too fond of his presently-bald pate.

Dinner-Dance

All reservations for the Villanovan dinner-dance must be in by Wednesday May 19. Members of the Villanovan staff should contact Harry Nash, room 242 Good counsel Hall, immediately to make final arrangements. There will be five couples at each table.

Kelly Gives A.S.M.E. Talk

Michael L. Kelly, a senior mechanical engineer, represented Villanova at the district student paper competition of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. The convention was held from April 29 to May 1 at the University of Rochester in New York.

"Industrial Dust Filtration Problems" was the subject of the paper Kelly presented at the gathering at which the engineering schools of 14 Eastern colleges and universities were represented. He was aided in his talk by a set of charts and colored slides illustrating the various phases of the problems.

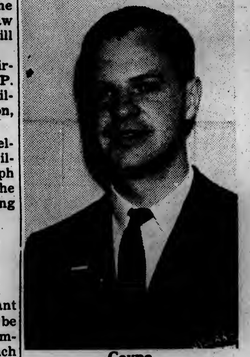
New Officers Take Posts After Week Of Elections

Highlighting a week of changes, as new men took over their duties early, to familiarize themselves with their positions were elections in the Arts fraternity, the Chemical society, and Villanova radio station WVIL.

Jack DeRemigis, Jack Gilligan, and Bernie Coyne were elected to the top posts in the respective organizations.



Selection of officers for next year's program and plans for the forthcoming initiation of new members featured Thursday's Delta Pi Mu fraternity meeting.

DeRemigis, '55, beat Bill Quinn also '55, by seven votes for the presidency. Some 75 frat brothers participated in the elections.

Harry Nash was elected vice-president, Dick Fitzpatrick corresponding secretary and Frank Adams recording secretary. All will be juniors next year.

The treasury post went to Joe Blimm and the Student Council representative will be Tom Mentzer, both of '55.

Sixty-seven freshmen showed up as prospective pledges for the fraternity. Plans for the initiation of these men will be made at the next meeting, this Thursday in 206 C&F, during the activities hour. All members will be assigned as big brothers at that time.

Coyne

Chemical Society

Elections have been held by Villanova's Chemical Society elections, the following results have been announced.

Gilligan, '55, was chosen to be president of the society, while Robert Fredericks, '56, was voted vice-president. Ben Wilbur, '55, will serve as secretary.

Those elected to the Executive Committee include Robert Yavorski and Corneilius Downey, both sophomores, and freshmen Cardiello and Lee.

WVIL Elects Coyne

In the recent elections held by campus radio station WVIL, Bernie Coyne, '55, was elected to succeed Dave Petersen, as the station manager. The new chief engineer is Bob Brown, '55, succeeding Jack Kelly, in the post, and he also gets the Student Council seat vacated by Noel Spillane.

Don Alton, '56, is next year's chief announcer, filling the spot left by Harry Anger. Alton will also get a Student Council seat. Jack Morgan, '56, gets the job of music manager, and Donald Loos, '55, becomes news manager.

The other elected officers are technical engineers Michael Polgar, '56, and James McEowan, '55.

Law School Has 1st Fete

Members of the law school and their dates, the faculty, the University administration, and members of the bar who serve as advisors to the law school heard Dr. Charles B. Nutting, Vice-Chancellor of the University of Pittsburgh and immediate past-president of the Association of American Law Schools speak at last Saturday's 1st annual dinner of the Law School.

Honored guest was the Honorable Charles Alvin Jones, Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania. Judge Vincent A. Carroll of Common Pleas Court No. 2 was toastmaster.

Dr. Nutting, an authority in the fields of legal education and Constitutional Law, spoke on "Education for Professional Responsibility." A report on the progress of the school of Law was made by Dean Harold Gill Reuschlein.

James H. Eckert was chairman of the dinner. David P. Trulli is president of the Villanova Student Bar Association, which sponsored the evening.

Very Rev. James A. Donnellon, O. S. A., president of Villanova and Very Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, Chairman of the board of trustees, were among the guests at the dinner. and other equally important African mineral supplies may be cut off. Furthermore, large numbers of British and French troops vitally needed elsewhere would be needed to restore order. A major diversion from the main East-West struggle might thereby be created which would seriously imperil the position of anti-communist bloc in the "cold war." Just how such a situation is to be avoided is not now clear, but that it is a serious problem that must be faced no one can doubt. The successful outcome of the present struggle against world communism may depend in large part upon the developments in the kraals and villages of remote Africa.

It is definitely in accordance with our best interests to watch carefully for significant trends in that part of the world. Only by such careful study will we be prepared to act intelligently and promptly should events in Africa force a revaluation of our global policy.

VILLANOVA RIFLE TEAM, Philadelphia area champions, have posted a near perfect record for the season. Pictured standing are: K. Scheetz, J. Mueller, J. Flynn, D. Smith, V. Jollat, R. Smith, J. Pyle. In front are: W. Gordon, R. Schleicher, C. Trunzo, M. Sgt. J. Waryha, J. Gilligan, J. Day and J. Mustard.

To Get Minor Letters

Rifle Team Honored May 13 Will Gain Varsity Status

Athletic Director, Bud Dudley will formally confer varsity status on the Villanova Naval Rifle Team May 13 when he gives minor letters to the graduating members of the Navy shooting group during the annual team banquet. This is a recognition of the record the team has compiled during the past season—winning 28 matches while losing only one for the best slate in the seven year existence of the outfit. Captain Martin J. Drury and Lt. Col. Eliot Wilson will accept the honors and speak in behalf of the unit.

Before changing banners from the Navy unit to the University, the marksman won the most coveted rifle award possible in the area when they captured the Greater Philadelphia Small Bore Rifle Championship in competition with all the local schools, beating Drexel, whom they had twice beaten before, by one point.

Commenting upon the success of this year's team, Dave Smith, team captain, gave great credit to its members not only as individuals but as a group that was well-balanced enough never to have a serious let-down. "I am quite certain that next year, as the Villanova University Rifle Team, they will repeat as winners of the area championship and probably amass an even better record than we did this year. There is a wealth of talent returning," Dave said.

Smith also announced that next year the National Rifle Association training course will be unrestricted to all University students.

In Brief

Dwight A. Zink, a senior civil engineer, was awarded first prize in an A. S. C. E. student paper competition April 26. The paper was submitted to the Regional Student Chapter Convention of the American Society of Civil Engineers held at Swarthmore College.

It was the joint effort of Zink and William B. Wagner, another senior. The topic of their entry was "An Investigation of Pretensioned Concrete Slabs."

Engineers Hear Guest Speaker; Elect Officers

Explosions and reverberations shook C&F auditorium last Tuesday evening, May 4, at the final formal meeting of the student chapter of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

These startling effects were produced by Mr. Charles King of Crouse-Hinds Company, guest speaker at the meeting, during his demonstration of explosion-proof electrical switch housings used in gaseous and hazardous locations.

Mr. King, a 1933 graduate of Penn State, spoke to an audience consisting of A. I. E. E. and A. S. M. E. and A. S. C. E. members who were also invited to attend the safety talk.

Preceding the address, Dick Cuff, vice-chairman of the A. I. E. E., announced the election results for next year's officers. James Wrezenski was chosen chairman and Richard Sheldon vice-chairman. Thomas McCarthy and William Lynch will be secretary and treasurer, respectively. All are juniors.

Denis Kuwahara was selected as secretary of the Institute of Radio Engineers.

Before the talk an award for valuable service to the I .R. E. was presented to Louis M. Lolli, a senior, and a similar token from the A. I. E. E. went to Richard Cuff.

90 Donate Blood

A "disappointing" turnout was obtained in the recent blood drive, May 5. Only 90 pints were donated at the Bloodmobile stationed at the Commodore Barry building.

At least 125 pints were expected, since that much had been collected in the drive of last November, said Tom Kern, the senior in charge of the blood drive. He blamed the lack of success on the diversions of a busy Junior Week, but heartily thanked those 90 V. U. men who did donate their blood.

Prior General To Tour After Stay At Villanova

Most Reverend Engelbert Eberhard O. S. A., recently elected Prior General of the Augustinian Order, will make St. Thomas Monastery, on the Villanova campus, his headquarters during an extensive tour of the United States, Canada, Central and South America.

Father Eberhard was elected by the general chapter of the order, priests from all over the world ,which met in Rome last September. He succeeds the Most Reverend Joseph A. Hickey O. S. A., who arrived here from Rome yesterday to retire in the monastery.

Native German

Born in Rhunspringe, Germany in 1893, Fr. Everhard was ordained in 1918. He taught in Germany for several years and then came to Villanova to teach German and Latin. He was sent back to Germany to become Prior General of the Augustinian Province there, the office which he held until his recent appointment.

Although his permanent headquarters will be Rome, Fr. Eberhard is making a visitation tour of the Augustinian schools, parishes and missions in this hemisphere. He will visit Mexico, South America and the West Indies, the United States and Canada.

Other New Officers

Fr. Eberhard's term of office is 6 years. Other new officers of the order elected at the Rome meeting in September are:

Procurator general, Most Rev. Ignatius Aramburu O. S. A.; four assistant generals (one for each of the 4 spoken languages of the order): Very Rev. Augustine Trape O. S. A. (Italian), Very Rev. Raphael Perez O. S. A. (Spanish); Very Rev. Servus Makaay O. S. A. (German); and Very Reverend Ambrose Doyle O. S. A. (English).

Also elected were Secretary of the order Very Reverend Raphael Bracco, O. S. A. and Econome General (treasurer) Athanasius Pape O. S. A. Father Pape will travel with Father Eberhard as his secretary and companion during the tour.

PRIOR GENERAL, Most Rev. Englebert Eberhard, O. S. A. and University President, Very Rev. James A. Donnellon, O. S. A. at Villanova's Armed Forces Day celebration.

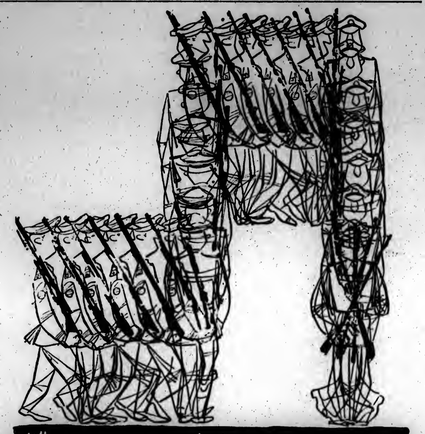
Wherever You Go In Engineering you'll find LUFKIN Measuring Tapes



In every industry engineers need specialized measuring equipment — that is why Lufkin, world-wide specialist in measuring devices, makes nearly 8,000 different tapes, rules, and precision tools. In highway, railroad, oil, mining, surveying, forestry, and construction work, engineers specify Lufkin "Chrome Clad" steel measuring tapes to get the most on-the-job durability. In swamp, brush, desert, gravel pits, and wherever a tough dependable tape is an absolute must, Lufkin "Michigan" babbitt metal chain tapes are preferred. City engineers and construction engineers use the Lufkin "Wolverine." The line in the Lufkin "Western" is the same weight as chain tapes, but subdivided throughout, making it ideal for heavy field work. Lufkin "Lucas" mine tapes resist rust and corrosion. In the oil fields "Chrome Clad" tapes are standard as they withstand hard use, fumes, and corrosion — they are used for gaging, tank strapping, and measuring standing casing.

When you go out on the job specify Lufkin measuring tapes—you will find one for your every measuring need. Send today for your free catalog.

Award 283 At Assembly

Frank Gunther, a Junior history major, heads the list of 283 Villanovans who will receive merit awards at this afternoon's assembly in the Field House at 1:30. No classes will be held at that time.

Gunther, editor of the 1955 Belle Air, will receive six awards. Seven others will receive four awards.

Intramural awards will also be made this afternoon. Winners in basketball, football, water basketball, tennis, table tennis, chess, swimming, track, horseshoes, and foul shooting will be honored.

Those who will receive four awards include Seniors George Eberle, Jack Kneafsey, Bob Gold, Noel Spillane and Ted Sheehan, and Juniors Frank Licopoli and Tom Ulrich.

Awards are bestowed annually on students who are worthy of merit because of their consistent and effective cooperation in extracurricular activity and who likewise enjoy good scholastic standing. To have "good scholastic standing" students must rate relatively high in academic, chapel, and disciplinary records.

At graduation the senior who has earned the most Merit Awards receives the Villanova Alumni Association Medal for Extracurricular Activities.

Record 70.4% Vote

Ford, Nash, O'Rourke Win As Over 1200 Cast Ballots

A record-breaking 70.4% of the school voted in Thursday's class elections, as 1205 of the 1715 eligible voters cast ballots for their candidates. The previous record was set two years ago at 68.7%. Last year's total was 64%.

The class of 1956 showed its intense interest in next year's Junior Week with a turnout of 79.3% of the voters. This, too, set a new class record, as far as could be determined. Of the 515 sophomores eligible, 408 voted as Harry Nash gained the presidency.

Close behind next year's Juniors came the class of 1955, with 290 of 375 participating for 77%. Prom chairman Bud Ford showed his command of the class' respect for a fine job as he became president.

As usual, the smallest total was gained by the freshmen, of whom only 61% used their voting privilege. This was a gain of 4% over last year. Jack O'Rourke will head the class next year.

FACING THE FUTURE with a smile are newly-elected class presidents Bud Ford, '55, Harry Nash, '56, and John O'Rourke, '57.

Seniors Meet

The final meeting of the Senior Class will be held this Thursday at 10:30 in C&F Auditorium. Vice-President Edward B. McKee, O. S. A., will address the class on graduation, distributing typed instructions for the Baccalaureate mass and graduation ceremonies. All Seniors must attend this meeting.

Class of 1957

Jack O'Rourke, a day hop engineer from Philadelphia, rolled into the presidential seat for the Class of '57 as 61% of the class turned out to cast ballots.

In the closest contest, Art Odabash, a C&F student from Jersey City, N. J., took time out from his Turf and Tinsel role to outdistance Ed McCall, of Conshohocken, by seven votes.

Class of 1956

Seventy-nine percent of the Sophomore class, a new record, went to the polls and consigned the duties of their Junior year to ten men.

Heading the list of successful candidates is President Harry Nash, a resident Arts school student from Portsmouth, Va. He received 123 votes, defeating Frank Hartmann, his closest rival, by eleven ballots. Nash is Sports Editor of the Villanovan, Vice-president of Delta Pi Mu, and is a member of the I. R. S., Sanctuary Society and the Belle Air Staff.

William (Bud) Ford nosed out Jack Devine by 10 votes Thursday to become president of the Class of '55. Ford, an Arts student from Neptune, New Jersey, received 90 of the 290 votes cast by the 77% of the juniors.

Frank Baker, originally a candidate for Treasurer of the class, made a last minute vie for the vice-presidency and won with a "write-in" vote. Baker,

Fr. Eberhard To Preside

Honorary LL. D. degrees will be awarded to three distinguished men at the commencement exercises June 7. Mr. Crowdus Baker, comptroller of Sears Roebuck in Chicago, the Hon. Theodore L. Reimel, Judge of the Court of Common Pleas No. 5 in Pennsylvania, and Mr. Arthur C. Pulling, Professor of Law and Law Librarian at Villanova's School of Law, are the recipients.

Mr. Baker has just completed his 25th year with Sears, Roebuck and Co. Judge Reimel is a member of the Board of Consultors to the Villanova School of Law. Mr. Pulling joined the Villanova faculty this year after serving at Harvard as Director of the Library at the Law School.

The Most. Rev. Englebert Eberhard, O. S. A., Prior General of the Augustinian Order, will preside at the commencement exercises, which will begin at 11 A. M. Frank Gehring, a mechanical engineering major, will be the student speaker. The outside speaker has not yet been announced.

At the baccalaureate mass on Sunday, June 6, Very Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O. S. A., Provincial of the Eastern Province of the United States, will deliver the baccalaurcate sermon. Very Rev. James A. Donnellon, O. S. A., president of Villanova, will be celebrant at the Solemn High Mass. Rev. Edward B. McKee, O. S. A., University vice-president, will be deacon and Rev. Edward M. Dwyer, O. S. A., Dean, will serve as subdeacon. The mass, at which all graduates will receive Communion, will begin at 10 A. M. in the Field House.

VILLANOVA SENIORS Jim Nolin and Bob Ploudre confer with members of the scholarship committee of the Villanova Law School Mr. Arthur Pulling, Dean Harold Gill Reuschlein, and Mr. Francis Holohan about details of the scholarship each won.

Dick Winfield '55, retiring editor of The Villanovan, was elected Chairman of the Student Council last night at a joint meeting of old and new members. Winfield won a first-ballot majority to take the gavel from the hands of outgoing chairman Joe Kenny.

Dick Peer, '56, was elected Vice-Chairman and Don McGahan, '55, Secretary.

Villanovan Editors Chosen; Paper Rated 'First Class'

Edwin K. Daly, Arts '55 will succeed Dick Winfield as editor-in-chief of The Villanovan next year, Rev. Louis A. Rongione, O. S. A., moderator of the newspaper announced yesterday.

Winfield, who has edited the paper since September 1953, will become layout editor of the 1955 Belle Air.

Daly, a 20-year old day-hop from Bryn Mawr, Pa., served as political columnist this year.

Managing editor of The Villanovan, succeeding Ward Welsh, '54. will be Harry Nash, incumbent sports editor and president-elect of the Sophomore class, Tom Smith, '57, will become news editor replacing Jim Nolin, also '54. Mark McCormick, '55

"The total picture of Villanova is presented here (in The Villanovan) with no distortion and a realization that the aims of higher education must be realized" read the citation as The Villanovan was awarded a First Class Honor Rating in the nationwide newspaper judging survey of the Associated Collegiate Press.

The award, based upon the full semester's edition's editions, ranks The Villanovan among the top nine college newspapers in its category.

Also commended was "good reporting," "well-written editorials," and a "professional approach."

The Tune Changes

The seniors have arrived at their final days at Villanova, and the prospect of leaving our beautiful campus is not a happy one for at least this member of the class of 1954. Our attitude is a far cry from the one we had when we came here as a mere "Frosh" back in September of 1950.

Then four years of school looked like a very long time. Now it seems much too short. Although during these four years we have studied hard (did someone say hardly?), we have also taken part in the social life and in extra-curricular activities to round out our education and provide welcome respites from tests and books.

When we look back upon our days here, petty gripes will be forgotten as we remember the good times we had at the Proms, Dinner Dances, plays, and in plain bull sessions. Will we not remember also how Villanova College grew to Villanova University. Recalling how we plotted our way over, around, and through the succession of ditches, road buildups and construction work will jog our memory. And who will not miss the nearby campuses with their attractive students?

Our senior year especially will stand out, for it was then that we realized how quickly the time had passed, and began to pay more attention to our surroundings. The opening of the Law School and Nursing School; the construction of a new dormitory to replace the barracks where we spent our freshman year; plans for a student union; the arrival of Ed Geisz and his "new sport a month" intramural program, as more than 3500 participated in intramurals; the change in the president's office as Father Donnellon replaced McGuire; all will stand out in future years.

We used to laugh when we were told "You never had it so good." Now we may change our tune.

Well, that's about all. See you at the Alumni reunion next year.

J. N.

The editors of The Villanovan wish to thank the below-mentioned men for the many hours of work they have contributed to publish the paper each week. NATO Has Dictator Ally In Portuguese Member

By Ed Daly

Since many of our NROTC students will be visiting Portugal this summer on their cruise, it might be of interest to them to know something of the extremely unusual form of government which that nation possesses. Even to those who will not enter Portugal in the foreseeable future it may be of interest, since although it is a dictatorship, it is a member of the NATO.

Present Government

To understand the present Portugese government, it is neccessary to be familiar with something of the conditions of Portugal prior to its establishment. In 1910 ,the centuries-old Portugese monarchy was overthrown, and a republic was proclaimed. From then on Portugal's troubles, which had been serious enough under the monarchy, became more and more grave. Although corrpution and incompetence were nothing new to Portuguese politics, never before had they become so common place as during the first years of the new republic.

The principle power among Portugal's new rulers was the Masonic fraternity. This, indeed, is no wild accusation; the Masons themselves openly claimed the credit for overturning the monarchy and for governing the republic.

The new constitution showed the effects of Masonic, anti-clerical influences. Within the first few years of the republic, the application of its rigidly anti-religious provisions resulted in the expulsion of the religious orders, the confiscation of church property, and in 1912, the exiling of the Arch-bishops of Portalegre and Braga.

Apalling Politics

Not only was the record of the Portuguese republic in its relations with the Church bad, but its handling of other matters was appalling. Take for example the question of governmental stability. Between 1910 and 1926, there were eight presidents of the Republic and 43 different ministries, the longest-lived of which survived for only slightly more than a year. Revolutionary outbreaks were frequent; assissinations were common; political arrests took place by the thousands.

Naturally, in the face of this political chaos, Portugal's economy suffered terribly. The economic status of Portugal under the monarchy had been bad; under the Republic, it became apparently irredeemable. During these 16 years, the cost of living increased 25-fold; and the national currency fell to only three percent of its 1910 gold value.

To call the government of Portugal under the Republic a democracy would be to misuse that word; it was in reality an oligarchy of corrupt politicans, anti-clerical Masons, and their allies of the press.

Twice during the 16-years of the Republic's existence were efforts made to establish some sort of order in Portugal, even at the expense of constitutional government. Both failed.

Assassination

After the assassination of President Paes, whose dictatorship in 1917-18 apparently had the backing of the great majority of the Portuguese people, the nation relapsed into virtual anarchy. During the next seven years, terrorism became general. From 1920-25 the Lisbon police reported 325 bombings in that city; a prime minister and several cabinet members were among the victims.

Needless to say, this state of affairs could not go on indefinitely. The Portuguese people were growing restless. The army, always powerful in politics of the nation, had become alarmed. At length, in May 1926, the explosion came. Marshal Gomez da Costa proclaimed a revolt, and with virtually the entire nation supporting him, marched upon Lisbon. President Machado resigned the government into the hands of the Army.

Salazar Picked

The new military dictators agreed to give priority to the solution of the nation's financial problem. Their first task was to find a capable finance minister. After considering other candidates they decided upon an obscure professor of political economics at the University of Coinbra, Dr. Antonio de Oliveira Salazar. After several times refusing the office, Dr. Salazar finally accepted in 1928. Because of his success in meeting the financial problems, he gradually assumed complete control of the government, and by 1932 was dictator and Premier.

News On McCarthy Labeled 'Slanted'

In this free country, every man has a right to his own opinion. In granting this right, the First Amendment to the Constitution provides that "Congress shall make no law . . . abridging . . . the freedom of speech, or of the press . . ."

Thus, one may use radio, the press and television to set forth his views. One is not authorized, however, to use these media to spread lies to the American people. Nevertheless, this, it seems, is exactly what is happening today.

Left-Wing Forces

Left-wing anti-McCarthy forces in this country have pooled their forces during the present hearings in an all-out effort to "get" the Wisconsin senator by discrediting him in the eyes of the American people. Their methods of doing this are to be observed in their reporting of the hearings. Let us examine a few cases in point.

Some Cases

1. Early in the hearings, Major Gencral Miles Reber testified that he had received no more phone calls from Senator McCarthy's office with reference to obtaining a commission for G. David Schine than he had received on any similar case. The Major General emphasized the word "more", thus conveying an entirely different meaning from that conveyed if "more" were not emphasized. Most sources ommitted mention of this emphasis.

2. On Friday, April 29, Air Force Staff Sergeant H. B. Manchester produced the original photograph of Secretary Stevens and Private Schine taken at Fort Dix. The original contained, besides Colonel Jack T. Bradley, who had been included in the Army photograph, a third figure, McCarthy aide Frank Carr. This fact went generally unnoticed in the press.

3. It was reported by some sources that Secretary Stevens had testified on the 29th that Private Schine wore a "tailor-made uniform", and that the Secretary had further stated that Schine was eating filet mignon at the Stork Club in New York when he should have been peeling potatoes at Fort Dix, New Jersey. Not only were these statements not made by the Secretary on Friday, but they were denied by him on Monday under questioning by Senator McCarthy. Again, these denials went generally unnoticed in the press.

Senator McCarthy, it turns out, has powerful undercover forces against him. The radio commentator Fulton Lewis Jr., on his May 13th program, disclosed that Henry Cabot Lodge is running the whole offensive behind the scenes. A long-standing grudge against McCarthy, which was evidenced in the Tydings Hearings, and not helped a bit by Lodge's electoral defeat of November 1952 which he seems to think McCarthy could have helped him avoid, seems to be the basic motivation.

White House Plot

Moreover, recent attempts to drag the White House into the controversy were upset with the disclosure by Mr. Lewis on the same broadcast that not only did presidential secretary Sherman Adams not request the original charges against the McCarthy forces be drawn up, but also that Mr. Adams has made a point of remaining neutral in this dispute.

The Collegiate Whirl

IN MIAMI, BEER WITH A POLICE CHASER . . .

(ACP) Victor's Bar is a roadside establishment located conveniently near the University of Miami campus.

One night last week students were quietly sipping their beer when the door opened and three men walked in. They were state beverage inspectors and their presence nearly started a riot.

The beverage men began checking ages of the customers. Students booed and hissed at the officers, while most of the underaged patrons left in haste. Beverage Supervisor Thomas Barger was hit on the leg by a thrown bottle.

Fearing a possible riot, a few students put in calls to local police and pulled a fire box. Meanwhile students (about 200 of them) spilled out of the bar onto the highway, where traffic was tied up. Some students were quietly letting air out of the tires of police cars while other students lifted a few sets of car keys.

We Worry . . .

By Mark McCormick

And Haunt The Pie Shoppe

Probably at no other time in history has so much beer been salted by so many tears. The war-weary world is a very tense place. Nations do not trust their best friends; and every nation has the problem of maintaining internal loyalty while striving to keep its interests international.

The United States is no exception. Mothers and their sons are distressed by the prospect of military intervention in far-off regions of the world. College men of draft age attend class with the despair of unhappy anticipation. Young men are inclined toward living in the manner of "eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow—?"

McCarthy Til Labor Day

War is not our only worry. The Stevens-McCarthy controvery might last until Labor Day, while both sides lose prestige, while the taxpayer loses patience, and while the voter loses his mind.

Business men fear depression. Workers fear unemployment. Consumers fear high prices. College students fear final examinations. Fear and worry are so popular that if they ran for president, they would surely be elected.

It is no wonder that someone with a mind for labels called this an Age of Anxiety.

Divorce High

The divorce rate is high. Trusted men have proved to be less than honest. It would seem that morality is the exception rather than the rule. Books and newspapars sell more widely than ever with their messages stressing sex, sadism, and sensationalism. Students would rather go to the Pie Shop than to the library.

It is no wonder that this has also been called an Age of Mediocrity.

However, if this age is to be improved so that it can be named with a more optimistic title, we must go a little deeper than these labels. History tells us some pretty sad stories. Ever since Cain slew Abel there has been violent death in the world.

War is terrible today, but it has always been an unpleasant, tragic, and destructive business. Countless millions have suffered and died in the last six thousands years because of wars. Perhaps war is carried on with greater proportions today, but "war is war" just as surely as "war is hell".

Some Compensation

And certainly it cannot be argued that there are no compensations. We need only look at the present. No people have ever lived in such comfort and ease as the citizens of our nation. Never has our nation been more prosperous. Never has our nation been more democratic. Never have such a great number of people enjoyed such a high standard of living.

It can not be disputed that we have no more excuse for anxiety than the people of any past age. We can not expect to be dispensed from having to lead good lives and from needing to have faith any more than any other people anywhere in history.

Self-Pity

Our big trouble is self-pity, and thus it would be more accurate to describe the cause of many of our tensions and worries as the result of this self-pity, rather than as the result of any just anxiety. Of course, there is never any excuse for worry; worry is nothing but a substitute for faith.

If our age is mediocre, which it probably is not, it might be due to this same occupation with self-pity. Although men in our time have accomplished great things, both intellectually and scientifically, the negative, life-consuming effects of self-pity necessarily detract from real achievement. At least, it might appear on the surface that great things have not been accomplished because the majority of men appear to be concerning themselves with small things.

Always The Present

The person who is to live a good life and be content with his lot can not worry about either the past or the future. What is past is over with and can not be relived. The future is always yet to come, and therefore it cannot be lived at all. The wise man lives in the present completely and trusts in what the future may bring. He keeps his house in order, remembering that the planned future may never come. The most important thing to remember is that the present determines the "future". What happens today determines tomorrow's conditions; the future is thus not real until it becomes the present.

Those who practice self-pity treat the past as something completely lost, a perfect vacuum, and they treat the future as a sort of mystical wilderness which nevertheless is all that man can look forward to. The sooner they see the light, the brighter the world will be.

Excuses Rampant Here As Final Exams Approach

By Noel Spillane

Around this time of the year the average college student feels like he's trying to climb up a down escalator on roller skates. The end is nearer than you expected it to be when you look at the books and further away than you hoped when you look at the weather. This last month really flies by—there's been so much to do and so much left to do.

Junior Week has gone by leaving in its wake a forlorn group of bleary-eyed and broke socialites. Elections have also passed leaving many frustrated politicians with nothing but oblivion to look forward to. Intramurals are reaching a climax with ill-conditioned but enthusiastic athletes all trying to be Frank Merriwells. Everybody is trying to get into act. There are baseball games, volley ball sets, horseshoe pitching, model airplane contests, golf matches, and a seven day bicycle race all going on at the same time. This isn't too bad, but when the ROTC drills on Tuesdays all hades breaks loose. One of these days somebody will get a horseshoe around his neck—then maybe we'll all go back to hitting the books.

Of course everyone has a lot of book work to catch up on, if they can find their books—most of them have been misplaced since mid-semester exams. Per usual there is a large number of fellows trying to get out of being over-cut in various subjects. What a weird conglomeration of excuses these characters dream up. One claims he had his thumb caught in a bowling ball and couldn't quite make classes for the last two weeks. Another assured his "prof" he was catching up on bookwork at Garden State.

And so on we plod . . . to finals.

ULRICH ELECTED

Members of the Phi Kappa Pi engineering fraternity last week elected Tom Ulrich president, Walt Kordek, vice-president, and George Gorham, Student Council representative. All are juniors.

Paul Menz, Don Tierney, and Rodkin, sophomores, were named treasurer, secretary, and sergeant-at-arms, respectively.

Editorial

Congratulations are in order to the winners of last Thursday's elections. For most of them, the victories came as a result of hard campaigning and real work.

Yet the important part of their work is still ahead, the part that has gone before is just the start. Just as the office had to be gained through plenty of toil, so will the duties of that office only be carried out by work and self-sacrifice.

Those who have been elected gained their offices because they persuaded the voters that they were really interested and were going to work as hard after the elections as before.

Council Committee Draws Faculty-Evaluation Plan

At the request of the Student-Faculty committee the Student Council last week formed a committee to draw up a proposed sample form for a Faculty evaluation program.

Heading this group is Jim Nolin, Villanovan representative; Art Quinn, Belle Air editor; Joe Kenney, council president; Ted Sheehan, Senior class president; George Eberle, council secretary. Bob Fredericks, representative of the class of '56, also agreed to serve on the committee.

Faculty Backing

The Student-Faculty committee had announced that it was not opposed to the idea of evaluation but wished a decision made as to whether the desired system was to be course evaluation or faculty evaluation.

The Student Council decided that faculty evaluation would be the best course and appointed the above-named group to look into the compilation of a sample form. This proposed form will be given to the Student-Faculty committee for approval and will then be submitted to the administration.

Want Frosh Dean

The Student-Faculty committee also "strongly recommended" to the administration that there be a re-appointment of a Dean of Freshmen, and "strongly suggested" that a guidance office or clinic for all students be combined with this office. Both proposals had been passed previously by the Student Council.

A reorganizational meeting was held last night as new officers were elected for next year's Council.

from Brooklyn, N. Y., is a C&F student.

Frank Gunther, recently named editor of the Belle Air yearbook won the most clear-cut victory in the Junior Class as he became secretary with 119 votes. Gunther's home is Baltimore.

Treasurer of next year's Senior Class will be Pat Buttarazzi. A biology major, Buttarazzi lives in Rochester, N. Y. He tolled 100 votes to win the office.

Jim Borden bettered four other candidates to become the class' Alumni representative. Borden will be named to the Alumni Board of Governors next year.

In the Student Council race three Long Island men won the resident positions: Dick Winfield, of Valley Stream won the Arts seat; Frank Licopoli of Floral Park will represent the Engineers; and George Kuhn of Glen Cove is the C&F winner.

Day hop seats on the council are occupied by Bill Quinn of Ithan, Arts; Henry Greenhalgh of Yeadon, Engineering; and Ted Clarkson of Havertown, C&F.

THERE will be an important meeting of the entire Class of 1956 ((Sophomores) this Thursday morning during the 10:20 activity period in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium.

New Yearbook Staff OK'd Sr. Pix Deadline Friday

Rev. Daniel P. Falvey and Rev. Robert M. Sullivan, co-moderators of the Belle Air have approved the editorial staff for the 1955 edition of the Belle Air as submitted by Frank Gunther, the new editor-in-chief.

Richard Winfield, present editor-in-chief of the Villanovan, will take over as layout Editor and William Quinn, feature editor of the Villanovan will hold down the same position with the Belle Air.

Donald Loos is the newly appointed Sports Editor, while Bernie Coyne will handle Activities and Edwin Daly, Copy. The picture editorship will be taken over by Don Rabenda and Bob Meyers is the new typing editor.

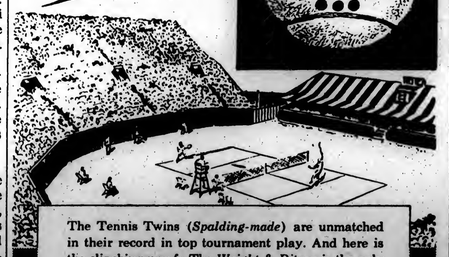
The business end of the Yearbook will be run by Ted Clarkson, while Bob Rock takes over as the Circulation Manager.

Work on next year's Belle Air got underway two weeks ago. At the present time, Senior yearbook portraits are being taken in the University Library. All members of the Junior Class, five year students, and social members of the class are reminded that if they wish to have their picture appear in next year's yearbook, they must have their picture taken before this Friday, May 21st, in the school library.

No appointments are necessary and there will be a charge of $1.00 at the sitting. Gunther announced that all pictures must be taken at this time.

Climax Tomorrow DPM Initiations

Delta Pi Mu Arts fraternity will hold its initiations Wednesday evening at 7:30. All pledges and "big brothers" must arrive on time at room 206 C&F, president Bart Moynahan emphasized at last week's meeting. Paddles must be finished by that time.



First activities of the pledges began last Thursday at 3:00 P.M. when they began removing campaign posters from the campus. This was in line with a suggestion that "Hell Week" accomplished something constructive. The proposal was made by Frank Gunther, editor of the 1955 Belle Air.

MODERATOR NAMED

Rev. Dante L. Girolami, O. S. A., assistant professor of mathematics and a prefect in Austin Hall was appointed faculty moderator of the class of 1957, it was announced last week.

Fr. Hickey Predicts Villanova Expansion

Unlimited Future Foreseen By Former Prior General

An unlimited expansion was envisioned for Villanova by Most Reverend Joseph A. Hickey O. S. A., former prior general of the Augustinian Order, in an interview last week.

Father Hickey, who arrived here from Rome after being succeeded by Most Reverend Englebert Eberhard, O. S. A., remarked that Villanova is in the process of great development. But the white-haired priest believed that more of the ground around Villanova must be utilized to accommodate this expansion.

Father Hickey relaxed in the monastery visiting room as he recalled his personal connection with Villanova—a rather long relationship of more than fifty years. He laughed, as he quickly admitted that he first saw the spire of Alumni Hall more than a half century ago, after pulling in from Chicago.

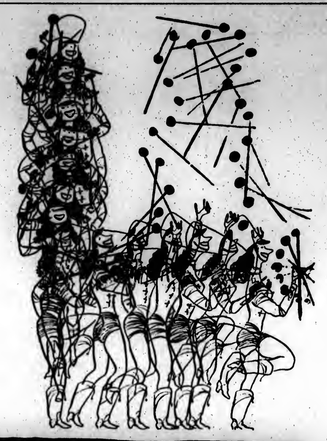
Remembering when Villanova was located in a rather isolated section, the bespectacled priest foresaw a continued growth until the campus is surrounded by an urban district.

Father Hickey, college president in 1924 and 1925, remarked that he had visited the campus off and on, even during the six and a half years when he served as prior general.

Cites Need For Vocations

Father Hickey looks for a larger number of Vocations but wonders if they will fill the expanding needs of the Church. An increased consciousness of the value of religious vocations and less emphasis on materialism were factors which Father Hickey cited as encouraging more vocations.

Stating that he once taught philosophy and sociology here, the lanky Augustinian smilingly wondered if he would be able to teach the present generation. Father Hickey was assured that he could probably step into the scholastic ring with the instructors, too.



Michener Elected To NFCCS Post

Junior James Michener was elected treasurer of the Philadelphia area of the NFCCS May 11 in Barry Hall lounge. Other officers elected were: President Joseph Rodriguez, LaSalle; and Frances Hornyak, Chestnut Hill college, vice-president.

Michener succeeded to the post held this year by Villanovan Ed Kerney.

Miss Margaret McCorkle of the Blue Army addressed the meeting. Later, plans for attendance at the NAFFCS National Congress in Chicago this August 29 to September 5.

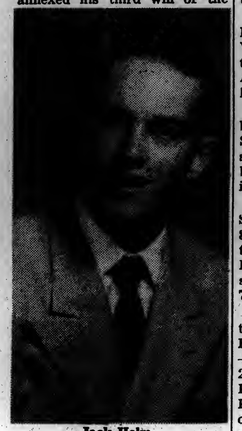
Helm's Batting Power Victimizes Loyola and CU



Two victories in as many days marked the baseball club's brief, and only, Southern road trip of the season. The team defeated Loyola of Baltimore 7-1 last Tuesday and the following afternoon traveled to Washington to trounce Catholic University 22-4.

The hitting of Jack Helm featured the successful tour. Jack, who lost his first base spot to Soph Tom Casey early in the Spring, was returned to his familiar position because of his booming drives in batting drill. In the two away games, Helm powdered the ball for five hits, including two home runs. Third baseman Dave Hinnegin found his batting eye in the Catholic U. game, coming up with a perfect day, 5 for 5, at the plate.

Sommers Wins

Don Sommers won his fourth victory in the Loyola game with a four-hitter. He struck out 14; The single run scored against him was unearned.

Behind the 24-hit attack of his teammates, Dick Scott easily annexed his third win of the season against Catholic U. He also contributed two hits.

Jack Helm

All members of the team joined in the barrage on two C. U. pitchers. Bill McGarry and Jack Peters each got 3 hits and Bob Ricciani, Charlie McGuckin, Don Mucchetti, and Scott collected two.

Mark 10-4

This victory brought the Wildcats' record to 10 and 4.

It took the Lines 8 innings to solve the slants of Loyola's Tom Means, but they pounded him for 6 safeties and a like number of runs in the last two frames to give the club its 7-1 triumph. Bob Ricciani, with a home run and single, and Jack Helm, with a four-base blow, lead the visitors' attack.

Casey Homers

Even the team's reserves came through impressively against CU. Sophomores, Hinnegin and Casey, both of whom have been relegated to mainly bench service of late, chipped in six hits between them—Casey, a left-hander, homered in the eighth inning.

Seniors Sommers And Ricciani in Final Performances

By Joe Heaps

In the recent victory over Loyola, the performances of two Seniors stood out; Don Sommers recorded his fourth win of the year with a sparkling 14-strikeout effort and second baseman Bob Ricciani singled to break up the Loyola hurler's no-hitter, scored the winning run and laced a homerun over the left field wall for two insurance tallies.

This typifies the play of two of Villanova's steadiest athletes.

Top Soph Year

Both have been key men in the team's success over the past three seasons. Sommers posted an outstanding 8-1 record in his Sophomore year. The lone defeat was suffered in the NCAA playoffs. During the 1953 campaign, Lefty was plagued by wildness, but still posted a respectable 4-2 mark. With four victories behind him and his control difficulties solved, Sommers is headed toward a duplication of his 1952 sason. He leads the hurlers with an E. R. A. of 1.00. A good sticker, Lefty is sometimes used as a pinch-hitter.

Bob Versatile

Versatile Ricciani has held down various positions on the club in his three years as a varsity member. In '52 he played third, last spring he pitched as well as covering the hot corner, and now he is the club's regular second baseman. Bob doesn't care where he plays, as long as he gets his chance in the batter's box. He has proved to be a very capable man with the lumber, too, swatting .304 and .400 in his first two season and currently possessing a .350 batting average. Thus far, he leads the team in the important R.B.I. department. The second base position is new to Ricciani, but with the help of Coach Art Mahan and shortstop Ralph Cecere, he has easily adapted himself to his new territory.

Don Sommers

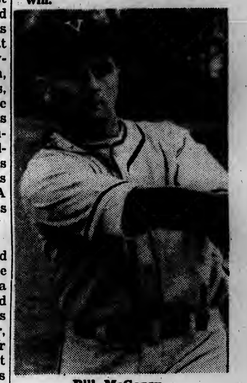
Two Similar

Besides their diamond ability, these two men are similar in many respects. Each played basketball, as well as baseball before coming to Villanova. Lefty attended St. Rita High School and Bob comes from Trenton Catholic.



Each has played summer ball in Canada—Summers in Ontario, Ricciani in Quebec.

A steadily surging Villanova baseball club, fresh from 11th win, plays host to a strong Penn State group on Goodreau Stadium diamond tomorrow afternoon.

The Wildcats of Art Mahan will be seeking their ninth straight victory.

Left-hander Don Sommers, possessing a 4-1 record, may go for the home club. His last outing was a clean-cut 7-1 triumph over Loyola of Baltimore.

SHORTSTOP Ralph Cecere celebrated his return to the VU line-up with four hits yesterday, as he led the Wildcats to a vengefully decisive 8-4 victory over West Chester's Teachers. Dan Severino and Don Sommers split up the hurling chores as the club grabbed its 11th win.

Bill McGarry

Sommers Improving

Sommers, a senior from Chicago, has now regained the form he displayed so aptly in his sophomore year, and has been successful in his last three outings.

Penn State a winner over Temple last week-end, has a slowly-improving mark, compiled mainly against local independents, and a few Ivy League representatives.

Slump Discarded

Art Mahan will be fielding a club that has cast off admirably the hitting lethargies it suffered during early-season play. Just about everybody is hitting now —Jack Helm fairly feasted on Loyola and Catholic University on the recently-completed Baltimore - Washington tour. Helm, having won back his first base job after earlier struggles, blasted out two homers on that trip and made merry with four hits including a home run against the rather ineffective pitching efforts of CU's chuckers; he has definitely been one of the staunchest backers of the recent re-vitilization.

Sophs Outstanding

Dave Hinnegin, who had seen only limited action previously at third, blasted out five straight hits in that jolly 22-4 carcus

Linksmen Top Explorers; Final Meet Away Thursday

Having split in two matches last week, and now possessing a 4-5 record, Villanova's golf team will be entertained by Muhlenberg this Thursday in the final match of the year for the Wildcats, who are anxious to even things up record-wise in the school's returning year to links competition.

Villanova's victories have come over St. Peter's, LaSalle twice, and Fordham. The linksmen's losses have been suffered at the hands of St. Joe's twice, Haverford, Penn and Princeton.

It will be first match for the Main Liners against this outfit.

Villanova lost to St. Joe's, for the second time this year, last Friday, after knocking off LaSalle Wednesday of last week to temporarily even up the record at 4-4.

Softball Finals Set for Mendel Field Tomorrow

With only three teams surviving from an original field of 54, final two rounds of Intramural Softball competition will be held this afternoon and tomorrow.

Yesterday, the Austin Erps defeated the Cast-Offs, 12-0, on Austin Field, the Maurauders edged the Wanderers, 2-1, on Mendel Field, and earlier the Animals crushed the Space Cadets, 17-2 for the Simpson League Crown.

Therefore, the field is now reduced to three clubs—The Erfs, the Animals and the Maurauders. Intramural Director Ed Geisz drew the name of one of these three teams, and the Maurauders drew a bye into tomorrow's finals. The other two play this afternoon on Mendel Field. The winner of today's action, of course, tangles with the bye team for the championship of a program that included more teams than any of its sort in Villanova intramural history. So many teams entered that a single-elimination process was deemed necessary by Geisz to arrive at the finals before the end of the term.

The starting pitchers for the three clubs — regardless of whether they play today or draw the bye, are Jack Carella for the Erfs, Larry Palmissano for the Animals and Leo Chessock for the Maurauders.

The final game will be played on Mendal Field, and a large crowd is anticipated; good attendance is also expected to prevail for this afternoon's contest.

A large team trophy will go to

with CU. He'll be very much in the picture come next year, what with Cecere and Ricciani graduating.

Another sophomore, who started out in a starting role at first before Helm's resurgence, Tom Casey, played the last three innings against CU and lined a home run into the right field corner to add even more to an already ridiculous score.

After Penn State, the Main Liners entertain LaSalle, a club they defeated 11-0, and Drexel, in the only meeting with this team, and then head to foreign grounds to take on St. Joe's, Army and Fordham.

Trackmen Engage LaSalle

Led by senior Joe Gaffney, an oustandingly consistent performer all season long for coach Jumbo Elliott, Villanova's track team travels this afternoon to LaSalle to meet a fairly strong Explorer outfit.

The Wildcats will be smarting from a past-week loss to West Chester, 68½ to 57½.

Gaffney was his old reliable self last Friday in spite of the loss to the Teachers, who finished off an undefeated season with an 8-0 record.

The unassuming fourth-year man won the 440 in 0:50.5, the 100 in 0:10.1, and the 220 in 0:22.2. He combined with Ray Wheiler and Bill Rock to garner most of the Villanova points in a losing cause.

Wheiler ran the 880 in 1:55.2 to break the record of 1:58.3 set by the Teachers' Bob Lewis in '53.

Rock, Elliott's lone long-distance man, who has been giving quite a good account of himself in that role throughout the year, won the mile in 4:32.5 and the two-mile in 10:01.2.

The Wildcats have won one tri-angular meet, taken three dual get-togethers, and lost only once in dual meet competition.

Villanova won seven of the eight track competitions but was able to grab only the high jump afield. This event was won by VU's Jim Brady, with a leap of six feet.

The meet with LaSalle today leaves Villanova's cindermen with only one engagement remaining—the IC-4A competition in New York May 28-29 on Randall's Island, N. Y.

Spring Lynx To Press, Rees James New Editor

The Spring issue of The Lynx, Villanova's literary publication, is expected back from the printers this week. "If, for some unforeseen reason, it does not arrive until exam week," said editor Ward Welsh, "we will distribute it next week in the Pie Shoppe and in the dormitories."

The spring copy features short stories by Joe Barrett, Barry Ballister, and Jack Kistner. Charlie Magee and Ballister have done the illustrating and poetry has been contributed by men from each class. Because of the fact that the 400 copies of the Winter issue were gone in one day, Welsh has ordered 700 copies of this printing.

James New Editor

Rees James, managing editor of the Lynx has been named editor-in-chief for next year. James has selected a staff and submitted it to the administration for approval.

Outgoing editor Welsh expressed special gratitude to the "small but ambitious staff" who worked with him putting out the magazine this year.

T&T—'Entertaining, Lively, Well Written,' Says Ed Daly

By Ed Daly

Once again Villanova's Turf and Tinsel Club has presented its annual musical comedy. This year's show, a lively skit entitled "Wish You Were There," tells the story of Leonardo da Vinci's residence at the court of Francis I of France in such a way that Leonardo would never recognize himself.

On the whole, it was a good performance, which kept getting better as the show progressed. There were a number of reasons why the production turned out as well as it did, for some of which the cast should take the credit, and for others of which the author is responsible.

To begin with, author George Pequignot started things off right by writing a very amusing comedy with some really hilarious script. Then the director, George Heger Noake, helped out by presenting some very well-planned effects, particularly at the opening of the second act, the studio scene of which was outstanding. He should also be thanked for developing some really wonderful dance routines for his nimble young ballerinas.

Needless to say, all of the skill of the writer and director would not have produced a success had it not been for the cast, and to them must go the largest part of the credit for the good results there were. All of the leads were excellent, so much so that it is hard to single any out as outstanding.

The quality of the singing, at least in the first act, did not seem to me to be quite up to the level of the acting and dancing. In the second act, when Romulo Leomporra and Ray Rigney did some very good solo work, the calibre of the singing was much higher. The fault in the first act singing was by no means all the singers, however, since the microphones were apparently out of order at the time.

All in all, "Wish You Were There" was a very entertaining show in the best T&T tradition.

For Fellowship...High Adventure...and a Proud Mission... wear the wings of the U. S. Air Force!

In days gone by, young men in shining armor ruled the age. Today, a new kind of man rules the age—America's Knights of the Sky, the Air Force Pilots! They rule from on high, in flashing silver-winged Air Force jets . . . a gallant band that all America looks up to! Like the Knights of old, they are few in number, but they represent their Nation's greatest strength.

If you are single, between the ages of 19 and 26½, you can join this select flying team and serve with the finest. You will be given the best jet training in the world, and graduate as an Air Force Lieutenant earning $5,000 a year. Your silver wings will mark you as one of the chosen few who ride the skies in Air Force jets.

As an Air Force pilot, your kingdom is space—a jet is your charger and your mission is the highest. You are a key defender of the American faith, with a guaranteed future both in military and commercial aviation.

lots to the Class of 1956 establish a new record for class elections.

Stratford, Conn., a resident C&F student, received the nod as Vice-President. Robert McCaffery, a math major resident from Long Island was chosen Secretary, and Jerome Guerrisi will be Treasurer. Guerrisi is a resident C&F student from Lebanon, Pa.

In the Student Council contests Frank Adams, a day student, and Robert Fredericks, a resident, will represent the Arts School. In the Engineering division, John Downing and John Salvo took the Day-hop and resident honors, respectivcly. Richard Peer, resident, and Henry Whalen, day-hop, were the choices from the Commerce and Finance school.

Of an eligible 515 voters, 408 sophomores checked their ballots.

Philadelphia, captured the secretary's post and Tom Hooker, day hop from Wayne, picked up enough votes to fill the treasurer's billet. Both are engineers.

The 507 members of the Class of '57 who voted also placed two more class mates on the Student Council. These men will join two engineers, Don Kelly, a resident, and Joseph Martin, a day hop, who were elected to the Council in February.

Elected Thursday were John Esposito, a day hop engineer from New York City, and Neal Cronin, a freshman football prospect and resident arts student from Oaklyn, N. J.

The 61% total which turned out at the Alumni Gym polls surpassed the mark turned in by last year's freshman. Fifty-seven per cent of the Class of 1956 balloted in their frosh elections last year.

Exams Moved Up A Week, Student Reactions Vary

The announcement Thursday by University Dean Rev. Edward M. Dwyer, O. S. A., that all final exams will be given the week of May 24-29 stirred up varied reactions on the campus.

It was expected that senior exams would be given next week, (May 24) and underclass exams the following week, (May 31) until a change was announced last Wednesday. This change called for all exams during the week of May 31 because of the difficulty of seniors taking exams while underclassmen continued classes.

Another problem presented itself Wednesday, however: seniors would finish exams on Saturday, June 5th with the new plan. Their professors would not be able to get their marks in to the Dean's office before the Monday of graduation. Therefore, the final plan, to have all exams the week of the 24th, was enacted.

Most seniors were rejoiced with the news that their originally scheduled week vacation would be granted. Underclassmen, excluding those who are behind in their work, are overjoyed at the thought of an early dismissal.

With the profs, another attitude is prevalent. It will mean cramming two weeks of work into one week. The Reaction of some of the NROTC students was affirmative. For many who are sailing immediately after graduation, the new exam schedule will mean an opportunity to go home.

Dick Spangenberg has been selected as the next editor of the "Villanovan Engineer". A mechanical engineer, next year will be his fifth at Villanova as a regular N.R.O.T.C. student.

He has served four years on the magazine staff as Copy Editor, Business Manager, and is this year's Managing Editor.

"He has the experience to make next year's magazine one of the best ", said Ed McMahon, outgoing Editor as he made the announcement.

Jake Clancy, sophomore, will serve as Managing Editor, and Ken Claunch, '55, will be Copy Editor. Both are chemical engineers. Dick Schleicher, a sophomore M. E., will handle the duties of Art Editor.

In Brief

Villanova's Industrial Relation Club conducted their annual elections Thursday, May 6. James Curry, '55, was chosen President, and Joe Roddy, '55, Vice-President. Tony Tomisulo, '57, and Lou Casella, '55, were elected Secretary and Treasurer, respectively.

The club's annual dinner was held last Thursday night, with Father Hensler, Director of Adult Education in the Pittsburg diocese, guest speaker.

Plans were also made for the group's Field Trip to the National Sugar Refiners on Wednesday, May 19.

will take over Bill Quinn's position as feature editor.

Joseph Heaps and Norman Feldpush, both '55, will edit The Villanovan's sport pages, succeeding Dick Confoy and Nash. Richard Schleicher and Steve Lyons will be photography editors as Don Rabenda becomes photography editor of the Belle Air. Robert Ford and John Downing will replace Frank Gunther, editor-appointee of the 1955 Belle Air, as copy editors.

Business manager will be Frank Orlando, '55, succeeding Mike Maliniak, '54 and Charlie Magee will remain as art editor. George Fox will take over Nick Elsier's job as circulation manager.

Frosh, Sophs Clash:

MUFF Day Tomorrow Finds "Regs" At Stake

When four o'clock rolls around tomorrow, the '54 frosh will vie with the initiation-minded sophomores on Mendel field in the traditional Muff Day competition, the doffing of the freshmen "regs" at stake. However, if the sophs outdo the upstarts in the tug-of-war, egg tossing contest, wheelbarrow race, 440 sprint and the 880 relay, and the touch football game finale, the freshmen must retain their identification as such for an extended period of one week.

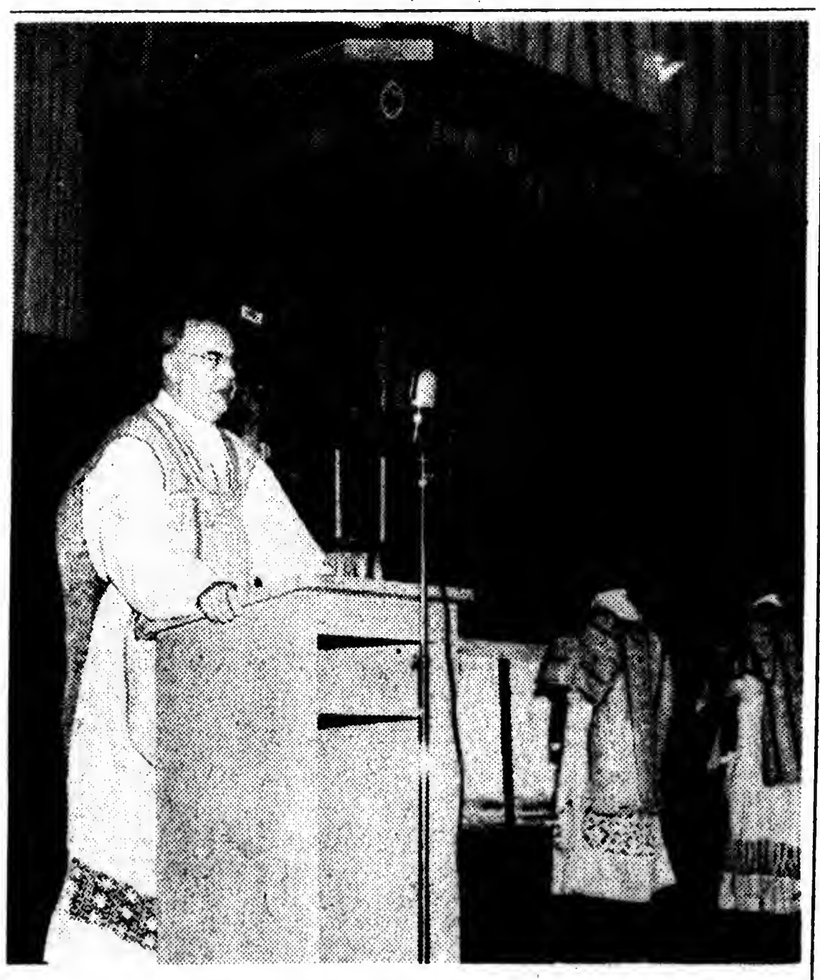
According to Jack O'Rourke Sophomore class president, Art Odabash will lead the sophomores, and Jack himself will have the dubious pleasure of coaching the yearlings against his classmates. Knowing that a 2-2 tie will perforce fall, more than the 1500 spectators who saw the soph swamped in '53 will be out this year to see their favorites go-go-go.

To hold things on an even keel, the Intramural Department, Muff Day sponsors, will have the Officials Club referee the fifty or more participants from each class. Sorry to say that the girls can only play tennis but we have our principles, you know. Varsity athletes from any department will not be allowed to compete.

Let's go Frosh, but please do not be too hard on the white hats.

Society Orchestra To Be Chosen For Senior Prom

At a meeting of the Class of '55, President Bud Ford announced to members present that the week end of Nov. 19 and 20 had been chosen as the senior weekend.



Bud also announced the appointment of Bernie Finan, former class president, and Hugh Humphreys as co-chairmen of the Belle Air Ball.

The question of a band was put to a class vote, and it was decided that a society orchestra was more acceptable than a big-name group, for it would play almost continuously with limited intermissions. Chairmen reported negotiations are now under way to bring the "finest" society orchestra possible to play at the Belle Air Ball.

Ford also announced that Duke Micone and Jack Pettit would be in charge of decorations committee.

The Dinner-Dance, to be held Saturday evening, Nov. 20, will be under the guiding hand of Ted Clarkson, who was responsible for the class' successful Mother's Day.

Ted stated the affair will be held at the Walt Whitman Hotel in Camden. The band has not yet been signed, but Finan said he hopes to sign one of the top bands in the Philadelphia area within the next week.

Student Council Considers Co-ed Cheer Leaders

Co-ed cheerleaders may be on the way for Villanova athletic teams if a suggestion made by the Student Council is approved by the Student-Faculty Committee.

Before the motion was passed at last Monday's meeting, the Council heard arguments from both sides. Senior Frank Gunther seemed to feel that girls should be included in as many activities as possible.

Some Council members, however, apparently felt the co-eds were not bona fide, regular students of the nursing division—a recognized part of Villanova.

Co-eds Prepared

Freshman Lucille Bell, one of the 15 co-eds in attendance, summed up the girls' stand with a succinct: "We can be ready in a week."

In other matters, the Council:

1. elected Bud Ford, senior class president and Edwin Daly, Villanovan editor, to the Student-Faculty Committee. They will serve with Council Chairman Dick Winfield to represent the student body before the Administration.

2. appointed a committee to work with Rev. George McLaughlin, O.S.A., Dean of Student Activities, in nominating Villanova's candidates for "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities."

3. recommended relaxing of coat-tie rule in dining hall on Saturdays. This was suggested to aid students who work week ends and must change from their work clothes to eat in the cafeteria.

4. appointed committee to request the Chaplain's Office to President Lists Faculty Changes

In keeping with Villanova University's improvement program, twenty new faculty members were announced by University President, Very Rev. James A. Donnellon. Resignations were accepted from eight members.

Vacancies were filled in the School of Nursing, in the Naval Science Department and in the physics, mathematics, biology, English and history departments of the Arts and Sciences school. The Engineering school has accepted four new men and the Commerce and Finance school three.

The new Commerce and Finance members include Anthony L. Angeline, M. A. Temple; Edward V. Murray, M.B.A. Harvard; Cyrus J. Shorer, B. S. Pennsylvania; George Blyn, M. A.; Albert M. Weitzmann, M. B. A.

New Engineering professors include Richard D. Avil, B.E.E. Drexel; John N. Walton, B. S.

University, Order Mourn Fr. Dougherty's Passing

The priest who was a motivating force in the transformation of Villanova from a college into a university, Very Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, S.T.L., O.S.A., was buried September 17, on the grounds of the school he loved. He was 58 years old.

The Prior Provincial of the Augustinian Fathers of the Province of St. Thomas died suddenly September 13, as he discussed plans for future expansion of his Alma Mater.

Father Dougherty

Solemn Mass of Requiem was celebrated by Most Rev. Joseph A. Hickey, D. D., O.S.A., former Prior General of the Augustinian Fathers. Very Rev. John T. Sheehan, Vicar Provincial, was deacon and Very Rev. James A. Donnellon, O. S. A., Villanova president, was sub-deacon.

Rev. William J. Lunney, O.S.A., was master of ceremonies and Seminarians of St. Mary's Hall filled minor offices and chanted the music of the Mass.

Archbishop O'Hara Presides

His Excellency, Most Rev. John F. O'Hara, C.S.C., Archbishop of Philadelphia, presided in the sanctuary. Fr. Sheehan gave the final absolution. Sermon was preached by Very Rev. Clement C. McHale, O.S.A., Prior Provincial of the Mid-West province of Our Lady of Good Counsel.

Father Dougherty's body had been carried in solemn procession from the Monastery the day before the funeral. In the university chapel, assembled clerics chanted the Office of the Dead. Very Rev. Patrick J. Dundon, O.S.A., Prior of St. Thomas Monastery, presided.

Born in Haverford, Father Dougherty was the son of James and Mary Rountree Dougherty. He is survived by three sisters. After receiving his elementary education at Our Mother of Good Counsel School in Bryn Mawr, he entered St. Rita's Hall, the Augustinian Preparatory Seminary then located at Villanova.

Enters Novitiate

Father was admitted to the Novitiate four years later, in September, 1912, professed his religious vows the following year and continued his studies at Villanova College, from which he was graduated in June, 1920.

Six years later, he took his Doctor of Philosophy degree from the Catholic University of America, where he had done graduate work in biology. He became Father Dougherty Sept. 22, 1923, after his ordination, in the college chapel, by Bishop Michael Crane, then Auxiliary Bishop of Philadelphia.

From then on, he was intimately associated with Villanova, becoming Dean of Science in 1926. Instrumental in building up the pre-medical school at Villanova, Father Dougherty was a Fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He was also a recognized authority on the Mendelian laws of heredity, and for more than a decade, served as editor of the Mendel Bulletin.

Co-Authored Text

Father Dougherty is the co-author, with Dr. Anthony J. Lamberti, of a standard textbook in Bacteriology.

In June, 1935, he became subprior of the Augustinian community in St. Thomas Monastery and two years later was made a Definitor to the Father Provin-

Blazer Ball Upcoming; Juniors Vote Prom Band

Encouraged by a record-breaking blazer order, Junior class officers and committee chairman Paul Porreca have expressed confidence that Friday night's Blazer Ball will establish a new standard in attendance for the annual affair.

This year's Ball, being held for the first time in the fall, will feature the music of the Criterions, who won popularity in last year's Soph Cotillion.

Tickets, at $2 may be obtained from the class officers, Harry Nash, Dave Burns, Bob McCaffrey, and Jerry Guerrisi, from Ball Chairman Porreca and from Ticket Chairmen Nick Mazzoni and Tom Meaney and their committee members. Further locations for sale of tickets will be noted on the posters placed about the campus.

The two most significant personal items associated with the Junior year—rings and blazers—have concerned, and will continue to concern, the repec-

The University's Junior Class, through Prom Chairman Greg Gehring, has announced the selection by class vote last week of Les Elgart's band as the featured group for the Junior Prom, to be held during May's annual Junior Week.

Elgart, generally regarded as the most prominent of the "new sound" bands, will now be negotiated for through Music Corporation of America connections.

According to results of letter ballots designated last week for each member of the Class of 1956, Elgart's choice was strictly no contest. Of his alternates, Johnny Long, Blue Baron, Tex Beneke and Charlie Spivak, only Beneke was able to pull above the teens in number of votes, polling 39.

Elgart collected 205 votes. Baron and Long got 14 apiece and Spivak eight. Some 150 members of the class of some 500 did not pick up their letters.

EDITORIAL

Fther McKee's action in instituting a boycott of the Bryn Mawr Theatre is one which deserves the support of all Villanovans.

The Goldman Theatre chain which operates the Bryn Mawr, was warned last Spring, before they showed "The Moon is Blue", a film which had been condemned by the Legion of Decency, that the Villanova administration would put the theatre out of bounds. It was pointed out to them that a very large percentage of the customers at the Bryn Mawr were Villanova and Rosemont students, who were morally bound not to attend the movie in question. The reply of the theatre manager was to show "The Moon is Blue" as scheduled.

Only one conclusion can be drawn from this action of Goldman Theatres. That is that Catholics do not think enough of their religion to stay away from a film that has been condemned by their Churces' official censors, that Catholics can be drawn to any filth a theatre manager should choose to exhibit and that tey will disregard their religion so far as to go and see any such movie.

Such an attitude on the part of Goldman Theatres is a flagrant insult to the students of Villanova. It is up to to prove that this insult is based upon a false premise and that the Villanovans will respond by keeping away from the Bryn Mawr Theatre.

Trouble With Hoopla

A list of vanishing Americanisms would not be complete without including, "Take it with a grain of salt." For, in this era of hysterical press agentry, mere grains of salt are inadequate agencies in separating the wheat of truth from the chaff of hyperbole.

What we are trying to say is that the hucksters, the build-up boys ,the men from Madision Avenue have made the job of discerning truth much tougher than it should be. Te art of propaganda is rapidly developing into a science; public relations experts are drawing better salaries; a good product no longer sells itself—a staff of copy writers, artists, research consultants and Bright Young Men in Balck Knit Ties push it, plug it, sell it, buy space for it and overwhelm the public with dithyrambics about it.

And it is naive to thing of this ulcer-breeding devotion to the great god Promotion in terms of commerce alone. It is with us all days, in all things. Politicians probably founded it, journalists thrive on it, and scientists use it extensively to further their own secular sanctity. Promotion is one religion which is the opiate of the masses.

Education, likewise, is not without its publicity-mill practicioneers. But more important than this, Villanova and institutions of its kind consistenly as bulwarks of reason against the onslaughts of reckless press agentry. College, then, should be for us a time to re-examine our sense of values, to learn to distinguish the essence of things from accidents, to know and love Truth.

Villanova never deliberately produced a sophist. And Villanova with conscious effort on the part of its undergraduates wil continue to produce the educated, mature, and rational men it has in the past.

Writer Emphasizes Spiritual Opportunities At Villanova

By Tom Mentzer

The nerve-wracking excitement of the first two weeks having subsided, the state of educational affairs at Villanova slowly effected its "return to normalcy". Once the last travel-weary senior had made his somewhat belated entrance and the last slide-rule discouraged frosh, his somewhat hasty exit, figures were released which revealed that Villanova in its first full year as a University, had an enrollment of over 2000 students. Included in this sizeable total, there are approximately 950 freshmen hailing from every part of the United States and even points beyond. Each of these new men and every man of the remaining 1050 has made Villanova his choice as the institution at which he will further his learning and thereby prepare himself more aptly for his place in any society.

Why Villanova?

But why has his choice or your choice been Villanova? If you're an engineering student you could have chosen Lehigh University. A pre-law student could have chosen Harvard, or an accounting major, Pennsylvania with its widely-acclaimed Wharton school.

There is no doubt that the responses to this query would be many and varied. Yet when all the replies are carefully sifted there should be one reason which hovers mightily and gloriously above all the rest. And that is that God Almighty is here!

Special Course

For just as this campus has an Engineering Building or a Commerce and Finance Building replete with every modern facility for acquiring your chosen secular education, so does it have a Chapel replete with like facilities for attaining your spiritual education. Herein Christ the Professor conducts a course to which we might give the title of "Salvation". The sacraments are the means by which the student prepares himself for his final exam in this course. Attendance at Mass, prayers before the Blessed Sacrament, and sincere participation in all outside assignments such as the doing of good works are other extremely helpful aids in preparation for the exam. A comparatively-easy course one might say!

Students Adjust

Such may be and is the case in many, many instances, particularly when the student is careful to keep up on his daily assignments. However, there are times when a student falls behind in his work. It is on these occasions that the conscientious man labors to catch up by seeking the Professor's wise counsel or the counsel of one of his specially delegated assistants, the priests who are trained to render such aid. Eventually this type student, through the combined efforts of the Professor or his assistants and himself, will reestablish himself in the upper class standings. This done, he will be able to face the tough final with renewed confidence.

Be Diligent

But then there is also the lazy student who, upon finding himself behind in his classwork, decides to put the make-up lessons off to just before the exam. By cramming he feels that he'll be able to get a passing grade by "the skin of his teeth". This is very dangerous, particularly in this course! For, you see, this is not just an under-graduate or a post-graduate course, but rather a life-time course! And there is no chance of repeating the course if once you have failed. Just one final exam determines your final grade. Passing the exam results in a reward, the reward of everlasting bliss in heaven; failing the exam results in a punishment, the punishment of endless agony in hell.

Take heed, you who have chosen Villanova as your Alma Mater. Salvation is by far your most important course! Study it well!

Frosh Found Fond Of Friendly Spirit

By Jim Wrzesinski

For many seniors, like myself, this school year is one which is greeted with mixed emotions. On the one hand, the threshold to a new world lies just ahead. On the other hand, this is the end of our college career, our last year with Villanova. It would be interesting to compare the views of thos preparing to leave with those just embarking on their collegiate career. It was with that idea in mind that this reporter scoured the campus one afternoon chatting with some of the freshmen. The question asked each was: "What has impressed you most at Villanva?"

Ken Miller of Palmyra, N. J., was quick to mention the interest shown by profs. in the individual student.

Almost everyone questioned was impressed most by friendliness and school spirit. The views expressed were somewhat as follows.

John Bienzle and Don De Rigge were both impressed by the cooperation and respect evidenced by the upperclassmen.

Probably the two finest opinions expressed were obtained in the Library reading room. As Dominic Tien expressed it, "I was most impressed with the way the University takes you right into its heart. I feel as if I had been here for years rather than a few days. All this is due to the friendly attitude which I have received from everyone at the University." And Tom Kimmel felt, "In my first day or two I thought there was no school spirit at all. But it is there after all. I have seen boys who seem to "Play Down" school spirit, but really do have it inside."

The coeds also came forth with more interesting opinions. The majority of them were impressed by the friendliness shown them.

Marilyn Dondro was impressed by the effort on the part of the upperclassmen to make friends with everyone who is new here and to keep the friendly spirit alive.

Patty Dull of Norristown expressed her opinions in this way: "In this past week at Villanova my impression has been one of bewilderment but it is beginning to clear up at present and I really look forward to coming each day as a lasting step to complete my education."

Only Angela Wolliard of Trenton was impressed by the large number of men. At first ready to turn around and go home, she is now set for a happy four year stay.

Speaking to pert and vivacious Helen Katona of Pottstown, the only coed in education, was a refreshing experience. She was impressed most by the all-around friendly and helpful attitude of teachers and students.

It is hoped that each of us will put forth a concerned effort to live up to the impressions received by the frosh. From talking to them, I know they are able to be all Villanova hopes they will be.

Barracks Missed By Sad Student

By Pat Briody

With all the expansion here at school recently, everyone seems to be looking to VU's bright future. But by doing so, the students are forgetting some of the advantages we left behind. Foremost among these are our lost homes —all four of them—the Barracks.

On the site where once stood these humble abodes, now stands nothing but rubble—a suitable tombstone for our deceased domiciles. But the Barracks, ugly though they might have been, actually held a semblance of sentimental value for us all.

It was here that Villanova began for us; it was here that we donned the blue and white dinks and charged out the rickety doors to commence our illustrious college careers.

Here was the scene of our first water fight, the first time we were smothered in shaving cream.Here we were awed by the "unreturnables" in the attic. Yes, here college life actually began.

But now the Barracks are gone and freshmen live in Austin and Alumni (halls far too good for them). Villanova's freshman class is cursed, for it will never by initiated properly without the Barracks.

Since this "Be Nasty to Frosh Week," we urge all to sign the petition now circulating around campus and help us to "Bring Back the Barracks."

Campus Comment...

AMID THE STARTLING NEWS that Villanova is orientating over 950 freshmen comes the realization that other schools are also growing. Way out west on the cold, bleak plains near South Bend, the Villanova of Indiana has admitted 1500 first year men. It is a record class for both institutions. It is likewise interesting to note that within our own lifetimes the TOTAL Villanova enrollment was in several years less than 950 . . .

DESPITE our formidable population, it becomes increasingly apparent that Villanova extra-curricular activities are neglected by the majority of students. It might be a little shocking to see the actual percentage of Villanovans that ACTIVELY participate in this other important phase of university life. Anyone who says that academics necessarily suffer with extra-curricular participation has more than the usual allotment of holes in his head . . .

AS USUAL we expect great things from the little publicized, crack Villanova NROTC drill team. The efforts of this deligent group of valiant warriors are often obscured by early morning low clouds, but military noises give proof through the fog that the group is still there. The morning tide on Mendel pond and freshmen looking for the library constitute the major hazards to this morning exercise . . .

ON OCTOBER 20, the Red Cross Bloodmobile will return to our campus. If under 21, now is the time to get parental permission. GIVING BLOOD DOES NOT HURT, BUT IT CERTAINLY DOES HELP . . .

HUNDREDS of piggy banks will be drained of their last pennies in anticipation of a busy social semester. When we are freshmen they say: "Take advantage of these opportunities; you are only a freshman once." The next year they say: " . . . You will never go through another sophomore year . . . " This continues through junior and senior years. However if we acted on all this encouragement we probably WOULD find ourselves repeating one of these years . . .

PRESENCE of about sixty members of an enlightened Villanova citizenry highlighted the first meeting of the student council. This gives promise of an active year for that group of spirited patriots . . .

ONE ISSUE that is very much alive around the campus concerns whether Villanova SHOULD go completely co-ed. There are forceful arguments pro and con. It might prove interesting and surprising if student opinion were called on this matter . . . Perhaps some of the neighboring female institutions of higher learning could be induced to enroll some of our surplus male freshmen, if going co-ed is to be the fad . . .

Levenson's Humor, Rise's Voice, Estelle's "Taps" Charm Audience

An array of show business personalities, the likes of which would be the envy of any variety show, gathered under the Fild House roof last Thursday night to do a benefit for the Augustinian Seminary Guild.

Featuring the program was the beautiful and distinguished Rise Stevens, the world-famous star of opera, television, and recording. Other top entertainers included Peter Lind Hayes and his lovely wife, Mary Healy, Bud Collyer, Sam Levenson, Betty Clooney and Estelle Sloan.

The first group introduced by master of ceremonies Bud Collyer was the Vikings. These accomplished artists delivered selections from Rogers and Hammerstein's musical comedy "South Pacific". The audience of 2500 thoroughly enjoyed "There Is Nothing Like a Dame," "Bali H'ai," and "Some Enchanted Evening."

One of the highlights of the evening's entertainment was the performance of Pierce Knox. Mr. Knox, who has been blind since birth, opened with his xylophone theme, "Dizzy Fingers." He then played the beautiful Second Hungarian Rhapsody by Lizst, which brought a thundering ovation from the audience. As an encore the former star of the Horace Heidt show played a most remarkable vrsion of "Tiger Rag."

A hush came over the Field House when the spotlight was focused upon the accomplished Rise Stevens, who began with a selection from Carmen. Miss Stevens then sang "Strange Music in My Ears" and "One Night of Love."

At the insistance of those present Miss Stevens gave as her encore the ever popular "Because" and Dvorak's "Songs My Mother Taught Me."

Mr. Collyer then introduced the Acro-Maniacs who provided thrills with the sparkling acrobatic and tumbling performances. The next attraction was the husband and wife team Delage and Shirley, who amazed everyone with their magic tricks.

The M. C. then brought Sam Levenson on stage. The homespun humorist's description of the problems of the present-day family, as compared to the old-fashioned home, brought loud guffaws. Mr. Levenson might be described as an educated Will Rogers.

The vivacious Estelle Sloan then stepped on stage and danced her way into the hearts of all. The ability to "soft shoe", as it where, her "taps" revealed true choreographic genuins. Estelle danced about the stage to "Cecilia' and Leroy Anderson's famous "Syncopated Clock". Miss Sloan's performance of "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" was quite original and highly entertaining.

Betty Clooney procedded in true Clooney fashion to become the most popular performer of the show by singing the nation's top hit "Hey There" from Pajama Game ,which has been made famous by someone she knows rather well. Betty also sang the old Dixieland favorite, "A Good Man Nowadays Is Hard to Find."

The final act aof the show was, perhaps, the most amusing. It was at this point that the master of ceremonies brought on two very wonderful people, Peter Lind Hayes and Mary Healy. The Hayes-Healy team brought loud cheers and roars of laughter from the audience with their mimicing of top radio and television personalities. The Liberace, Mario Lanza, Helen Traubel, King Farouk and Fred Waring impersonations left the audience howling.

White Hat Power Considered Nil

Freshman orientation prompted a heated discussion during last week's Student Council meeting, but no official action was taken.

In reporting to the Council about orientation week, Vice-Chairman Dick Peer said the spirit of the "white hats" has not been "up to par."

"The freshmen realize we have no power," commented Jack O' Rourke, sophomore class president.

Rev. George McLaughlin, O.S.A., Dean of Student Activivitites who is in charge of orientation activities, denied that the vigilante committee has been stripped of all its power.

This was in reference to a charge by "white hats" that they cannot enforce freshman regulations because they can no longer collect matriculation cards of frosh who refuse to pay fines.

Father McLaughlin said that

"Command Decision" Cast Listed By Belle Masque

Reardon And Higgins Hold Lead Roles

Selection of the cast for "Command Decision," Belle Masque's fall production, was made last week by Rev. William J. Krupa, O. S. A., moderator.

A Navy veteran, John Reardon, will make his Belle Masque debut as General Dennis in the William Wister Haines play to be staged in the Field House Nov. 4 through 7.

Other top roles will be handled by three veterans of last spring's Belle Masque hit, "Stalag 17." Drew Higgins, security agent in "Stalag," will play Brockhurst; Bob Erskine, who picked up laughs as "Animal", will take the part of Kane; and Jim Borden, Duke in "Stalag," is cast as Evans. Six others who had parts in "Stalag" will have minor roles in "Command Decision."

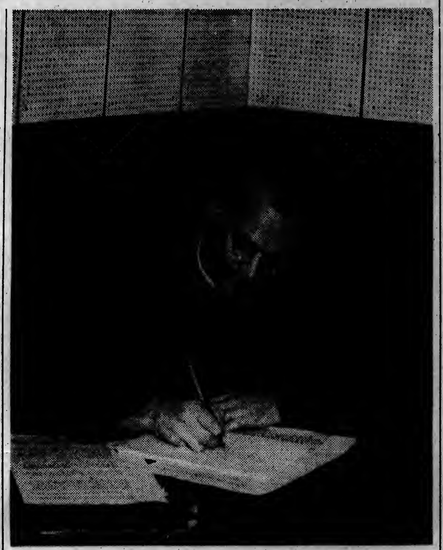
War Story

Included in the 18-man cast are five men who moved up from stage crew work last year and seven men who are rounding out their third year in Belle Masque.

"Command Decision," according to Publicity Chairman George Minser, is the biting, incisive story of the difficult personnel problems of General K. C. Dennis, a hard boiled but basically human commanding officer.

General Dennis steadfastly puts advancing the war ahead of his own career, even if it means sacrificing men and planes.

Stage Crew Needed



Belle Masque President Bill Cunningham said rehearsals are being held four times a week—Sunday, and Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights.

Cunningham also requests any students who are interested in doing stage work or advertising to contact him (218 Fedigan).

Meanwhile, Publicist Minser announced a poster contest, with a $10 first prize. Deadline for entries is Thursday. For details contact Minser (105 Fedigan).

Cast for "Command Decision"

Dennis	John Reardon
Brockhurst	Drew Higgins
Evans	Jim Borden
Haley	Walt Doyle
Guard	Paul Gormley
Jenks	Jim Shea
Kane	Bob Erskine

DPE Fraternity Members Plan Communion Breakfast

At a meeting of Delta Pi Epsilon Fraternity last week, plans were disclosed for a communion breakfast to be held this Sunday. The Members will receive Holy Communion at the 8:30 a. m. mass in C & F Auditorium.

Breakfast will follow at Martini's in Stratford.

Mr. Charles Vogan, new moderator, gave the keynote speech in which he urged more active participation in campus activities and promised a highly successful social year.

Elect Committee

Another achievement was the election of an executive committee to supervise organization and to hear any grievances of members.

Elected were Eugene McDonald, Frank Baker, Larry McGrath, Bob McDonald and Bob Weir.

Other activities to be sponsored by the fraternity this year are a dinner dance in November and another communion breakfast during the spring semester.

Tickets for this Sunday's breakfast may be purchased from Jim Campbell and Tom Keller (209) Fedigan or Bruce Stark (145 Sullivan).

Senior Pictures

Seniors who have not returned their proofs to Zamsky Studios, and those who have not had their pictures taken for the 1955 Belle Air, were urged to do so by Oct. 12.

Feature Editor Bill Quinn said lists of seniors involved may be found in the Pie Shoppe and Mendel Cafeteria. Quinn asks these students to call Walnut 2-3560 or to contact him.

Journalism Enthusiasts Attend Belle Air Meet

More than 2800 delegates to the Belle Air Publications Conference on campus Sept. 25 were told that "the man who dominates the press will dominate the country."

Rev. James M. Gillis, CSP, noted editor and author, made the statement in describing the "brainwashing" of the American press to Catholic high school students and religious gathered over a week ago for the annual conference sponsored by Villanova's yearbook.

Father Gillis, author of the widely syndicated column, Sursum Corda—said that "brainwashing" is being carried on every day by the press. "Whether new ideas shall become better than old depends on the press," the 78-year-old priest remarked.

No Surrender

The speaker warned his Field House audience that Americans must have care that the press does not surrender to international Communism.

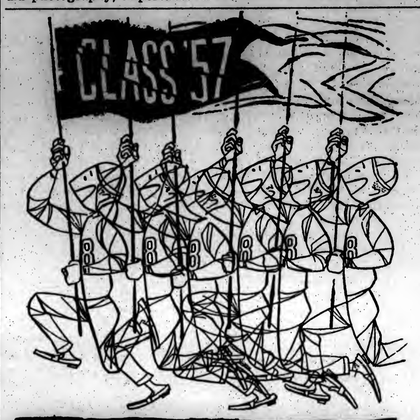
Father Gillis' talk was a high point of the morning's session, which also included a description of the professional at work in advertising by Francis X. Martinez, a public relations director who formerly worked for the Associated Press.

Experienced Speakers

William T. Cooke, of the Cooke Publishing Co., made three appearances on the day's program. He discussed planning the yearbook, tools of the newspaper and the qualities of a prize-winning yearbook.

Advertising, journalism, candid photography, importance of the yearbook dummy, and newspaper make-up were other topics covered by the veteran lecturers.

Newspaper, yearbook and magazine panels and a faculty advisers' round table, dance and benediction closed out the day's activities, which were organzed by Rev. Danel P. Falvey, O.S.A., chairman of the conference.



AAUP ELECTIONS

Dr. Robert P. Koob, assistant professor of chemistry, has been re-elected president of the Villanova chapter of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP).

For the ninth time, Mr. William M. Gorman, a mechanical engineering instructor, was re-elected treasurer. Mr. Vito J. DiVincenzo, assistant professor of modern languages, assumed the vice-presidency for another term. Elected secretary was Dr. Edward J. Monahan, philosophy instructor.

Inexperience Shown In Losses

Wildcats Meet Florida State Saturday Night

By Bob Mulcahy

It will be "Wildcats" against "Seminoles" when the gridders from the main-line invade Campbell Stadium Saturday night to play Florida State University.

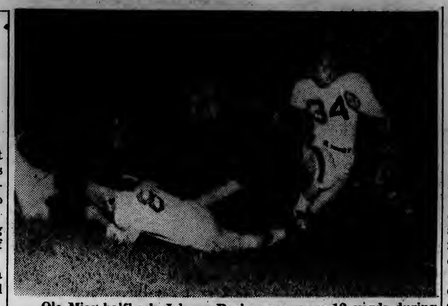
This will be the first meeting between the football squads of these two schools.

The Staters like Villanova have a young and inexperienced squad.

The Garnet and Gold of Florida State are an up and coming football power in the south. In their season's opener they lost to a tough Georgia team by the score of 14-0, but showed considerable defensive strength and a good passing attack.

Threatening Line

Outstanding linemen for the "Seminoles" are Little All-American Jimmy Lee Taylor, left end who caught 22 passes for 292 yards and two touchdowns last year, All-Florida tackle Al Makowiecki, Jerry Jacobs left guard, and Al Pacifico a sophomore who started every game last season. Under Florida's eligibility rules freshmen are permitted to compete on Varsity teams.



Other linemen figured to see plenty of action are tackles Don Powell and Bob Barber, center Bob Crenshaw, and ends Bud Leonard and Jimmy Trado.

Split-T Artists

Operating behind the center in the spit-T offense for the "Rebels" will be Harry Massey and Ted Rodrigue, a freshman who showed excellent passing ability in the Georgia game.

Providing the open field running for the southerners are Buck Metts, Carl Green, the outstanding runner in spring practice, Billy Graham, and Lee Corso. Metts and Corso are favorite pass receivers in the offense of Head Coach Tom Nugent. Last season Meets caught 14 passes for 142 yards and Corso 9 for 205 yards and two touchdowns.

Fullbacks John Griner, Ronnie King, and Ray Mercer a high school All-American and transfer from Auburn will share the line-bucking duties.

Ole Miss halfback Johnny Barber scampers 12 yards during the third period of the Wildcats' 52-0 loss to the Rebels Saturday night before almost 100,000 fans at Municipal Stadium.

Freshmen Lose First To Wyoming Seminary

By Joe Kinney

Although Joe Rogers' Frosh gridders kicked off the young campaign with a disheartening 7-0 setback to Wyoming Seminary last Saturday afternoon in Wilkes Barre, several first-year men displayed signs of promise toward becoming fine varsity material in the years to come.

Battle For Berths

During the past several weeks, every member of the squad has been putting forth his best effort to nail down a starting berth. Before the Wyoming Seminary tilt, Coach Rogers disclosed that the probable starting alignment for the first few contests would include Tony Varrechone and Ed Kerpius, two glue-fingered six-footers and experienced wingmen at their positions. Tony hails from West Warwick High in Rhode Island, while the latter is a local lad from North Catholic. At tackles, Charlie Vaughn from Scott High in Toledo and Eddie Michaels, ex-Salesianum bulwark, both of whom tower six feet and tip the scales well over two hundred pounds. Ray Costa, another West Warwick product, and Ray Lyons, of North Catholic, are the small men of the line, but have stood out in the practice sessions thus far. Al Coplan, a granite pivotman from Southern High in Philly, gives the Frosh line that finishing touch.

Ed McGhee from LaSalle is the deceptive field-general and fancy flipper of the speedy backfield which includes Don Van Horn of St. James and Joe Intrabartola at halves and Billy Sullivan, former LaSalle standout, at full.

Backs Dave Parr and Billy Halligan, along with tackles Manuel Congedo and Donato Luzzi, have been nursing injuries and are capable of breaking into the opening eleven at any time.

Rogers Talented Mentor

The mentor of this talent-laden aggregation, Joe Rogers, is no stranger to Villanova enthusiasts. Playing under Jordan Olivar at Roman Catholic, Joe was named to the All-Scholastic squad in the Philadelphia area. After his discharge from the service, he followed Olivar to the Main Line, and led the nation in rushing for eight weeks, before finishing in the third slot, just ahead of Army great, Glenn Davis. Rogers played on what was termed "the best team in Wildcat history" in his senior year, as the Blue and White captured eight and suffered only a 21-19 upset to Tulsa.

For the present semester, he doubles as a scout for coming varsity opponents as well as the tutor of the Freshmen pigskin prodigies.

Spoil Debut of Reagan: 95,607 See Mississippi Win

By Norm Feldpush

Villanova's stunt-minded football program ushered in the season by contributing to the Syracuse Cerebral Palsy Clinic, initiating Fire Prevention Week, and establishing a season's attendance record, but saw the debut of Frank Reagan and his all-professional coaching staff marred in the campaign's first outings.

Syracuse and Mississippi rolled over the undermanned and depth-wanting Wildcat eleven by the scores of 28-6 and 52-0 respectively.

Main Liners Tally First

Frank Reagan unveiled a new attack, the tight T-formation, a green, sophomore - dominated squad, and left the field with a 6-0 halftime advantage over the Orange. Nelson Marshall, All-American candidate at center, recovered a fumble on the Syracuse 35. Following a penalty, soph Al Ciarrochi sped twenty yards to score.

The Mainliners found themselves out-classed by the sustained ground attack of the Orange, and faded badly under a 28 point second-half assault. Standouts in defeat were soph quarterback John Ferruolo, the running of Ciarrochi and John Giordano, and the prevailing team spirit.

Record Breaking Attendance

The largest crowd of the young season, 95,607, witnessed the humiliation 52-0 frustration. A first quarter "near-score" provided the only Blue and White threat, as the Wildcats drove to the visitors two yard line, only to have the thrust end in an unsuccessful field goal attempt by Jonh Lammers. Complete command was maintained by the southerners thereafter.

"Ole Miss", with its speedy backs and scintillating line, demonstrated its pre-season selection as the No. 1 team in the nation. An overwhelming passing attack accounted for five touchdowns. Much-heralded fullback Bob (Slick) McCool, and a 78 yard jaunt by Dave Dickerson highlighted the visitors running game. Razzle - dazzle play left the crowd gasping as Bill Kinard took a lateral following a forward pass and tallied one of the frequent six pointer.

Joe Leichtweis, Mike Mayock, and Nelson Marshall were hampered by injuries, while end Don McComb failed to see action. "Ole Miss' simply overpowered the Mainliners, who fought to the final gun but were victims of their own inexperience and lack of depth.

The general inexperience and shallowness of the entire club, plus the hampering effect of injuries and various line weaknesses, were apparent to the coaching staff in the first losses. Pass defense improvement and tighter line play will be the order of the practice day this week as the club prepares for the Florida State encounter, to be played in Tallahassee.

Harriers Edged by Navy, Down State; Sophomores Star

Villanova's harriers journeyed to Annapolis-on-the-Severn last Saturday to match leg and lung power with the runners of Navy and Penn State. The test was the first for the Wildcats and they showed fine form. The order of scoring was: Navy (38), Villanova (39) ,and Penn State (43).

'Cats Finish Strong

The race was won, individual ly, by Doug Morehead, of Penn State. As far as the Main Liners were concerned, Johnny Kopil finished first, George Browne, second, Bill Rock, third, Alex Breckenridge, fourth, and Al Peterson, fifth.

One of the reasons for elation in the Villanova camp was finishing ahead of the up-staters, since the Nittany boys are consistently front- runners in the IC4A run. At Annapolis, the Penn State runners took off fast and folded same.

Kopil High Man

According to pre-season form the cats had Kopil pegged as a winner. George Browne pushed a strong second and Bill Rock, third. Alex Breckenridge is a Scotch fourth, and Al Peterson, the fifth man.

Kopil and Browne were teammates at Bayonne High, when Kopil was Interscholastic Mile Champ. George ran for the record-holding two mile relay team.

For the past two years, Bill Rock has held a tenacious grip on his cross- country position. Alex Breckenridge's main point is strength and he is slowly regaining his winning form. Al Peterson another Bayonne import is progressively rounding into shape.

New Coach Optimistic

Mr. Hal Langton, in his first year as assistant to Coach Elliot, said that he was optimistic but would say nothing definite when- asked about the team's chances. He would add only that the squad should improve as the season ages. This is perhaps the best report on a team which lost the services of John Joe Barry, Guy Speciale, and Ray Wheiler. The 'Cats can indicate Mr. Langton's statement when they meet the hill and dalers of Army on Saturday.

Football Observations

By Joe Heaps

What are the results when you combine an experienced coaching staff and a green football squad? Such a combination exists at Villanova and eight games are left to supply the answer.

Only thirteen lettermen returned this season to the Main Line campus. Of this number, four were starters last year, and one of the returnees, giant end Don McComb, is still bothered by a previous injury. Furthermore, seasoned backs Jack Helm, Dick Scott, and Bill McGarry all missed spring practice because of varsity baseball and speedster Giordano could not devote much time to the April sessions because of track activity.

Therefore, the bulk of the squad had to come from Joe Rogers' Freshman eleven. As a result, no fewer than 24 sophs are varsity gridders. Because there was no Frosh schedule last fall, these men had no college competition under their belts except for scrimmages with Faragalli, Filipski, and the boys.

Fortunately, the Athletic Department was able to acquire an excellent coaching staff over the summer to prepare the team for the rugged ten-game schedule confronting them.

Leading the new group of mentors is head coach Frank Reagan, assisted by end coach Ken Kavanaugh, line coach Otis Douglas, and backfield coach Robert Snyder. As far as this staff is concerned, Villanova certainly has the professional look. Every man has playing, as well as coaching, experience from the National Football League. Besides each was a star at his alma mater.

Reagan Assumes Head-coach Role

Reagan is well-known around Philadelphia because of his standout years with the University of Pennsylvania and the Eagles. After retirement from the active ranks, he was backfield coach with the Philadelphia professional club.

One of the greatest ends in football history, Kavanaugh was a major factor in the powerhouse of George Halas' Chicago Bears. Later he served the Bears as end coach.

The Main Line coach with the most gridiron experience is undoubtedly line mentor Otis Douglas. His background includes head coaching position at Akron, Drexel, and Arkansas. His professional touch comes from his playing days with the Eagles and his duties as line coach of the up-and-coming Baltimore Colts.

Among Snyder's football background is seven years of pro quarterbacking with the Cleveland Browns and Chicago Bears and coaching jobs at Notre Dame and Toledo in college ranks and Los Angeles and Green Bay in the play-for-pay game.

Outcome of Season a Mystery

How well the two factors, the young team and the experienced staff, blend remains to be seen. Certainly, the Syracuse and Ole Miss games cannot be used as a standard. The Orangemen are picked as number two club in the East and the Rebels are one of the top ten teams in the nation. Villanova is simply not in their class this year. All the teams on the schedule are not as formidable as these two, but none of the games can be classified as a breather.

It's probably going to be a long season for both the coaches and the squad.

One Platoon vs. Two Platoon

Looking back to the second half collapse against Syracuse reminds one of the two year old controversy over one-platoon football. The purpose of the radical change was to afford the schools with less talent a chance when they met teams with greater material strength. It doesn't seem to be working out that way.

A glance at weekly polls and Saturday football results discloses that the same colleges head the list in previous seasons. And the victories are often made in the same manner with one-platoon football as they were before the change. The losing squad is worn down in the first half and trampled after the intermission. Examples of this were the Villanova-Syracuse, Oklahoma-California, and Penn-Duke games.

One Team sufficient

In theory, a school would need one good starting eleven of two-way players to meet any college in the country. The days of deep reserve strength and specialists would be over. So what happens? The richer members of the sports fraternity recruit more feverishly than ever and the perennial leaders come up with two and three team of equal ability. With some of the colleges it appears that they have a different team for every quarter.

So the strong get stronger and the weak lose money. What's the solution?

NCAA Results

Villanova's baseball team suffered a heart-breaking defeat in the N.C.A.A. District 2 playoffs last June, bowing to Lafayette 4-3. The Wildcats were named when Colgate University declined an invitation.

With the Mainliners tallying three runs on pitcher Ron Owen in a wild third inning, Lafayette trailed 3-1 after six frames. Dan Severino pitched tight ball, allowing only four hits, but weakened in the seventh as Lafayette pushed across three counters.

Hurley, Marshall Forward Wall Standouts

By Bob Strayton

Keen competitive spirit and natural ability, two important factors in any athletic endeavor, are the properties of a pair of outstanding Villanova linemen.

Nelson Marshall, now in his second year at the center post, and his teammate on the forward wall, Dan Hurley, a third year tackle, both possess the qualities which make them so valuable to Frank Reagan's gridiron aggregation.

A New Rochelle, N. Y. youth, Marshall made his football debut at Iona Prep, where he was a stand-out ballplayer, both on offense and defense. He came to Villanova in the fall of 1952, and, after a season of freshman ball, became eligible for the Varsity last year.

Gets Big Break

Spending half of the season on the bench in his initial campaign didn't daunt the spirits of the 215 lb., 6'1" blonde, for when his opportunity came, he took full advantage of it, and played a brand of football not likely to be forgotten by Villanova followers.

The Kentucky contest, Nellie's "big chance," showed to the country exactly what determination could do. Only a sophomore, he was the talk of the sportswriters and critics throughout the nation. Shining on offense, and a whirlwind on defense, Nellie stole the show from such greats as All-American Steve Meilinger and Villanova's Gene Filipski.

Following the Kentucky game, it was no more benchwarming for Nelson. He became one of football's iron men, playing 60-minute football, and playing it well. The spotlight was his, and and he lived up to it with his aggressive and spirited play.

All-American Candidate

This year, in pre-season write-ups, Marshall, only a junior, was mentioned by many sports-writers as a potential All-American candidate. And, if the contest on Piety Hill with the Orangemen of Syracuse is any indication of things to come, Nellie seems a sure thing for the national acclaim.

Now in his fourth year on Villanova gridiron, Dan Hurley, the amiable Irishman from Malden, Mass., has established himself as a stalwart on the line. His fine performances from the tackle post come as a result of four years of high school football, played at Malden Catholic High School in his home town. For his scholastic gridiron endeavors, Dan received All-Scholistic mention at the end of his four year stint.

Fine Prospect

A fine prospect, the 6'1", 217 lb. tackle came to Villanova and immediately established himself as a excellent competitor. In his sophomore year, he saw little action, but performed creditably whenever he was called upon.

His junior year, however, established the 21 year old New Englander as a bright spot on an otherwise weak line. He alternated at the tackle post during most of that campaign, but, toward the latter part of the season, played consistently on the right side of the line.

Touch Football Opens Intramural Competition

The Intramural Sports Program for 1954-55 commenced yesterday with the opening of the touch football season. This represents the first sport to be presented by the Intramural Department, which is under the the direction of Ed Geisz.

Basketball, tennis, softball, swimming, and track are among the various competitive sports on the slate for the coming school year. In addition, there will be numerous tournaments scheduled throughout the year, some of which are volleyball, horseshoe, and table tennis tournaments, both indoor and outdoor foul shooting contests, and a chess and checker tourney.

At the beginning of the second semester, tryouts will be held for the Intramural All-Star basketball team, and those chosen will play the Freshman team.

cial. He held this office until 1944 when the Provincial Chapter elected him Prior of St. Thomas Monastery.

The Fathers at the Provincial Chapter, in June, 1950, elected him Prior Provincial, to which office he was re-elected in June, 1953.

Last Public Act

During his term of office, Father Dougherty accepted the invitation of Archbishop O'Hara to have the Augustinians assume administration of the new diocesan Archbishop Prendergast High School. Two years ago, at the request of Bishop Paul Yamaguchi, he sent three Fathers of the Province to start the first foundation of American Augustinians in Nagasaki, Japan.

Father Dougherty's last public act took place the night before his death as he presided at the solemn departure ceremony of two more Augustinians who are leaving shortly to begin work in the Japanese Missions.

As Prior Provincial, he was religious superior of almost 500 Augustinian priests, seminarians, postulants and Brothers. Besides Villanova, under his charge were Merrimack College in North Andover, Mass., the University of San Tomas in Havana, Malvern Preparatory and seven high schools.

Augustinians of his province staff 33 parishes in five archdioceses and seven dioceses in the East, South and West.

University Hall Completion Date Still Uncertain

University Hall, Villanova's rising Student Union Building, will be ready for occupancy by the middle of the 1955-56 academic year, Very Rev. James A. Donnellon, O. S. A., Villanova President, said last week.

Father Donnellon, in an interview with the Villanovan, admitted he was being cautious in his estimate. He said some observers had predicted that the building would be in use by next September.

"Good condition? Why they've hardly been used!"

Voted Most Promising

Elgart, who appeared very successfully at Atlantic City's Steel Pier and at Virginia Beach's Surf Club last summer, was earlier this year voted by a nation-wide music experts' poll as the "most promising" young "new sound" band to rise on the entertainment horizon in quite some time.

Work on the Orphans' Day and the Charity Ball will be the next project to be considered after the Blazer Ball. The Class officers and committee chairmen are looking forward to the same brand of cooperation and enthusiasm that class members offered on both the band choice and blazer projects.

Mike Horan and Bernie Steinfelt are chairmen of the St. John's Orphanage project, and Don Alton chairman of the Charity Ball. Juniors who desire to lend help on either project, or, for that matter, any committee undertaking, are requested to contact either the officers or committee chairmen.

Blazer Ball Chairman Paul Porreca would like to emphasize the fact that ALL juniors are invited to attend the Blazer Ball Friday night, including those who DID NOT purchase jackets as well as those who did so. Tickets are selling for $2.00, and can be purchased from any class officer, Ticket Chairmen Nick Mazzoni and Tom Meany, or any of the other committee chairmen and their assistants. Dancing is from nine till one in the Field House; music will be provided by the Criterions, last year's Sophomore Cotillion band.

The Juniors in May, after consulting, through co-chairmen Bob Ford and Tom McEnerney, various clothing concerns, decided upon the $30 blazer of Rogers Peet Company of New York. The choice was made in preference to Rollins Blazers Company, the present seniors' jacket makers, Jacob Reed, and others. Fittings were held before the end of the term in May, with some 338 Juniors signing up for the charcoal-blue coats, which were delivered to the campus last weekend.

While Rogers Peet representatives were on campus last Tuesday and Wednesday 12 more students indicated interest in the jackets, so that a total of 350 Juniors have obtained the blazers, and will wear them for the first time formally this Friday night at the Blazer Ball.

There were about half a dozen juniors who did not pick up the blazers they had ordered. Rogers Peet, however, will send out these men's jackets from New York on a charge or a billing basis. These men who want their blazers are urged to contact Ford or McEnerney concerning their orders.

Concerning rings, which once again will be obtained from Dieges and Clust of New York, Chairman Owen Hickey has announced that second and final fittings for those who placed orders back in May, and initial fittings for those who did not, will be held within the next week and a half. The company's representative, George Packer, has indicated that the May orders should be ready before Christmas, and the new orders several weeks thereafter. Posters will be distributed concerning the exact date and place of delivery.

Co-chairmen Ford and McEnerney wish to express their thanks for the excellent response and cooperation during the blazer transaction, in which almost twice as many jackets were purchased as by any previous class.

Halls Urged to Elect Chairman For Basca Award

Hall prefects were urged last week to appoint chairmen to supervise their entries in the competition for the Nick Basca Memorial Student Council Award.

Frank Gunther and Ted Clarkson, co-chairmen committee, noted that less than three weeks remain before the judging Oct. 21.

Prefects were requested to name their chairmen as soon as possible and to notify Gunther (1 Simpson) of their choice. Individual hall chairmen will report to Gunther for details.

Members Serve

Two faculty members of the chemistry department are serving on committees of the Philadelphia Section of the American Chemical Society, the department has announced.

Dr. Paul E. Machemer is chairman of the Chemical Education Committee and Dr. Robert B. Koob is a member of the Liaison Committee.

Senior Pictures

Seniors who have not returned their proofs to Zamsky Studios, and those who have not had their pictures taken for the 1955 Belle Air, were urged to do so by Oct. 12.

Feature Editor Bill Quinn said lists of seniors involved may be found in the Pie Shoppe and Mendel Cafeteria. Quinn asks these students to call Walnut 2-3560 or to contact him.

ORIENTATION—

the administration had forbade collection of identification cards because freshmen use sophomores as an excuse for not having matric cards.

Claiming the "white hats" disappeared faster this year than last, Father suggested a court, where habitual offenders might be punished.

Councilman Bernie Finan said he thought a new method of introducing freshmen to Villanova life should be attempted next year. He said the "white hat" system had meaning when the school was smaller but seems to be ineffective now.

But Frank Gunther, Belle Air Editor, seemed to think freshmen expect to be orientated. He added that he thought freshman had made the pre-Syracuse game rally a success.

Value of Mass Stressed by Retreat-Master

Edging closer to God through frequent reception of Penance and Holy Communion was one of the points stressed Thursday during Villanova's annual one-day fall retreat.

Retreatmaster was Rev. John F. Hardy, C. M. (Congregation of the Missions).

Father Hardy emphasized the value of frequent confession and communion in helping college men and women to cope with temptations.

The strapping Vincentian spiced his four talks with anecdotes gathered during his years in the missionary field and in military service as a chaplain.

C&F Frosh On Watch Scholarship

A freshman C & F student is attending Villanova under a Bulova Foundation scholarship. He is Robert A. Bauer of Flushing, N. Y.

Bauer, a graduate of All Hallows Institute, was one of eight Bulova scholarship winners. He says twelve high school students took the tests.

Winners were determined from grades on the College Entrance Board Examinations and an I. Q. test administered by the Bulova Foundation of the Bulova Watch Co.

6. carried motion to exhibit Nick Basca Memorial Plaque in Mendel Hall for two weeks prior to Villanova-Houston football game Oct. 22. Plaque will go to hall whose decorations are judged the best in competition.

Masses Offered

The Student Council also approved a motion to have masses offered for Very Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O.S.A., and the mother of Bob Whelan, popular business manager of athletics.

Council Chairman Dick Winfield announced chairmen of working committees for the year. They are: Bill Quinn, Ways and Means; Frank Licopli, elections; Bob Fredericks, fraternities and societies; Rees James, social affairs; Ted Clarkson and Frank Gunther, spirit.

Father McLaughlin said Villanova would have 25 men listed in "Who's Who," but he said the committee would nominate 27, to cover any drop-outs.

After opening the meeting, Winfield introduced Father McLaughlin, who spoke briefly to Council. In his talk, Father called the Council a representative government and reminded the representatives of their responsibilites to their classmates.

Quinn Chosen IRS Leader

William Quinn, senior history major, was elected president of the International Relations Society at its meeting last wednesday.

A day hop from Ithan, Pa., Quinn won the presidency over James Borden and Thomas Mentzer.

Plans were discussed for a student trip to the United Nations headquarters Oct. 26 in conjunction with the World Affairs Council of Philadelphia. Twenty men will represent Villanova on the trip.

Cherchez La Folie!

Innocents, USNR, Abroad

By Dick Winfield

Editor's Note: In the process of training its future officers this summer, the Navy sent a few thousand midshipmen into Paris on liberty. One of Villanova's own here relates one of his memories of the City of Light, n'est ce pas?

For a spit-shined American midshipman on liberty in Paris, I must have looked a bit foolish that night at the Folies Bergere—dazed, minus one of my gold lapel anchors, smiling insanely, and with two bright orange-pink splotches on my cheeks.

When I returned to my seat, the midshipman on my right asked, "Where were you during the intermission? And why no anchor?"

Smug and smiling, I replied, "Why, I simply went backstage and chatted with Yvonne Menard."

"Yvonne . . . the star?"

Unh-huh! Abruptly losing my sang-froid, I told him how I had spent my last 1200 francs on three dozen roses and had prevailed upon Basil, our multilingual American Express guide, to call the director of the Folies to arrange the presentation.

With some Gallic hyperbole, Basil had "fixed" things by informing the director, M. Paul Derval, that I represented the sizable U. S. Navy contigent in the audience.

So, 36 roses in hand, I stood at the threshold of Mlle. Menard's dressing room mumbling something in Elementary French 101 about midshipmen, roses, and a token of appreciation.

With that, Yvonne bounded from her chaise lounge, took the bouquet, flung her arms around my neck, and KISSED me on both cheeks! Then, in a retaliatory burst of Franco-American emotion, I pinned my anchor on her chenille bathrobe. She giggled and asked me if I would sit down and have a "dreenk." Still shaken, I assented.

Long brunette hair flying, she flitted about madly, a lithe, luscious and tousled temptress. She seemed to fill the room with tiny sparks of unbridled energy. Still flitting, she chirruped that the cast loved tonight's (seagoing) audience, that the roses are glorious, and that she is scheduled to appear in New York's Latin Quarter in June.

"Curtain time in ten minutes," echoed through the hallway. Vowing to see her in June, I beat a reluctant retreat.

"And how will you explain all this to the Girl Back Home?" my midshipman friend asked.

Hmmm.

Fr. Greenlee Named Provincial

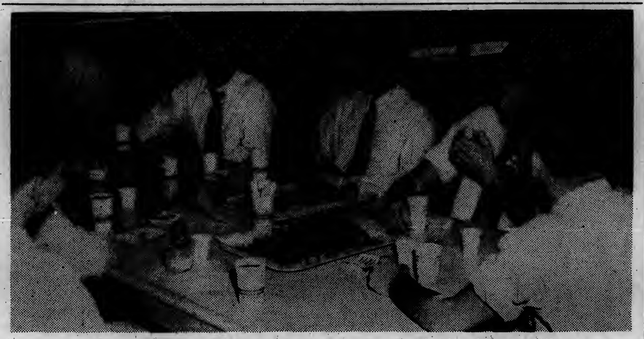
Villanovan
Vol. 30 — No. 2 Villanova Univ., Villanova, Pa. October 12, 1954

Succeeds Late Father Dougherty

The Very Rev. Henry E. Greenlee, O. S. A., S. T. D., has been appointed rector provincial of the Augustian Province of St. Thomas of Villanova, the Most Rev. Englehart Eberhard, O. S. A., prior general of the order, announced last week.

Father Greenlee will fill the office left vacant last month by the death of the Very Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O. S. A. His appointed term is until the next election, in 1956.

The new rector provincial, who has been provincial secretary since 1950, resides in St. Thomas Monastery. He was informally notified of his appointment last Wednesday by Very Rev. John T. Sheehan, O. S. A., Vicar Provincial. Father Eberhard made the official announcement Thursday.



Father Greenlee, the son of Charles and Margaret Donellan Greenlee, was born in 1897 at Bristol, Conn.

He studied at Villanova Preparatory School for four years and then entered the Novitiate of the Augustinian Order at Villanova in 1916. After pronouncing his vows the next June, he took his undergraduate degree from Villanova in 1920.

Commerce And Finance Again Leads

Villanova passed another milestone in its expansion movement last month when it ushered in the institution's largest class of freshmen—962.

Figures released by the Registrar's Office show that 461 of these frosh are enrolled in the C&F School. The engineering department has absorbed 284, and the arts school has accepted 190 other first-year men.

Twenty - seven co-ed frosh have enrolled, in the nursing division. Another co-ed—Helen Katona, a day hop from Pottstown, Pa.—is enrolled in the education curriculum.

Border Number 1105

The tremendous influx of freshmen also affected other statictics. Full time students number 2569. If seminarians and nuns were included, the total would reach 2767.

Also increased by the freshmen throng is the number of boarding students—1105. Three hundred of the 1464 day students are off-campus residents.

Showing the largest increase among schools was the C&F School, with 18 per cent more freshmen than last year. While the first year class enrollment jumped six per cent, the total Villanova enrollment leapt 16 per cent.

The size of this year's freshman class can best be described by a comparison with the statistics for upperclassmen. These include 712 sophomores, 495 juniors and 389 seniors.

School of Law Announces Two Appointments

Villanova's School of Law has announced two appointments. Miss Carmelita E. Geraci, for the past eight years registrar of the School of Law at Northeastern University in Boston, has been named registrar.

Miss Jane L. Hammond, a former cataloguer at the Harvard Law School Library, has been appointed assistant librarian in the School of Law.

Cotillion, Play, Prom Readied:

Pulchritude, Paychecks Gain Notice As Social Merry-Go-Round Accelerates

That familiar old Villanova social season (you know, the happy time that comes built in with an insatiable appetite for one's dollar bills), having already given a couple of hundred students two rather unceremonious shoves toward collegiate destitution, is upon us again.

But, sad to say, it will be all gone before we know it . . . our money, that is.

Yes, once again the time has come for all good, socially aspiring, utterly foolish Villanovans to say hello to Mary, to Jane, to Agatha, to Imogene . . . and, alas, alack, aufweidersein to that most fleeting of college companions, that manna from Mama, that good old, elusive American green note.

But evidently it's well worth it. At least, judging from those safari paths toward that institution across the tracks, it is. Those men hanging around the pay phones with glints in their eyes aren't phoning their draft boards, either. But that's the way it goes . . . you have a girl, a social schedule . . . and, eventually, no money. It's like supply and demand; only here it's much more demanding.

Yet, enough of this lamentation over our reluctant race toward financial oblivion. Let us, instead, while penning a note in Dad's direction for "that Economics book I have to have" (college breeds the justification of mental reservations as well as poverty, you see), look toward the future and size up our chances of making it past the Cotillion weekend without having to resort to Pie Shoppe pinochle for bits of the green specia.

By the way, as we implied rather weakly in the earlier and, perhaps, more coherent stages of this epistle, the social whirl has already been kicked off in fine fashion. The Owl Hop and the Blazer Ball, plus the Ole Miss game, gave the campus charmers an opportunity to cajol subtly the young ladies on their arms.

Let us not be deterred, however; to the future we gaze, with fond expectations of effervescent parties and empty pockets, a natural following, it seems. There's the Soph presentation, the Cotillion, a week from this Saturday, with our second year men anxious to coax a record throng, before the Giant-backing series collectors, precious few that there be, have a chance to toss their winnings to the winds in utter and unabashed exultation.

Then Belle Masque, attempting to repeat its excellent performances of last year, presents "Command Decision," November 4 through 7, in the hypodrome-on-the-Pike. Then comes, in rapid and dollar-diminishing order, the NROTC fall hop, the senior prom and dinner dance, the Charity Ball, and the Orphans' Outing (one instance in which no one minds going broke).

Yes, they say a wise man once opined that a fool and his money soon part. One needn't be a fool . . . just tender social aspirations; that's the intelligent way to bid adieu to pecuniary resources.

Has anyone a free ticket to the Cotillion?

Twelve Honored As "Straight A" Dean's List Men

Twelve students with perfect (4.0) averages topped a 326-student dean's list for June, 1954.

Last year's juniors who attained the coveted honor were: Ambrose K. Brennan, Chemical Engineering; Jaspar J. Collura, Edwin K. Daly, Mark McCormick and Thomas J. Mentzer, Arts; James P. Wrzesinski.

Class of '56 representatives on the "perfect" list were Francis M. Adams, Arts; Edward A. Buritsch, C&F; Donald J. Rosato, Biology.

Freshmen from last year who climbed on to the list were Frederick A. Costello, Engineering; Joseph B. Mizgero, Biology; Rocco J. Travia, Engineering.

Student Council Sponsors Bloodmobile Visit Oct. 20

One week from tomorrow a Red Cross bloodmobile will be at Villanova. Ordinarily a routine event, "Blood Day" is being held this year only because Villanova has guaranteed the Red Cross a minimum of 150 pints in donations.

Because of Villanova's poor showing last year and because a factory had guaranteed a 200-pint donation, on Oct. 20, the Red Cross was reluctant to come here. The Red Cross took Villanova's records for blood donation from other years and decided to come, after all.

Two-Fold Drive

A committee headed by Don McGahan is enlisting donors. Resident students may sign up with committee members who will come to halls this week. Nurses will be stationed in the Pie Shoppe beginning tomorrow to pass out applications to day hops.

To encourage donations, the drive has been placed on a competitive basis, with class against class and company against company in the NROTC. Midshipmen may sign up for their class and their company.

Anticipating Villanova Bloodshed . . . An Editorial

As far as we know, there is no revolution scheduled to take place on this campus in the near future, and we certainly do hope that no innocent blood will be spilled. Rather we believe that the Red Cross will do its usual painless and efficient job of handling contributions of blood when the Bloodmobile makes its appearance at Villanova on Wednesday, October 20.

The Red Cross does not ask for blood for any selfish reason; as a national service organization it seeks to alleviate suffering in case of war or disaster. Its achievements have been consistently outstanding in combat and calamity. It is more than deserving of our support; it depends upon it.

Blood is 78% water, but it is such a marvelous fluid that science has never found a substitute for it. It carries nourishment and oxygen through an intricate network of blood vessels to all parts of our bodies. It fights disease, and it carries away poisonous wastes. As an aid to life, it can't be beaten.

A couple of pints of blood can make a life or death difference to someone who is ill or hurt and short on healthy blood. Yet the rugged hearts of most of us pump about six quarts of nice, rich blood around our bodies, and we will hardly miss one pint. That is all the Red Cross wants from each of us, and the little effort necessary on our part makes it seem ridiculous that any able-bodied Villanovan would hesitate to part with this pound of blood.

This Red Cross organization maintains a Blood Bank in which it attempts to encourage a great deal of interest. There are few safer investments, and it is easy to obtain a loan in time of trouble. It is of no matter whether the depositor or beneficiary be Republican or Democrat, white, black, yellow or brown, man or woman, rich or poor. The depositor must be in good health, and the beneficiary must be in ill health.

Giving blood is as simple as lying down and rolling up your sleeve, and it is as important as life itself.

If any able-bodied Villanovan does not contribute blood on this occasion, we will assume that he has ice water running through his veins.

EDITORIAL

Very Reverend Henry E. Greenlee, O. S. A., begins his term as rector provincial of the Augustinian province of St. Thomas of Villanova with a record of long and distinguished service to his Order.

His record as Associate Professor of Philosophy here at Villanova, as Professor of Theology at the Augustinian College in Washington, as Prior of St. Mary's Hall, as Third Definator and finally as Secretary of the Province has merited the high distinction which the General of the Order has conferred upon him. We feel sure that, in view of his wide experience and intimate connection with Villanova, he will prove to be a worthy successor to the late Very Reverend Joseph M. Dougherty, O. S. A., whose administration witnessed such great events here at Villanova.

Most students do not realize how important the provincial is to the University. Because they do not deal directly with him, and because he does not sign notices on bulletin boards or address the student body at convocation, they tend to forget that he is always present behind the scenes, directing, advising, and helping. As head of the Augustinian Order in the province, it is he who makes the final decisions on many vital matters connected with both the administration and the expansion of Villanova.

The VILLANOVAN congratulates Father Greenlee on his appointment and wishes him the utmost success in his new post.

Fantasy Becomes Fact; Attlee Finds Wonderland

By Ed Daly

The recent trip of former Prime Minister Clement Attlee, leftwing Labour leader Aneurin Bevan, and several other British Labourite chieftains to Moscow and thence through Communist China has caused deep concern in the United States.

This concern has turned to alarm in many quarters since Attlee and his companions have returned from China and have begun issuing statements that have a very familiar ring to them. Americans wonder whether the British Labourites are henceforth to be considered friends or enemies of the United States.

Short Memory

Certainly Attlee displayed a remarkably short memory when he made the startling discovery that the Red Chinese admit they are not yet the world's greatest technologists. (The Russians themselves were glad to accept foreign technical advice during the 1930's and the Second World War). He cited numerous other "original discoveries" which only proved that the Red Chinese are behaving the same way the Russians did at the same stage of Communist development.

He also showed an incredibly naive approach when he blandly asserted that Red China was no danger to world peace a few days after the Geneva Conference proved the extent of Chinese ambitions in Indochina. His further suggestions that the SEATO powers accept Red China as a member and that U. N. exile Chiang from Formosa and hand that strategic island over to the Reds, are interesting examples of the extent to which a prominent public official can persuade himself that black is white; but they offer nothing in the line of practical statesmanship.

Attlee Deluded

They certainly show that Attlee has allowed himself to be persuaded that the Chinese are merely harmless lads who wouldn't dream of aggression against their neighbors. Although he clearly considers the Red government to be the best in Chinese history, he does not deny the existence of totalitarian features in the Mao regime, nor does he condone the absence of freedom from Chinese life.

He apparently considers the Chinese more reasonable than their Russian allies, a belief on his part that afforded us the amusing spectacle of Mr. Attlee suggesting to the Chinese Red leaders that they persuade the Russians to free their European satellites. Few greater examples of failure by a man in a high place to face the realities of international life have occurred in modern times. Mr. Attlee at dinner with these charming Communist gentlemen deserves a place with Mr. Neville Chamberlain, his umbrella, and "Peace in our Time", among the most ludicrously naive leaders of the twentieth century.

All of these things do not mean that Attlee is actually in sympathy with the Reds or in opposition to the United States. He remains a very sincere friend of America and a convinced foe of communism.

Unfortunately, an unwise and bungling friend if often more dangerous than an avowed foe.

What Do You Think?

By Jim Wrzesinski

Question: What is your opinion of living conditions in Sullivan Hall?

Interviews obtained in Sullivan Hall.

TOM LOTH: "The cleanliness and quietness of Sullivan Hall is a great improvement over the other halls in which I have lived. I think the students should do everything possible to keep the hall clean and quiet in the future.

However, the evening permissions in the hall should be revised. It is not logical to have 12:00 P. M. permission on nights when everyone should be studying. On the other hand, on Saturday night when most of the students would like to go out and enjoy some well earned fun and relaxation they have an early curfew hanging over their heads. It seems a bit ridiculous to have girls from the schools within 12 miles of us bring the Villanovans home."

ROBERT ROCK: "The rooms are pretty nice but the location is fairly far from Mendel, especially at 8:30 in the morning. At night, the echoes are such that you can hear somebody drop a pin in the other wing or turn over in their sack.

Upperclassmen should be allowed a little more late permission on weekends".

CONRAD C. HOFFNER: "The rooms are terrific. It is good to see the rules enforced but as one progresses in years from freshman to senior the rules should be diminished.

The building is the nicest on campus. The washrooms are especially clean, the maid service is fair, but the drawer space and closets are inadequate. The driveway should be widened."

ROY SOWLEY: "First of all, there are not enough telephones and no desk drawers. The chests would have been handier if not built into the closets. As they are, there is no place for toilet articles to be placed and there is not enough hanging space. Small towel hooks next to the washbasins and shower stalls would be very handy.

Some of the rooms have the wall boards next to the bed instead of over the desk, so that nothing can be hung on them.

The curfews are too strict. On Saturday, 12:30 is sort of early, Rather than 12:00 P. M. permissions all week, I suggest earlier permissions on week days with later hours on a weekend. Also there should be permission for seniors, instead of the present system which places them on the same basis as the sophomores and juniors."

PHIL ALTOMARE: "As far as facilities are concerned I do not think that any improvements can be made except in the way of the number of telephones. The structure itself inhibits radio reception. I believe that the restrictions regarding the protection of the building and noise in the building are adequate, but the restrictions regarding evening permissions should be set up in such a way as not to make us feel that we are being protected from ourselves. By this I mean, let the person come and go as he pleases but punish him for any offences during that time."

EDWARD KLEIN: "I am a senior at Villanova University. In regards, to Sullivan Hall, I think it is a swell dorm and the living facilities are excellent. The noise carries a little and the radios have quite a bit of static at night.

In regard to the regulations of coming and going, it is an insult to me to have to come in when told. If I can't judge for myself at my age, then the past three years have been a complete waste of time."

Campus Comment...

AT LAST it happened. One warm Villanova athletic enthusiast tumbled into famous Mendel Pond while making that old college try for a wayward football. He saved the football, swallowed three fish, and set a new intercollegiate record for shallow dives into rancid pools . . . The value of exercise is seemingly underestimated by the majority of college students, who are intent on socializing, scholasticizing, or sleeping. A healthy body makes a nice home for an active soul . . .

CAMPUS QUARTERBACKS are keeping busy by speculating on the cause of losing the Mississippi game. One opinion, if neither reasonable nor popular, is certainly interesting. It holds that the team suffers from a rare malady called OCHLOPHOBIA —fear of crowds . . .

Very few people probably realize that the 95,607 attendance at this game totals over 60% of the population of Nevada . . .

ONE of last year's female freshmen, Ann Brady, has become a postulant in the Congregation of the Immaculate Heart of Mary, in West Chester, Pa. This year's female frosh are entering into campus activities with an energy that is somewhat unnerving . . .

FATHER JOSEPH J. BURNS, O. S. A. reports that the transit used as part of the surveying equipment in plotting the position of University Hall was once used by our country's father, Mr. George Washington. Already this veritable nubbin of a building is historic. (The modern user of the transit denies that he has any political ambitions) . . .

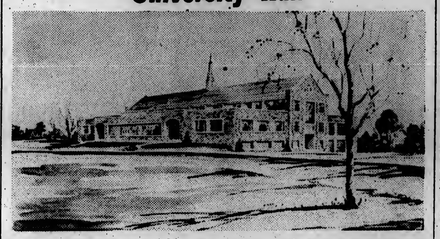
A NAVY FLAVOR adorns our campus in more ways than one. Over 300 men hope to be Naval Officers. But more significant than this is the manner in which former officers have infiltrated the faculty. Among them are teachers in math, engineering, and physics. Present Professor of Naval Science, Captain Martin J. Drury, teaches math, and an efficient enlisted man, FT1 Evertz, works part time trimming the remaining curly locks of balding Villanovans in the campus tonsorial salon . . .

SOMEONE should spread the tale around campus about the distinction between the scientist and the philosopher—if to do nothing but quiet the traditional controversy. It is contended that a scientist, seeking to specialize more and more, studies smaller and smaller areas, increasing his knowledge, until finally he knows everything about nothing. The philosopher seeks to universalize, and he is forever expanding his area of study. In the end he becomes so general than he knows nothing about everything . . .

(This experimental column is intended as an attempted answer to popular demand for more local color coverage by these pages. Constructive criticisms and/or contributions will be welcomed. Feature Ed.)

Expansion Step Will Meet Need

Step two in Villanova's twenty year expansion program, University Hall, is rising steadily and solidly from a planner's hope to a student's dream.



This magnificent structure is scheduled to replace such traditional campus institutions as the College General Store, Dining Hall, and Barber Shop. Very few tears of nostalgia are expected to be shed.

One need only look in at the present crowded dining hall, which seats 250 of 1150 resident students at a time, or at the noon hour to appreciate the need that will be answered.

With Brooklyn and Cleveland, we must "wait 'til next year!".

D. P. E. Interest Runs High As Full Year Is Planned

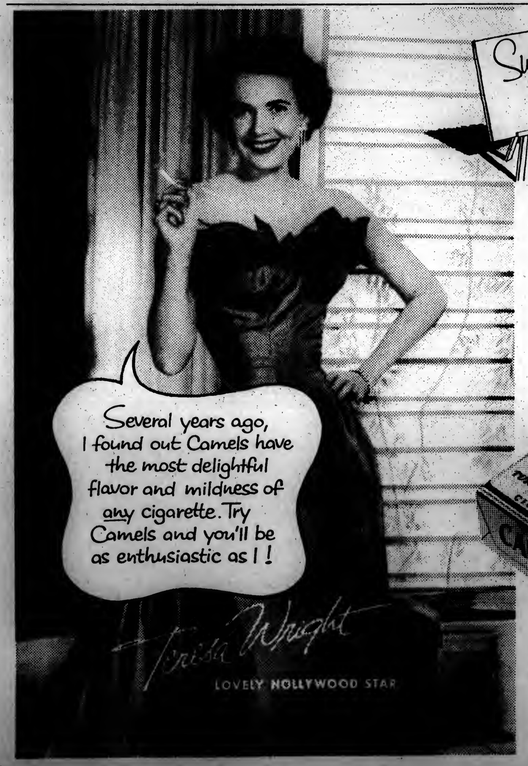
By Dan Passarelli

Delta Pi Epsilon, the Commerce and Finance Fraternity under the leadership of Bruce Stark, a marketing senior from Long Island, New York, expects to make this the most successful year in its history.

DPE started the wheels of progress with a communion breakfast Sunday, Oct. 10, at Martini's in Devon.

Plans are now being made for pledges on October 20th. DPE is looking forward to receiving a fine group of pledges, and it should be remembered that all those interested in joining must be enrolled in the Commerce and Finance division, be at least a sophomore, and have good scholastic standing.

This fraternity has long been one of the most active organizations of the Villanova campus.



The group has been outstanding in supporting all student activities.

Socially speaking, DPE has always been outstanding and this year will be no exception, especially with Jim Campbell heading the Social Committee. Plans for the fraternity dinner dance to be held on November 13th are progessing very well. During th second semester the alumni dinner dance will be held; present and past members are eligible to attend. Many other excellent events are planned which will help to maintain DPE's position near the top of Villanova's social ladder.

In numbers, DPE is the largest fraternity on the Villanova campus, with a present enrollment of 87, including 12 seniors and 75 juniors. The fraternity is run on the committee basis, giving wide representation to all. The four leading committees are: Executive, Alumni, Social, and Initiation.

Mr. Charles Vogan is the able moderator of the fraternity. The officers are Bruce Stark, president; Tony Skorupski, Vice President; Bill Cunningham, treasurer; and Jim Carmody, secretary.

President Stark feels that this is the advent of a new era for DPE in which his organization will set the pace among campus activities. This fraternity has the size, the spirit, the leadership . . . it moves and looks to the future with confidence.

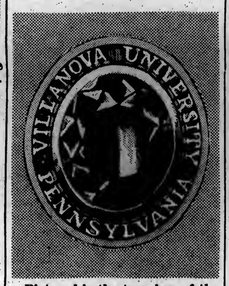
Juniors' Ring Fittings Scheduled Monday, 10-2

Owen Hickey, chairman of the Junior Class Ring Committee, announced yesterday that the representative from Dieges and Clust will be in the Villanovan office next Monday between 10 a. m. and 2 p. m. for the purpose of taking new ring orders.

The representative, George Packer, reminds those who failed to send their deposit that they must reorder the ring. Any others, juniors or seniors, who wishes to buy a ring, must be present at the times indicated. In any case, a $10 deposit fee must be paid at the time of the fitting.

Final fittings for those who were fitted in May and who have already paid their deposits will not be held until the middle of November. Hickey pointed out that a very short time should elapse between that final fitting and the date of delivery.

Pictured is the side shank of the new junior rings, to be delivered by Dieges and Clust. The seal shown on the side is the new University seal, modified for use on the shank.



Following distribution of the largest blazer order in Villanova's history and, last Friday night, the most significant Blazer Ball ever held, the Class of 1956 has turned its attention to the three dates early in December which hold a prominent position in the social calendars and hearts of all Villanovans.

The Charity Ball Committee, under the chairmanship of Don Alton, has begun to lay the groundwork for its affair. The dance wil be held Friday night, December 3, in the Field House. This will be the final social gathering before Christmas.

Committees are Active

Co-chairmen Mike Horan and Bernie Steinfelt have commenced work on the Orphans' Party, to be held at St. John's Orphanage Wednesday, December 8, and the Orphans' Outing, which will be held three days later. The co-chairmen have expressed hope that every student who can do so will contribute to the Johnnies' appeal by taking out an orphan.

Any juniors interested in assisting on any committee should contact the committee chairman as soon as possible.

Pictured is the top view of the juniors' ring, expected to be delivered (for those who had measurements last May and who paid deposit) sometime before Christmas. The stone and surrounding wording is essentially the same as in the past, including the word University for the second year. This view shown depicts the general design of the stone, which comes with faceted or buff styling and in a wide variety of stone colors.

New Seal Featured

The ring, which is being manufactured for the second straight year by Dieges and Clust, features on one side the beautiful new University seal and on the other the head of the Wildcat beneath the student's degree and his school.

Certain improvements were necessary in last year's ring and reports say that a "very satisfactory" product has been made. Father Vrana and the Company designers worked throughout the summer in ironing out problems of design and construction, particularly on the new seal.

"Garden Of Roses" Theme Announced For Cotillion

Band Signed; Slow Music To Dominate

Plenty of slow music, with a sprinkling of jump tunes—that's the prospect for dancers at the Sopohomore Cotillion Oct. 23 from 9 to 1 in the Field House.

Dance Chairman Ed McCall said Harry Jeakel and his orchestra had been instructed to keep jump music to a minimum.

Ray Clarke, chairman of the decorations committee, plans to transform the Field House into a garden of roses for the occasion. Other details of the decoration plans were not available.

Other committee chairmen named by McCall were Dick Mason, who will coordinate the ticket sale; Bill Hamburger, who is putting together the program; Art Odabash, class vice-president, who will control the sale of refreshments; and Tom Smith and Leonard Bellanca, who are handling publicity.

900 Couples Expected

In an optimistic attitude, McCall predicted a crowd of about 900 couples. If this goal is realized, attendance will surpass that registered by last year's sophomore class for their Cotillion, when some 700 couples glided around the Field House.

The Cotillion is the first organized social event for the Class of '57. At Villanova, freshmen do not elect class officers until spring of their initial year. They do not put on any social events until their second year. Chairman McCall explained the emphasis of slow music at the Cotillion by saying the class had heard much comment aganist a steady diet of "hot" music, which has been the fare of some bands who have played at Field House dances in the past.

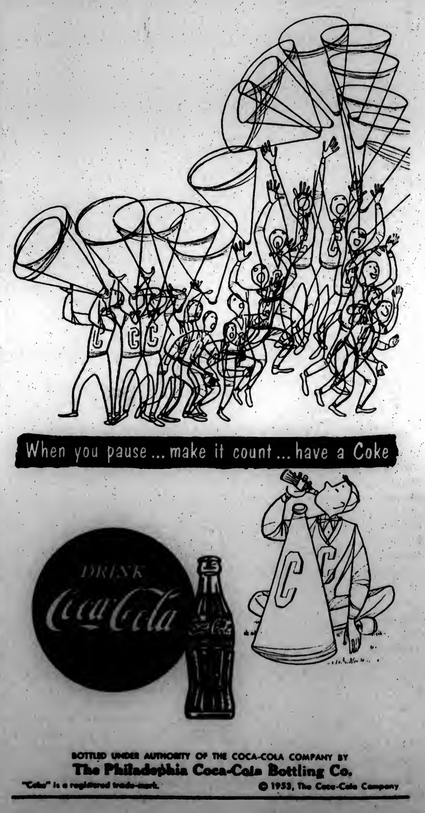
McCall said the sophomores hope to appeal to the majority of dance-goers with many danceable melodies from Jeakel and his orchestra.

Main Line Band

Although they operate out of Norristown, the bandsmen have played engagements along the Main Line, the blond-haired chairman explained.

Tickets, priced at $2 a couple, will be on sale in the Pie Shoppe, ticket chairman Dick Mason announced. Freshmen were especially invited by Mason.

He says he fells the Cotillion will serve as a smooth orientation for the frosh into Villanova social life.



One of the 265 members of the Junior class who attended the Blazer Ball gets some refreshing coca-cola between dances.

Promotional Brainwork

By Norm Feldpush

From behind three grey doors on the Villanova University campus have come promotional ideas with such astounding results that national recognition has been awarded their originators. As one ascends the stairs and reaches the balcony of Villanova's field house, a sharp turn will signify the arrival on the scene of these accomplishments. Moving from left to right, the visitor will encounter the following officers: Robert Whelan, Business Manager; Ambrose "Bud" Dudley, Athletic Director and Bill Ryan, Athletic Secretary; and Gene Ruane, Publicity Director.

Ambrose (Bud) Dudley

An interview with the "Big Four" concerning their behind-the-scene creations and problems disclosed tidbits of information which would amaze the casual observer.

Little-Known Facts

For instance, did you know that . . . in 1953 the ticket sales to the Acme for the Georgia game was the first athletic news to make the Wall Street Journal . . . preparations for Bratkowski and Co. began after Blue and White Day and endod on the night of the big game with no vacations between . . . the Philadelphia Inquirer sign was still on the scoreboard clock—another Philadelphia paper refused to cover the game unless it was removed . . . program covers for the Georgia game were of three different designs because of the inadequate supply.

In 1954 . . . the entire area surrounding Municipal Stadium was sprayed with D. D. T. to discourage the football ambitions of curious pests . . . the Civil Aeronautics Commission was alerted to distinquish the lighted stadium from the neighboring Southwest Airport for any multi-engine descendents of the Wright brothers project at Kitty Hawk . . . cost of printing tickets for Ole Miss amounted to $1,600 . . . pre-game entertainment was arranged to promote early arrival and stagger the crowd . . .

More Facts

Two bands, a pre-game warm-up, the Philadelphia Model Hobby Dealers Association show, and the National Anthem was timed for an 8:30 kickoff . . . the ball was in the air 8:29 and 30 seconds . . . 1,200 ushers are required for the annual Army-Navy classic—Villanova set an all-time low with the unbelievable total of 250 . . . the answer was seating diagrams and one rehearsal . . . the visiting team has the choice of deciding the lighting arrangements . . . the press box at Municipal Stadium is the largest in the country, seating 422 . . . the Philadelphia Firemen's show was scheduled for twelve and one-half minutes—with the cooperation of the officials and the coaches, the show took twelve and one-half minutes . . .

And Still More Facts

The goal posts had to be moved from the professional standard to the collegiate distance and painted with the competing schools' colors . . . all cross traffic conflicting with one-way Broad Street had to be rerouted with the cooperation of the Philadelphia police . . . fourteen doctors and three nurses were in attendance . . . a crew of fourteen was needed for scoreboard operations . . . P. T. C. buses operated for the convenience of suburban districts . . . a letter from Germany can be found in the Athletic Department files concerning the Acme-Villanova promotion.

This superficial examination fails to reveal the midnight hours and the mental anguish endured by this Villanova boosters' quartet. This was a task for which other universities employ a staff of thirty to fifty. The least that can be expected of the student body is one hundred percent attendance at all athletic events and pep rallies.

Villanova Visits Motor City; Titans Opponent Friday

By Paul Clarkson

Friday night the City of Cars will play host to our much travelled and thrice-defeated Villanova football team. The Wildcats will oppose the Titans of Detroit University in the 22nd meeting between the two clubs at the Detroit school's stadium. This game should prove to be an even match for both schools, each team having lost many first-string ballplayers through graduation last year, causing weaknesses to both, offensively and defensively.

Rebuilding Also

Detroit, under a new coach, Wally Fromhart, is also undertaking a rebuilding program much like our own. To date, the Titans have lost their first two encounters. Boston College, a strong eastern power, defeated Detroit in the initial outing for each team this year, while a Marine team from Quantico, led by a vaguely familiar football figure hereabouts, Gene Filipski, also took its toll on the Titans. In the latter contest, Filipski displayed his usual form, and tallied two out of the three Quantico touchdowns.

Detroit, by no means a weak outfit, boast four All-Missouri Valley Conference playsr. Joe Belluso, a 200 lb. guard, and center Al Bumgartner, both All-Conference in 1953 are the only mainstays up front. Their all around play will prove a big help for the Titans during the season. Last year at Connie Mack Stadium, these two men played the lead role in stalling Villanova's ground attack. Both men shine on offense and defense, and they aided greatly in last year's surprising upset.

Injuries Hurt Titans

Two Detroit stalwarts, however, will be missing when the 'Cats play the Titans. End Jack Flanagan, a second team All-Missouri choice last year, was injured in a scrimmage earlier in the season and will be lost to Detroit indefinitely, while halfback Bart Jenniches, in the same scrimmage broke an ankle, and will see no action for the rest of the year.

Perhaps the Jesuit school has its best personnel still at halfback, even with the loss of

Brown Paces Wildcats; Runners Defeat Army

In their first dual meet of the 1954 season, the Villanova cross-country team travelled to West Point to defeat the Cadets 26-29.

In a tight finish, Army's Ralph Stephenson was the individual winner by a scant 20 yards over improving sophomore George Brown. Senior Bill Rock was a close third. Alex Breckenridge, John Kopil, and Al Peterson came in sixth, seventh, and eighth, respectively, to insure the team victory.

Kopil Ill

Kopil's seventh-place finish can be attributed to a sudden spell of illness which seized him during the race. The game little Bayonne speedster remained in the running, though, and helped Villanova defeat their perennial autumn opponent.

Brown ran the best race of his college career in leading the Villanova harriers. His time of 26 minutes 50 seconds was almost half a minute faster than the winning time of last season's run over the same course.

Rock Improving

The fine showing of Rock and Breckenridge was especially encouraging, since it indicates that these two are reaching their true running form after a slow start. Both men were not in the best of shape when they reported to Coach Hal Langton in September. Bill was handicapped by military reserve duty and Alex by an all-night job. It seems they have worked the kinks out now, though, and are ready for the stiff competition of the remainder of the fall schedule.

John Kopil

Al Peterson, while generally in the shadow of his Bayonne teammates Brown and Kopil during cross-country season, has been steadily reducing his times for the five-mile distance, and can be relied upon for future improvement.

Running to condition himself for the coming winter meets, Ray Wheiler is the sixth man on the squad.

The summaries:

1. Stephenson—Army
2. Brown—Villanova
3. Rock-Villanova
4. Wray—Army
5. Winter—Army
6. Breckenridge—Villanova
7. Kopil—Villanova

Passes, recovered fumbles, and a right end named Feamster spelled disaster for Villanova University on Saturday night when the Seminoles of Florida State ground out its second straight victory, 52-13 before a crowd of 8000 fans.

This time it was not a story of inexperience, but rather one of shallow reserve strength. The Wildcats couldn't keep up with the pace set by the fast running Seminoles.

Bauer Intercepts

Villanova looked its best in the first quarter as it had in its two previous games. Florida State scored first in the opening period, when Harry Massey passed to Feamster on an eighteen yard touchdown play. Villanova was quick to retaliate. John Bauer intercepted a State pass on Villanova's thirty-one yard line, running it back sixty-five yards to the Florida State four. Three plays later Dick Scott broke into the end zone for the score. The first quarter ended with the score, 6-6; both teams missing the extra point.

Feamster Excels For FSU

"The second period found Florida State marching seventy yards for another score. This was another pass to the six foot, seven inch, two hundred and forty-five pound Feamster. Massey kicked the point after touchdown, and FSU lead at the half, 13-6. Villanova looked good at times during the first half. The Cats were handicapped by the loss of Joe Leichtweis who was unable to make the trip. John Ferruolo also saw limited action, because of an injury received in the Mississippi game. Dick Scott and John Lammers did a good job in taking over this post. Between them, they completed eleven of twenty-nine passes which were good for 142 yards.

It was still anybody's ballgame when the third period began. But Florida State was quick to sew it up. The Seminoles scored twice within five minutes, climaxing fast marches of sixty-nine an dthirty-four yards. The Wildcats came back with a twenty-one yard scoring pass from Scott to Don McComb. McComb looked at his best, both on offense and defense, as did Mike Flynn, Flynn's side of the line was practically impregnable. John Giordano and Nelson Marshall also played well in the losing cause.

Weak Fourth Quarter

The storm broke in the fourth quarter when Florida State uncorked three touchdowns passes and added another on the ground, just for good measure. Villanova was a weary eleven and was playing mostly on spirit.

Very Fast Team

Although Florida State was an inexperienced team, they had the depth which told the story of the game. They displayed the same speed which Mississippi

"Regs" Still Haunt Frosh

High - spirited sophomores turned last Wednesday's Muff Day into a one-sided affair by dropping only three contests to the ambitious freshmen, but the frosh could lick their wounds with the knowledge they had jarred the sophs in the touch-football game, 7-6.

From the start, the day seemed to belong to the class of '57. Jack O'Rourke's classmates started the ball rolling by successfully overpowering the freshmen in the tug-of-war. The only tie of the day's competition came about when Mike De Pirro fumbled the elusive egg in the toss contest, bringing the play to a halt after eight steps all. In the football pass for distance, Carroll and Reardon out-heaved Halon and Cipriano, representatives of the frosh.

Sophs Win Easily

The sophs easily repeated their track wins of the previous year making a clean sweep of all firsts in the 220 sprint, 440 relay, and 50 and one hundred yard dashes. Bob Burgess, a sure-footed white-hat, flashed past the finish markers well ahead of anyone in the fifty and one hundred yard dashes. Bill Marinelli sped through the 220 sprint in unbeatable style even though Stark, a speedy freshman, hung on his heels the distance. Marinelli got into the double-win column by successfully running anchor-man in the 440 relay. The finale of the relay brought cheers from the sidelines as frosh Terry Hayes was steadily gaining on Marinelli right up to the finish.

Frosh Win Football Game

Although the end of the preliminary contests showed the sophs to be the inevitable winners, the downtrodden but talented freshmen collected their football ranks and in the remaining minutes of Muff Day humbled the sophomores 7-6. The possession of the ball changed hands frequently, but once the Freshmen took to the air the tide obviously turned. A snappy frosh quarterback clicked for one downfield pass, and then, two plays later, end Burt Hanlon, frosh standout, hauled down the winning tally in the Sophs' end zone. Reeling off the same play, Hanlon grabbed the lone extra point of the game. Hanlon, a C&F student, hails from Roxborough and played the same sparkling ball for Penn Charter. The sophs put up a hard fight, scored their six

Co-Ed Amateur Tennis Star Enters Tourney

By Joe Heaps

By entering the fall tennis tournament, co-ed Joanne Stucky established a precedent for Villanova intramural sports. It marked the first time that a girl has participated in this form of extra-curricular activity.

Tennis Background

Her success in competing with the male entries comes with no surprise when Joanne's tennis background is revealed. This nationally-ranked lass is number two player on the Junior Wightman Cup team in the Middle States area and has had a great variety of tournament experience. For four years Miss Stucky was Western Pennsylvania Junior champion and is a former Great Lakes woman title-holder.

Joanne Stucky

Because of her father's keen interest in tennis, Joanne learned the sport early in life. She began playing at 11 and was participating in amateur matches at 13. Jim Tully, the National Professional Squash Champ has been her teacher.

Hard-Hitting Game

Despite her medium stature, Joanne likes to play a hard-hitting, man's-type game. The forehand smash and backhand down the line are the blonde girl's winning shots. She prefers singles matches and dreads mixed doubles.

Serious tennis is a thing of the past, though, for Joanne. "I intend to continue the game, but just for the enjoyment of it," states the personable young lady. A conflict in future plans brought about this attitude towards her favorite pasttime. When Joanne had to choose between nursing and tennis, she selected the nobler of the two and is now a freshman in the University's Nursing Division.

Match Postponed

In an effort to aid their fellow Frosh in the liberation from dinks, Pat Yonkin and she were scheduled to play a doubles match with two Sopohomore co-eds on Muff Day. Because of late classes, the girls were unable to compete.

A real sports fan, Joanne plays squash, basketball, and ping pong, as well tennis. Other interests include reading and knitting.

Her opinion of Villanova: "C'est si bon."

Lightweight Club Girds For Opener vs. Cornell

"Beat Cornell." That's the slogan of Villanova's 150-pound football team. A one point 13-12 1953 defeat by the Ithacans is providing the impetus for what should prove to be a successful season for the lightweights. The Mainliners are well fortified by eleven returning letter winners, and possess more balance and speed than last year's hard-luck eleven.

Backfield coach Steve Smolczynski and line coaches Lou Cassella and Tom Rogers are conducting intensive training sessions in anticipation of Saturday's inauural. They are assisted by senior manager Adrian Kilker. The Wildcats last won the Eastern Intercollegiate title in 1949.

Veteran-Studded Backfield

Veteran backfield returnees include quarterback John Doherty, fullback Tom Gorham, and halfbacks Tom Lynch and Dan Murphy. A strong forward wall will bolster the lightweights hopes. Center Dick Fitzpatrick is expected to handle the snap-backing duties. Speedy ends Don "Shadow" Harley and Charlie Brockman are counted upon to repeat their excellent 1953 performances. Other returning monogram wearers include Mike Horan, Tony Cziesko, Dave Cook, and Don Alton. Newcomer Archie Kennedy was an All-Metropolitan interscholastic guard in Washington, and is being counted upon for heavy duty.

Track Newcomers Record Holders In Four Events

By Bob Strayton

In keeping with the trend of enlarging its scope, Villanova's athletic department this year has recruited four freshman track stars, representing the cream of the crop in their respective fields, to help expand the promising track squad.

Rowland Simpson, a Cheltenham, Pa., youth, made his bid for fame while attending Cheltenham High School. For three years, he has been the State scholastic champ with his fine 49.0 time for the 440 yd. distance, his specialty.

State Title-Holder

Another key figure in Villanova track competition this year will be a local boy, Geo. Sydnor, who is also a State title-holder. His 9.7 second effort in the hundred yd. dash, together with a fine 21.4 for the 220 yd. event, are both standing records in Pensylvania scholastic track annals.

The Bryn Mawr speedster, who started his track career at Haverford High School, has also had a National Indoor track record fall before his fleeting feet. Last year at the indoor games, Sydnor posted a 6.4 mark for the 60 yd. dash, establishing a new national record for the event.

High-Jump Artist

A field event specialist shares the spotlight with the cindermen. He is Philip Reavis, a high jumper, who also holds a couple of records of his own. His outstanding jump of 6 ft. 6½ in. broke the Massachusetts, and also the National record for that event.

The talented Sommerville, Mass., youth will count heavily for coach Jim "Jumbo" Elliott's team this season. Since Villanova has never been strong in the field event department, Reavis aptitude should prove invaluable to the team in the forthcoming season.

Holds World Title

Perhaps the most outstanding of the quartet, however, is tall, slender Ronald Delany. Ron, imported from Dublin, Ireland, to aid Villanova's cause, is the only world-wide scholastic record -holder at Villanova. In the semi-final round of the European Scholastic Track Championships, Delany toiled to a brand new world's scholastic record in the 880 yard dash, by doing the distance in a fine 1:50.2 time.

Aside from the 880 yd. distance, Irish Ron also runs the 880 meters, and posts almost as fine times for that event. At present, his prowess on the cinders marks him well for an outstanding career in United States competition.

All-American Runners

With the aid of these four new prospects, Villanova's track team might well prove to be one of the top-ranking in the country, because, aside from being both National and State champions, three of the aforementioned trackmen, received All American mention.

Giordano, Sullivan Add Backfield Strength

After playing in the shadows of such Villanova greats as Gene Filipski, Bob Haner, and Ralph Cecere for the majority of their collegiate careers, two senior backfield men emerged this year as mainstays on Villanova"s young football team.

Johnny Giordano, a speedy halfback ,and John Sullivan, who plays the fullback slot, are both in their fourth year of endeavor.

John Giordano

Saw Little Action

Upon completion of four years high schooling at Malvern Prep, where he was outstanding as a hard-running halfback, "GI", as Giordano is known to Villanova followers, came to the Main Line institution to carry on his football career. He played very little footlball during his first two years, and it wasn't until the Xavier game last year that Johnny had a chance to show his fine potentiality. He was immediately noticed by Art Raimo, then Villanova's head coach, and from that time on, it was no more obscurity for Giordano. He alternated the rest of the season at the halfback positions.

Leading Ground-Gainer

In the current season, GI has performed commendably for the Wildcats. Besides having a steadying influence on the sophomore-laden squad, GI has also been the leading ground-gainer for Villanova in the three contests to date. The hard-running Philadelphian is a sparkplug on defense too, having broken up many threats against the Wildcats.

A New Haven, Connecticut youth, John Sullivan is also in his senior year at Villanova. Working from the fullback post, Sully has done a commendable job for Villanova this year.

Starts Opener

Starting the Syracuse opener only because regular fullback Jack Helm was injured. Sully immediately made himself known to spactators. His hard-running and solid 190-lb. frame helped him account for a large percent of Villanova's "yardage-gained."

Since that game, John has worked consistently from fullback, alternating on occasions with Helm and soph Joe Ryan. His spirited and aggresive ball-playing is a constant aid to the club.

points in the final moments on a sharp forward pass to the end zone, but could not penetrate the frosh for the tieing point.

Ed Geisz, Fr. Dunn, Bill Ryan and the officials of the Intramural Department sponsored a great program for approximately 1,000 spectators and should be given unlimited credit for their splendid job.

Intramural Football

And, in the the regular intramural department, the touch-football league has gotten underway quite strongly. Of the 24 teams entered in the league, only 14 are eligible to play, the others not able to be fit into the Intramural Dept.'s already crowded schedule.

Jenniches. Starting on either side of an inexperienced fullback will be Lee Riley, a two-year veteran, and last year's Conference leading pass catcher; and Bob Burgmeier, holder of the 1953 Conference scoring title with 72 points.

Weak At Line

Detroit, however, is weakest at both tackles and at the quarterback slot. The ends are fair. With four all-Conference players of high repute forming a strong nucleus, the Titans are rightly said to have a formidable first eleven men. But, as we have experienced in our own rebuilding effort, they lack depth.

Friday night should prove an even match between two T-formation outfits, with Detroit having the slight experience edge.

If you drive for the sheer zest of it you owe yourself this hour!

If your hands rejoice in the precise balance of a fine gun or the sweet response of a racing sloop . . . then you owe yourself an hour with the Chevrolet Corvette.

You'll find it is, quite literally, like no other car in the world—a heart-lifting blend of the true sports car with all that is best in American engineering.

There is the velvet smoothness of a Powerglide automatic transmission (but with the classic floor selector-lever).

The trouble-free durability of a Chevrolet "Blue-Flame" engine (but with three side draft carburetors to unleash its flashing 150 horsepower).

The ruggedness of an X-braced box girder frame (but with the astonishing impact resistance of a glass-fiber-and-plastic body).

Luxurious seating for driver and passenger in deep foam rubber (but cradled in the traditional security of bucket seats).

Generous luggage room, the panoramic sweep of a deeply curved windshield, the flair of tomorrow's styling (but within the polo-pony compactness of a real road car).

The Corvette blends all this and more. For it is a driver's car . . . a low-slung torpedo with a center of gravity only 18 inches above the concrete . . . with outrigger rear springs that make it hold to the road like a stripe of paint . . . with a 16 to 1 steering ratio that puts needle-threading accuracy at your finger tips.

Frankly, the Corvette is a "limited edition," made only in small numbers. It is intended only for the man or woman to whom driving is not just transportation but an exhilarating adventure, a sparkling challenge to skill and judgment. If you are one of these, then you owe yourself an hour with a Chevrolet Corvette.

Call us now and let us set up a demonstration run . . . for in a short 60 minutes you can discover that motoring has a whole new dimension of delight.

Make a date to drive the Ex-Schola Cantorum:

"VU Singers" Will Double In Sacred, Secular Music

The Villanova Singers, a remodeled Schola Cantorum, last week held its organizational meeting, at which new officers were elected and plans were outlined for the coming year.

Pending approval by the administration, Conrad Urban was re-elected to the presidency for another year by unanimous vote; Paul Landau won the Student Council seat; and Jack Jannucci and Bob Ford were named librarian and secretary, respectively. The latter two replace Joe Blimm and Bob Brown, who did not seek re-election.

Dr. Harold Gill Reuschlein, law school dean and choirmaster of the Singers, outlined plans for the year. He said the group will offer two or three recitals as a glee club, will do chapel singing weekly and will sing for certain masses.

Rehearsals for both the sacred and secular music will begin today for the approximately sixty members, stated Dean Reuchlein.

had shown the week previous. However, the Villanova offense did show improvement, rolling up a total of 218 yards gained. This seems like nothing compared to the 476 yds. by FSU. But it was the best showing the Wildcats have made thus far this year. Pass defense showed no improvement whatsoever. The Seminoles completed 18 of 27 passes.

Belle Masque

structed on the Field House stage for the war drama to be presented Nov. 4 through 7.

Although the set is comparatively small—it measures 25 feet by nine feet—Duffy felt a 12 foot square map would cause his men some extra work.

Duffy said the map would have to be assembled in sections like a crossword puzzle.

In a Quonset Hut

Setting of the play is a quonset hut, which will be split in half on the stage. Duffy explained that no pillars would mar the audience's view of the stage.

Helping the stage managers and Mr. Krupa are some seventeen other members of Belle Masque.

They are: Jim Campbell, Tom Keller, Larry Kerwin, Tom Curran, Paul Landau, Bill Oberle, Lynn Forrestal, Gene McDonald, Leo Burke, Greg Giles, Jim Judge, Joe Chinnici, Jim McCarthy, Fred Onorato, Gerald Bratti, Gene Fedigan and Dan Murphy.

Duffy requested any students interested in working on the stage crew to see him.

Co-Chairmen Announce:

Lester Lanin Seniors' Prom Band Preference

For their Belle Air Ball, the senior band committee has voted to sign Lester Lanin and his society orchestra. The formal dance will take place in the Field House Nov. 19 from 9 to 1.

Lanin is noted for his smooth, accomplished style, reported Prom Chairmen Hugh Humphreys and Bernie Finan. Because the chairmen claim Lanin will play almost continuously, no intermission band has been hired.

Humphreys and Finan have not yet released the theme for this year's Ball, but they guarantee that the theme will be "revolutionary and different."

Emphasis in selecting a theme will be on a gay party atmosphere, with decorations fitting this setting, the chairmen hinted.

Meanwhile, plans were at a standstill for the Prom's sister event, the Senior Dinner-Dance. Chairman Ted Clarkson has already announced the event for Nov. 20 at the Walt Whitman Hotel in Camden.

However, Clarkson says he has not yet chosen a band. He added the selection will be made "within the next two weeks."

Chairman Clarkson has hopes that this year's Dinner-Dance will fare as well as the senior dinner-dance last year, when almost all tickets were sold after a week.

Although the Dinner - Dance was open only to seniors and their dates, the prom chairmen have issued a cordial invitation to all underclassmen.

Guild Show Price Cut Predicted

Ticket price reductions were forecast last week for future Seminary Guild Shows. Rev. John J. Coffey, O. S. A., Master of Professed Clerics, and director of the production, said that some considerations must be given to the non-wage-earning students for the next annual show.

Proceeds of the Augustinian Seminary Guild Show help finance the seminarians' training, and profits on the recent production totalled $5000. Fr. Coffey estimated that it costs $1000 to put a man through the Seminary for one year.

Speech Notes Lost

Who's got the speech notes?

That's what Mr. Anthony Frayne, associate professor of English, was asking last week.

Mr. Frayne nas offered a reward for the return of the notes to the C & F Office.

Father also stated that due to the difficulty of getting talent in the spring, the next annual Guild Show will be held in late September or early October.

When asked for his opinion of this year's show, Fr. Coffey replied, "All our previous shows had a lead personality, or a 'Big-leaguer' but this show was outstanding in that all the personalities were tops in their respective fields. It will be hard to duplicate this next year."

The director remarked that more thought will be given to the date of next year's production as well as the different price scaling of tickets.

Law School Enrollment Pushes 100

From Iowa to Maryland to Massachusetts, Villanova's School of Law has drawn 65 students for its second first-year class. Total enrollment now stands at 98, including 12 veterans attending school under various Government bills.

Thirty-eight schools are represented among the first-year men, with local schools leading in perecntage. St. Joseph's gave Villanova a close run for first place, with 12 attending to compare to Villanova's 14. LaSalle holds third spot with six.

The lone female in the class, Miss Lillian Simons, was graduated from Ohio State. Other distant schools represented include Notre Dame, Cornell, Holy Cross, George Washington, Lincoln, Delaware, Merrimack, Fairfield, Mt. St. Mary's, and Manhattan. Sixteen Pennsylvania colleges have students among the first year classmen.

Graduate at ND On Fellowship

A 1954 graduate of Villanova—Charles J. Noel—has begun graduate studies at the University of Notre Dame under a National Science Foundation fellowship.

Noel, a Philadelphia, received a Bachelor of Science degree in chemistry. During his senior year he served as president of the Chemistry Society.

WVIL Timetable

WVIL, the radio voice of Villanova, is again on air, with station officials envisioning clearer reception in the halls.

Bernie Coyne is station manager and Don Alton program director.

Campus organizations desiring to have announcements broadcast over the station should contact Coyne.

Here, subject to change, is the program schedule for the week:

P. M.

7:30—Down Memory Lane
8-8:15—News
8:15-8:30—Music
8:30-9—Seminary Guild Show (tape recording) and I Doubt It (date to be announced)
9-10—Wet Wax Works (popular tunes)
10-11—Concert Work Shop (classical music)

FATHER GREENLEE

Sent to Rome for theological studies in November, 1920 at the International Augustinian College of St. Monica, Father Greenlee was ordained July 8, 1923, by Cardinal Pompili in the Church of Santa Maria Sopra Minerva. Two years later, he received the doctorate in Sacred Theology from the Vatican Theological Commission.

Villanova Instructor

From 1926 until 1931, Father Greenlee was sub-master of St. Mary's Seminary, Villanova. During this time, he taught philosophy at Villanova College.

He taught theology at St. Augustine's College, Washington, from 1933 until 1947 when he was made prior of St. Mary's Hall, Villanova.

Appointed Socius Provincial secretary in 1950, Father Greenlee attended the General Chapter of the Augustinian Order at Rome in 1953, in that capacity.

Father Greenlee has two brothers and two sisters, one of whom is a Sister of Mercy, stationed at Waldren Academy, Merion.

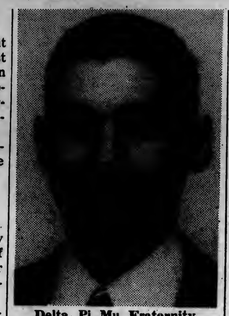
Delta Pi Mu Arts Fraternity members heard an outline of their year's activity at their first business meeting Thursday.



Dr. John McEnerney, fraternity moderator, listed a program schedule for the year, after President Jack DeRemigis appointed committee chairmen for the year.

Named were: Bernie Coyne, program; Mike Horan and Don Alton, social; Jim Bambury, pledges; Owen Hickey, refreshments.

Senior Bill Quinn was voted corresponding secretary to fill a vacancy opened after elections last May.

Why did Great Britain recognize Red China?

And what is Britain's stand on rearming Western Germany?

A staunch Conservative Member of Parliament will answer next Wednesday when Nigel Nicolson, M. P., speaks on England's foreign policy in 201 C&F at 7:15 p.m.

Mr. Nicholson, elected to Parliament by a large majority in 1952, accepted the invitation of the International Relations Society to speak to Villanova students. He is rated as a leading expert in the foreign affairs of Great Britian.

Mr. Nicholson, from Bournemouth, Hampshire, is currently an official visitor at Haverford College.

Students and friends of Villanova are invited to hear the talk, according to Bill Quinn, president of the I. R. S.

Acct. Society

Accounting Society held its first meeting last Thursday. President Joseph Dorris introduced the other new officers: George Kuhn, vice-president; A. Guida, secretary; and L. Silva, treasurer.

Fall semester plans were outlined, and included guest speakers from the fields of government, industrial and public accounting, as well as field trips to accounting offices in the Philadelphia area.

This year Villanova University is the host for the annual accounting forum sponsored by the Philadelphia Chapter of the American Institute of Accountants. Committees for the forum will be assigned at the next meeting of the society, which will be held Thursday morning, October 21.

Mr. George Chorba, moderator of the society, spoke briefly, encouraging membership. The society is open to all accounting majors who have completed their freshman year. Membership cards will be distributed, and dues will be collected at the next meeting.

DRAFT NOTICE

Draft problems, as of Oct. 1, will be handled by the Office of the Registrar. All male students, even those in the NROTC are required to fill out orange-colored draft forms, which may be picked up in the Office of the Registrar.

Midshipmen, Spit-Shined And Eager, Look To Annual Fall Hop November 5

Villanova's NROTC midshipmen, sporting their classiest spit shines and razor-sharp trouser creases, will hold their annual fall dance Nov. 5 in the Crystal Room of the Broadwood Hotel in Philadelphia.

Senior Erich Baumgartner—chairman of the dance committee—in making the announcement, said the Kenmore Karavan will supply the music for the informal affair, from 9 to 1. Baumgartner has been assisted by Pete Quinn, Frank Hartmann and Tom Ulrich.

Personnel connected with the Villanova unit will attend with their wives, Baumgartner said.

WVIL Station Manager Bernie Coyne and Chief Announcer Don Alton discuss the schedule for the coming week.

"Moot Court" Argument Set By Law Students Tomorrow

Villanova's School of Law will conduct a simulated argument before the Supreme Court of the United States tomorrow at 8:15 p.m. in the Commerce and Finance auditorium. Undergraduates interested in law are invited to attend.

From among the participants Villanova will select a team to enter regional competition against the law schools of Rutgers, University of Pennsylvania, University of Pittsburg, Seton Hall, and Temple.

Robert Garbarino (B.B.A. St. Bonaventure, '51) and Joseph R. Glancey(B. E. E., Villanova, '50) will defend a lower court decision granting an injunction against peaceful picketing in a strike involving interstate commerce. Arguing for reversal will be Arthur R. Flores (B.A. Siena, '53) and James P. Garland (B.A. Loyola, '53). Counsel on the brief include Regina M. Ward (A.B. Rosemont, '53), Donald Grieshober (B. A. Gannon, '53), Neal F. Hooley (B.A. St. Francis, '53), and Thomas J. Brady (B. A. St. Peters, '53).

Top Hall in Houston Game Spirit Race to Be Chosen Thursday:

New 'Basca Award' Up For Grabs

Only two days remain for the completion of decorations for the Nick Basca Award. Co-chairmen Frank Gunther and Ted Clarkson have indicated that plans are proceeding according to schedule, but they urge the cooperation of all in putting the polishing touches on the dormitories.

The Basca Award a replacement of the Connelly Award, is dedicated to All-American Nick Basca, who was a standout guard at Villanova before his death in 1951. The Award kicks off a big Homecoming Weekend, which will be culminated with the game against Houston.

"Beat the Cougars"

Theme of the contest is "Beat the Cougars." Hopes are high that the decorations will match those of last year, when competition was so keen that three halls finished very close to winner Simpson.

"Live" animals, animated signs, and electric lighting are prominent throughout the campus. A couple of halls have not yet begun to display their decorations, ostensibly to protect their secrets until the last minute.

Judging will begin with Simpson Hall at 7:15 P. M. Thursday, Delurey, Fedigan, Mendel, Good Counsel, Alumni, Austin, Austin Lounge, and Sullivan, following in that order along the line of march. The co-chairmen have promised that the parade will include fire engines, sirens, and plenty of noise from the student body.

Monster Rally

Everyone will gather in the Field House when the parade ends for a monster pep rally, which will feature the coaching staff, members of the team, and big-game guests. Results of the contest will be made known by the judges, Rev. John Curran, Captain M. J. Drury, U.S.N., and Mr. William Driscoll.

Chairmen of the different halls are: George Kuhn, Good Counsel; Paul Landau, Simpson; Frank Licopoli, Fedigan; Neil Cronin, Austin; Stan McGheehan and Hank Miller, Mendel; Aiden Hatton and Jack O'Rourke, Sullivan; Rees James, Delurey; Dave Petersen, Alumni; and Joanne Stucky and Susan Simmons, Austin Lounge.

Just one of last year's enthusiastic displays—this one draped about Fedigan Hall—shows the spirit that surrounded the old Connelly Award and the game associated with it—then vs. Syracuse and this weekend vs. Houston.

Drill Team, Battalion To Perform At Houston Game

Villanova's crack NROTC unit and drill team will march before the Villanova-Houston football game Friday night, Lt. Col. Elliott Wilson, USMC, announced last week.

Col. Wilson said Midshipmen will march onto the Municipal Stadium turf at 7:40 p.m. and from 8:15 to 8:28, the drill team will show the expected 90,000 spectators why they are classed as one of the sharpest such teams in the metropolitan area.

Senior Ted Clarkson, battalion commander of the unit, will command the Midshipmen, and Junior Walt Gould will be in charge of the drill team.

Early Drill

Col. Wilson said Gould is entirely responsible for the fancy-routine drillers. Gould supervises early morning drill for the NROTC extra curricular activity and Col. Wilson said it is up to Gould whether or not the drill team takes the field.

For its performance Friday night, the drill team will use white pistol belts, white leggings and white rifle slings which have recently been purchased by the University.

Social Bow Of Sophomores Arrives With '54 Cotillion

Sorority Advised:

Council Spurns Nurses' Third Seating Request

Until Villanova's nurses form a sorority, they will remain ineligible for a seat on the Student Council.

This was the emphatic position taken by Council at its meeting last Monday night after it had turned down—for the third time—an amendment to the constitution which would have awarded the Nursing Division a Council seat.

Rather than recognize them as a privilege division, Council members advised the nurses in attendance to form their Sorority and then "come to us." However, the customary waiting time of one year would be waived, members decided. Generally, an organization must wait a year before it can be considered for a Council berth.

Amendment to the Constitution was first submitted to Council in February of last year. It was defeated twice before Monday night. A two-thirds vote is needed to alter the constitution.

"Woman's Outlook"

Discussion on the question consumed more than a half hour. Even the co-eds present got into the act. When Senior Bill Quinn said he thought a 'woman's outlook" was needed on Council, an unofficial spokesman for the nurses, Freshman

Simulated Law Court Ponders Labor Disputes

Before 250 Villanova undergraduates, law students and guests, eight second-year future lawyers argued before the "Supreme Court" last Wednesday evening in the C&F auditorium.

The simulated courtroom was the scene of a labor relations case before three outstanding lawyers from the Philadelphia area. Chief Justice was Robert Kelly, outstanding practitioner in the labor field. Associate Justices were J. Dancing To Mood Music, 9 to 1 Friday

With the Field House dressed up with vines of roses and trellises, the Class of '57 presents its first social undertaking as a group—the Sophomore Cotillion—Saturday night from 9 to 1.

Chairman Ed McCall, expecting a record throng for the dance, said that tickets will be on sale in the Pie Shoppe for the rest of the week from 10:30 a.m. until 2:30 p.m.

At Ease!

Dress for the affair is informal, the chairman emphasized. This means that the fair ladies need not worry about gowns or other accessories. All they have to have a "party" dress.

Jack O'Rourke

In discussing decorations, Chairman Ray Clarke said an archway will be set up at the entrance and a garden scene on the stage will form a backdrop for the band. A trellis will be included in the centerpiece and vines of roses will be strung around the Field House.

Flower Surprise?

McCall hinted that the ladies may be in for a surprise when they enter the door. The chairman said it has something to do with flowers.

Ticket Chairman Dick Mason has blanketed the campus with ticket sellers, who volunteered during the two class meetings last week.

Bloodmobile Here 10-3:30:

Given Possibly Final Chance, Students Must Meet Blood Donor Mark Tomorrow

For four and one-half hours tomorrow, from 10 until 2:30, the Red Cross Bloodmobile will be on campus, enabling students to exchange one pint of their blood for a one-year coverage by the Red Cross. This entitles the donor or any member of his family to draw upon the blood bank in time of emergency.

Perhaps Last Time

This may be the last time that this offer will be made, for if Villanova fails to meet its 150 pint minimum quota it is doubtful that the Red Cross will return next year.

Don McGahan and his committee have been collecting blood donor pledges for the last week, and as a further incentive, have placed the drive on a competitive basis. Class will be matched against class and in the NROTC, there will be an intra-company competition. Midshipmen's donations will be counted in their class and in their company.

Two Requirements

Donors have to meet two basic requirements. They must be in good health and three months must have elapsed since their last donations. The Red Cross requests that donors refrain from heavy foods for three hours before making their donations.

McGahan expressed the wish that all students make the effort to get out and better last year's poor showing.

Tolle Lege

Before we get too far along into the school year we'd like to make a suggestion to Villanova undergraduates. It's really very simple, yet the number that will subscribe to its principle and yet not follow it is amazing. It is this:

Read!

That's all there is to it. Read. We don't mean that you should limit yourselves to your texts. No, "read" here means "read books other than your assigned texts." Read something other than the sports and comic pages in the newspapers. Read books, magazine articles, essays—anything well-written that will enlarge your intellectual horizons.

Simple? You bet. There should be no need for this newspaper to come out with an editorial in favor of reading. Our school slogan, Tolle lege, take up and read, applies to all of us. We have every means at our disposal. Our 120,000 volume library offers literature to suit the most discerning among us. A little serious introspection will show us that our oft relied-upon "I'm too busy" holds little water. If necessary we should set our schedule up for the week so that definite time is left for reading. Actually, a substantial part of our education will be gained outside of class hours—and reading should be a part of this expansion of our personalities. To be truly educated it must be part of it. For a Villanova senior to boast, as he did to this writer, that he had read but three books since he had entered the University, speaks extremely poorly for him. And he is not alone.

We are mature young men. We should not need to be assigned books to read by our professors. Tolle lege. That means on our own. Let's take advantage of the opportunities presented here for our intellectual enlightenment. This year, before it is too late.

Your Niche Awaits

Filling the bulletin boards on campus and the club news in the VILLANOVAN are the notices of the first meetings of Villanova's 38 extra-curricular organizations.

These groups cover a variety of fields ranging from foreign languages to international affairs to physics to accounting. Five are fraternities of students in particular schools. Others are professional engineering societies. Still others are publications. There is even a radio station.

No matter what his tasks, the Villanova student should find at least one form of activity to which he can devote his energies. No matter what course he follows, there are related organizations he can join.

Indeed, his life at Villanova will not be complete if he abstains from extracurricular activities. Although, of course, the primary end of college career is the obtaining of an education, active participation in non-academic activities is very necessary for the turning out of a well-rounded man.

From extracurricular activities he learns how to cooperate with others towards the achievements of a common goal. If he holds office in some organization, he will gain invaluable administrative experience.

What Do You Think?

By Jim Wrzesinski

At its last meeting the Student Council passed a motion to give the Student Nurses representation on the Council. If the Nurses organize as a sorority and submit a Constitution to the Student Council they will be given half a vote.

Women's suffage has been a recent issue here at Villanova and the reactions to this move were varied. Some of the comments obtainable were these:

George Minser, '54, Vice-President of Beta Gamma Debating Society: "The day the nurses came to Villanova meant the end of pinochle in the Austin Lounge; it meant no place to receive guests, no plush chairs to fall into at the end of a weary day.

And Now!

After all this they ask for a vote in the Student Council. I feel they should not have a vote in the Council until they become large enough as a group to be recognized.

They also should become more functional in school activities and in so doing become a part of Villanova.

When these two conditions are fulfilled they will be ready for a voice in Student Government.

The only other comment I might make is that I wish they wouldn't cavort around the campus in knee-socks making Villanova look like Rosemont A.C."

"Rita Shingo Sophomore - Nursing: "Villanova College was a democratic unit in a democratic government with its portals of education opened to all members of the male sex; however, after the admission of eight females in September, 1953, to the full time Nursing School, the University is gradually opening its outlets to all, both male and female.

Representation means recognition

Representation on the Student Council would mean acceptance of the Nurses by the male student body, a recognition with a goal of importance."

Bud Ford '55, Senior Class President: "Why shouldn't the Nursing Division have a full vote on the Student Council? My opinion is that the school of Nursing deserves an equal share in the conduct of Student Government. Most objectors offer as an argument the fact that the division is too small to deserve the same rights as the larger schools on Campus. I disagree with this view on two counts.

Minority voice

First, I feel that a minority group has a right to be heard. My second objection rests on the fact that the division is growing and no doubt will soon be of considerable size. It is only a matter of a few years until the question of size is forgotten."

Cecilia DeMuro Sophomore - Nursing: "Nursing at Villanova University is here to stay and since it is, it is only right that the nurses should have representation on the Student Council either as a Division or as nurses."

Tom Ulrich '56, President of Phi Kappa Pi "I am of the opinion that the nurses should be given a vote in the student council on the same basis as the other divisions, Engineering Arts, etc. A representative should be elected in the spring to sit on the Council in her second year.

I definitely do not believe that they should have to form a sorority to obtain a vote on the Council."

Patricia Yonkin Freshman - Nursing: "The nurses of Villanova should have a full vote in the student council because:

1. The nurses are an integral part of the student body, and as such should be represented as the other students.

2. The nurses interests will differ somewhat, although not in basic principle, from the male students interests; therefore, we could not be profitably represented by a male member of the Council.

3. The nurses would like to be included in the activities of the University and we feel that this is the best way to make us part of school life."

M.P. Foments Furore By Compromising

By Bill Quinn

The Honorable Nigel Nicolson, a Conservative member of the British Parliament from Bournemouth, aroused a sharp question period following his speech last Wednesday night on "The Foreign Relations Policy of Great Britain." The talk laid particular stress on England's relations with Red China, East Germany and her attitude toward the "cold war." He spoke before an audience of 150 students, faculty members and guests.

Haverford Visitor

A guest of the International Relations Society, the young M. P. spoke primarily before a joint meeting of the Society and Delta Pi Mu, the Arts Fraternity. His temporary home is now in Founders' Hall on the Haverford College Campus. He is in this country on a Phillips Fellowship.

It was pointed out in the course of Mr. Nicolson's speech that the British leaders believe that Chiang Ki Shek should be removed from his island stronghold of Formosa and placed in some "safe" place. But he indicated that the United States could hardly abandon him without losing a vast amount of prestige in Asia.

European Unity Doubtful

"You cannot reverse the historical processes of Europe," stated Mr. Nicholson in criticizing the plan for a "United States of Europe". He went on to indicate that even if it were possible to do so, such a formation would only detract from our common defense against Russia.

The most controversial statement made by the parliamentarian, however, was that we hate the word "compromise", while the British like it since it means partial success. Mr. Nicolson stated the belief that it would be better to keep the staticpresent condition than to start World War III. The use of "static" and "present" in the same breath was enough to cause sharp debate from the floor, but Mark McCormick, Feature Editor of the Villanovan, drove a mental spade deep into the philosophy behind Mr. Nicholson's entire comment.

Opposition Voiced

"Communism is evil, as you have said yourself, sir," stated McCormick. "And as an evil it is not to be tolerated or compromised with in any form, but rather it is to be stamped out." Mr. Nicholson was plainly shocked that a student should suggest that we risk world conflict merely for the sake of opposing the now-existing Communist governments which are in an alleged "static" condition with regard to their neighbors.

Intense Discussion

The meeting finally terminated at 9:30 P. M. after an hour-long discussion period which followed the talk. It was announced at that time that anyone interested in joining the International Relations Society will be welcomed at the next meeting early in November. "Notices will be posted one week in advance," said Pat Kean, Publicity Chairman for the Society.

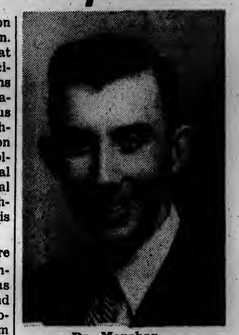
Philosophy Prof Observes Student Lack Of Purpose



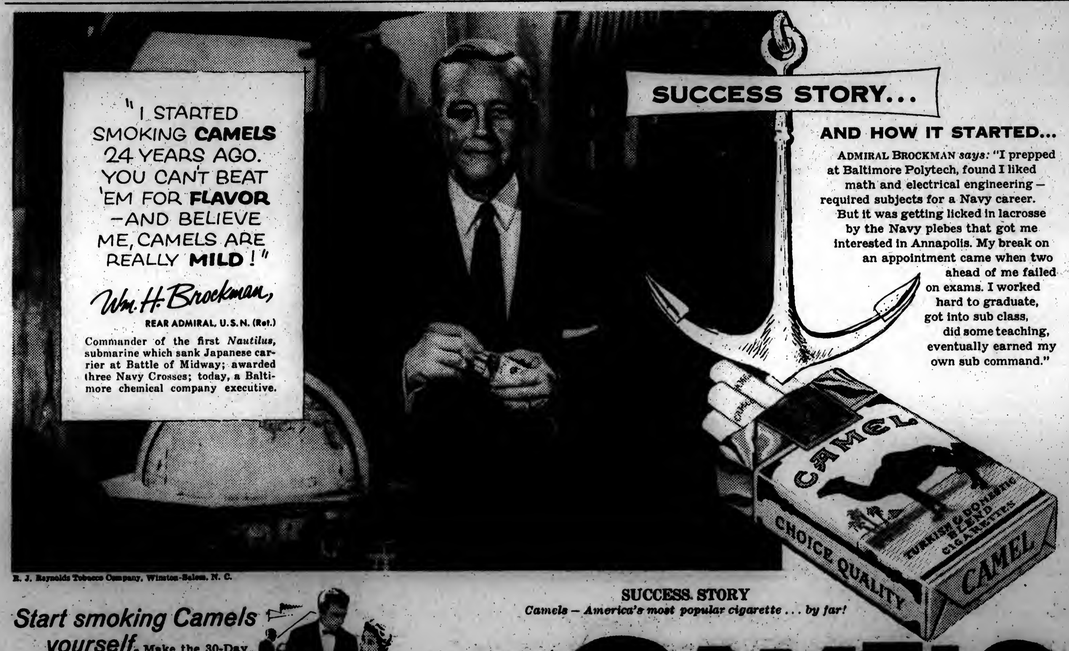
If you are a frequenter of our University library on any of these autumn afternoons, perhaps you may have noticed a young gentleman seated at the west end of the Reference Room industriously poring over a voluminous text. Curious as to the identity of the scholarly man, you may have wondered about his status, if any, at Villanova. Was he an under-graduate or law student,or was he a professor? In order to put all such inquisitive minds at rest, may we introduce to you the man in question, Dr. Edward Monahan Instructor of Philosophy at Villanova. This year marks the first anniversary of Dr. Monahan as a member of the Villanova University faculty.

Dedicated Teacher

Prior to his coming to Villanova in September, 1954, Dr. Monahan had been engaged in philosophic studies at the University of Toronto in Canada, where he attained his Master's Degree in 1950 and his Docorate in 1953. The choice of Toronto University as the institution at which he would pusue his chosen field of endeavor was a natural one for Dr. Monahan, who was born in Brantford, Ontario and educated in that city's schools. Upon graduation from high school, he entered the undergraduate school at Toronto where he majored in history and philosophy. A keen personal, intellectual interest and an enthusiastic desire to spread philosophic ideas among young students were the propelling motives in Mr. Monahan's decision to enter the teaching profession. It was his firm conviction that later life is more deeply appreciated if, as a student, one gains a better awareness of the fundamental aspects of reality. Thus his convictions firmly established, he proceeded to enter upon his graduate studies. The Scholastic Philosophy of medieval times was his chosen material for graduate studies, and within five years he had attained his Doctorate in Philosophy.

Lack of University Atmosphere

Since his arrival at the Villanova campus, Dr. Monahan has taught Ethics, Ontology, and several other branches of Philosophy. In his non-classroom hours, however, he has found time to observe the students at Villanova as they apply themselves to their daily work. The most striking impression that he has gathered from these observations is that there is a "lack of a University maturity on the part of the students." Dr. Monahan goes on to clarify his position by explaining that the ordinary student doesn't give a clear indication of fully realizing that his primary purpose in being here is the pursuit of learning. To substantiate this position, Dr. Monahan cites the negligible use of the library by the majority of students and the overdependence upon textbooks as typical examples of the existing situation. It is Dr. Monahan's hope that this criticism is taken constructively by the student as a helpful suggestion.



Dr. Monahan

For to become a successful man in later years, Dr. Monahan feels that one should. "Study harder! Develop the ability to make decisions for yourself, and thereby avoid becoming one of the dupes of mob rule."

One might very well conclude that, in effect, Dr. Monahan's advice is similar to the motto of Villanova which reads, "Veritas, Unitas, Caritas." Both advocate the development of the whole man.

Faculty Library Committee Named By Fr. Dunne

Rev. John R. Dunne, O.S.A., president of the Faculty Library Committee, last week announced appointment of the committee for a term of one year.

Appointed to the committee, which was founded by Very Rev. James A. Donnellon, O.S.A., Villanova president, were: Rev. Joseph Boyle, O.S.A.; Rev. John Klekotka, O.S.A.; Rev. Thomas Gilligan, O.S.A.; Rev. John Maher, O.S.A.; Rev. Daniel Falvey, librarian;

Also Dr. Harold Hartman, Dr. Walter Klein, Dr. John McClain, Dr. John O'Brien, Mr. Eugene Powers and Mr. Joseph Ratigan.

Puposes of the committee, as revealed by Father Falvey:

1. to assist and advise the librarian and through him, to make recommendations to the president;

2. to discuss and recommend policies for integrating the library with the educational program and campus activities;

3. to interpret library policies to the faculty and faculty opinions to the librarian;

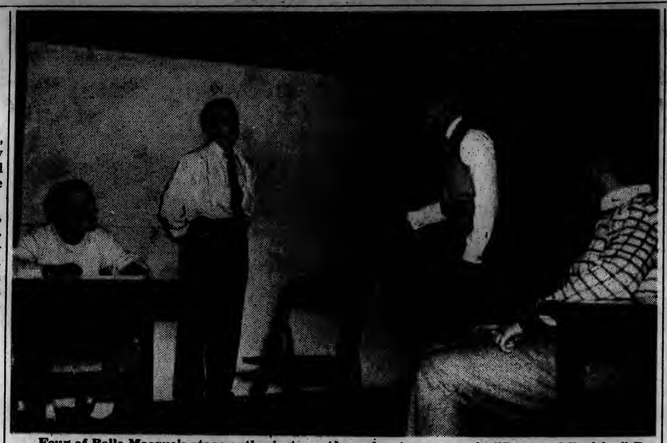
4. to study library needs and interests of the university, then recommend policies for the development of resources for research and instruction;

5. to place specialized knowledge of the faculty at the disposal of the librarian;

6. to consider methods for encouraging gifts to the library.

The Committee has conducted three meetings. Father Falvey said the next meeting is scheduled for Nov. 4.

Roddy, Debate Team Head, Optimistic



Being the largest group in recent years, the University debators are looking forward to a very successful year on the topic: Resolved: "That the United States should give full recognition to Red China."

The Beta Gamma Debating Society is ready in full to introduce a season in which they shall aim at bettering the "over 50 per cent victories" of last year. The membership this year exceeds twenty-five, but president Joe Roddy extends a welcome to anyone interested in becoming a member. Roddy, elected president, is a C & F student with shared interests in NROTC. Managing the written matter is secretary Bill Eckenrode, also a C & F student.

Moderator of the society is Mr. Joseph T. Jonas, assistant professor, English.

The ambitious debators are at present in the process of planning more than 100 debates. One negative and one affirmative team will make the '54 Beta Gamma debut at Immaculata College the first Tuesday of November.

Four of Belle Masque's stage enthusiasts go through a tense scene in "Command Decision" rehearsal last week in the Field House. Left to right, are John Reardon, Don Seaton, Joe Blimm and Bob Erskine.

Belle Masque Presents, Nov. 4-7:

Seniors, Newcomers, "Stalag" Successes Sharpen Stage Skills For "Decision"

Three newcomers, a Navy veteran and four veteran campus actors are rehearsing for major roles in Belle Masque's production of "Command Decision." The three-act drama is scheduled Nov. 4 through 7 in the Field House.

Holding the lead is an ex-Navy man, John Reardon, a C & F junior from Hartford, Conn. In the role of Gen. K. C. Dennis, a tough commanding officer, Reardon makes an impressive debut into Belle Masque. Reardon attended Villanova during his first two years, then enlisted in the Navy. He returned to school last month.

Important Role

Another newcomer with an important role is Don Seaton, a C & F sophomore from Valpariso, Fla. Seaton plays Brig. Gen. Cliff Garnett, who represents the United Chiefs of Staff in Washington. Garnett, in the play, clashes with Dennis over losses of planes.

Bob Erskine, in his third Belle Masque appearance, does an abrupt turnabout from his portrayal of the beloved "Animal" in "Stalag 17." In Decision, the senior engineer from Teaneck, N. J. interprets the serious role of a tough commanding general in the Strategic Air Command.

In his other Belle Masque appearances, Erskine played a noble British lord in "Admirable Crichton" and the rowdy "Animal" in last spring's success.

Villanovan Encores

Senior Drew Higgins plays another villanous role, to compare with his portrayal of te security agent in "Stalag." The Arts student from Mt. Lebanon, Pa., plays a magazine writer who continually attempts to sensationalize Dennis' activities.

Another "Stalag" veteran who stays in character is Jim Borden, who plays Evans, a typical sergeant. The Arts senior from New York City will be remembered as the fun-loving "Duke" of the comedy-drama about prison camp life.

Making his Belle Masque debut as Col. Ted Martin is Charles Brockman. The lone sophomore who earned a lead is in the C & F school and resides in Phoenixville, Pa.

Veteran Trouper

A genuine "old man" of Belle Masque, Walt Doyle, is appearing in his fifth production. The Arts junior from Garden City, L.I., has been in the cast of all Belle Masque plays during his freshman and sophomore years.

In "Decision," Doyle plays Halley, an intelligence officer, and aid to General Dennis. Of the other four Belle Masque presentations in which he has appeared, Doyle considers his role in "Julius Caesar" as the best and his part in "Stalag" as the most fun.

Trip To UN

Twenty-five members of the International Relations Society will leave next Tuesday for a supervised tour of the United Nations Building in New York City. The group from the Villanova society constitutes the largest single representation from the Universities and Colleges in this area. Pennsylvania, Temple, and Bryn Mawr are also sending delagations.

Tentative schedule:

7 A. M.—Leave Philadelphia 30th St. Station
8:30 A. M.—Arrive New York
10 A. M.—International Meeting, U.N. Building
3 P. M.—Speech-Press attache of the United States Delegation to the United Nations.
4 P. M.—Speech-United Nations Relief Organizations

Lynx Accepting Material For Initial Publication

The LYNX, Villanova's literary magazine, is now accepting material for publication in the first issue, Editor Rees James announced.

Deadline for submitting material is Nov. 15, and the first edition will appear during the second week in December, James added.

James said that material turned in to the LYNX should possess style, tone, and subject matter in accordance with the standards of a literary magazine in a Catholic university.

The editor also said that any student who wishes to serve on the LYNX staff should contact Bob Cassidy (221 Sullivan) or himself (1-A Delurey).

Royalty Present Father President With Painting

Prince and Princess Droutzkoy of New York City presented a portrait of the University's new President, Very Rev. James A. Donnellon, O. S. A., by Vladimir Kadulin at a meeting of the Friends of Villanova University Library before an estimated gathering of 400.

This painting will be added to the collection of the portraits of all the Presidents of Villanova, which was first exhibited on Dec. 3, 1950.

Sophomore Distance Trio Stars In Cross-Country

By Joe Kinney

Three swift sophs from Bayonne (N.J.) High School have stepped into the shoes of several fleet graduating lettermen, and will determine the success of the cross-country team this fall.

The trio, George Browne, John Kopil, and Al Peterson, established numerable high school records with their feet two years ago in pacing their alma mater to the 1952 state title. They combined to set the four-mile relay record and the two-mile indoor mark. Their 3:34 clocking in the 1953 Philadelphia Inquirer games was the fastest ever recorded by a high school quartet. The Bayonne cindermen also captured the interscholastic distance medley championship, and finished second in the two mile relay in the annual Penn Relay Carnival. Now, after a full year of rugged conditioning, these young harriers are the core of what is considered the best balanced hill-and-dale team in Villanova history.

New Jersey State Champ

Kopil, Browne's roomie in Sullivan Hall, won the national high school mile championship in 4:22, and snared the New Jersey and Hudson County cross-country titles. John also set a national indoor record of 4:20.1. Unfortunately, an operation on his legs last fall kept him inactive during his entire freshman year. After competing in the three-mile event for New York A. C. during the summer vacation, he returned to the Main Line in fine physical shape. John finished third in the opening triangular meet, in which the Wildcats downed formidable Penn State while losing to Navy by a single point. Just last week, the diminutive flash crossed the finish line seventh against Army, despite an illness.

Browne, who was right behind Kopil in the state and county races, trailed only teammates John Joe Barry and Fred Dwyer in the LaSalle meet last autumn. He also ran for the New York A. C. over the summer months. George placed fifth in the Penn State-Navy meet, but ran an even better race against West Point, finishing in the runnerup position.

Peterson

The final third of this speedy group, Al Peterson, has been improving since he left Bayonne. While there, Al was recognized as the northern New Jersey half-mile king. Additional accomplishments include third place in the national 1000-yard run in Madison Square Garden, and the half-mile crown in New York for Assumption A. C. Al was a member of the undefeated frosh mile relay quartet which won the I.C.4A. indoor medley title. In the two varsity meets thus far, Al has placed 14th and 18th respectively.

All three agree that "each of them, as well as Bill Rock and Alex Breckenridge, are improving in every meet and should experience a fine season."

Freshmen Defeat West Chester For Initial Win

By Bob Mulcahy

The strong offense of the Villanova University freshmen gridiron team completely overwhelmed the outmanned West Chester freshmen team 27-6 last Saturday at the Wildcats stadium.

The powerful running attack exhibited by the Mainliners was led by Americo Sapienza and Dave Parr, both of whom scored two touchdowns apiece.

READ
THE VILLANOVAN

Freshmen Score

It was apparent at the outset that West Chester was in for a rough afternoon when Villanova scored in just eight plays following the opening kickoff. The 51-yard drive was capped by a 24-yard touchdown run by Americo Sapienza on a hand-off from Ed Magee. Chuck "Howdy" Bastian kicked the extra point.

A partially blocked kick set up the "Wildcats" second score. Three plays latter Dave Parr raced over the goal from four yards out. Bastian again converted.

Sapienza highlighted the second period with a 62-yard dash following a short West Chester punt. A bad pass from center ruined any opportunity for the extra point. The half ended with no further scoring.

Penalty Nullifies Run

The second half was played on more even terms, both teams crossing the goal line once although a beautiful punt return of seventy yards by Dave Intrabartole was nullified by a clipping penalty.

Early in the fourth quarter a Villanova fumble was recovered by Webster Rayner of West Chester on the home team's six yard line. Two plays later Carl Casella took a pitchout and raced around end to score from four yards out.

A 65-yard run by Parr on the first play from scrimmage following the kick-off closed out the scoring for the afternoon.

Cougars, Wildcats Renew Rivalry In Home Contest

By Mike Russo

Next Friday night a group of tall Texans, the Houston Cougars will come to the Friendly City to try to avenge a 33-27 defeat handed to them by Villanova's Wildcats in their 1951 meeting. That game was played in Rice Stadium, Houston, Texas, and it proved to be no easy victory for the Blue and White.

Uses Split-T

Houston runs out of a split-T formation and is coached by Clyde Lee, a master of this type of offense. He stresses a strong passing game, but has an equally powerful ground attack. Coach Lee was fortunate to have 18 lettermen return from last year's squad, including the entire backfield. The line has lost five starting men from tackle to tackle, but a good crop of sophomores are ably filling the gap.

The outstanding men seem to be concentrated in the backfield, one of whom is a very versatile quarterback-Jimmy Dockey. This fellow does everything with a football, but manufacture it. He is the nucleus of the whole team. Besides Dickey, the Cougars have two backs who do the 100 in 10 seconds and under with full equipment. The two ends who helped Houston to compile an amazing 46.7 pass-completion average last season are Ben Wilson and Ronnie Emberg.

Beat Texas A&M

Last year, the Scarlet and White had a mediocre season with 4 wins, 4 losses and 1 tie. This year, the team started off very weakly by absorbing a thumping from Baylor 52-13, but the following Saturday, they bounced back with a 13-7 win over a powerful Texas A & M club.

Once again, Villanova has made a deal with the American stores for the total of 90,000 tickets, 5,000 more than were sold for the Mississippi game. The encounter will be featured by a novel pre-game and half-time show, but a win for Villanova will be more profitable than any enormous crowd or ingenious shows that could be masterminded by the athletic front office.

Home-coming Game

This will be the second, and last, home game for the Wildcats this year, and, since the majority of the games are considerably far away, it might be the last chance the students will get to see the team. Let's hope that Villanova lives up to standards set in previous home-coming games.

Pitt Harriers Rout Wildcats in Dual Meet, 18-37

Arnold Sowell and Jim Moore raced to a near record over Schenly Park's hurricane battered course to lead Pitt's harriers to an 18-37 victory over Villanova's visiting thin clads. Sowell and Moore were both timed in 27:04, two seconds over the course record set by former Penn Stater Horace Ashenfelter. John Schubert's showing gave the Panthers a clean sweep of the first three places.

John Kopil was Villanova's first finisher, crossing the line in fifth position. Teammates George Browne and Alex Breckenridge stayed close to Kopil, finishing sixth and eighth. Senior Bill Rock, 11th, and Al Peterson, 12th, trailed seven Pitt runners to complete the scoring for the Mainliners

Sowell—Record Holder

Sowell, I. C. 4A. 880-yard record holder and N. C. A. A. 880 champion was defeated by Breckenridge in the I. C. 4A. freshman cross-country championship meet last fall. Arnold reversed the proceedings Saturday by maintaining complete command throughout the entire jaunt.

This Saturday the hill and dalers participate in a triangular meet with undefeated St. Joseph's College and Georgetown University over the Cobb's Creek course in Philadelphia.

"Speed is our most glaring defect," said Coach Frank Reagan in reviewing Friday's defeat by the University of Detroit. The Titans proved to be the better mud runners, as three punt returns following a scoreless first half produced Villanova's fourth gridiron downfall by the score of 20-0. As in previous games, Villanova played well enough in the first half to win, but the lack of a scoring punch and an inept defense eventually gave way to defeat.

Helm Excels

Lee Riley raced 58 and 29 yards to tally twice. Bob Burgmeier galloped 68 yards to account for a third score. Jack Helm excelled for the visitors. His running and punting kept Detroit on the defense in the first half, with most of the action being waged in Titan territory. Helm's unsuccessful field goal attempt provided the only serious scoring attempt for the Blue and White. Injuries to Helm and senior tackle Dan Hurley hampered the Wildcat's offensive thrust.

Noticeable in defeat was the lack of a fast getaway by the

Ron Wood

Villanova backfield. Defensively, fast reflexes and increased alertness would have curtailed the Titan attack.

Coach Reagan stated that "We played our best game to date. The morale was high for the entire game. We got the breaks, but we lost."

Fumbles Recovered

Villanova recovered three Detroit fumbles. These were offset, however, by the three punt returns which proved to be the Main Liners undoing. The hardships of playing on foreign soil is an added burden on the mental outlook of the team. A polio attack in Florida and the inclement weather in Detroit have resulted in mental distractions

The Motor City game was played in a steady rain with water being ankle deep in some parts of the field. Semi-darkness prevailed with several of the light poles out of action. At one point, all of the lights were out.

This Saturday, the Wildcats will entertain the Cougars of the University of Houston in Philadelphia's Municipal Stadium in an attempt to end the winless and virtually scoreless drought.

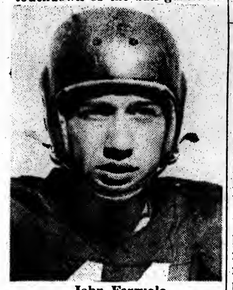
Ferruolo, Wood Man Key Spots On Reagan Eleven

By Bob Strayton

Making their football debut this year for Villanova's varsity football squad are two fine sophomore prospects. Ron Wood, a guard, and John Ferruolo, a quarterback, have held down key positions on Frank Reagan's young ball club thus far this season.



Ferruolo, not new by any means to the gridiron, got his initial experience while attending LaSalle Academy in his hometown of Providence, R. I. He worked from the quarterback slot while at LaSalle, and was rewarded for his efforts by being named on Rhode Island's All-State team.

After graduation from high school, John spent a year at Dean Academy, a prep school in Franklin, Mass., furthering both his scholastic and football education.

Proved Himself

Ferruolo came to Villanova in the fall of 1953, and at once established himself as an outstanding varsity candidate. His fine deception, excellent aerial game, and quick reflexes brought him to the attention of both coaches and teammates alike.

In his starting assignment this year, the Syracuse opener, John was an inspiration to the Wildcats. His fancy assortment of running and passing plays paved the way for the initial touchdown of the ball game. He was lauded by the press after the game for his competent and cool-headed play.

Sustained Injury

After the Mississippi game, in which he again demonstrated his fine ability, Ferruolo injured his shoulder in a scrimmage. Nevertheless, the game youngster made the trip to Florida State with the team. He saw some brief action in the third period, but he was hindered by his shoulder, and had to be taken out.

The adept 6-foot 1-inch Rhode Islander will be counted on heavily by Messrs. Reagan and Snyder to aid the Wildcats during the remainder of his stay at Villanova.

Outstanding Lineman

Probably one of the most outstanding young linemen playing at Villanova this year is modest, nineteen year-old Ron Wood. Woody, who comes from Rahway, N. J. along with teammate Ron Cherubini, got his initial football experience while attending Rahway H. S. in his home town.

Playing at the guard post for three of his four years at Rahway, Ron was a nemesis to opposition on both defense and offense. In his senior year, he was recognized on the All-American Scholastic Team, and also received All-New Jersey honors.

The 5-foot 11-inch, 200 lb. sophomore, the youngest of four boys, comes from a football family. His three older brothers also played ball at Ron's high school alma mater.

Excelled at Syracuse

His spirited and aggressive brand of football marks him well for a starting berth in the near future. In the Syracuse game, probably his best showing thus far, Ron was an immovable linebacker on the defense, and worked quite convincingly at his right guard slot on the offense.

The Mississippi game, as well as the Florida State and Detroit clashes, also proved the worth of this outstanding guard. Playing behind Mike Potenza, Woody has certainly established himself to Villanova followers. He has a completely undaunted spirit, and is one of the team sparkplugs. His chatter can be heard almost anytime, either on the practice field, or during a tense moment in a game.

Aggressiveness is not lacking in the New Jerseyite, either. His always-hustling game has been both a help and inspiration to his teammates. Sincere and modest, Ron is sure to go a long way in the game he loves so well.

Football, Horseshoes, Tennis Open Intramural Program

By Jack Kero

The fall intramural sports progam seems to be off to a flying start as the spotlight of the campus turns to the opening of the touch football season, as well as the fall horseshoe and tennis tournaments.

The football program this year is divided into three leagues, because of the number of teams and the limited season. In the Mendel League, the Alumni Chow-hounds didn't even have to handle the ball as they were handed a victory by a forfeit from the Roaches.

"Pick it up, nothing! I didn't drop it."

In the Austin League, the strong Shamrocks, pre-season favorites, took the Tarantulas, 13-0, and Delurey, on a long pass play, squeezed past the Fedigan Aces, 6-0, in a hard fought battle.

Mac's Gang, a classy array of campus athletes, lost a tough decision to the Galloping Ginks, by a 6-0 count, to get things underway in the Early Bird League.

The Horseshoe Tournament, another of Ed Geisz's contests was initiated last week as the singles began on Wednesday. The doubles, which should prove to be a hard fought section of the tourney, got under way on Thursday.

Tennis Success

Plenty of competition set off the tennis tournament in fine fashion, also. Joanne Stucky, Villanova's co-ed tennis ace, had an easy time getting through the preliminary round, as did Vinnie Quinn, a soph from Long Island, who overcame the onslaught of Jerry Dwyer, aso a Long Islander, to get into the second round of the eliminations. Probably the most successful tennis tournament held at Villanova, it is just an example of the fine job being done by the Intramural Department.

150-lb. FOOTBALL

Ithaca, last Saturday, was the scene of a defeat for Villanova's 150-pound football team. A strong Cornell team, bidding for the Eastern title, took the measure of the Wildcats by 27-6.

Cornell, using a split-T offense, confused the Villanova gridders with a tricky quarterback option play. More than once the feet of the visitors were crossed as the result of superb and decorative quarterbacking. However, Villanova's defense held the Big Red to a 7-0 halftime score. A 30-yard pass from "Doc" Doherty to Don Harley netted Villanova's lone score. Cornell halfback Brad Wright scored all of Cornell's four touchdowns.

Villanova must now prepare for strong Princeton and its single-wing attack when the clubs meet next week.

Football and Education

By Joe Heaps

How much emphasis should a college place on football? While this subject has occasionally created a furor across the country, it is not a usual topic of discussion when sports-minded people get together. Only when a school drops football or announces a de-emphasis program does the controversy appear in the newspapers.

To some persons, though, the subject is of prime importance. Just how much thought college presidents, and educators in general, give to the idea no one knows. Certainly, it must concern these gentlemen when the reputation of their institutions changes each week depending on the success of their team on the previous Saturday.

Against Commercialism

One educator, Robert M. Hutchins, is an out-spoken opponent of commercialized football. It was during his presidency at the University of Chicago that the school discontinued the fall sport. According to Hutchins, Chicago dropped football because the game hampered the university's efforts to become the kind of institution it aspired to be, one devoted to education, research, and scholarship.

"Intercollegiate football," he said recently in an editorial for Sports Illustrated magazine, "has little to do with any of these things and an institution that is to do well in them will have to concentrate uopn them and rid itself of irrelevancies, no matter how attractive or profitable."

Accepting sport in its proper place as attractive and valuable, he ads, "No other country looks to its universities as a prime source of athletic entertainment . . . and anybody who has watched, as I have, twelve university presidents spend half a day solemnly discussing the Rose Bowl agreement, or anybody who has read—as who has not?—portentous discussions of the "decline" of Harvard, Yale, Stanford, or Chicago because of the recurring defeats of its football team must realize that we in America are in a different world."

College Misunderstood

He doubts that it is a better world, saying, "I believe that one of the reasons why we attach such importance to the results of football games is that we have no clear idea of what a college or university is. We can't understand these institutions, even if we have graduated from one; but we can grasp the figures on the scoreboard."

Decrying the fact that football has become a symbol of college life, even the spiritual core of the modern campus, Hutchins quotes the late Jeff Cravath: "Nearly all colleges still playing big-time schedules have been forced into the open market to obtain their raw material. They must bid for the best players—and make concessions to keep them. The fact that the system reduces the boys to perjurers, scalpers, and football gigolos is ignored."

Pro Ball Solution

Hutchin's hope for a solution to the university's dilemma lies in the slow but steady progress of professional football, in the time when people will not pay to see collegiate ball.

But how about small-time football? Here is what Sport magazine has to say: ". . . But these small colleges—and there are hundreds of them—provide as many thrills to as many fans as do the relatively few big-time teams that dominate the national scene. And these little fellows are just as important to football as the top-ranking conference leaders or the choices for the major bowl games on New Year's Day.

Football For Fun

"Probably they are more important, because they come a lot closer to reflecting the spirit in which the game was originated in this country. Football was once designed to be played by students simply for the exercise and fun they got out of it, remember."

In regards to whether the school will have big-time, de-emphasized, or no football, Villanova has made clear its choice. A big-name coaching staff, an energetic publicity department, and dozens of football scholarships are evidence of the university's desire to be a top-ranking—and top-drawing power.

It is hoped that such a policy will bring maximum benefits to the school and its students.

On the first point the aforementioned team was adjudged best, while on the latter point the team of Joseph Glancey, Robert Garbarino, Thomas Brady, and Regina Ward was picked by the court. Arguing for the appellants were Garland and Flores, and for the respondents Glancey and Garbarino.

Both sides received the court's commendation for their effort in preparing the briefs. They were characterized as "the best two I have ever seen" for a moot court competition by Mr. Kelly, who admitted that, although a labor lawyer himself, he had learned something from them. Mr. Gerber, the junior member of the court, added that he had learned quite a bit from the able presentation.

Three Engineering Students Honored By ME Societies

Three Villanova Engineering students were in the news last week.

Gerard Moran, a sophomore Mechanical Engineer, was awarded the Tool Engineer's Scholarship. The highly prized honor, sponsored by the American Society of Tool Engineers, is accompanied by $500 this year, and $125 and $100 in his junior and senior years, respectively. (Senior M. E. student, Robert G. Headley, is presently reaping the benefits of the A.S.T.E. Scholarship he won last year.)

Joseph W. Distel, M.E., and Stephen A. McGlynn, C.E., both seniors, received Student Membership Prize Awards from the American Society for Testing Materials, last Wednesday, Oct. 13.

The award dinner was held at the Drexel Institute of Technology in Philadelphia, and 23 engineering students from the Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware districts of the A.S.T.M. received honors.

Pat Yonkin retorted that "we want the vote as students, not just as women."

The measure was reintroduced by Bill Quinn, chairman of the ways and means committee.

Who's Who

Turning to other business, Council heard a report from Rev. George McLaughlin, O. S. A., Dean of Student Activities about the progress of a committee appointed to name 27 candidates for "Who's Who Among Students in Catholic Colleges and Universities."

Father McLaughlin said the committee had submitted names of 50 students to the Dean's Office. Some names were cut because of the rule requiring maintenance of a 2.5 scholastic average; other names were added by the deans.

Book Store Dilemma

Bob Fredericks told Council that Rev. John Curran, O. S. A., procurator, felt that nothing could be done to relieve the lines which perennially form outside the book store.

Bud Ford, Senior Class president, reported that two recommendations made by Council were turned down by the Student-Faculty Committee. Refused were requests by the Council for co-ed cheerleaders and for a bonfire in connection with the Houston pep rally. Ford said that faculty members of the Committee maintained the fire would be "too dangerous."

But the Committee promised to press for the student request to open the dining hall sooner, and urged the Council to formulate plans to tighten Orientation regulations. Faculty cooperation in the blood drive was requested.

Juniors Advance Jazz Concert Plans; 20 Committee Chairmen Announced

The University's Junior class held its first class meeting last Thursday, with some 190 members clearing up a variety of projects, ranging from the new ring fittings held yesterday to the planned activities of Junior Week.

Among the steps and measures transacted at the meeting were:

1. A commendation of all who had any part in the successful completion of the blazer and Blazer Ball projects.

Treasury has $704

2. A statement read by treasurer Jerry Guerrisi to the effect that $250 was made from sale of Blazer Ball tickets, bringing the class up to the $704 mark in the black.

3. A statement of progress by ring chairman Owen Hickey concerning new and old ring orders from Dieges and Clust. Hickey spoke of the new ring fittings held yesterday in the VILLANOVAN office, and added that the second and final fittings for those who paid their deposits during the summer would be held some two or three weeks before actual delivery, which is expected before Christmas vacation. Those who were fitted and paid deposits yesterday for the first time will receive their rings some three weeks after Christmas, according to D & G representative George Packer.

authority to Dinner Dance chairman Dick Fitzpatrick to negotiate for the signing of Tony Desmond, who played at the affair last year.

Collection Chairmen

5. Appointment of Pat Haley, Mike Potenza, Pete Cassidy and Larry Tierney as committee chairmen in charge of the annual collection of funds for the youngsters of St. John's Orphanage.

6. Unanimous decision to hold a jazz concert on the Wednesday night during Junior Week vacated by the Blazer Ball. Jazz Concert chairman Jack Kelly and his assistant chairmen, Ed Zipf and Joe Barrett, were delegated to work out details, determine campus opinion concerning the project, and procure a list of po tential band choices.

The class voted to conduct a school-wide questionnaire to determine the type of band and jazz generally preferred.

The resulting opinions will influence the committee in the final choice.

Clean Up Week

Wipe up that gravy and pick up those milk cartons! It's Clean-Up Week in the Chow Hall.

Student Council adopted a resolution requesting that students cooperate with the dining hall prefects in keeping the tables clean.

Council believed this would make it possible for the hall to be opened fifteen minutes earlier for lunch.

The following men, heading the committees dealing with the year's activities ,have been named by the Junior class officers. Of the sixteen commitees in all, six are permanent groups which move throughout the entire year in cooperation with committees assigned to singular projects. These are miscellaneous, decorations, ticket, planning, hospitality and publicity committees.

Casey Appointed Chairman Of Seniors' Father's Day

Appointment of Bob Casey as chairman of the Father's Day celebration was announced at the Senior Class meeting last Thursday by President Bud Ford.

Ford said the event will be held some time in the second semester—in February or March. The celebration was reinstated last year after being dropped for several years.

Ford also said plans for the Prom and Dinner-Dance were discussed, but he emphasized that no changes were made in the arrangements.

The Physics Club elected Senior Dave Vachon president and issued a call for more members at its regular weekly meeting Thursday.

Vachon announced the next meeting for 10:30 a.m. Thursday in the Physics Lab.

A. S. C. E.

Last Tuesday the members of the Villanova chapter of the A.S.C.E. went on an inspection tour of various public works projects in the Greater Philadelphia area.

The future engineers visited the site of the City Line interchange of the Schuylkill Expressway and the nearly completed Southwest Sewage Treatment Works. They next inspected the Philadelphia anchorage and caisson of the new Delaware River Bridge at Packer Avenue in Philadelphia. The last and probably most interesting visit was to the Race street intereceptor tunnel of the Philadelphia Sewer system.

This tunnel is being constructed parallel to the Delaware River, through mud, sand, and gravel, and is located about forty feet below street level. Compressed air must be used to hold back the ground while the walls are constructed a few feet at a time.

After the tour, the thirty present Villanovans attended a dinner meeting at the Engineer's Club. The principal speaker was Mr. Shackleton, who is resident engineer on the tunnel project. He spoke on the hazards and methods of this type of work, and illustrated his talk with a number of slides.

Faculty moderator of the A.S.C.E. is Mr. John Gallen, chairman of the Civil Engineering department.

LKD

Been wondering who those men with the skeletons hanging down their backs last week were?

They were part of the largest group of initiates in Lambda Kappa Delta's hisory—fifty-five of them. Formal initiation last Wednesday evening swelled the science fraternity's membership to ninety-five.

Pre-med students dominate the organization. Tom Gumina is president. Other officers are: vice-president Dominic Roasato; secretary Floyd Masati; Treasurer Harry Sweeney; and Student council representative Charles Gibley. Mr. Joseph Gilligan, Assistant Professor of Biology, is club moderator.

Monthly talks by Philadelphia doctors are planned by the group, along with the annual dinner dance.

Dr. Angelo Perri, Director of the division of communicable diseases for the Department of Health of the City of Philadelphia will be the first speaker. Date has not yet been announced.

VU SINGERS

Dean Harold Gill Reuschlein, choirmaster of the Villanova Singers, announced last Tuesday that the elected officers of the club have been approved by Father McLaughlin, Dean of Student Activities.

These include Conrad Urban, re-elected to the presidency by a unanimous vote; Paul Landau, Student Council Representative; Jack Jannuci, librarian; and Bob Ford, secretary.

"Carnival" Theme Selected For Prom, Featuring Lanin

Seniors' Affair Set For Nov. 19

Something revolutionary in Belle Air Balls—a prom in which the emphasis is on gay, carnival spirit—has been announced by Prom chairmen Bernie Finan and Hugh Humphreys.

For the Nov. 19 affair in the Field House, Finan emphasized the "new look" in Villanova senior proms.

He explained that he considered many of the past Balls "pretty dead affairs." Because of this, the Class of '55 made up its mind to spring something drastically different.

Research Work

The chairmen think they have what they want in the carnival theme. Finan said that decorations chairmen Jack Pettit and Duke Micone had spent almost two months in research before deciding on the down-to-earth-type carnival.

In keeping with their revolution, the chairmen chose a band which has made a name for itself by playing strictly dance music—Lester Lanin and his orchestra.

University Contributes Record 308 Blood Pints

A mild outbreak of yellow jaundice failed to keep Villanova from drawing a record turnout for the visit last Wednesday of the Red Cross Bloodmobile.

Three hundred eight students and faculty members paraded through Barry Hall to contribute blood in what may have been the last trip by Bloodmobile to the campus.

By soaring over the 150-pint minimum goal set by the Red Cross, Villanova assured itself of a return visit by the Red Cross next March.

Will Return

In announcing results of the drive, Don McGahan, chairman of the Student Council committee in charge of the blood drive, said the Bloodmobile will be here for a two-day stand next spring.

The senior class, with a 16.5 per cent turnout, was the top class percentagewise. The Junior class stood in second place with 11.4 per cent. Freshmen and sophomores trailed with 10 and nine per cent, respectively.

Pride about the record donor mark was not confined to the campus. News of Villanova's accomplishment was broadcast and telecast Wednesday night over Philadelphia stations.

Rewarding to SC

The enthusiastic turnout was especially rewarding to the Student Council, because the Red Cross had reluctantly sched-

Basca Award To Simpson; Rally Spirit Impressive

A shricking, kleig-lit Villanova campus last Thursday night proved that you can't keep a good student body down.

Despite four consecutive losses sustained by their football team, Villanovans displayed some indomitable spirit, decorating their dormitories and turning out in droves to a pep rally.

Simpson Repeats

Amidst the furor, Simpson Hall won the Nick Basca Student Council award for the second year in a row, as Paul Landau, hall chairman, accepted the trophy for the best decorated hall.

The Basca competition, a project of the Council's Spirit Committee headed by Frank Gunther and Ted Clarkson, was judged by Capt. Martin J. Drury, USN, professor of Naval Science, Rev. Thomas Burke, O.S.A., registrar; and Mr. William G. Driscoll, professor of physics.

Close behind Simpson Hall in the judges' tabulations was 106-year old Alumni Hall, followed by a three-way tie for third place among Fedigan, Austin, and Mendel Halls. Simpson featured an outsized, Texas-type cowboy climbing back into the Alamo as an illuminated and outsized lone star sank behind a pile of sagebrush disguised as debris from Hurricane Hazel.

Ryan Raves

The Field House rally featured the University Band; ebullient Bill Ryan, the athletic secretary; All-American Gene Filipski, '54 now a Marine Corps second lieutenant in the Basic School at Quantico, Va.; the coaching staff and the starting eleven. For the march around campus, bells, siren and fire truck were provided by the Radnor Fire Department.

Printed announcements concerning the play have been distributed throughout the area, the chairmen said. They added that announcements have been planned for radio and TV.

Clark Chairman

Mike Clark is ticket chairman and will open sales in the Pie Shoppe tomorrow. About 40 other Belle Masque members are peddling tickets, Clark added.

To make it possible for Villanova students to take dates from Rosemont at the special student rates, chairmen say they have negotiated with Rosemont officials for late permissions Nov. 4.

IRS TRIP

Twenty-five members of the International Relations Society left early this morning for a supervised tour of the United Nations Building in New York City. Cars On Campus

Villanovans this year, as in past years, are forced to endure the annoyance of having a small minority of other Villanovans dash up and down the campus roads with their cars during busy hours of the school day.

There are two types of these drivers. One is the practical joker who silently glides his car up behind a hurrying student and then blasts away with his horn while he himself laughs happily at his own wonderful joke.

This is merely an irritation. There is a worse type of driving pest who loves to speed gaily on the campus roads at forty-five, leaving it to the pedestrians to get out of his way.

These happy speedsters of both varieties seem to forget a few rather basic facts: 1. The Villanova campus roads are too narrow to sustain heavy automobile traffic, especially if students insist on parking their cars there. 2. Pedestrian traffic on campus, particularly during the break between classes—the favorite joy-riding period for automobiles—is so heavy that only a speed of about five miles per hour can be safely maintained. 3. There just happens to be a rule against students operating cars on campus.

Since the last argument obviously doesn't bother the drivers, we might as well limit ourselves to the first two points.

First of all there is the matter of narrowness of roads. If, God forbid, a fire should break out on campus, it would be impossible to get the engines through if there were student cars parked along the campus roads. As a result, fire regulations expressly forbid such parking. The students who park their cars in violation of those rules are simply endangering their own lives and everyone else's.

Then there is the question of pedestrians. During the inter-class period there are so many students walking between buildings that the driver saves absolutely no time by not walking. Furthermore, he is seriously annoying the rest of the students, who, either by choice or necessity, are observing the rules.

It is to be hoped that this nuisance will be eliminated in the near future, when the placing of chains at the gates should make it impossible for the students to bring their cars onto campus. In the meantime, a little common sense and acceptance of a very sensible rule would be in order.

Statistical Laurels

People never tire of hearing that a new record is set, that sales, school spirit, or Scotch is at an all-time high, that somebody stayed underwater one-third of a second longer than somebody else did back there in 1936. To explain this phenomenon, our guess is that people just like to see evidence that they are improving.

Here, then, is a tribute to the Villanova student body which has recently compiled an armload of evidence that it is improving. Not only did 300 students and eight faculty members donate blood for an "all-time high." but a "record" number of students attended an I. R. S. meeting, a "greater than ever" number of pledges were inducted into the LKD, and a "better than ever" Basca award followed a hurricane of "unprecendented" proportions in this area by five nights.

U. S. Segregation Struggle — Boon To Communism

By John Eddinger

Early last summer the United States Supreme Court handed down the following decision: "Separate educational facilities are inherently unequal. Therefore we hold that those segregated are deprived of the equal protection of the laws." This decision was destined in a very short time to rekindle the fires of State versus Federal authority. The greater majority of states have accepted the decision of the Supreme Judicial body, but a handful oppose it and are fighting the anti-segregation law on the grounds that it violates the state constitutions.

Minority Opposition

The states of Georgia, Delaware, and Mississippi are determined to fight it to the bitter end. In Milford, Del., a few weeks ago, after attempting to apply the aforementioned constitutional principle, local officials capitulated to local pressure groups.

It is my belief that Americans are unaware of the damage that is being done by a small minority. It is high time that Joe Everyday Citizen came to his senses and put an end to this peril to our democratic principles.

The Milford fiasco of a month ago is a good example of the influence of an unprincipled demagogue upon a mass of people. The sponsor of the many rallies which kept the segration fire burning in Delaware was Bryant W. Bowles, a former Marine sergeant and founder and head of the National Association for Advancement of White People. This organization claims 3,000 members and in its statement of aims asserts: "The NAAWP wants to do what is right and what is good . . . is a law abiding association recognizing the authority of and adhering to the Constitution . . . " In several rallies Bowles brought cheers as he stated that no child of his would go to a school with Negroes.

Delaware authorities disclosed that Mr. Bowles had been arrested and fined in Baltimore on five charges of "false pretense" and had a bad-check record in Tampa.

In Georgia, Governor Herman Talmadge has repeatedly stated that he would not accept the invitation to the Dec. 6 Supreme Court hearing on means of putting into effect its May 17 anti-segration ruling.

Mississippi citizens in many counties have organized to support continued segregation.

Helping Communism

It is amazing that this relatively small group of American citizens is unaware of the far-reaching and long-lasting effects of this issue. How long will it take these bigots and intellectually depraved individuals to realize that their actions are helping to cut our own throat and perhaps win whole countries to the side of Communism? In the hands of ruthless Communist propagandists this issue is a powerful weapon. The American public should realize that the white race makes up a very small percentage of the world population. If this realization is not forthcoming the folly of white supremacy may eventually lead our country to ruin.

It has become an almost univeral belief that the United States is the champion of oppressed peoples, with its doctrine of equality of rights and opportunity. Nations look upon our nation as leader and guiding light in "their hours of darkness." For the past half century the United States has proposed to the world that it is carrying out a mission designed to spread democratic principles throughout the whole world.

It seems rather paradoxical that the policy makers of this country will attend world conferences in the spirit of liberty, equality, and fraternity and at the same time include citizens who beleve that the Negro is socially, intellectually, and morally inferior to them. This cannot be justified. It is no wonder that many countries have lost faith in us and are tempted by Communism.

Propaganda Influential

The propagandist wields great influence with the non-white races of the forld. He exaggerates the defects of our society and points out the incongruity of our country's ideals. People believe this, and as a result, the free nations of the world lose more ground to the cancer that is Communism.

Let's Make Villanova Non Co-Educational

By Mark McCormick

Not very long ago we heard an interesting story about a widower with four sons. He was a proud father and a good man. As such, he sought to raise his children to maturity in spite of hardship. His income was limited, but this did not keep him from starting to build an addition to his humble home.

Sound Training

This father was not unlike other fathers. He wanted his sons to be properly trained as he knew he could train them; and he wanted them to have every advantage that he could provide them with. But in these times and under these conditions it was hard to make a living, and as a result this home lacked many of the comforts that other homes have. The father felt, however, that the advantages of the particular type of training that he planned to give would justify the sacrifice of some luxury.

A crowded orphanage sought to place in his home a little girl, explaining that the father had a good home and could help, at least temporarily, to train this youngster. The poor father protested that he had enough of a job in raising young men and had meager facilities even for them. An appeal to his humanity and the argument of need finally convinced the father that he could, temporarily, provide a home for the girl.

It was understood that the orphanage would continue its attempt to find a family which could provide a feminine atmosphere for the child. This effort apparently failed; but the orphanage thought that a better solution had been found.

The orphanage offered to place ANOTHER girl in the home in order that the first young lady might have feminine companionship. It was also proposed that the father provide a permanent home for these girls. The father was told that this would make a more natural atmosphere in his home, that the world is populated by both men and women.

Mental Difference

In agreement with at least two of his sons, the father rejected these arguments. He pointed out that here is a mental difference of aptitude and interest between male and female. He could not treat them exactly alike, and he could not train them toward the same immediate goals. More than this, he did not want to try to train both boys and girls, because he knew that the additional burden would confuse his original purpose—to provide the best possible training for his sons. He argued, reasonably, that it was not within his power to provide necessary advantages to such a large family, and he could not offer training that a mother is best fit to give.

In addition, he knew that his sons' toys were even insufficient for them and that girls would require more and different facilities. And above all, it would be a further strain on his already inadequate income if he were to be required to provide for two more people.

To the argument of need for natural companionship, the irate father anwered: "Many neighboring families have only daughters and get along well enough in the processes of development to maturity". If in need of companionship his sons could visit the neighbors at any time that they were not busy at home . . .

What this all evolves to is whether we believe that the alleged advantages of co-education are justified in the face of severe opposition. Clearly the training of both male and female cannot be identified with the training of either group by itself.

According to no less an authority than Pope Pius XI in his Encyclical on Christian Education, co-education is at best a faulty system. "There is not in nature itself, which fashions the two quite different in organism, in temperament, in abilities, anything to suggest that there can be or ought to be promiscuity, and much less, equality, in the training of the two sexes."

Women have their high stations in life, as wives, mothers, nuns, stenographers, and nurses. They are the nicest of people and usually good to have around, but they have no place in an education institutional whose avowed primary purpose is the graduation of enlightened Christian gentlemen.

Fr. Bresnahan Addresses Faculty Discussion Group

Among other things, educators traditionally advocate "free trade in ideas." A distinguished Villanova Faculty Discussion Group proved that they also believe in doing something about it.

Scholarly Father John Bresnahan, O. S. A., addressed fourteen faculty members on "The Personality of St. Augustine as Reflected in His Early Letters", Thursday, October 21. His presentation included a reading of excerpts from Augustine's early letters and comments on their significance.

This was followed by an interesting discussion of interpretation of these letters and general features of St. Augustine's teachings. It was disclosed through this discussion that St. Augustine revealed much of his thought but little external, biographical material in these letters. A comparison of the attitude toward human virtue of Augustine and Aquinas was developed.

Engineering Frat Pinpoints Banner Social Year Plans

The school organization in the limelight this week is the engineering social fraternity, Phi Kappa Pi. The purpose of this organization is promotion of comradeship and fellowship among the engineering students. A further goal is to supplement their technical endeavors with well-rounded social activities. In past years this purpose has been well fulfilled, and all indications point to a banner year in 1954-55.

Guiding light behind all the activities this year will be personable Tom Ulrich. He has often demonstrated his ability as organizer, leader, and worker.

Assisting the present in his work will be the Vice-President, capable Walt Kordek; Don Tierney, Secretary; Paul Menz, Treasurer; George Gorham, Student Council Representative; and Stan Rodkin, Social Chairman.

"Phi Kapp", as it is affectionately called by its members, already has shown its colors by starting off the social season with the Owl Hop, under the chairmanship of Jack Joyce. The Hop can best be described as an 'owling success.

It was by far the most successful dance in the history of the fraternity.

At a meeting held recently, Roy Sowley, Chairman of the Constitution Committee, presented a new Constitution to the 214 members. It is maintained that the new Constitution is more representative of the hopes and ideals of the fraternity under its present leadership.

For the Sunday of December 12, Mike Merz and Will Meyer are making preparations for a Communion Breakfast. Members of the Fraternity will attend Mass and receive Communion in a body and will then attend a breakfast at one of the local restaurants.

Early February will find many of the engineering frosh wandering about resplendent in their initiation finery. The entire initiation week will be climaxed by one night of intensified activity. John Salvo will be in charge of proceedings.

Following closely on the heels of initiation will be another dance sponsored by the fraternity. Every penny made will go to the Christopher Movement.

Because of the interest shown in the Owl Hop a dinner dance is now being planned for sometime in the second semester. No information is available as yet.

Tom Ulrich

To round out the social calendar with a little athletic activity, Co-chairmen Al Calzadilla, and Jim Wrzesinski are working on details of a fraternity Bowling League.

All these activities will be interspersed with several smokers to give the fellow a chance to sit down and talk things over.

Work is also being done to have Phi Kappa Pi become affiliated with a national engineering fraternity and to install a chapter of a national engineering honor fraternity at Villanova.

This year shapes up as an active one for Phi Kappa Pi.

"Suit Job To Worker," Says Psychology Prof Bonniwell

"Fit the job to suit the man, not the man to suit the job", was the somewhat revolutionary idea Mr. Bernard L. Bonniwell, Assistant Professor of Education, imparted in a talk last Thursday night to the Industrial Relations Club. His vitally important remarks, however, deserve the consideration of every potential job-holder at Villanova.

Mr. Bonniwell explained that today the process is: analyze the job, find a man trained for the job, then, without considering his desire for this work, or his powers to endure the psychological pressures of the job, force him to take it by means of an irresistably high salary.

Reverse Process

Then Mr. Bonniwell forcefully suggested the reverse system: analyze the job in terms of its psychological demands on a man, and then find a man who wants the job and can withstand these demands. It was noted that this system has been tried successfully by the Kaiser Shipyard and to a certain extent by the United States Employment Service.

This appeal to Villanova men was made: "Think of a prospective position in terms of whether you like it and are capable of it psychologically, not in the typically American terms of salary."

Mr. Bonniwell imparted his lively interest to the members present who stayed after the meeting was over to discuss their own experiences along these lines with him.

Faculty Wives

The Faculty Wives Club will hold a card party at 1 p. m. Saturday in Commodore John Barry Hall (Naval Science Building) to raise funds for its year's activities, the club decided at its first meeting of the year Oct. 14.

Speaking at the meeting, Very Rev. James A. Donnellon, O. S. A., Villanova president, urged the members to keep the lay faculty and families closely united in support of Villanova and all its activities.

The club also decided to assist the University's Junior Class with its annual Christmas effort for the orphans—Operation Yule.

Discipline Topic Of S-F Committee Recommendations

The Student-Faculty Committee has recommended that the Student Council take action against officers or members of student organizations who are involved in disciplinary difficulties.

This action would consist of a barring from office or from further active participation in the organizations' activities, the Committee decided at its meeting last Monday.

But the action would only be taken on recommendation of the Dean of Men, who would specifically request action.

One Free Period

In other matters, the Committee recommended that the activities period be made uniform for all divisions of the university. This would facilitate holding of class meetings, especially. At the present time, activity period for engineers is at 11:30 Monday and for the other divisions, at 10:30 Thursday.

Also discussed was the problem of interesting more faculty members in the extra-curricular activities conducted by students.

A report of the meeting was contained in a press release from Rev. George McLaughlin, O. S. A., Dean of Student Activities and secretary of the Student-Faculty Committee.

VU CLUB

Villanova's varsity football squad will be honored at the 33rd annual football banquet of the Villanova Club of Philadelphia, scheduled for Dec. 15 in the Broadwood Hotel.

Out-Manned Wildcats Lose 5th

Reagan Eleven Travels Again; Kentucky Host

By Jim Michener

Something is bound to happen when two wildcats are let loose on the same field, but when twenty-two wildcats clash at the same time, there should be quite a battle. That's what will happen this Saturday afternoon when the Blue and White of Villanova meets the Blue and White of Kentucky at McLean Stadium in Lexington.

The rivalry dates back only to 1947 when the two teams met in the Great Lakes Bowl at Cleveland. This will be the seventh meeting of the two clubs. So far, Kentucky has shown overwhelming superiority, having won four games to Villanova's one, one game ending in a tie. Villanova tallied their only win in the opening game of 1952, by the score of 25-6.

Have New Coach

Kentucky began the season in the same predicament as Villanova. They have a new coach, faced with a schedule which is classed as the toughest in the Southeast Conference; a squad lacking both physical size and overall depth; and huge gaps left by the loss of fourteen standout lettermen. Despite inexperience, and the loss of the great Steve Meilinger and Company, this willing group of wildcats is not to be underrated. In their first game this season, Kentucky faced Maryland's defending National champion grid combination and literally played them off of the feet, while losing 20-0. They ran up a total of 316 yards gained to Maryland's 180, a moral victory for Kentucky. Thus far they have chalked up two victories, rolling over LSU and upseting powerful Auburn.

Uses Split-T

Kentucky runs from the split-T which has plagued Villanova all season. However, Coach Blanton Collier plans to use some elements of other formations as needed to cope with special situations. A strong ground attack will be used, although Kenucky has shown that it is quite capable of going to the air if and when it needs it. Bob Hardy and Delmar Hughes will be used alternately at the quarterback slot, both have shown unusual passing and running ability. Dick Mitchell and Dick Moloney will be lugging the ball from the halfback positions, while Mitchell weighs only 159 lbs., he has averaged about five yards per carry. Dick Rushing, a fullback converted from quarterback, and Bradley Mills, an end, have proven to be capable pass receivers.

Kentucky is a very light team, the heaviest man on the starting eleven weighs 215 lbs., and is the only one over 200 lbs. However, what the Wildcats lack in weight, they make up for in speed. They will display a fast running game similar to that of Mississippi.

BEAT KENTUCKY!

"... third row, see her? She's got on a yellow doo-dad."

Lightweights Lose Second; Princeton Victorious, 24-0

Last Saturday saw the battle of Princeton fought anew. Replacing the Redcoats as the villians were the 150-pound Tigers of Princeton. True to a tiger's form, Princeton's squad slashed —slashed Villanova's defenses with an overwhelming attack a la single wing that showed murderous power up the middle. When the dust, and blood, of the battle thinned ,the Ivy league boys held the proper end of a 24-0 score.

Big League Play

Up at Nassau, little league football is played in a big league manner—upwards of sixty little giants, clad in orange and black ,trotted onto the field. The charges of Lou Cassella and Steve Smolzinski were simply outmanned.

As tackle Jim Judge put it, "The most discouraging thing in the world is to see a fresh, young face on the other side of the line every quarter." Despite having had to deal with four fresh lads during the game, Jim turned in a creditable performance in his first game at tackle.

Injuries, Injuries, Injuries

Villanova's passing game was throttled after the first quarter. First string ends Charlie Brockman and Don Harley were injured. Brockman played only the first four minutes of the game before his nose was broken. Since Princeton had such a manpower advantage, Villanova's carnage rate was high. Besides injuries to Brockman and Harley, Tom Farriger was forced from the field with torn knee ligaments. All the other 150's were possessors of bruises, bumps, lumps and lacerations.

Continuing along a gloried, and goried path, Villanova's Young 'uns will be against tomorrow's admirals when they meet Navy next Friday. Navy defeated a strong Penn team 33-0.

Rough Game

Freshmen Gain Second Win; Scores Recorded By Intrabartolo, Gallaghen

In a rough, penalty-married game, the Villanova Freshmen gained their second victory in three starts by defeating the Stevens Trade School of Lancaster 13-0 on the loser's field.

The first Wildcat score came late in the opening quarter on a forty-yard Ed McGee to Dave Intrabartolo pass. A bad snap from center ruined the extra point try. During the remainder of the first half the play seesawed, with several Villanova drives being halted by penalties.

Fumble Recovered

It wasn't until the fourth quarter that the Mainliners could muster another touchdown. With the ball deep in his own territory, the Stevens quarterback, Adams, gambled on a pass. Eddie Michaels and Tony Varrecchione broke through the line and hit Adams as he was getting the pass off. The loose ball was recovered by Varrecchione on the Stevens 8-yard line. A penalty set the Freshmen back to the thirteen and three running plays moved the ball to the five. On fourth down Don Gallagher slid over right tackle for the final score. Howdy Bastian converted.

Hard Line Play

Meanwhile the defensive line spearheaded by Michaels, Bastien, Manuel Congedo, Howard Birchmeier, and Vince Chaverini were stopping all opposing threats.

The offensive punch was provided by the running of Don Gallagher and Americo Sapienza and by the passing of Ed McGee. Dave Parr, one of the stars of the previous games was hampered by an injuried leg and saw only limited action.

The next game for Joe Rogers youngsters is scheduled for November 5 when they meet the Delaware Frosh. The game this Saturday with Drexel has been postponed.

Houston's Reserve Strength Brings Texans 28-7 Victory

Despite playing their best game of the season, the Villanova Wildcats suffered their fifth straight loss of the 1954 campaign last Friday night as the Houston Cougars rallied for a 28-7 triumph before 57,819 fans.

Superior bench strength was the determining factor in the exciting contest. Houston employed its separated teams of "Dickey's" and "Gray's" to wear down the outmanned Mainliners. The Southwesterners didn't clinch the contest until the fourth quarter when two touchdowns put the game out of the reach of the Reagan eleven.

Improved Pass Defense

Both the offense and defense showed notable improvement over past performances. The attack gained 300 yards. Dick Scott payled his best game at quarterback for the Wildcats. He directed the team in a competent manner and completed 11 of 25 passes for 154 yards and the squad's lone score. Several juggled tosses by V.U. ends prevented him from having an even better passing percentage. Art Rohack, a converted quarterback, ran well from a halfback spot, as did John Giordano, Al Virrochi, and John Gianantonio.

The play of the defensive backfield reflected the hard work of the pass defense practices as Houston could complete only 3 of 11 attempts and Frank D'Alonzo picked off a stray enemy aerial for the team's first interception of the year.

Hard Line Play

It was the Cougar ground game that gave Villanova the most trouble. Fine crashing play by ends Don McComb and Van Injaian broke up the option series of the Texans in the first half, but the same option plays and bucks by hard-running fullback Jack Patterson were the deciding factors in Houston's second-half surge. Several Cougar marches were stopped by aggressive line play on critical downs. Dan Hurley, Mike Barry, and Nelson Marshall stood out in the forward wall.

Georget'n Wins; Villanova Second In Cross-Country

In a record-breaking meet Saturday afternoon, the Villanova harriers defeated St. Joseph's College while losing to speedy Georgetown in a triangular run over the Cobbs' Creek course.

The team scoring leads as follows: Georgtown—27, Villanova—42, St. Joe's—54.

Georgtown had previously beaten Fordham, St. John's and La Salle, while the Hawks were victorious over Princeton, Fordham, Temple, and Haverford.

Breaks Record

The winners' Bob Lippmeier snapped a three-year old mark for the Upper Darby course held by John Cummingham, former St. Joe star, striding over the hilly 4¼-mile distance in 20:29, sixteen seconds better than the old standard.

Sophomore John Kopil was the first Wildcat to cross the finish line, placing third with a 20:58. Alex Breckinridge, George Browne, and Bill Rock also garnered positions within the top ten.

Kopil Moves Up

Lippmeier grabbed an early lead and set a swift steady pace with teammate Frank Flaging only three yards behind him throughout most of the race. Breckinridge briefly remained on the heels of the leaders but began to fade at the halfway point. Kopil and Browne matched steps until little John caught fire and breezed into the number three slot to stay. Bill Rock assured the Blue and White of second place, although Al Peterson unfortunately got off to a poor start and just couldn't maintain the fleet clip. He finished eighteenth.

The first ten include:

Lippmeier, Georgetown	20:29
Flaging, Georgetown	20:33
KOPIL	20:58
Mather, St. Joseph's	21.07
BRECKINRIDGE	21:09
Kirk, Georgetown	21:11
BROWNE	21:15
Skutka, St. Joseph's	21:25
ROCK	21:35
Payton, Georgetown	21:49

Van Injaian

For the second time this year the Wildcats scored first. They went 83 yeards in 5 plays early in the first quarter. A thirty-yard pass to John Giordano and a thirty-one yarder to Mike Mayock were the key plays. Mayock's great diving catch in the end zone was the scoring play. Mike was injuried making the grab and did not see action the remainder of the contest.

Jack Helm kicked the extra point.

92-Yard Run

Houston tied the game on the very next play. Jimmy Dickey, who was the Cougars outstanding performer, took the Villanova kick-off on the eight, and behind a mass of blockers ran 92 yards for the score. The visitors got the winning touchdown in the second quarter on a bull through the middle by Patterson from 16 yards out.

The homecoming crowd had several chances to cheer after the initial touchdown. Once the Wildcat traveled all the way to the fifteen before an intereception in the end zone stopped them and in the closing seconds of the game the team reached the Houston goal line before time ran out.

Tickets will go on sale in the Pie Shoppe next Tuesday, Finan said. Even the ticket booth is an innovation, according to the Prom co-chairman.

Ticket Chairman Jim Campbell, with assistance from Jake Krupa—the man behind Belle Masque set construction—has put together a special ticket booth.

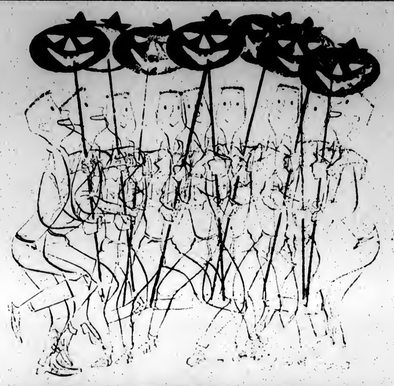
Accounting Society Lists Forum Plans

Plans for the Accounting Forum to be held at Villanova Nov. 17 were discussed at last Thursday's meeting of the Accounting Society by Mr. Leo Schaefer, head of the Accounting department.

Mr. Schaefer said all senior and junior accounting majors are expected to attend the forum. Sophomores were also invited.

Committees of Accounting Society members who will work during the forum will be assigned at the next meeting of the society Nov. 4 at 10:30 a. m.

One of the 800 couples who attended the Soph Cotillion last Saturday night dance to the music of Harry Jaeckel and his band.



Thursday Deadline For Delta Pi Mu Mug Orders

Delta Pi Mu Fraternity members have until Thursday morning to place their orders for Fraternity beer mugs, President Jack De Remigis announced at the second general meeting of the year Wednesday night.

De Remigis also said samples of the Fraternity pin will be on display at a business meeting Thursday at 10:30 a. m. From the samples, the Fraternity plans to adopt an official Fraternity pin.

Fifty Attend

Some 50 members who attended the night meeting heard Dr. John I. McEnerney, Fraternity moderator, discuss symbolism in the early church. In his talk, the associate professor of classics mentioned genuflection and the custom of holding the hands across the chest—two symbols which have come down from the early church.

Out-Manned Wildcats Lose 5th

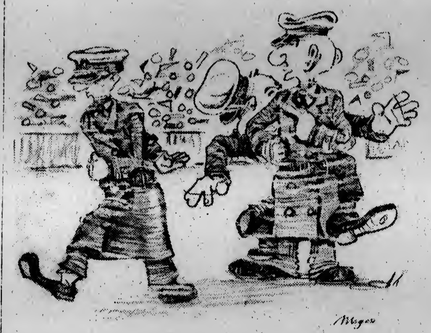
Reagan Eleven Travels Again; Kentucky Host

By Jim Michener

Something is bound to happen when two wildcats are let loose on the same field, but when twenty-two wildcats clash at the same time, there should be quite a battle. That's what will happen this Saturday afternoon when the Blue and White of Villanova meets the Blue and White of Kentucky at McLean Stadium in Lexington.

The rivalry dates back only to 1947 when the two teams met in the Great Lakes Bowl at Cleveland. This will be the seventh meeting of the two clubs. So far, Kentucky has shown overwhelming superiority, having won four games to Villanova's one, one game ending in a tie. Villanova tallied their only win in the opening game of 1952, by the score of 25-6.

Have New Coach



Kentucky began the season in the same predicament as Villanova. They have a new coach, faced with a schedule which is classed as the toughest in the Southeast Conference; a squad lacking both physical size and overall depth; and huge gaps left by the loss of fourteen standout lettermen. Despite inexperience, and the loss of the great Steve Meilinger and Company, this willing group of wildcats is not to be underrated. In their first game this season, Kentucky faced Maryland's defending National champion grid combination and literally played them off of the feet, while losing 20-0. They ran up a total of 316 yards gained to Maryland's 180, a moral victory for Kentucky. Thus far they have chalked up two victories, rolling over LSU and upsetting powerful Auburn.

Uses Split-T

Kentucky runs from the split-T which has plagued Villanova all season. However, Coach Blanton Collier plans to use some elements of other formations as needed to cope with special situations. A strong ground attack will be used, although Kenucky has shown that it is quite capable of going to the air if and when it needs it. Bob Hardy and Delmar Hughes will be used alternately at the quarterback slot, both have shown unusual passing and running ability. Dick Mitchell and Dick Moloney will be lugging the ball from the halfback positions, while Mitchell weighs only 159 lbs., he has averaged about five yards per carry. Dick Rushing, a fullback converted from quarterback, and Bradley Mills, an end, have proven to be capable pass receivers.

Kentucky is a very light team, the heaviest man on the starting eleven weighs 215 lbs., and is the only one over 200 lbs. However, what the Wildcats lack in weight, they make up for in speed. They will display a fast running game similar to that of Mississippi.

"... third row, see her? She's got on a yellow doo-dad."

Lightweights Lose Second; Princeton Victorious, 24-0

Last Saturday saw the battle of Princeton fought anew. Replacing the Redcoats as the villians were the 150-pound Tigers of Princeton. True to a tiger's form, Princeton's squad slashed—slashed Villanova's defenses with an overwhelming attack a la single wing that showed murderous power up the middle. When the dust, and blood, of the battle thinned the Ivy league boys held the proper end of a 24-0 score.

Big League Play

Up at Nassau, little league football is played in a big league manner—upwards of sixty little giants, clad in orange and black, trotted onto the field. The charges of Lou Cassella and Steve Smolzinski were simply outmanned.

As tackle Jim Judge put it, "The most discouraging thing in the world is to see a fresh, young face on the other side of the line every quarter." Despite having had to deal with four fresh lads during the game, Jim turned in a creditable performance in his first game at tackle.

Injuries, Injuries, Injuries

Villanova's passing game was throttled after the first quarter. First string ends Charlie Brockman and Don Harley were injured. Brockman played only the first four minutes of the game before his nose was broken. Since Princeton had such a manpower advantage, Villanova's carnage rate was high. Besides injuries to Brockman and Harley, Tom Farriger was forced from the field with torn knee ligaments. All the other 150's were possessors of bruises, bumps, lumps and lacerations.

Continuing along a gloried, and goried path, Villanova's Young 'uns will be against tomorrow's admirals when they meet Navy next Friday. Navy defeated a strong Penn team 33-0.

Rough Game

Freshmen Gain Second Win; Scores Recorded By Intrabartolo, Gallaghen

In a rough, penalty-married game, the Villanova Freshmen gained their second victory in three starts by defeating the Stevens Trade School of Lancaster 13-0 on the loser's field.

The first Wildcat score came late in the opening quarter on a forty-yard Ed McGee to Dave Intrabartolo pass. A bad snap from center ruined the extra point try. During the remainder of the first half the play seesawed, with several Villanova drives being halted by penalties.

Fumble Recovered

It wasn't until the fourth quarter that the Mainliners could muster another touchdown. With the ball deep in his own territory, the Stevens quarterback, Adams, gambled on a pass. Eddie Michaels and Tony Varrecchione broke through the line and hit Adams as he was getting the pass off. The loose ball was recovered by Varrecchione on the Stevens 8-yard line. A penalty set the Freshmen back to the thirteen and three running plays moved the ball to the five. On fourth down Don Gallagher slid over right tackle for the final score. Howdy Eastian converted.

Hard Line Play

Meanwhile the defensive line spearheaded by Michaels, Bastien, Manuel Congedo, Howard Birchmeier, and Vince Chaverini were stopping all opposing threats.

The offensive punch was provided by the running of Don Gallagher and Americo Sapienza and by the passing of Ed McGee. Dave Parr, one of the stars of the previous games was hampered by an injuried leg and saw only limited action.

The next game for Joe Rogers youngsters is scheduled for November 5 when they meet the Delaware Frosh. The game this Saturday with Drexel has been postponed.

Houston's Reserve Strength Brings Texans 28-7 Victory

Despite playing their best game of the season, the Villanova Wildcats suffered their fifth straight loss of the 1954 campaign last Friday night as the Houston Cougars rallied for a 28-7 triumph before 57,819 fans.

Superior bench strength was the determining factor in the exciting contest. Houston employed its separated teams of "Dickey's" and "Gray's" to wear down the outmanned Mainliners. The Southwesterners didn't clinch the contest until the fourth quarter when two touchdowns put the game out of the reach of the Reagan eleven.

Improved Pass Defense

Both the offense and defense showed notable improvement over past performances. The attack gained 300 yards. Dick Scott payed his best game at quarterback for the Wildcats. He directed the team in a competent manner and completed 11 of 25 passes for 154 yards and the squad's lone score. Several juggled tosses by V.U. ends prevented him from having an even better passing percentage. Art Rohack, a converted quarterback, ran well from a halfback spot, as did John Giordano, Al Virrochi, and John Gianantonio.

The play of the defensive backfield reflected the hard work of the pass defense practices as Houston could complete only 3 of 11 attempts and Frank D'Alonzo picked off a stray enemy aerial for the team's first interception of the year.

Hard Line Play

It was the Cougar ground game that gave Villanova the most trouble. Fine crashing play by ends Don McComb and Van Injaian broke up the option series of the Texans in the first half, but the same option plays and bucks by hard-running fullback Jack Patterson were the deciding factors in Houston's second-half surge. Several Cougar marches were stopped by aggressive line play on critical downs. Dan Hurley, Mike Barry, and Nelson Marshall stood out in the forward wall.

Georget'n Wins; Villanova Second In Cross-Country

In a record-breaking meet Saturday afternoon, the Villanova harriers defeated St. Joseph's College while losing to speedy Georgetown in a triangular run over the Cobbs' Creek course.

The team scoring leads as follows: Georgtown—27, Villanova—42, St. Joe's—54.

Georgtown had previously beaten Fordham, St. John's and La Salle, while the Hawks were victorious over Princeton, Fordham, Temple, and Haverford.

Breaks Record

The winners' Bob Lippmeier snapped a three-year old mark for the Upper Darby course held by John Cummingham, former St. Joe star, striding over the hilly 4½-mile distance in 20:29, sixteen seconds better than the old standard.

Sophomore John Kopil was the first Wildcat to cross the finish line, placing third with a 20:58. Alex Breckinridge, George Browne, and Bill Rock also garnered positions within the top ten.

Kopil Moves Up

Lippmeier grabbed an early lead and set a swift steady pace with teammate Frank Flaging only three yards behind him throughout most of the race. Breckinridge briefly remained on the heels of the leaders but began to fade at the halfway point. Kopil and Browne matched steps until little John caught fire and breezed into the number three slot to stay. Bill Rock assured the Blue and White of second place, although Al Peterson unfortunately got off to a poor start and just couldn't maintain the fleet clip. He finished eighteenth.

The first ten include:

Lippmeier, Georgetown	20:29
Flaging, Georgetown	20:33
KOPIL	20:58
Mather, St. Joseph's	21.07
BRECKINRIDGE	21:09
Kirk, Georgetown	21:11
BROWNE	21:15
Skutka, St. Joseph's	21:25
ROCK	21:35
Payton, Georgetown	21:49

Van Injaian

For the second time this year the Wildcats scored first. They went 83 yeards in 5 plays early in the first quarter. A thirty-yard pass to John Giordano and a thirty-one yarder to Mike Mayock were the key plays. Mayock's great diving catch in the end zone was the scoring play. Mike was injuried making the grab and did not see action the remainder of the contest.

Jack Helm kicked the extra point.

92-Yard Run

Houston tied the game on the very next play. Jimmy Dickey, who was the Cougars outstanding performer, took the Villanova kick-off on the eight, and behind a mass of blockers ran 92 yards for the score. The visitors got the winning touchdown in the second quarter on a bull through the middle by Patterson from 16 yards out.

The homecoming crowd had several chances to cheer after the initial touchdown. Once the Wildcat traveled all the way to the fifteen before an interception in the end zone stopped them and in the closing seconds of the game the team reached the Houston goal line before time ran out.

Will Independents Merge?

By Norm Feldpush

Last fall amid the merriment of major collegiate football triumphs, post-season bowl selections, and innumerable "heroes of the week," echoed a cry of "organize eastern football, or see it die." Columns of newspaper space were devoted to this theme along the lines of editorials, news "scoops," or merely rumor outlets. Regardless, it was of utmost importance, this eastern football conference.

Gridiron celebrities were consulted. Plans were submitted. Rumors were prevalent regarding the hesitancy of one team to enter without the admittance of its traditional Thanksgiving Day rival. Reasons given for his proposal were numerous.

One cited was the abandment of football on the campuses of eastern institutions such as Georgetown, N. Y. U., St. Bonaventure, and Niagara. The announcement that the Eastern Intercollegiate League would soon be formally "Ivy" meant an overall freeze-out for the independents competing against them. Lack of attendance was being felt. The nation's top eastern schoolboy stars were being lured to other sections of the country by plush, lucrative inducements in exchange for their athletic prowess.

Thirteen major conferences are in existence today: Ivy; Big Ten; Pacific Coast; Southwest; Atlantic Coast; Border; Rocky Mountain; Skyline; Missouri Valley; Southern; Southeastern; Big Seven and Midwest. These thirteen are not only increasing schedule difficulties, but are negotiating for long term contracts with the major bowls. The result is a loss of revenue for major colleges which build and point directly for these post season scrimmages as a means of financial rehabilitation.

Benefits Achieved

Some of the benefits of this proposal include:

(1) Elimination of excess traveling expense. Conference play would elminate intersectional travel which often prevails week after week in some instances.

(2) Stimulation of "neighborhood" rivalries would retard the ever increasing attendance deficits, as students and alumni would flock to see the subduing of the college from the other side of the city.

(3) Teams would be competing under similar principles with regard to eligibility rules, athletic scholarships, and scholastic requirements. Elimination of conditions such as the use of freshmen athletes and the ban on spring training would be uniform, instead of the unfairness which now exists between rivals.

(4) Conference standings would produce significant statistics. A record of the scheduled opponent and individual stars against previously defeated teams will arouse greater interest in the pending Saturday afternoon clash.

(5) Less time spent away from classes would prove beneficial to the athletes. Traveling would begin on Friday night instead of Wednesday afternoon, eliminating many of the obvious scholastic dilemmas.

(6) Prestige can be gained with the association of an entire conference with the top three or four teams. The Eastern Independents would be regarded as a conference with teams of greater caliber, rather than as a loose collection of Saturday afternoon individuals.

That was last year. What about 1954? Is the need still present? Have football administors relegated their ambitions to a whimsical dream? The lack of general publicity indicates that this is the situation.

Inquirer Quotes

An article appearnig in a Monday night edition of the Philadelphia Inquirer carried the headline "Independent Colleges Need Good Conference—Villanova Logical Member." Following this introduction date lined New York, was a brief article by Pat Robinson. Mr. Robinson discusses the conference and its future status by saying "The new conference which probably will come into existence within a year will be called the Independents." He states that members may include Penn State, Pitt, Syracuse, Boston College, Boston University, Holy Cross, Colgate, Rutgers, and Villanova.

Only Salvation

This organization is the salvation of the Eastern Independents. It appears that any disadvantages have been solved without fanfare and public knowledge. What prompted the writing of this article on a seemingly forgotten topic. Were there unpublicized meetings with athletic administrators and educators? The long awaited good news appears to be forthcoming. The salvation of eastern football: idealism or actuality?

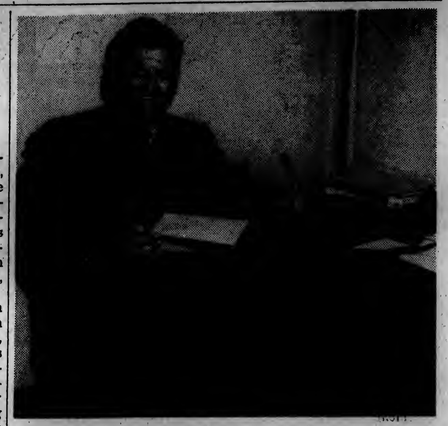
Shamrocks and Galloping Ginks Football Leaders

By Jim Lombardi

Villanova's intramural program is in full swing this week, with participation nearly double that of last year. The sharp increase of interest in touch football, horseshoes, and tennis, is proof that the efforts of intramurals moderator Father John R. Dunne and director Ed Geisz, have not been in vain.

As the touch football season swings into the homestretch with 28 teams in three leagues, the Austin League Shamrocks and the Mendel League Hernando's Rockets have a perfect record of 3 and 0; and in the Early Morning League the Galloping Ginks are leading with two wins and no defeats.

From the Round Robin Playoffs, which begin the first week in November, will emerge the victorious nine.



Last week Frank Krammer copped the Horseshoe Tournament, and sophomore Ed Graham attracted the spotlight at the Foul Shooting Contest, with the startling score of 43 out of 50 baskets.

Future Events

On November 6, the intramural basketball tournament begins its schedule, with a larger turnout than it has ever had in the past, and we are looking forward to some tight copetition.

As a special event, Ed Geisz is featuring an intramural golf tournament, which will be held on the Main Line Golf Course in St. David's. All those who are interested will meet at 2:30 in room 112 Alumni Hall tomorrow.

As another "first" in the intramural department, weightlifting equipment has been purchased. It will be at the disposal of the student body for the entire year.

Ed Geisz, intramural athletic director, relaxes for a moment in his Alumni Hall office.

Van Injaian, Al Ciarrochi Fill Vacated Positions

With the graduation of end Roy Kershaw and All-American halfback Gene Filipski, coach Frank Reagan was confronted with the problem of replacing these two mainstays. Al Ciarrochi and Van Injaian have capably filled these vacancies for coach Reagan.

Van Injaian attended Woodrow Wilson High School in Camden, N. J. in 1953.

Al Ciarrochi

Van chose Villanova for his education, and both are benefiting from his choice. This nineteen year old business student stands an imposing 6'1" tall, while weighing a well proportioned 200 pounds. Van, a resident of Fedigan Hall, acquired a high school reputation as a vicious blocker and tackler. From his frequent appearances, one realizes that he intends carrying his reputation through college.

Al Ciarrochi stands 5'10" tall, weighs 175 pounds, and plays halfback in the Reagan tight T-formation offense. After grauating from nearby Lower Merion High School, Al entered Miami University in Florida. Upon completion of his freshman year, he enrolled at Villanova. Now as a sophomore, the twenty year old speedster is lending his talents to Villanova's football fortunes.

Al gathered many laurels as a fast, shifty open field runner at Lower Merion. His twenty yard touchdown dash against Syracuse announced his desire to maintain his reputation. Concerning future Villanova football endeavors, keep your eye on number 40.

Hal Langton New Assistant Coach Of VU Trackmen

By Jack Kero

When Villanova acquired Hal Langton as cross-country and assistant track coach, it added another talented member to its sports ranks.

For thirteen years, Langton has been in the track coaching business. He began his tutoring career at Landon Prep in Washington, D. C., then switched his services to Marquette Prep in Lorraine, Ohio. During this period, he compiled a record of 139 victories to 14 defeats, a proud record for any coach.

Track is not the only sport that Hal has coached. While at Lorraine, he guided the football team to the state championship and at Towson Catholic in Baltimore led the basketball club to the Class B state championship.

A varied athletic background was the basis for Langton's coaching ability. He graduated from Notre Dame in 1938 where he starred in track, being undefeated in his senior year in the pole vault, javelin throw, high jump, and broad jump. Following graduation, Hal continued his athletic activities in the Mid-West, and still holds the Illinois track and field record for the pole vault and javelin throw. He qualified for the 1940 Olympics in the decathalon, but the start of the World War caused the cancellation of the international meet.

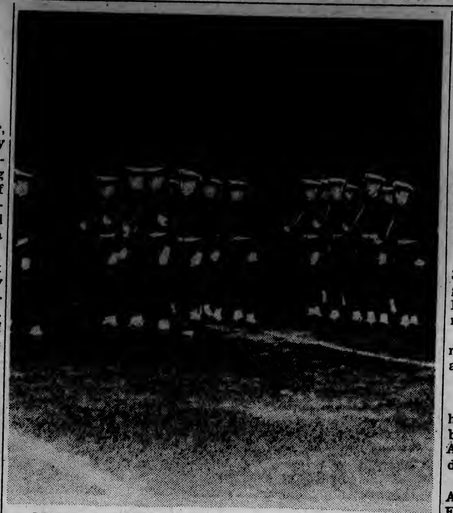
Besides being a master in track, Langton was a professional baseball player. His diamond career was highlighted by three no-hitters. His preference for coaching brought about the end of his baseball days.

RIFLE TEAM

Jack Gilligan and Caesar Trunzo announce that members are needed for the University rifle and pistol teams. Anyone interested in trying out for the teams should contact Sergeant Warhya in the Navy building.

Unlike the set-up of previous years, there will be separate NROTC and university teams this season. Therefore, non-NROTC students are urged to see the Sergeant if they have a desire to shoot.

Philosophical Group to Hear Father Dwyer



Rev. Edward M. Dwyer, O.S.A., Dean of the University and head of the Philosophy department, will address a meeting of the Philadelphia chapter of the American Catholic Philosophical Association, to be held next Monday on the Villanova campus.

Topic of Father Dwyer's talk is "Problems — The Philosophy of Value" according to an announcement by Dr. James F. O'Brien, assistant professor of Philosophy and president of the Philadelphia chapter.

tion includes philosophy instructors from La Salle, St. Joseph's, Rosemont, Immaculata and Chestnut Hill, besides Villanova.

He said the organization meets three times a year and that meetings are rotated among the member schools.

Religious Life Draws Villanovans

This year, seven members of last year's student body began a new life of study for various religious orders, the Chaplain's office has announced. Entering the seminary were John Gilheany, Joseph McNulty, Herbert Ricords, John Mitchell Hugh Breslin, and James Halli. Co-ed Ann Brady entered the convent.

Two of these students chose the Augustinian Order. They were McNulty, who received his B. A. from Villanova last June, and Gilheany, a junior Physics major last year.

Two Engineers

Mitchell, an Engineering freshman last year, enrolled in Cathedral College, of the New York Archdioese. Another engineering student, Halli, started his studies for the priesthood at the diocesan seminary of Pittsburgh.

Breslin, an Arts freshman last year, entered the novitiate of the Vincentian Order. Ricords who was an Arts junior entered the Franciscan Missionaries.

Ann Brady, one of the first co-eds to enter Villanova as a freshman, entered the Congregation of the Immaculate Heart of Mary in West Chester.

LaSalle Scene of Inter-Faculty Symposium

Thursday is the date set for the first meeting of the Inter-Faculty Symposium this year in the Library of LaSalle College at 8:30 p.m. Mr. John G. Stephenson, Professor of Law at Villanova's School of Law, will present the topic for discussion: "Psychology and Psychiatry Challenge the Natural Law."

Professor Stephenson will discuss the effects of modern scientific research upon the traditional ideas of natural law and a free society.

He has recently spent a year of graduate study in residence at the Yale Law School.

The Inter-Faculty Symposium was formed last year by a group of professors from the Catholic colleges in the Philadelphia area, and its purpose is to discuss the contemporary issues of significance to the Catholic educator.

First-year men will hold their elections in December.

The Student Bar Aassociation sponsors sports competition and social events; it administers the honor system through the Honor Board; and it is charged with the administration of the Moot Court program.

Ballot Form In This Issue:

Juniors Seek Opinion In School-Wide Concert Poll

Jack Kelly, chairman of the Junior class jazz concert, has announced that a questionnaire concerning the Junior Week project is being circulated in this issue of the VILLANOVAN. The form provided to determine University-wide opinion on several questions can be seen below.

To better illustrate the state of affairs that have led up to this poll, Kelly lists the following list of class decisions:

1. To pull the Blazer Ball out of Junior Week (annually held on Wednesday night) and hold it earlier in the year, as it was, two weeks ago.

2. To hold an open jazz concert as the most popular and novel means of replacing the dance effectively and maintaining the policy of providing inexpensive mid-week entertainment for all students in an otherwise costly six-day period.

Committee Decision

3. To delegate to Kelly and his assistants, Joe Barrett and Ed Zipf, the authority to study the field of potential jazz group choices, determine school-wide opinion concerning preferred types of jazz, and decide on a means of establishing school concensus.

Kelly and his group met some ten days ago, and acting on a suggestion by class moderator Rev. Thomas A. Calpin, O.S.A., decided on a questionnaire, which the class at the Oct. 14 meeting voted almost unanimously to send to the entire student body.

At last Thursday's class get-together, Kelly's group suggested the VILLANOVAN as a means of distribution, and the idea was okayed by those in attendance. That brings matters up to the present.

Committee Decides

Every student is requested to fill out the ballot provided below, and return it to ballot boxes to be placed in the following locations for the remainder of the week: the cafeteria, the Mendel Hall locker basement, the Pie Shoppe and on the VILLANOVAN office door in the basement of C & F.

Band Ballot

1.) Will you support a jazz concert during Junior Week? .....
2.) Do you like Dixieland jazz or progressive jazz (circle one).
3.) Which of the following do you prefer?
Conrad Janis .....
Eddie Condon .....
Billy Krechmer .....
Not familiar with any ..... (Check one)
4.) Fill in any other band or combo you might prefer .....
5.) Circle Class ..... Frosh Soph Junior Senior Name .....

Deposit In Places Designated In Story

The final choice of a band for the concert will rest solely in the hands of the committee, with the poll results to be used as an influence and a criterion of the student body's preference as to types of jazz and band name.

Chaplain Shifts Mass Schedule In Auditorium

Rev. Joseph Kemme, O. S. A., the university chaplain, announced that he had changed the 8:30 a. m. Sunday Mass in the C&F Auditorium to 10 a. m. in accordance with the wishes expressed in a vote of the resident students taken last week.

The majority of those polled favored the change to a later hour. The noon-time mass will be held as usual, since it was not affected by the referendum.

Belle Masque Dims House Lights Once Again; "Command Decision" Opens Thursday Evening

The Field House stage is set . . . the kinks in the play have been smoothed out . . . and there are still plenty of tickets in the Pie Shoppe.

That's the signal Belle Masque is ready to show off its fall presentation, "Command Decision," beginning Thursday and continuing through Sunday.

Curtain time for all four performances is 8 p.m.

"Command Decision," called by Publicity Co-chairman George Minser one of the most vividly realistic and dramatically moving war plays to reach the American stage, is concerned with the moral responsibilities of a tough but human commanding officer of a bombardment division in Europe.

Junior John Reardon, in his Belle Masque debut, enacts the role of General Dennis, the top-ranking officer who must make the decisions which will advance the air war over Germany, even if he has to sacrifice men and material.

What happens when higher-ranking brass hats interfere with his strategy, a war correspondent goes in for muck-raking and well-meaning congressmen enter the scene as spokemen for enraged public opinion, are some of the ingredients of the compactly-written play by William W. Haines—a 1931 graduate of Penn's Wharton School.

Supporting Reardon are Don Seaton and Bob Erskine, who take the roles of Generals Garnett and Kane, respectively. Drew Higgins will play the meddling war correspondent, Brockhurst.

Comic relief in the otherwise grim, three-act World War II drama is supplied by Jim Borden, in the character of Sergeant Evans. Portraying two officers in Dennis' command are Walt Doyle and Charles Brockman.

Ticket Chairman Mike Clark reminded students of the special 75 cent student ticket for Thursday night's performance. Dates' tickets are the same price Thursday night.

For other performances, tickets—which are on sale in the Pie Shoppe and from Belle Masque members—are $1 for students, the same for dates and $1.25 for the public.

Twenty-Seven Seniors On '54 Collegiate 'Who's Who'

Extra Curriculars, Marks, Intangibles Are Criteria

Rev. George McLaughlin, O. S. A., Dean of Student Activities, announced today the names of the twenty-seven seniors honored by nomination to "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges."

The twenty-seven elect were first nominated by a student committee of the presidents of the Class of '55 in the sophomore, junior, and senior years and the editors of the VILLANOVAN, Belle Air, and Villanova Engineer, who made their selections on the basis of extra-curricular activities.

Deans Judge

A special committee of deans then added and subtracted candidates on the basis of scholastic ability. A minimum average of 2.5 is required. Those nominated primarily on the masis of marks must have participated in at least three activities.

Future Promise

These men, then, are the outstanding leaders of Villanova in service to the University and promise of future success in post-graduation endeavors.

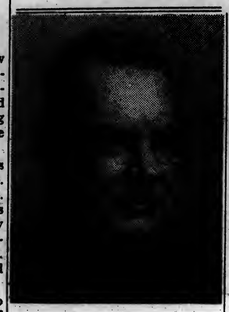
Law, Graduate Admission Test Dates Announced

Admission Tests for Law Schools, Graduate Study in Business, and Graduate Record Examinations have been announced by the Educational Testing Service, which administers the tests.



Law School Admission Tests were set for Nov. 13, 1954; Feb. 12, Apr. 23, and Aug. 6, 1955. Graduate Study in Business tests will be on Feb. 3 and May 14, 1955. Graduate Record Examinations will be held on Nov. 20, 1954; Jan. 27, Apr. 30 and July 9, 1955.

ETS advises each applicant to inquire of the graduate school of his choice which of the examinations he should take and on which dates. Since many schools select their freshman classes in the spring preceding their entrance, candidates for admission to next year's classes are advised to take either the fall or winter tests, if possible.

Further information concerning the Law and Graduate Record Examinations can be obtained from Rev. Robert M. Sullivan, O.S.A., Dean of the School of Arts and Sciences. The Commerce and Finance office should be consulted for data on the Business Test.

Applications and fees for these tests must be filed with the Educational Testing Service, 20 Nassau Street, Princeton, N. J., at least two weeks before the testing date desired.

Building Debt Erasure Seen by Fr. Donnellon

With the construction of Sullivan and University Halls, Villanova has been pushed $2.5 million in debt, Very Rev. James A. Donnellon, O.S.A., university president, told Student Council members last Monday night.

But Father Donnellon said he had hopes the debt would begin to disappear when the expansion program begins raising funds.

After the Father President's talk, Council:

1. unanimously passed a motion to request permission for seniors and the band to march in New York's famed St. Patrick's Day parade. Don McGahan was appointed chairman of a committee, which includes Tom Curran, Joe Valenti and Aiden Hatton, to investigate the plan.

Extra Social

2. appointed a committee to

Ambitious Publicity Drive Underway For Senior Prom

Employing the strongest, most novel publicity campaign of many Belle Air Balls, senior class officials are attempting to bring their fun-filled Carnival Nov. 19 to the attention of every Villanovan.

Thirty colorful carnival-mobiles in the Pie Shoppe and Book Store, a specially constructed ticket booth, "teasing" blotters, and direct personal contact are some of the vehicles Co-chairmen Bernie Finan and Hugh Humphreys are using.

Sale of the $6 tickets to the Prom began today in the Pie Shoppe, in a colorful booth designed by Jake Krupa, who puts together Belle Masque sets, and Ticket Chairman Jim Campbell. Assisting Campbell is Tom Red Thornton strung the carnival—mobiles in the Pie Shoppe last week. Finan said they were obtained from Lennen and Newwell, advertising agency for Schlitz.

Finan and his committee, with the distribution of the blotters, hoped to make underclassmen begin asking questions about the affair. Finan said the bordering on blotters was deliberately made vague to arouse curiosity.

During the next few weeks, the Prom committee hopes to begin making personal contacts with residents of Alumni and Austin Halls, which are com-

"Jessica James," a Hillbilly Western, Chosen As Turf & Tinsel Production

The saga of "Jessica James," loosely described as a "hillbilly western," will be the offering of the Turf and Tinsel Society in the Field House, April 27 through 30 President Joe Blimm announced at a meeting last Thursday. Blimm said songs are now being written for the presentation, set in the Okeefenokee swamp.

Matt Leib was elected Secretary of the society at the same meeting and fund raising was also discussed.

Blimm said the controversial question of complying with requests for outside performances of the show was being "looked into."

Tentative date for the next business meeting was given as Nov. 16 or 17.

Villanova and T&T alumni, Bob Gold and Dick Kelly attended the meeting.

Plaudits . . . .

The announcement of our University's National Collegiate "Who's Who" representatives in today's issue, while it may go unnoticed by a goodly number who reserve their attentions for less abstract matters, means a number of things to those involved.

It means to all, of course, the culmination of four years of excellence in extra-curriculars, acumen in scholarship, or high regard in intangible traits—character, Catholic action, and so forth. It means to some the self-satisfaction that comes built in with the realization of a task intelligently and maturely undertaken. It means to others a stepping stone to more secure positions after graduation—for such an honor is hardly a condemning factor in the eyes of a potential employer, hardly a negligible factor in the eyes of a post-graduate dean.

These men so honored today—27 from a class of some 400—can attribute their success to no mean characteristics, for such is never the case in such authentic and selective listings. These men all utilized perhaps three intrinsic elements of their make-up—interest, integrity, and a healthy moral and mental outlook—to achieve the honor they hold today. They have parlayed their talents and PARTICULARLY THEIR INTEREST into work that has been indeed self-rewarding, rewarding to their fellow men, and certainly rewarding to their college and their parents.

Yes, they can look back today, and realize that the late nights in the yearbook office, the Field House, the later nights in the drawing room, the lab, were not in vain. They deserved what they got today . . . richly.

Their example is an admirable one.

This institution is proud of them.

Do Your Duty . .

Today, as has taken place every second year in the history of this nation, millions of Americans are going to the polls to elect a new Congress.

Many Villanovans have reached the voting age. In some other nations they would be excluded from the polls as "class enemies," or, if permitted to vote, would merely be handed a single list and told to vote "aye."

Here that is not so. The individual who takes the trouble to vote may register his choice of a Republican, or a Democrat, or, if he cares, of a Vegetarian or a Prohibitionist.

In many nations this was once so. Czechoslovakia take pride in the name of the most democratic state in Europe. Argentina was famed for its free press. If we wished to give more examples, we could continue for pages.

The citizens of those other countries took their liberties for granted. Here in the United States we show signs of the same dangerous tendency. When we read the newspapers, we see frequent references to the alarming degree of voter apathy.

Yet the issues which face the American voter are such that apathy is extremely dangerous to the continuation of traditional American liberties. The degree to which the United States should cooperate with other non-communist nations in opposing Soviet aims abroad, the amount

Physics Prof Teaches In Classroom and Out

By Ed Zahorsky

At the beginning of each fall term at Villanova, hundreds of sophomore engineers wander about campus with a sullen, pessimistic expression on their faces, for this is the year when they must tangle with that monster, "Physics."

The man now heading this cerebellum stress and strain department is Mr. William G. Driscoll. Mr. Driscoll, after receiving his Civil Engineering degree from Villanova in 1932, obtained a position with the Pennsylvania Department of Highways. In the fall of 1933 he returned to Villanova as a full time instructor. While still teaching, from 1935 to 1942 he attended the University of Pennsylvania graduate school, receiving his Master of Science degree in Physics in 1938. He has been head of the Villanova Physics Department since 1951.

Mr. Driscoll, a firm believer in the well-rounded personality, not only runs a very efficient department, but also takes a keen interest in every aspect of extracurricular activities. In his own words: "A well-rounded education means participation not only in the scholastic activities, attending classes, studying, etc, but also in the extra-curricular activities, including the social functions. The spirit in Villanova, in this respect, is as good if not better than one might expect at the average university."

Social Life

He and his wife feel very strongly that since social life is so important it is necessary to set an example. This they have done very well by attending virtually every Villanova social event since Mr. Driscoll's junior year in college. A most interesting fact is that he has attended every Junior and Senior Prom since 1931 with the exception of one, missing this one because of a death in the family.

Taking a personal interest in every student with whom he comes in contact, Mr. Driscoll tries in his particular teaching method not to force the student, but rather to excite his curiosity to such a degree that he will pursue his studies voluntarily.

"The student at Villanova today is really like a student at any university or college. I see no great difference in them. If any individual, college students included, is given the proper incentive to inquire into things about which he knows nothing, he will actually pursue that on his own."

As a man, he possesses a great deal of dignity, which seems to demand in itself respect both in and out of the classroom. Being himself very well self-disciplined, he approaches his everyday activities in a most meticulous manner, from the characteristic style in which he dresses to the way in which he attacks a physics problem. His friendly manner and keen judgement make him one much sought after for advice in every aspect of collegiate life.

Of all the examples Mr. Driscoll has set for students, the most exemplary is his daily reception of the Blessed Sacrament, which characterizes him as an outstanding Catholic University professor.

N.F.C.C.S. Labels Youth Nation's Richest Heritage

By Jim Rath

Americans as a people like to "count their blessings," to take inventory from time to time of the riches that make this nation great. Often, however, while adding up the coal and wheat, automobiles and homes — the material wealth of the nation— we forget to take stock of the spirit that makes America the great nation it is, the spirit that has been passed down from person to person since the nation began.

Sponsored by the National Council of Catholic Youth and the National Federation of Catholic College Students, during this week of October 31 to November 7, six million American young men and women are calling our attention to our most important national treasure—the American spirit. Young people of all races and religions are observing National Catholic Youth Week.

Spiritual Strength

With the youthful talent of hitting the nail on the head, the young people adopted a theme they hope to impress on the nation: "Youth — America's Richest Heritage." In publicizing and discussing that theme during National Catholic Youth Week they hope to remind all Americans that the nation's future depends on how well its youth will carry forward the spiritual strength that is America.

For one week the young people ask America to turn its eyes from the juvenile delinquency headlines, from sensational stories of narcotics, gangs and crimes, to the millions of young Americans who are living the normal, ambitious lives of "junior grade" good citizens. They want to reassure us that youth is preparing to take over the tremendous spiritual tasks that will keep America strong.

From real values

Finally, they want to point out that we need not fear delinquency and corruption among young people if they are provided with a firm moral and spiritu-

What do you think?

By Jim Wrzesinski

Not long after the last slide rule has been put to rest in the basement of Mendel Hall and the last dissecting set [illegible] been neatly slipped in its place in the Bio[illegible]y Lab, a new shift of Villanovans arrive on campus. For many of us the day is nearly over, but for these hardy souls several hours of school lie just ahead. Perhaps you too have wondered, as we have, what driving force lies behind these individuals to bring them to school in the evening after a hard day's work. We found many fine reasons in our talks with them but there is room for only a few.

Perhaps the shortest answer given was the most informative, or at least the most thought provoking.

PHYLLIS WAX—Havertown, Penna. "I attend night school to provide myself with a more stimulating way of living."

Good Course

JOHN B. LAURY — Bala-Cynwyd, Penna. "I am employed by the Bell Telephone Co. of Pa. The nature of my work is research and studies, surveys of customer and employee attitudes.

I chose Villanova because they seem to offer the best course of study in basic statistical methods. The study of these methods is an important adjunct to my job."

JOANNE BROWN—Wayne, Penna., "I came to Villanova's Night School because of the great variety of subjects offered for undergraduate work toward an elementary teaching degree. I was fortunate to have a Catholic University so close to home."

College Credits

WILLIAM A. REIGLE R. N.—Coatesville, Penna, "I am interested in administration and education in the field of nursing. There is no chance for advancement in this field without college credits.

I am studying for a Bachelor of Science Degree in Nursing Education with the assistance of the G. I. Bill of Rights. I have been attending Night School for 7 years, including 2 summer sessions.

Villanova to me, offered a better curriculum than other colleges or Universities in the area. Villanova seemed more interested in the welfare of the student from an educational and spiritual standpoint and not just as another student enrollment."

SELMA A. KOURI—Phila., Penna. "I am attending night school since my full time job at the Bell Telephone Co. occupies my daytime hours.

I have chosen Villanova because they offer a graduate degree in Statistical Control, and because of their high standard of teaching.

The field in quality control work is very broad and offers many opportunities especially in my work as an assistant engineer in the Traffic Engineering Department."

Advancement

RICHARD B. RICE—Drexel Hill, Penna. "I decided to go to night school in order to further my education. I believe the courses offered will help me to advance more rapidly in my chosen field. I selected Villanova over other schools because I graduated from here.

In the few short weeks I've been here I certainly feel I've gotten a great deal from these courses."

MARY MANSFIELD—Phila., Penna. "I am attempting to obtain a degree in education, and hence my attendance at night school. I feel that Villanova offers the best courses in this field."

Seeking Degree

ROBERT BURTEIN—Phila., Penna. "I am attending night school with the aim of obtaining a M. S. in Applied Statistics. My reason for choosing Villanova is that they offer a curriculum far superior to that of the other three colleges and universities within the Philadelphia area.

The benefits realized from attending night school are thus far not very evident, but it is believed that with the accomplishment of this course and the reality of a degree, advancement in industry will follow."

of expenditures this country can afford without risking disaster at home, the degree of Communist infiltration of our government—all these are issues of the greatest consequences to the voter.

Those of us who are eligible to vote should remember those other countries whose citizens were too secure in their liberties to have to worry about voting. Then, regardless of party choice, let them get out and vote, lest it be the last time they have the chance.

Red Cross Lauds School's Blood Donation Effort

The following is the text of a letter received by F. Donellon's office congratulating the University on its blood donation success Nov. 20:

October 25, 1954

Reverend James A. Donnellon
Villanova University
Villanova, Pennsylvania

Dear Father Donnellon:

On behalf of the Wayne Red Cross, I am writing to express our deep appreciation for the magnificent results of your Blood Donor Day producing 308 pints. It was the greatest number of pints ever collected in our Wayne Branch area in one day, and was particularly opportune in view of the last minute cancellation of Blood runs in the Philadelphia area due to the hurricane.

The University can well be proud of George Gorham of the N.R.O.T.C. and Donald McGahan of the University for their splendid work in recruiting the donors, and their cooperation and hard work on the day itself. We were very much impressed by the results of their efforts; in fact, I would like to point out that it so exceeded our expectations many of the donors had a long wait, for which we are sorry and would like to assure them, if the same number of donors are signed up next time, we will have a much larger staff to expedite the run.

We are very grateful for the contribution of additional coffee and to the Steward for his conciderate assistance and to John, the janitor of the N.R.O.T.C., for his unfailing good humor and help. The N. R. O. T. C.

posed primarily of sophomores and freshmen.

Backgrounds Complete

Meanwhile, work which will transform the Field House into a Carnival is rolling ahead, according to Decorations Co-chairmen Jack Pettit and Duke Micone.

By today, the decorations committee hoped to have all the background work complete on the 2500 square foot of mural. The murals will then be ready for the fine touches, to be applied by Paula Sanfacon, a Rosemont art major. Pictured around the murals will be carousels, fat ladies, balloon men and other typical midway sights.

Some seniors who have been helping with the Field House preparations: John Connolly, Bill Dunn, Jim Ennis, Bob Kaiser, Ed Kline, Jim Leary and Marv McClearnan.

Finan also announced additional committee chairmen for the Prom. Named were: Ennis and Dick Segrave-Daly, programs; John DeRemigis, Bob Kaiser, favors; and Ed Karkut, refreshments; Paul Landau, arrangements; Dick Confoy and Drew Higgins, patrons.

ICG Maps Ideas For Model State Legislature Here

The Intercollegiate Conference on Government, youngest student organization on campus, has made quite an auspicious debut in this, its third season of operation.

At the group's meeting Thursday, a committee was formed to make final plans for a radio panel discussion over WVIL in the near future.

Chairman Don Seaton announced that this year the Villanova chapter will play host to the eight other schools in the Southeastern Region of the ICG at a model state legislature to be held at Villanova March 19.

Persons interested in learning about functions of government and the practical exercise of parliamentary procedure may attend the ICG's next meeting, Thursday at 10:30 a.m. in 104 C & F.

Prizes for Winners:

Lynx Announces Plans For Short Story Competition

The LYNX, Villanova's literary magazine, has announced a short story writing contest, with prizes of $15, $10 and $5 for winners. Story adjudged best will appear in the spring issue of the magazine.

Editor Rees James announced the contest last week and said members of the English Department will judge the stories but the final decision will be made by a noted Catholic literary figure, to be announced later.

James said the contest is open to all students, except members of the LYNX staff.

The entries, which are limited to 3000 words, may be submitted to Mr. James Mitchell, Dr. John Phillipson or any other member of the English Department.

Meetings

National Federation of Catholic College Students will meet in 101 C & F at 10:30 a.m. Thursday, President Jim Rath announced last week.

Delta Pi Mu fraternity members must have dues paid by the November general meeting, President John DeRemigis said last week.

study the possibilities of having amended the present university rule which limits an organization to a single off-campus social event in an academic year. The committee wants to allow an off-campus social event each semester.

3. gave spirit committee authority to stage pep rallies during the rest of the season, when no definite plans could be formulated by Council.

4. unanimously accepted the application of Industrial Relations Club for a seat on Council. In entering the organization for membership, Bob Fredericks—chairman of the fraternities and societies committee,—said the IRC, which meets monthly, has 34 members. The IRC will have a one-half vote on Council. A representative has not been elected.

Still Formal

5. heard Sophomore Tom Curran report that Rev. Edward McKee, O.S.A., vice-president, had turned down a request by Council for a relaxing of the coat-and-tie rule on Saturdays in the dining hall. Curran quoted Father McKee as saying the amendment would be too much abused by non-working students. Council had asked the modification to help working tudents, who would have to change into working togs after eating.

6. gave a rousing vote of thanks to the blood drive and spirit committees.

7. heard plans discussed for a communion breakfast sometime later in the first semester. Chairman Dick Winfield and Bruce Stark will make arrangements.

Dormitory Tour

In his pre-meeting talk, Father Donnellon discussed the expansion program, football and student-administration relations. The Father President promised to pay each dormitory a visit during the school year, even though his busy schedule had kept him from touring the buildings earlier.

He also urged Council to help lead campus "troublemakers back on the right path." Father Donnellon gave his co-operation in this matter.

New Stadium

Father Donnellon also mentioned three phases of the expansion program. He said that in the rather distant future are a football stadium with a seating capacity of 40-45 thousand, a wing to the Field House side of the C & F Building, and a structure to house the two-year-old School of Law.

The proposed stadium would cost an estimated $500,000, the president added.

Turning to football, Father Donnellon dryly remarked that Villanova's gridiron club has been through these losing cycles

Sanctuary Group Training Servers; Hatton President

Elected at the end of last year, President Aiden Hatton, Vice-President Tom Ulrich and Secretary George Gorham are heading the Sanctuary Society and training servers on Tuesday nights following chapel.

The Society also assists Rev. Joseph Kemme, O. S. A., university chaplain, with the distribution of hymn cards and the care of the pamphlet racks.

Father Kemme reminds that new members may still join, but should do so soon.

Fumbles Fatal To Mainliners

Once Beaten B.U. Terriers Threat To Blue and White

By Norm Feldpush

Coach Aldo "Buff" Donelli will field his strongest Boston University team in eight seasons of coaching at the Beantown institution this Saturday against Villanova's visiting Wildcats. Boston U.'s Terriers have lost once in six starts, and handed Bucknell their first defeat of the season last Saturday.

Coach Donelli was faced with a major rebuilding task at the start of the season. Thirteen are returning from last season's eleven which posted a 5-3-1 record.

Guiliano Lone Starter

Co-Captain Frank Guiliano is the sole returning starter from last year's forward wall. Top line prospect among the sophomore is George Spaneas. This 217-pound tackle was named to the mythical interscholastic All-America team while at Lowell (Mass.) high school. Much of this season's success can be credited to the work of Donelli and his line coach Steve Sinko, in revamping the front line.

Co-Captain Joe Terrasi and quarterback Tom Gastall will lead the backfield brigade. Terrasi, second leading ground gainer in 1953, is a potential record breaker as a ball carrier. Joe has gained 870 yards in three years, to threaten the Terrier rushing record of 1191 held by Bobby Whelan.

Gastall Versatile Athlete

Tom Gastall has developed into the tenth ranking passer in the nation. This T-formation quarterback has earned nine letters in three years of collegiate competition, and is touted as a major league catching prospect. His finest offensive performance of the season contributed to Bucknell's downfall on Saturday. Gastall threw two scoring passes, in addition to recording a touchdown. Fullback Sam Pino, Marine Corps veteran, and halfback letterwinner Ken Hagerstrom complete the starting backfield quartet.

Maloy, Agganis Coaches

The Scarlet and White backfield presents one of the best balanced attacks in the East. This can be attributed to coaching staff additions Charlie Maloy, holder of every Holy Cross passing record, and Harry Agganis, former All-America selection while at B. U. Agganis quarterbacked the 1952 squad which bowed to Villanova 51-6, in the rain and mud of Connie Mack Stadium.

Varsity Rifle

In their first match of the season, the Villanova University rifle team defeated the Philadelphia Naval Yard Marines 1363-1347 at the rifle range in Commodore John Barry Hall. Unlike their opponents, the Villanova shooters did not use scopes. Hank Miller lead the team with a fine 287 out of 300. Lt. Freeman of the Marines posted the top score of the meet with a 189 total.

Last season the Terriers scored a 31-19 victory over the Mainliners at University Field, to gain their first win in a five game series which was inaugurated in 1936.

Intramural Action

Aggressiveness, Talent Attributes Of Tackles Mike Barry, Stan Brzenk

By Darryl Ditenfest

Two tackles, both of whom have seen a great deal of action this current season, are providing a big punch for Villanova's thus far beleagured ball club.

Stan Brzenk, a six-foot, 200 lb. boy, broke in at the tackle spot last year, when Joe Leichtweis, then playing in front of Brzenk, injured his back. His presence was noticed almost immediately by the coach, Art Raimo. Hardhitting and aggressive, Stan proved his worth over and over in the few games which remained during his junior year.

This year, the Jersey Cityite, who received his footballing experience at St. Peter's Prep, where he was a stand-out performer, and won honors both as an All-State and an All-Metropolitan competitor, has seen only limited action.

Returning To Form

Of late, however, Stan is again coming into late season form. In the Houston contest, which, to date has been the Wildcats best showing, Stan was a bulwark of the line, performing creditably both on offense and on defense.

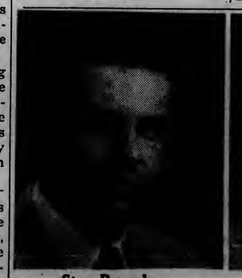
Aside from his footballing career, the talented Jerseyite also boasts letters in both baseball and basketball, which he received when he continued his studies at New York Military Academy, upon graduation from St. Peter's.

Heavily Counted On

Powerful Mike Barry, who plays opposite Brzenk at the tackle post, is also a heavily counted on performer. In his second semester as a Junior, Mike still has another year of Varsity football to look forward to.

A graduate of Morristown High School, New Jersey, Mike was a three letter man. He, like Brzenk, played both baseball and basketball, aside from his footballing affiliations. In his Junior and Senior years at Morristown, Mike won All-State awards. In addition, he also captained that team's varsity in his Senior year.

Played Service Ball



Upon graduation from high school, Barry went into the Army, where he continued his football career for Fort Knox. He attained the rank of sergeant, before he was discharged.

He entered Villanova in February of 1952, and was highly regarded by the coaches as a fine prospect.

In his initial season last year, Barry was injured in the Georgia opener. It was a knee injury serious enough to put him out of action for the remainder of the schedule.

Detroit Clash Best

This year, Mike has seen a large part of the action, and has performed well. His standout performance, however, came in the muddy Detroit contest, wwhere he paralleled Hurricane Hazel for destruction. He was a nemesis on the offense, and accounted for many tackles from the defensive slot.

Kentucky Takes Advantage Of Bobbles To Win, 28-3

By Jim Michener

Capitalizing on Villanova fumbles and taking best advantage of pass interceptions, Kentucky defeated the Villanova Wildcats 28-3 last Saturday at Lexington. Three of their four touchdowns were the result of Villanova miscues.

Twenty-two thousand fans sat through snow flurries to witness the two teams as they battled on a near-frozen gridiron.

Has Speed, Depth

Capitalizing on their speed and superior reserve strength, the Blue and White of Kentucky rolled up two touchdowns in the closing minutes of the first half, and added two more in the second half.

Kentucky threatened early; in the first quarter they intercepted a Villanova pass on their own 38. Bob Hardy, the Kentucky quarterback, completed two passes, one to Dick Rushing for 14 yards, and another to end Bradley Mills good for 33. Kentucky moved the ball to the Villanova six, but Rushing fumbled and Villanova recovered.

Villanova Marches

The Cats then began to roll. With Scott running the team, Villanova backs went through the line for a first down on the 20. Pass interference, a smash by Sullivan ,and a Scott pass completed to Van Injaian gave Villanova another first and ten on the 37. When the quarter ended, Villanova was still in possession at midfield. John Giordano carried to the Kentucky 39, and two plays later Scott passed to end Don McComb, giving the Mainliners a first down on the 25. John Sullivan and Jack Helm moved the ball to the 5. Pass interference put the ball on the two. Four plays later Villanova was faced by a fourth and four situation ,and Helm booted a three-pointer from that spot.

Barry Recovers

Kentucky took the kickoff and moved the ball to the Villanova 19, where Rushing fumbled again and Mike Barry, who was playing heads-up football throughout the entire game, recovered. Villanova moved for a first down on its own 33, then Kentucky held and Helm went back to punt. Finding himself boxed in, Helm kept the ball and ran it to the 46. Villanova's drive was stopped when Rushing intercepted a pass and returned it to the Cats' 47. After an exchange of punts. Kentucky had the ball on the Villanova 24. Two plays later, Dick Mitchell, 159 lb. halfback, went 24 yards for the score. Delmar Hughes kicked the point and Kentucky led 7-3.

Villanova fumbled on the first play after the kickoff, and Mitchell recovered on the 45. Kentucky scored four plays later. Kentucky led the half, 14-3. Both touchdowns being scored in the last minute and one-half of the second period. The third period found Kentucky constantly threatening. They finally cashed-in when Helm fumbled and Wheeler recovered for Kentucky on the Villanova 16. Two plays gave Kentucky its third, and Dick Mitchell his second, touchdown. In the fourth period, Villanova went to the air in desperation, and Kentucky intercepted a pass at the 38. Three plays later Kentucky sprinted for its last TD.

It was the hardest game, thus far, for the Cats to lose. They completely outcharged the Bluegrass linemen, and statistic-wise, gained almost as much yardage. However, Kentucky found the ends to be vulnerable to the wide-sweep plays, and used their terrific speed to great advantage.

McElhaney, Roake Winners in Golf, Cross-Country

James McElhaney and Sam Roake won the intramural golf and cross-country tournaments last week. Each of these meets, sponsored by Intramural Moderator Father John Dunne and Intramural Director Ed Geisz, drew a large number of contestants.

McElhaney posted a gross 76, net 71 over the 6300 yard Mainline course to win over a field of 35 golfers. Edward Sherlock, with a 72, and Jay Gibney, with a 73, took second and third in the one-day tournament. All three will receive medals for their winning efforts.

Closely trailing the leaders were:

John Reardon—74
Ted Gaynor—74
Bob McElhaney—74
Dick McEntee—74
Bill Jones—75

Eighteen Run

Despite a windy, rainy afternoon, eighteen participants ran in the cross-country event. The course used for the run was half of the old varsity cross-country distance. Sam Roake ran an exceptionally fast race to easily win the meet. Bernie Finan was second.

Members of the varsity cross-country team assisted Father Dunne and Ed Geisz in holding the race.

Football Standings

Because of inclement weather, the one-day holiday, and several protested games, little change in the football standings took place. The league leaders remained the Shamrocks, Rockets, and Galloping Ginks.

This week the intramural office is featuring wrestling and weight-lifting in the Alumni Gym. Anyone interested in either of these sports should contact Ed Geisz.

SPORTS CHATTER

Footall and Education

By Joe Heaps

"Our aim is to have activities to meet all students' sports needs." A glimpse at intramural activities of the past and a survey of future plans verfies these words of Intramural Athletic Director Ed Geisz. Last year eighteen different sports, which drew thirty-five hundred participants, were sponsored by the intramural office. This year even more events are scheduled.

A hindrance to this progressive program is the lack of facilities here at Villanova. Ten football teams could not compete this fall because of the shortage of available fields. This same lack of space is going to affect the number of entries in the softball leagues in the second semester. With only the Alumni gym available for basketball games, the scheduling of eighty teams for that sport always presents a problem.

One solution to this dilemma would be the use of the lot across Austin Field, according to Ed Geisz. No immediate plans have been made for the conversion of this property to a playing area. Another aim of the intramural director is the erection of handball courts, for both student and faculty use, behind the Field House.

Besides the usual line-up of football, basketball, and softball, a variety of other sports have been planned for the students. Swimming, wrestling, and water basketball teams will be formed. Numerous tournaments have been organized to appeal to the tastes of all the sports-minded. Among the tourneys set up are foul-shooting, ping pong, horseshoes, tennis, golf, cross-country, bowling, volley ball, chess, and checkers. In the spring the annual class track meet will be held, as well as the intramural swim meet.

Inter-school games have been arranged for the basketball all-stars with St. Joseph's, LaSalle, Swarthmore, and Haverford.

Intramural History

Villanova has always had intramurals, but they were not an organized extra-curricular activity until 1933. Under the guidance of Fathers McKee, Vrana, and Ludwig, four resident clubs—Fedigan, Austin, Alumni, and Mendel, and two day-hop clubs—C&F and engineers and arts, were formed. These clubs completed in football, basketball, softball and track and particiated in a swim meet. A highlight of their program was an amatuer talent show.

Among the moderators of the intramural department have been Father McKee, Father Kemme, Father Dunne, Father Girolomi, Mr. Gene Power, and Mr. Tom Terranova.

This and That

Did you know that . . .

. . . . . the Connelly Award used to be conducted by the intramural department? Mr. Geisz wants to bring the Basca Award under the supervision of his department again.

. . . . . a six-week Senior Red Cross Life-saving course will be made available to Villanova students in the spring?

. . . . . moderator Geisz has hopes of presenting a talent show featuring the best of Villanova show business aspirants?

. . . . . pinochle and chess tournaments have been planned for the co-eds?

. . . . . the intramural all-stars (basketball) have never beaten the Freshman in their annual game?

. . . . . the bowling alleys in the field house will be opened November 19?

. . . . approximately $350 is spent annually for intramural medals?

Navy Lightweights Down Villanova; Mainliners Lose 3rd

Thirteen proved a very unlucky number for the Villanova 150-pound football team last Friday, as Navy scored a baker's dozen in each quarter to sink the little Wildcats 52-0. It was the team's third straight loss.

The game was only a couple minutes old when Navy got its first touchdown. A recovered fumble on the Villanova 20 yard line gave them first opportunity and it took the Annapolis squad only four plays to score. Later in the period, Navy marched 50 yards for their second touchdown. Relying on their greater speed, depth, and polish, the Midshipmen mounted the score in the last three quarters.

Offensively, the Villanova 150's could do little. A woeful lack of blocking prevented the team from making any serious scoring threat. The deepest penetration of enemy territory was to the thirty-yard line.

Doherty Plays Well

Doc Doherty and Archie Kennedy stood out in the losing cause. Doherty played his usual fine game at quarterback and defensive safety man and Kennedy made numerous tackles from his guard position.

From a standpoint of injuries, the game was disastrous to the Mainliners. Don Harley, Jimmy Judge, Don Alton, Charlie Stonier, and Ed McLaughlin received injuries ranging from a broken nose to a possible concussion. Because of previous ailments, first-stringers Tom Gorham and Charlie Brockman were unable to see action in the Navy game.

These injuries are unfortunate not only in the loss of the players to the team, but also because they hinder the attempts of Coaches Steve Smolsyinski and Lou Cassela to hold scrimmages during the week.

This Friday at 2:30 the Villanova lightweights are host to the winless University of Pennsylvania at the stadium. The little Wildcats will be seeking to

Basketball Practice Begins; Team Faces Tough Schedule

By Bob Strayton

Looking forward to another murderous schedule, Villanova's basketball team, potentially one of the nation's best, started their workouts for the forthcoming 1954-55 season yesterday on the Field House hardwoods.

Among the notables on the Wildcat "sudden-death" list is a team from Pittsburgh, which is known not a little throughout the cage circuits. Duquesne, a power-laden squad as always, will encouter Villanova's finest three times during season competition. A few other top-flight quintets, including Dayton, North Carolina State, and Seton Hall play two apiece with the 'Cats.

Nevertheless, Villanova still remains a pre-season threat to dominate the basketball ranks of the nation. The presence of an All-American candidate, plus unlimited depth, marks the 'Cats well as a very potent machine.

Bobby Schafer, who has three previous years of varsity training, is almost a sure thing to gain an All-American berth. Last season alone, he proved his adeptness by compiling the fourth highest number of points for the season, 836, while averaging 27.0 per contest.

His career total of 1502 markers notwithstanding, Schafer also is a capable man under the boards, averaging 7.0 rebounds per game.

The steadying influence on the ball club, Captain Jack Devine, also rates high as a fine prospect this season. Devine, a 6'4" guard, was the second-high scorer for the Cats last year, trailing Schafer with a total of 14.7 per encouter. His defensive ability, as well as rebounding skill (12.5) make him the club's most rounded ballplayer.

Jim Smith and John Cirino, complementing Schafer and Devine as the scoring threats, averaged 13.0 and 9.1 points respectively. At the same time, Cirino is the team's second-best rebounder, having recorded a 9.9 average during last season's outings. Smitty, who averaged 7.3 under the boards, is also a fine defensive ballplayer, both quick-witted with excellent reflexes.

Larry Tierney, Marty Milligan, and Tom Foley, the remaining veterans from last season, also hold a great deal of promise for Al Severance. Tierney, the team's outstanding defensive ballplayer, and Milligan, an all-around threat, saw a great deal of action last year. Fine performances on many occasions was Foley's contribution during the past season.

Sophs Hold Promise

Sopohomores, and many of them, will also add to the srength of the Wildcat bench. Bob Powers ,outstanding in Freshman competition, has an excellent chance to start, as do "Sonny" DiCarlo, Al Griffith, and John Weissman. Jim Fahey, Bill Haley, and Mike Denci round out the newly acquired ballplayers on the team.

What they lack in height (the starting team will only average about 6'3"), Villanova's basketeers will more than make up for in field goals, foul shots, and their excellent defensive prowess, making them a strong bid for national honors.

Fast Backs, Big Line Aid Frosh Gridders

By Joe Kinney

Although the Varsity eleven are presently in the middle of a rather dismal campaign, Joe Rogers' frosh girdders have improved in every game and should be at their best this Friday when they tangle with Delaware's yearlings on the latter's turf.

Following their tough 7-0 setback at the hands of Wyoming Seminary in their initial contest, the freshmen easily turned back West Chester by a convincing 27-6 count. Stevens Trade School was the next victim—this time, 13-0—gaining only 35 yards on the ground while being unable to cross the Wildcats' 40.

Sapiensa Leads Attack

Americo Sapiensa, a youngster who excels at any backfield position, has stood out in all three games. Handling the punting chores and kick-off duties, he played his most outstanding defensive game against Stevens as he snatched two of the Mainliners' four pass interceptions.

At the other half, Dave Intrabartolo has shone both as a potent ball-carrier and capable aerial-receiver in the past two tilts. His thrilling 68-yard jaunt against W. Chester, which was nullified because of a clipping penalty, was one of the finest runs of the season. The field-general of the team, Eddie McGhee, has mixed his plays well and kept the offense rolling with his accurate heaves. He has held the starting quarterback assignment all season and is doing an excellent job.

On the huge line, Ed Michaels, Don Luzzi, Charlie Vaughn, and Chuck Bastian (who has booted four extra points) have been steadily coming along during the past six weeks and are proving to be a nemesis to all opposing backs.

Van Horn Returns

Dave Parr, brilliant scatback, who scored a pair of touchdowns in a brief appearance against W. Chester, will probably see even less action in the remaining two games due to a badly-torn muscle in his right leg. The team will be somewhat bolstered, however, by the return of halfback Don Van Horn, who has been out nursing a back injury.

Headcoach Frank Reagan, as well as his able assistants, has favorably commented on the abilities of the present freshmen squad and is most impressed "with the speed of all the backs".

Klipowicz, limber up. You're going for Fumble-well.

No Pictures; No Histories

More than a hundred seniors were faced last week with the prospect of no picture or history in the 1955 Belle Air, Editor Frank Gunther said.

Seniors who have not submitted pictures or histories have until Friday, the editor added. If he has not received the pictures or histories by that time, the material will not appear in the yearbook, Gunther emphasized.

Gunter said the number of seniors delinquent includes some nurses. History forms from seminarians are also lacking; he remarked.

Seniors should put histories under the Belle Air office door Mendel basement (or give them to Gunther 1 Simpson). A plain sheet of paper may be used.

Gunther said the form should include name, campus and home address, high school attended, and list of activities at Villanova.

Accountants Team With Area Colleges In Forum

The Philadelphia Chapter of the Pennsylvania Institute of Certified Public Accountants in cooperation with 17 colleges and universities of the Philadelphia area and the National Association of Cost Accountants and the Institute of Internal Auditors, Inc., will present the Twelfth Annual Philadelphia Accounting Forum at Villanova Nov. 17.

The purpose of of this forum is to explain and discuss with students the opportunities available to them ir a career of accounting. This is an educational program with an aim toward enlightening the student on the happenings in the accounting world and to bring to the attention of the young accountant some of the interesting experiences in the careers of professional practitioners.

The program for this year's forum includes subjects which are directed primarily to the student and the young accountant for whom the program has been developed.

Young Profession

Since accounting is still a relatively young profession, many opportunities are available to one who is willing to apply himself and to improve his ability.

The topics to be discussed at the afternoon sessions include "Accounting—The Basis for a Successful Career", "Open Roads Ahead for the Young Accountant", "Auditing as Experienced in Public and Private Accounting", and "Accounting as a Service to Management".

At the opening joint meeting, Lawrence J. Scully, C. P. A. will preside while the Very Rev. Joseph C. Bartley O. S. A., Ph.D., LL.D. will give the Invocation. Very Rev. James A. Donnellon O. S. A., Ph.D. will greet the gathering and Mr. Leo H. Schafer, Professor Business Administration will act as chairman.

Speaker at Dinner

A dinner meeting will be held at 6:45 p.m. at which the speaker will be Mr. Arthur B. Foye, C. P. A., immediate past president of the American Institute of Accountants. Mr. Foye, who will speak on "The Accountants Role in Public Affairs", is a member of the accounting firm of Haskins and Sells and has served the federal government for many years as a member of the Hoover Commission.

Dr. James O'Brien, associate professor of philosophy, will address the Faculty Discussion Group Thursday at 4:15 p.m. in the Mendel Faculty Room.

Topic of Dr. O'Brien's talk is "Love and Gravity."

DPE "Hell Week" Begins For Record Pledge Group

Next week one hundred pledges will begin the annual "hell week" for the Delta Pi Epsilon fraternity. This year's group will be the largest ever to try out for the DPE.

The candidates for the frat will be attired in formal bib shirts, ascot tie, wing collar and straw skimmer. Pledges will carry the traditional walking stick and a sign identifying them as "the lowly pledges of the illustrious Delta Pi Epsilon fraternity."

Each pledge will be required to sign in twice a day with either Greg Gehring, pledge chairman, or one of the 20 pledge masters. As another feature of "hell week" each pledge will be given an especially difficult task to perform.

This year's paddles will be uniform, consisting of the fraternity letters in gold decals on a black gloss background. Pledges will sand and varnish the paddles themselves and the three best paddles will merit prizes.

"Espana 1954, La Mas Grande" --- Senor Macatee

School has been sailing for a month now and tales of summer adventures are showing signs of overuse. Still of interest to all, however, are the tales of Sophomore Larry Macatee, boy Spaniard, who managed a trip to sunny Spain this summer and has reported quite favorably on his trip.

"La mas grande," says Larry —the greatest. Larry, who was inspired to make the journey by Rev. Lorenzo Lozano, O. S. A.—good friend to all astute Spanish students—was afforded a scholarship to the University of Madrid by the Spanish government through German de Caso y Ridaura, Spanish Consul to Philadelphia.

The scholarship included room, board and tuition to the university, where he studied for about five weeks.

Colored Blob?

To most of us, Spain means little more than any other foreign country—a colored blob on a page in a History 125 text. But when Larry begins to spout the advantages of this little blob, you find yourself wondering why brother Ike doesn't give this sod back to Massassoit and his boys and immediately ship out for "biobland." Here's the scoop, divided into the three "first causes."

Wine: "Vino," they call it. It is sold to anyone who can grab a glass when the bartender isn't watching. (All bartenders are blind.)

Women: "Gorgeous" is what the man said. Besides their visible assets, Spanish girls are polite, unspoiled and make the best wives. Yummy!

Song: "Flamencos fabalosos," an ad lib job featuring improvisations on the Mexican Hat Dance. Crazy!

What Price Amor!

If you think that's good, catch this bit—one date with a gay senorita costs two bits. For this sum, Larry received transportation on the Madrid subway (four cents) plus muchos "brewsos" (23 cents), a night of street-singing (none, nil, zero cents) and no chaperone. Rosemont was never like this!

Here's the killer; it'll destroy you. Classes begin at ten; no roll; walk out when bored. Villanova was never like this!

If you are yet to be convinced, you are definitely weird. Oh, you are convinced Hey, don't run; next boat doesn't leave till tomorrow.

Marketing Club

Election of two officers—Secretary Jack Reilly and Publicity Chairman Bob Shallow—took place at Thursday's meeting of the Marketing Club, an affiliate of the American Marketing Association.

Plans were also discussed for a field trip next spring. Mr. Frederick Burgess, club moderator, said the club hopes to make the annual trip in March.

Shallow and Dick Lull were appointed to investigate the possibilities of where the trip may be, Mr. Burgess added.

Other officers of the club, who were elected last spring, are: Tom Keller, president; John Quinlan, vice-president; Henry Whalen, treasurer.

Charity Ball, Party, Outing:

Trio Of Orphans' Projects Planned By Junior Groups

There are still thirty-nine shopping days till Christmas but the Yuletide spirit has already begun invading the Villanova campus. Plans for the St. John's Orphanage Outing and Party, yearly events of great interest, were outlined at a committee meeting last Thursday night.

Co-chairmen Mike Horan and Bernie Steinfelt announced at the meeting that two new subcommittees had been named. A refreshments committee, headed by Jim Bambury and Dick Cross, will be responsible for the Party treats; the Entertainment committee, under the chairmanship of Dick Fitzpatrick, has been authorized to seek out Villanovans interested in donating their talents for the day of the party. Anyone who feels he can help on either committee is urged to see these men.

Pete Cassidy, Mike Potenza and Pat Haley are in charge of the Contributions campaign. Together with Tom Casey, Larry Tierney and Frank D'Alonzo, they will be responsible for canvassing religion classes and placing containers about the campus and in nearby strategic locations.

The party is given for the orphans on Dec. 9, highlighted by food, gifts and movies and entertainment staged by Villanovans. Santa Claus is high on the list of attractions during Saturday's outing. A trip to toyland, the movies and Horn & Hardart's will feature the day's activities.

With their project less than a month away, members of the Charity Ball committee have begun to take definite action to make the Ball a social as well as a charitable success.

The committee, under the chairmanship of Don Alton, had its first meeting last Wednesday night. "This year," Chairman Alton announced, "the students as well as our little friends from St. John's Orphanage will benefit from the affair."

The established price of $1. will be retained this year, but the Charity Ball will really be a social event of importance, Don stressed further. On Dec. 3, for the sum of $1., the students will dance to the music of a band that has pleased Cotillion crowds in the past. Decorations for the Field House will be handled by Phil Butler and his talented crew.

"There is only one hitch to this dollar deal," Alton con-

Reasons For Nurses Are Outlined

Two fundamental reasons why a school of nursing became a part of Villanova University were advanced last week by Rev. John A. Klekotka, O.S.A., executive co-ordinator of the nursing division.

In a brief interview last week, Father Klekotka said the nursing division was set up because:

1) the nursing profession is undergoing many changes, most significant being the need for a nurse with a well-rounded collegiate education as well as technical training.

2) Villanova, of the Catholic schools in the area—male or female, was best prepared to meet the demand for better Catholic nursing education because of an already existing extension program in nursing.

Plans were formulated by the administration to raise the nursing program to full time status in 1951. Through these plans, the nurse earns a college degree,

"Rhythmaires" Chosen As Senior Dinner Dance Band

Tickets Are Now On Sale; Prom Drive Gains Impetus

"The Rhythmaires," a band which is well-known to Villanova and neighboring colleges, will provide music for the Senior Dinner-Dance, Chairman Ted Clarkson announced last week.

"I feel certain that this band will provide us with the same type of superior dance music that they have given us in the past," stated Clarkson.

Tickets are currently on sale in the Pie Shoppe. Clarkson said they will be sold every day between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. until the time of the dinner-dance, Nov. 20.

Asks Support

"The dance is closed," he stated in an exclusive interview with the VILLANOVAN," and for that reason it is imperative that every member of the senior class attend."

As in past years, the Senior dinner affair will be held at the Walt Whitman Hotel in Camden, N. J. The entire second floor of the building will be reserved for the fourth year men and their dates.

The chairman also emphasized that this would be the last completely social function of the Class of 1955. The Senior Prom will be held Nov. 19, making that week end the last of its kind for the class.

"The Walt Whitman is located just across the Delaware River Bridge and the management has assured us that there will be ample parking facilities," said Clarkson.

Tickets for the affair are $10 per couple.

New York Club Plans Festive Holiday Dance

The Villanova Club of New York is holding its annual dance in the Main Ballroom of the Hotel Roosevelt, beginning at 9 p. m., the night before the Fordham-Villanova game.

Athletic Secretary Bill Ryan released plans last week for the dance and stated that "indications point to a more successful affair than last year, if such is possible."

In a conference last week with John McConville, publicity director of the New York Club, who came down from New York, Ryan completed plans for the dance.

Table Reservations

All tables will be reserved, with the following prices: students, $4; alumni and friends, $5. Reservations must be made with Ryan before Nov. 22. The Athletic Secretary said his office will be open during the Fordham pep rally, the night of Nov. 22.

Tickets will also be available at the door for $5, but no additional tables will be set up, added Ryan.

Accomodations have been made for 1500 people. There will be tables in the mezzanine for single couples and tables on the main floor for parties of three and five couples.

"Society Band"

Ryan said the night's activities would include dancing "to one of New York's most famous society bands," cheers and sing-

Ex-Postmaster General Named:

Farley Heads Development

Honorable James A. Farley, former postmaster-general, will serve as campaign general chairman of the Villanova University Development Campaign.

Announcement of his acceptance was made Thursday by Edwin K. Daly Sr., chairman of the executive committee, at an important joint meeting of the Board of Associates and the Executive Committee.

Formal Launching

Campaign will be launched formally Dec. 2 at 7:30 p. m. at a dinner held in honor of the newly-appointed campaign general chairman and his vice-chairmen. Mr. Daly said the dinner will be held in the Field House, and guests will attend by invitation.

Details of the dinner will be announced later, Mr. Daly added.

At the meeting, Mr. Daly also announced that William F. Kelly, executive vice-president of the Pennsylvania Company for Banking and Trusts, would serve as vice-chairman of the executive committee of the Board of Associates.

Four Assistants

Four other men have agreed to assist Mr. Farley as campaign vice-chairmen, Mr. Daly said. They are:

Maj. Gen. Milton G. Baker, superintendent of Valley Forge Military Academy;

Hubert J. Moran Jr., president of Broad Street Trust Co.; John C. Kelly, president of Kelly and Mason, Inc.

Clarence Tolan Jr., chairman of the board of Dodge Steel Co.

Highest Award Presented:

Villanovan Accorded ACP "All-American" Position

Best in its class!

That's the citation that the VILLANOVAN was awarded in the annual Associated Collegiate Press survey of college newspapers for the past spring semester.

The VILLANOVAN received an All-American rating, the highest journalistic achievement presented by the ACP. The papers judged were published in the second semester of the 1953-1954 academic year.

Received last week, the award marks the first time in over a decade that a Villanova publication received such a rating.

In competition with other college weeklies, the VILLANOVAN received high praise for "effective news coverage," "well-thought editorials in matters religious," and "good sports balance and style."

Also commended was "nicely

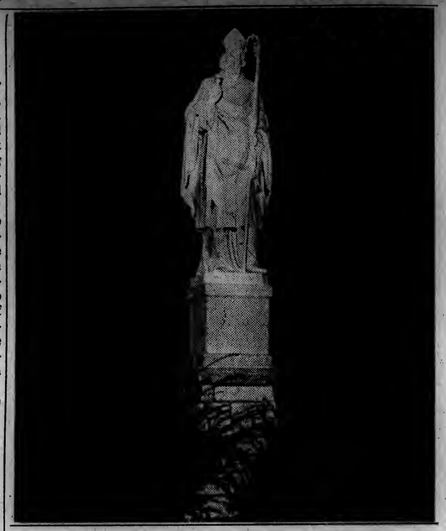
Our Hearts Are Restless...

This age is accurately called complex and confused. These are violent times, and history itself is in large measure a record of violence. Insane asylums are packed with people whose minds couldn't stand the strain, and sense seems to rule reason in the souls of many men.

Immorality is imputed to many. Chastity is a neglected virtue. One billion people are accounted pagan. Man is popularly exalted as an end in himself. Cynicism and hypocrisy seem to have been substituted for faith, hope, and charity . . .

The hope of man is Christian truth.

Our Catholic religion embodies this truth. Sacred scripture and tradition have developed it. By it, man is given a reason for being, a motive for acting, and a goal to hope for.



In Christian truth, rational justification for faith is provided. Solution for the problems which have led to the complexity and confusion of this age is provided.

Over 1500 years ago, St. Augustine, reformed juvenile delinquent if there ever was one, contributed more than any other man toward giving faith a rational explanation. There may be many people in the world who aren't familiar with the life of Aurelius Augustine, but there aren't many people in the world who haven't been influenced by his thought.

No man has ever summed up the plight of man in better form: "Our hearts are restless, O God, until they rest in Thee". No man has ever hit the nail more squarely on the head. It is a statement of enduring modernity because it is a philosophy of life, applicable to all men.

We have dedicated these two Villanovan pages to St. Augustine because we believe that the 1600th anniversary of his birth is an excellent occasion for recollection of his importance to us. Followers of the Rule of St. Augustine organized the Augustinian Order in 1256. The contemporary timeliness of Augustine's thought is reflected in the efforts of this Order.

Villanova in particular can be proud of its heritage.

Pagan to Christian Saga of Augustine:

By Tom Mentzer

On November 13, Holy Mother Church will celebrate the birthday of one of her most distinguished sons and saints, Augustine. Sixteen hundred years ago on that day in the year 354 in Numidia, Africa, the baby Augustine was born to a Christian mother and a pagan father.

His life was to reflect as a mirror the depravity of a soul fettered by sin and the beauty of a soul eminent in holiness. In a word, he was to be but another example of God's grace making sinner into saint.

Christian Environment

Tagaste and Madura, towns in Africa, were the scenes of Augustine's elementary education. Early contacts with the catechumens gave him the basic rudiments of a Christian education. Unfortunately, though, due to the customs of the time, he was not immediately baptized and eventually the good effects of this Christian environment were negated—at least temporarily. Intellectual acumen was Augustine's gift from his earliest youth. By the time he had reached the age of sixteen, he was ready to go to Carthage for advanced study.

Sensual Indugence

During the next 15 years Augustine was to give free reign to every whim of his sensual nature. Not satisfied with carnal offenses against his Lord, this wandering soul also indulged in intellectual sin by writing in defense of the Manichean heresy.

Throughout these many years, his mother Monica had never once ceased to pray with all the fervor of a mother's heart for the conversion of her wayward son. Her perseverance was not to be denied. Augustine, filled with the strengthening grace of God, burst his shackles of sin and came into the Christian fold in 386.

Love of God

Thereupon, his remaining years were spent in the zealous labor and burning love of his God. "Too late have I loved Thee," was his constant cry of anguish. Motivated by this ardent love, Augustine's brilliant mind set about the doing of the manifold tasks before it. Its keenly penetrating refutations of the Manichean, Donatist and Pelagian heresies snatched many unwary souls from the chasm of dark error.

Presiding over the diocese of Hippo as its Bishop, Augustine preached the word of Christ at every opportunity. He exhibited a tireless energy in the writing of hundreds of letters on every imaginable theological topic. Amid all all these labors he found time to set a glittering example of how a servant of God should conduct himself.

XVI Centenary of
St. Augustine

What Do You Think?

By Jim Wrzesinski

On Saturday we celebrate the birth of one of the most renowned members of the Catholic Church, St. Augustine. Since this issue of the Villanovan has been dedicated to him it is only fitting that this column cover some topic concerned with him. To provide material of interest to faculty member and student alike both views of today's question are presented. First presented is a statement of what the philosophy of St. Augustine offers the Catholic College student of today. The source of this statement is the able head of the Religion Department, Fr. John Maher, O. S. A.

"The Catholic college student, and gentlemen, in the coure of his life, squires an imposing array of queens: his girl-friend, his wife, his mother, and Mary, the Queen Mother of his God. To this list he should add philosophy, the queen of the sciences and the handmaid of theology. Philosophically, three words adequately sum up the teaching influence of St. Augustine, Bishop of Hippo and illustrious Doctor of the Church: 'Unity, Truth, Charity' : the motto of Villanova University. This philosophy of life worth living will effectively keep the follower of Augustine on the one track to the truth, to the love of his fellow man, and ultimately to the abiding love of God."

Here then simply but most effectively stated is the philosophy of the Great Doctor of the Church. The question then offered to the students was: Has the philosophy of St. Augustine been actively presented to you at Villanova?

Some of the comments were these:

Frank Licopoli—"In our high school days most of us obtained a clear knowledge of the history of the orders or societies to which our teachers belonged; and apparently only those fellows who attended Augustinian High Schools can say that they know anything of St. Augustine and his teachings.

By reading his books, and noting the examples given by the priests here at Villanova some knowledge could be attained, but there does seem to be a severe lack in the development of pride in the Augustinians' long and colorful history."

Bill Eckenrode—"Since I have attended Villanova University, I cannot say that I have experienced any definite movement, on the part of the faculty, toward the better understanding of the Augustinian philosophy. I feel that the Augustinian Order, as a whole, should be conscious of a deep responsibility to spread the inspirational thinking of their founder.

In all fairness to our priests I must say that on many occasions I have heard our priests speak of certain incidents in the life of St. Augustine and explain their significance to us. I feel, also, that if we observe the fine lives the priests themselves live we can learn much of the Augustinian philosophy."

George Ahearn—"Naturally in an engineering curriculum the opportunity for the presentation of such a philosophy is limited. However, I would say that occasionally in the religion courses I have taken here at Villanova the subject of St. Augustine has been treated lightly, by way of incidents in his life, quotations from his works, etc.

Yet I have not had the opportunity to realize a fully developed treatment of St. Augustine's philosophy."

Faith Made Reasonable By Mind Of Augustine

By Frank Trainor

Saint Augustine is the great reconciler of faith and reason of Christian doctrine and Pagan philosophy.

The Doctor of Hippo was never a philosopher by profession, but rather by natural inclination, having a great love of truth and an equally profound admiration for reason.

This probably accounts in part for the fact that he never composed a system of philosophy like those masters of antiquity, Plato and Aristotle. Yet, in our saint's writings we find all the fundamental problems of philosophy treated in a manner peculiarly Augustinian. They are discussed and explained at length, and solved as our great Patristic could solve them—placing the conclusions of reason against the immutable bulwarks of the Divine Truth of Revelation.

Here we see the actualization of Augustine's methodic formula: "Credo ut intelligam." I believe in order that I may understand.

His belief is in the Faith as it derives itself from Divine Revelation; his understanding is the product of reason in the order of philosophy. Truth is one, eternal and immutable. To profess one thing in the religious sphere and yet another in the intellectual sphere only, is to broclaim the uncertainty of both. If philosophy would direct the intellect of man and avoid the pitfalls of division and doctrinal impotence, let it be firmly imbedded in the defectless and unchangeable unity of the Faith. For only in the Faith and by the Faith will philosophy free itself from error and withstand the attacks of time and its enemies.

Faith and reason then, are mutually complementary. Reason demands the conformity of faith with it, that truth may be reached; faith demands the exercise of reason. Reason must precede faith, must accompany faith, must follow faith.

It must precede faith, since no one can believe unless he knows what he is to believe; it must accompany faith because it is not fitting for one who would be called a Christian philosopher simply to believe without any effort to understand; it must follow faith, for as St. Augustine says, "If you cannot understand, believe in order that you may understand. Faith precedes, reason follows."

Herein then, since faith and reason complement, compenetrate and reenforce one another, is the ideal criterion of Christian philosophy.

Christian Plato

Saint Augustine, because of his amazing reconciliation of Christian doctrine with Pagan philosophy, has been called the Christian Plato.

These two personalities, Plato and Augustine, are the symbols of the power of the human intellect in two distinct phases. The former represents man left to his own natural intellectual forces, groping in the twilight of uncertainty; the latter also represents man using his intellect, but an intellect illumined by the Divine light of faith. It has been aptly remarked, "What is said in Plato, lives in Augustine."

It is significant that in Augustine's writings he always gives credit to the philosophers of aniquity inasmuch as there is some truth in their systems, for his own thinking is built on the principle that truth is one and eternal. His eclecticism therefore, is not tightly syncretic, for he advised the utilization of only those elements which were commendable in a system.

Greek philosophy may be said to have had a directive and formative influence on St. Augustine's mind, but for him it never assumed an absolute and independent value. He used it as an aid in his search for truth, but never accepted it as a system of perfect structure. To our great Saint it was merely material for nobler doctrine—material to be sifted diligently and with discriminating care. It was then ready to be placed on the foundation of Revelation and built the majestic edifice of Christian philosophy.

Order Organized In 1256, Survives Heresy, Revolt

By Ed Daly

As an organized body, the Augustinian Order, or to use the correct name, the Hermits of St. Augustine, did not come into existence until several centuries after the death of the great saint for which it is named.

That is not to say that there were no monastic groups following the rule of St. Augustine during this period. Many communities independently followed the Augustinian Rule from the time of Augustine; particularly after 1059, when it was made obligatory for canons regular.

Alexander Calls Council

Because of the number of diverse groups living under this rule, but differing in habit and administration, and frequently bickering with each other and with groups following other rules, particularly the Franciscans, Pope Alexander IV summoned each hermit monastery to send delegates to Rome in 1256 to discuss a union.

As a result of this conference, four fairly important organizations such as the Bonites and the Williamites and numerous smaller communities were welded into a single order, the "Order of the Hermits of St. Augustine," by the papal bull "Licet ecclesiae catholicae," of May 4, 1256, a document which may be viewed as the foundation-charter of the present Augustinian Order. The prior of the Bonites, Lanfranc Septala of Milan, became the first Augustinian general.

The order flourished marvelously during the Middle Ages. In the late Medieval period it reached its all-time peak of 30,000 members, living in 2,000 monasteries, divided among 42 provinces and two vicariates. Some of the most famous church leaders of that time were Augustinians. An example is Cardinal Giles of Viterbo, one of the most celebrated men in Medieval history. The Augustinian Order continued as one of the very largest Catholic religious organizations up to the outbreak of Protestant Revolution.

A variety of causes brought about a sharp decline in the fortunes of the Augustinians after the Revolt. First of all there was of course the loss of those communities in nations in which Protestantism triumphed. Second, there was the loss of prestige that come from the fact that Martin Luther was an Augustinian and that various Augustinian houses in England and Germany became hotbeds of Lutheranism. Third was the general decline of interest in spiritual matters that came with the increased secularization of society.

The Augustinian Order suffered still more during the French Revolution. Prior to 1789, France had been a center of Augustinian life. In the terrible years that witnessed that great upheaval, 185 houses disappeared completely. So sharp a blow was struck by this and by the later secularuzations that the Augustinian Order has ceased to exist in France.

A similar fate befell the Augustinians in various other European and Latin American countries, notably in Spain, Mexico and Italy during the 19th century, although nowhere else was the damage so permanent and so devastating as in France.

Augustinians Today

In spite of all these misfortunes, the Augustinians still continue their ancient work of teaching, catechizing, and directing parish life. In 1950, there was a total of 3,400 professed Augustinians in 389 houses administered by 28 provinces.

They operated five colleges and 41 high schools throughout the world, staffed 171 parishes, and worked in lands as diverse as China, Philippines, Australia, Poland, Czechoslovakia, England, Tunisia, and the United States.

In this country, a total of 391 priests directed three colleges, eleven high schools and 41 parishes. The growth of the Order in the United States has been particularly encouraging.

At present, the prior-general of the Augustinian Order is the Very Reverend Englehard Eberhard, O. S. A., a German, who succeeded the Very Reverend Joseph Hickey, O. S. A., who now resides at Villanova.

Most Rev. Engelbert G. Eberhard, O.S.A. Prior General of the Augustinian Order, looks a bit wistful as he embarks for the Port of Rome, after a visit to the United States last summer.

Saint's Writings Centered On God

By Pat Nolan

Great among philosophers, greatest among theologians—St. Augustine. The man lived but seventy-six years; his name will live forever. Seldom onto the stage of history as such a named passed who stands so high in quest of Truth, in love of God. And the instrument of his deathless name, the product of his quest and love, is his writings. Forged in the fire of faith, and molded by the hammer of reason, St. Augustine's works show the highly developed Christian thought existing in the early years of the Church. These were Catholic weapons of defense, employed and victorious, against Manicheans, Pelagianists, and Donatists.

St. Augustine, however, did not direct all his works in defense of the faith. So varied and so numerous were his writings, that to list them would take more space than this column allows. Important among his works are "Contra Academica", "On Free Will", "Enehiridion" and "De Trinitate". But monumental are "The Confessions", and "The City of God".

The whole of "The Confessions" is a humble outpouring of his soul to its Maker, God. Introspective in nature, the work examines his early life, a life spent staggering blindly through heresy and worldly pleasure. Tracing his steps toward conversion to Catholicity, Augustine shows how his mind, in the midst of its investigations, bursts upward to immerse itself in God. "God is his immediate audience," always in focus. Perhaps in this, more than in any other work, St. Augustine shows his consuming love of God.

As "The Confessions" shows theology which has been lived in the soul, "The City of God" shows theology framed in the history of humanity. In it, the City of God opposes the City of Man. "Accordingly, the two cities have been built by two loves: the earthly by the love of self, even to the contempt of God; the heavenly by the love of God even to the contempt of self." Each city is as good or as evil as the object of its love. For those with the strength of mind to learn them, "The City of God" holds the secrets of earth and life, peace and war, hell and heaven."

In the history of the Church there has probably been no author who focuses his attention so unwaveringly upon God. Inseparably combining philosophy with theology, St. Augustine holds God as the "beginning, mean, and end" in all his works. Always esteemed by Catholics, his writings continue to be respected by Protestants. By his writings his name shall live through time—St. Augustine—great among philosophers, greatest among theologians.

Priests At Villanova Follow St. Augustine

By Dave Vachon

"I will raise myself up from this bed of sleep, to adore my God, and to labor for the salvation of my soul. O, may I rise on the last day unto life everlasting." It is 5:30 a.m. Father is rising. Wash. Dress. Go downstairs. Through the hall to the sacristy . . .

St. Basil is honored today. Red vestments. Cover the chalice. 6 o'clock. The altar. "Oh my God!" . . . "I will go unto the altar of God . . . " In the oratory the Superior is saying the community mass for the lay brothers. ". . . And the world was made flesh and dwelt among us, and we saw His glory, the glory of the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth."

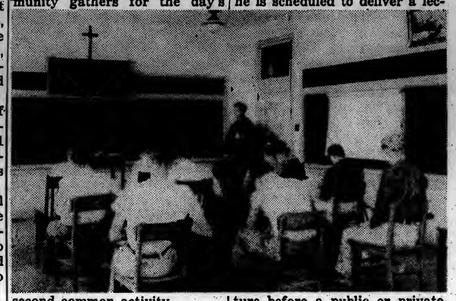
"Thanks be to God."

Meditation follows Mass. 6:30.

7 o'clock. Time for breakfast. In the dining hall the community gathers for the day's second common activity.

Breakfast over, it is time to tackle the morning's duties. On the average, an Augustinian has eighteen class hours per week. Besides teaching in Villanova's undergraduate school, he may also teach at the seminary, at one of Philadelphia's Catholic nursing schools, or in the evening, Saturday, or extension schools. In any case, a portion of his non-class hours is used to prepare lectures, correct papers, and help students.

Moreover, each day the Divine Office, which takes about one hour to read privately, must be read. There is also the rosary and spiritual reading to take care of.



With noon comes a pause in the day's labors. Lunch is served at 12:30. Then from 1 o'clock to 1:15 the community visits the Blessed Sacrament.

Classes resume at 1:30. With laboratory sessions they may last until 5:30 p.m.

6 finds the community gathered again for supper. 6:30 marks adjournment to the oratory where the Augustinian "Corona" and "Night Prayers" of the Order are recited.

7 to 7:30 p.m. is set aside for recreation. At 7:30 the Augustinian turns again to his labors. Perhaps a campus or parish group which he moderates or for which he is chaplain meets tonight. Again, perhaps he is scheduled to deliver a lecture before a public or private group. Perhaps he is preaching a mission in a nearby parish. There is so much to do.

Finally, sometime between 10 and 11 p.m., the priest retires for the night.

Thus runs the "Horarium" of an Augustinian priest's day. In it we find the three facets of a man's life—prayer, work, and play—ideally balanced. In it we find the contemplative and the active life beautifully wedded under God.

Looking Forward. .

With the meeting last Thursday of the Board of Associates of the Villanova expansion program and the statement they released announcing the acceptance by former Postmaster General James Farley of the national chairmanship of the drive, the public for the first time became aware that the expansion program, of which so much was heard last year, is still in operation.

Actually, work has been progressing all summer. The existence of the Board of Associates did not come about without work. Neither did the acceptance of so prominent a national figure as Mr. Farley come without much thought and preliminary work.

The businessmen and civic leaders of Philadelphia who, as members of the Board and its committees, have given of their time to make the Villanova expansion program a reality deserve the thanks of the Villanova student body. The VILLANOVAN thanks them for their great assistance. We also thank and congratulate Father McGuire, director of the Expansion Program, under whose leadership the expansion drive has reached this, its first triumph.

We feel sure that these businessmen will feel well compensated for their time and effort when they see an even greater Villanova of tomorrow, to whose greatness they themselves will have contributed.

Therefore, to Father McGuire and to the associates, we extend our thanks and our hopes for future success; to Mr. Farley we say "Welcome to the Villanova family; Villanova is honored to have you with us."

Good Grooming. . .

In spite of the usual quarterly pre-occupation with things of the mind, a material question crept into campus food for thought last week.

It concerns the laxity demonstrated by many Villanovans in the channels of class attire.

It seems that by the quarter, both the enforcer of the rules, the administration, and the party subject to the rules, the student body, have become a bit lethargic concerning regulations that were given their perennial early-term push and then allowed to slowly loosen up. Of course, Villanova men should not have to be prodded to adhere to regulations that add not only to the dignity of the institution but also stress the importance of personal good grooming and overall good taste in appearance. However, due to the inevitable resistance of a few, the administration has to be and should be as consistent in its enforcement of rules as possible. Checks, it is understood, were made in various classes last week and in some a flagrant disregard for the coat and tie rule was obvious.

In the first place, if a student can wear a coat and tie one day, he certainly can be consistent in his day to day appearance. Secondly, the rules actually prohibit the admission of rules-breakers to the class, and here the responsibility rests with the instructors themselves.

Surely, such a rule is not too much to ask of men who have long since departed from the open-necked, jacketed days of high school.

Admittedly, Belle Air hall's dusty state is not conducive to the wearing of suits or week-end cashmeres, but there can be a happy medium.

This is one rule that should be self-enforced. After all, good grooming usually is.

Saar Supports Solution Giving It Independence

By Ed Daly

Events of the last few months have again brought the issue of the Saarland to the attention of readers in the United States and Europe.

Many, learning that the Saar has a population of less than a million and only a very small area, conclude that the sharp dispute between France and Germany over this tiny spot is of no great consequence, and that one or the other side, depending upon his own prejudices, should yield.

Important issue

Actually, the outcome of the Saar dispute is of vital importance to both France and Germany. To France the Saar is necessary because from it must come the coal without which the iron of Lorraine, on which France's steel industry depends, is useless. The Saar coal mines are among the richest in Europe, employing 67,000 workers and producing 16.1 million metric tons yearly.

It is not merely the coal that is of such importance to Germany, although its presence does not decrease German interest in that area. To the Germans the fact that the Saar is inhabited by other Germans but under the domination of France, the traditional foe of Germany, is a deep injury to German nationalism, one of the most powerful forces in that country.

Old dispute

The dispute is not a new one. At the end of the First World War, France made every possible effort to have the Saar annexed directly to France. This having failed, the Saar was turned into an area directly administered by the League of Nations. It was however, more closely connected with France than with Germany, France having control of the vital coal fields. This condition continued until 1935, when a plebiscite, held to determine the future of the Saar, resulted in an overwhelming vote to return to German rule.

After the end of the Second World War, the problem of the Saar again arose to complicate the European situation. So long as Germany was merely an occupied area without a government of its own, there was no opposition from that quarter to be contended with, and France had little difficulty in obtaining the use of the coal fields.

An agreement was reached with the other Allied Powers in 1946 establishing the Saar as a special autonomous zone outside Germany and under French control.

The status of the Saar was clarified further by an agreement made between the French and the Saarlanders themselves in May, 1950. As subsequently amended in 1953, it is still in force.

Under it, Saar is completely autonomous in legislative, administrative and judicial matters, although it remains in an economic, customs and monetary union with France. By the amendment of 1953, the Saar is now permitted to mint small coins, but otherwise the French franc is the sole legal tender. Since 1953 the Saar is permitted to conduct their own diplomatic relations abroad, although France represents them in nations in which they have no legation of their own.

Saar support

The Saarlanders, although they are almost all Germans, have so far supported the present arrangement overwhelmingly. When the treaty of 1950 was presented to the Saarland Assembly, it was ratified with only a few dissenting votes.

Again, in 1952, the Saarlanders proved their support of the agreements, when, in spite of a German appeal to boycott the polls, 93% of the eligible voters went to the polls and returned a strong majority for Premier Hoffman's Christian People's Party, which supports the continuance of the staus quo.

German protest

West German Chancellor Adenauer immediately protested that the vote did not represent the true will of the people of the people of the Saar. German leaders continued to be virtually unanimous in demanding the return of the Saarland to Germany.

Again today the fate of the Saar is interwoven with that of Europe. What will be the eventual outcome of the controversy no one can now tell.

Death Worth Dying If Living Give Aid

Life is worth living. The illuminating, inspiring lectures of His Excellency, Bishop Fulton J. Sheen, on this topic have revealed the value of a well-led life in bringing to men a measure of the temporary happiness possible while on earth.

But for many there is another common problem which still defies certain solution; namely, "Is death worth dying?" Unfortunately, there isn't any single, living dignitary to whom we may turn for aid in securing a satisfactory, first-hand reply. However, there are the historical Gospels which, according to the Church's teaching, do offer an answer. These authorative records tell us that death possesses value when you die in Christ's friendship or as it is formally known, the state of sancitfying grace. For thence you will enter into the everlasting happiness of Christ's kingdom as the Good Thief did.

Not all are so fortunate, however, as the Good Thief who, immediately upon his departure from this life, found that his death was worth the painful dying. Some never comprehend the value of death. These are the souls of the dammed condemned to endless agony and death in hell. Others are denied knowledge of the true value of death until such time as they have paid in full their just debt to God for offenses committed against Him. These are the suffering souls in Purgatory. Flailed with the self-same torments as the dammed, they patiently for their release. Exiles in death today, they yearn to be partakers in everlasting life tomorrow.

Each year the Universal Church proclaims a special feast day and a special month in memory of this latter group. November 2 was that feast day, All Souls Day; November is that month. From your catachetical school days, you will recall that the Church's purpose in designating such occasions was to encourage others to help those who cannot help themselves. Relegated to a Christless Purgatory, these members of the Church Suffering must endure their punishment without the right of appeal to God. Hope is their only solace, hope that the Church Triumphate and Church Militant will make that appeal which will commute the length of their sentence.

So it is that the Church, ever-mindful of these sufferers' plight, provides times and means with which her other members might aid their hopeful brothers. Among the means available for us, the members of the Church Militant, are the offering up of Masses, the application of indulgences, recitation of the rosary and the daily remembrance of these holy souls in our prayers. Plentiful means, indeed, yet we often neglect to use them. Instead, we allow a permanent forgetfulness to erase the memory of this or that particular soul. Resolutions made in the grief of the soul's dying hour are swept away forever.

Is this the case with us at Villanova? Have we, too, forgotten? The answer lies with you, the individual. If it is no, then well and good. If it is yes, then recall for a minute these names: Liotta, Bujarski, Ellis, Father Dougherty, the Mother or Father of your classmate. Familiar people to most of us, aren't they? Perhaps some of them are in Purgatory, hoping for our aid. At the next tolling of the Angelus, remember them in your prayers. Help them gain the realization of their eternal reward, the proof that death was worth dying.

Honoring Our Saint

The Augustinian Fathers of the Eastern Province will mark the XVI Centenary of the birth of the Holy Founder, St. Augustine of Hippo, with a solemn high Mass of Thanksgiving on Saturday, November 13, at 9 a. m. in the Church of St. Thomas of Villanova. The Very Reverend Henry E. Greenlee, O.S.A. will deliver the eulogy. A special musical program will be sung by the seminarians of St. Mary's Hall.

His Holiness Pope Pius XII by Apostolic Letter of July 25, 1954, directed to all the Augustinian families within the Church noted that while Augustine himself had long since pointed out that the Church did not usually celebrate the birthday of any mortal, excepting the Blessed Virgin and the Precursor, St. John the Baptist; still, the outstanding sanctity and the radiant splendor of his human and divine wisdom were such that the sixteenth centenary of the birth of Augustine should not be passed by in silence.

the Cat's Meow

Quarterlies—This week will be one of coffee, cigarettes, no-doze and plenty of midnight erl. Everyone is brushing the dust from his books and is creasing the backs of the covers for the first time this year. Many freshmen are catching that highly contagious disease, commonly known as the "Shakes."—Don't worry, fellows, it'll all be over by the end of the week, and then we'll be able to get back to our normal routine: cards, coeds, neighboring femme institutions and local pumping stations.—

Seniors—The Class of '55 will have its final blast next weekend, that is, if the dough holds out. Prom Chairman, Bernie Finan, claims that the fieldhouse will look like a real Coney Island when they finish with it. Music for the Belle Air Ball will be a la Lester Linin and his juke-box orchestra. The following night will bring the dinnerdance . . . All in all, the senior weekend promises to be a huge success. . . . Don't forget to get your tickets early!—

Bouquets—Congratulations to Father Krupa and all the members of Belle Masque for the fine display of talent which they showed last week. "Command Decision, was, without a doubt, the equal of Stalag 17. Everyone is looking to the spring, to see if Belle Masque can keep up with, or even surpass, this terrific pace that they have set.—

Lost and Found—Apparently Mr. Frayne has given up all hope of ever finding his speech notes; or is he unable to meet the terms of some enterprising young student?—

WVIL—The Cats living in Sullivan Hall are beginning to think that WVIL's new theme song is: "It was make believe."—

DON'T FORGET THE FRIDAY NIGHT MOVIES AT ROSEMONT!

Monsoons — I thought we would be rid of the mud plague when they paved a walk past Sullivan.—They forgot to connect the walk to Belle Air!!! Several students have been caught in the quicksand pit.—Anyone complaining about the food in the chow-hall can get a catered dinner next Wednesday night at the field house. This is part of the annual Accounting Forum. If you're interested, tickets are available from members of the Accounting Staff. Only $1.75.—

BEAT THE SOUTHERNERS!!!

Debates And Discussion Keep Beta Gamma Busy

This week the VILLANOVAN has the pleasure of highlighting one of the finest and most active organizations on campus, Beta Gamma. This recognition is most fitting since at this time the debating society is celebrating its 25th anniversary. In March, 1929 Prof. Jonas organized the society and through his untiring work Beta Gamma has become what it is today.

In its second year of existence the society engaged in a total of three debates: St. Joseph's, Muhlenberg, and Temple. Last year the society took part in well over 100 debates. This year the possibilities seem unlimited.

The officers of the society for this year are: Joseph Roddy, Pre-Law, President; George Minser, Mechanical Engineering, Vice-President; Bill Eckenrode, C and F, Recording Secretary; Jim Wrzesinski, Electrical Eng., Corresponding Secretary; and Mark McCormick, Arts, Treasurer.

Under the capable leadership of these officers the society has already made an auspicious start. A total of four inter-society debates have been held with one intercollegiate debate versus South Carolina heading the list.

A very active schedule has been planned for the month of November. On Tuesday, Nov. 9, the society will play host to St. Joseph's Villiger Debating society. Four simultaneous debates will be held, two varsity and two novice. These debates will be held at 4:30 p. m. The following day at 8:30 p. m. will find five of the busy debaters on WVIL for an interesting panel discussion. These panels will be held every other Wednesday night. In the near future they will play host to other schools for the discussions. Timely topics are discussed and a good time is had by all.

The following Tuesday, Nov. 16, will find Temple here for four debates, all held simultaneously.

On that Saturday, Nov. 20, one affirmative team and one negative team will journey to Muhlenberg to take part in a tournament there. Many eastern schools will be represented at this tournament.

The very next day will find all of the novices journeying to Immaculatta to take part in a novice tournament there. Villanova will enter five teams of novices. Immmaculatta, Rosemont, and La Salle will also be represented.

After a short layoff for Thanksgiving the debaters will return for four debates with La Salle the afternoon of Nov. 30.

December will find the society traveling to debate such schools as Catholic Unversity, George Washington, Georgetown, American University, Howard, John Hopkins, Loyola, Maryland Law, and Notre Dame. Beta Gamma has certainly come a long way since its three debates of 1929. May they continue to be as prosperous.

Prof. Joseph Jonas

Today at 4:30 p. m. Villanova will debate St. Joseph's on the National Topic, Resolved: The United States should extend diplomatic recognition to the Communist government of China.

The Villanovan invites its readers to submit letters commenting on any item of general interest. Letters to the editor for publication should be addressed to the Villanovan, Villanova, Pa. or placed in the Villanovan box in the business office.

Letters must be signed, although the name will be withheld on request. The Villanovan reserves the right to condense.

WINSTON

brings flavor back to filter smoking!

■ All over America college smokers are flocking to Winston—the new filter cigarette real smokers can enjoy! Winston's got real flavor — full, rich, tobacco flavor! Along with finer flavor, Winston brings you a finer filter. It's unique, it's different, it works so effectively!

The truly superior Winston filter doesn't "thin" the taste or flatten the flavor. New Winstons are king-size for extra filtering action — and easy-drawing for extra good taste. Try a pack of Winstons. You'll really enjoy 'em!

Winston tastes good — like a cigarette should!

WINSTON... the easy-drawing filter cigarette!

Belle Masque Presents:

"Command Decision" Portrayal Crisp, Terse And Well-Paced

Fr. Krupa's Cast In Four-Nighter

By Pat Briody

Belle Masque has come and gone. And with it went one of the most dramatic displays of student abilities ever shown above the Field House footlights.

It is hard to visualize fellows you know personally up on the stage impersonating other people; it is even harder to visualize them "putting it over." But last weekend it certainly was easy to visualize, The show was excellent!

Rev. William Krupa, O. S. A., handicapped by limited facilities and a short time allowance, found superabundant resources in the talent field.
